Now comes the classifying of the tea. Three grades have to be separated, and this is accomplished by sifting by hand or machinery, as the case may be. Through the fine sieves we get the fine Flowery Pekoe, next size the Pekoe, and the large leaf remains, all being cleaned and dusted before packing.

This completes the process of manufacture. There has been no adulteration of any kind, and all the operations have been performed in a factory so clean that one might almost eat his dinner off the well-cemented floor. No smoking is allowed, nor is anything permitted which could possibly contaminate the precious leaf.

In 1878 the exportation of tea from Ceylon was 25,000 pounds; this year the estimate is 61,000,000 pounds, while the consumption of China tea in England fell from 125,000,000 pounds in 1879 to 61,000,000 pounds in 1889. Such an alteration in trade has so alarmed the Chinese that fully five years ago the chamber of commerce at Shanghai sent a commission to Ceylon and India to investigate. The commissioners returned with the warning that if China did not send better and purer teas from her shores and open her gates to the foreigner with his machinery, she must eventually lose her export trade. It is to be hoped that China and Japan will one day tear down these walls of conservatism and open their gates to scientific and modern appliances for the cultivation and preparation of tea. Their export trade is even now in extremities.—Philadelphia Times.

THE CANADIAN GROCER

FALL NUMBER, 1891.

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS.

THE Fall Number of THE CANADIAN GROCER, for 1891, will be issued next week. Its like, both from an artistic point of view and its value as an advertising medium has never before been attempted by any trade journal in Canada. and by few on the other side.

TWELVE thousand copies will be issued, which means that every grocer and general storekeeper in the Dominion will receive a copy.

We take this opportunity of advising advertisers that copy for advertisements must reach this office not later than Tuesday noon, otherwise changes cannot be made.

REDUCED COST TO BUYERS.

Our "No. 1 Telegraph" matches are now packed in Woodboard Caddies, thus reducing the weight of the 10 gross case to about 60 lbs but without reducing the quantity, size or quality. These caddies are printed in assorted colors and make a handsome display. The trade should send their orders at once. Consumers will buy no other matches.

CANADIAN EGGS IN ENGLISH MARKETS.

The experiment of shipping eggs from Canada to England, which began last autumn, when it became absolutely necessary to find a market to replace that which the energy of Mr. McKinley had closed to our Canadian cousins, would seem by accounts to hand to have resulted in a great success, although a year has not passed since the first consignment was laid down at Liverpool. Like all new ventures, it has met with a great deal of opposition, principally from those in the Dominion who are interested in the drawing nearer together of the United States and Canada, and who therefore are inclined to look with disfavor on every move and every enterprise which tends to show that the colony is independent of her neighbor, and can, if the necessity arises, make up in other quarters of the world what it loses by exclusion from America. The question of the shipment of eggs, however, is only another instance of the many that could be adduced to show that the McKinley Tariff has failed of its objects, and has recoiled on the Americans to their serious detriment, for not only has Canada been able to dispose remuneratively in English markets of all her surplus eggs, but consignments have found their way into American markets, notwithstanding the duty, and the consumer has had to pay for the patriotism so-called of the Legislature. In the first instance, many Canadian farmers, despairing of getting rid of the produce of their poultry yards with their usual outlet closed, killed off their hens, in consequence of which there has been a diminution in the supply of eggs on the Montreal market compared with previous years. But the reports sent from this side as to the reception of the eggs by consumers and merchants here were such as to give animation to the trade, and a brisk business has been passing during the present season in what promises to be a permanent and profitable branch of Anglo-Canadian trade. The business of conveying across the ocean and placing on the markets throughout England perishable food-products is an eminently risky one, no matter what department is concerned, but eggs offer an even greater difficulty to the packer and receiver, for the least liability to breakage or exposure renders them unsaleable, save at ruinous prices, by reason of their musty condition and their chipped and broken appearance. Thus it is that success attends those exporters who are able to place their stocks at the different ports in a few days, the large houses in France having such an advantage over their competitors in different centres that, shipping two or three times a week fresh eggs in well ordered cases, they obtain the top prices of the market, those coming from Russia being invariably at the bottom of the list. The seemingly insuperable barrier to the development of a profitable trade in this respect between Canada and the mother country placed in the way by the nine days in transit across the ocean, added to the time occupied in collection from the farmers on the other side, has been got over by the aid of modern science and the energy and enterprise of those engaged in the business at the points of departure, and it has been proved in practice that, by the use of the refrigerator on the Atlantic liners, eggs can be laid down in Liverpool, London or Bristol, not only fresh and in good condition, but free from chipping or breakage, the Canadian exporters having adopted a special style of packing according with the exceptional nature of the cargo.

The proof of the manner in which these eggs are received here is to be found in the fact that they have been fetching almost the best price in the market, the average for the consignments sold here being above 7s. per long hundred, which is considerably in excess of the rates secured for Russian, and compares favorably with those paid for the best Irish and French. Of those that have been disposed of in England during this summer the same flattering description is given as was evoked by the first trial shipments, with the natural result that almost all the surplus stock of Canada has found its way here. During the first three months of the present season—that is, since the opening of navigation on the St. Lawrence to the 31st July—9,000,000 eggs have been shipped from the Dominion to England, the bulk of the consignments going to Liverpool and the North, where they are said to be looked on with great favor, though a certain amount has reached London, and trial shipments have been made to Bristol and other ports. The figures given above may seem heavy, but, as a matter of fact, they bear but a small proportion to the enormous amount brought into the country in the same time from all sources. In the month of July alone there landed in England nearly 91,000,000 eggs, while in the six months the imports were close on 725,000,000, the figures for the whole of last year being 1,234,949,520, to the value of £3,428,802! It will thus be seen that there is a splendid opportunity for Canada to add to her income by the export to this country of her surplus eggs, as we are evidently capable of taking extraordinary amounts of this indispensible adjunct of the breakfast-table, and Canada's opportunity is all the more clear when we reflect that each year's Board of Trade returns give evidence of enhanced consumption to a large extent. Moreover, there is great discontent frequently expressed by receivers here of the condition of many of the Russians, and if Canada can only succeed in displacing these she will have netted a handsome return, as £243,206 has found its way in the past six months, alone into the hands of Muscovite exporters. The value of this new branch of internationa trade is fully realized by this time in Canada and it seems more probable that before long this department of commerce will have become an established and profitable fact with our colonial cousins. The fact that prices have been maintained on the other side in face of the arrival of what is generally the dull season is proof that their has not been such a "crop" as is usual, and the figures of export go similarly to show that all the eggs possible to have been shipped from Montreal have been cleared thence. The commission men on this side having charge of the disposal of the eggs have shown their appreciation by cabeling repeated orders, and many shippers at Montreal have engaged freight for eggs on out going steamers till the end of October, while nearly every vessel clearing from the St. Lawrence port has taken during the past few months eggs as part of its cargo.—Manchester Grocers' Review.

THE EVILS OF ENDORSING.

When we read in a morning paper the other day, writes the editor of the Grocers' Criterion, that a man who was formerly a a wealthy citizen of a prominent city in Indiana was taken to the poor-house in a state of great destitution, as a direct result of going on the bonds of his friends, we came to the conclusion that it was not good policy to endorse bonds. The friends proved false and irresponsible and he was compelled to pay their obligations, and the result was that he was stripped of his fortune and was left in his old age a burden upon the town in which he had long resided.

Now this is but one instance of thousands daily occurring in this country. It is one of the most difficult things in the world for a man to say no to a friend, particularly a political friend, who, in assuming the duties of some responsible office to which he has been elected, is required to give bonds for his integrity and good behavior while in office. It is hard to refuse a friend who is in a pinch for a little ready money when one can accommodate him in such a simple way as by writing one's name across the back of a small piece of paper. Men do this thoughtlessly, often impulsively, and so make themselves responsible for large amounts, for which they do not receive the slightest consideration. Hundreds of merchants have been ruined by endorsing notes and bonds, or becoming security in some way for other people. One who indorses a note or bond never knows exactly how he is coming out. He has nothing to depend on but the promises of the integrity of the party whom he accommodates; and in the majority of cases where bonds are forfeited and the bondsmen are called upon to make up the deficiency or loss, the unfortunate endorser is treated with the greatest ingratitude by the party whom he has accommodated.

Our advice to merchants is, do not endorse. Do not put your name as security on any note or bond without some security to protect you in case the party giving the bond should fail to meet his requirements. Do not ask other people to go on your bond if by any possible way you can avoid it. Avoid borrowing money wherever it is possible, though it may submit you to some inconvenience and require you to practice close economy.

Mr. Wm. Umpherson, Poland, Ont., has sold his general store to Mr. Paul, and has purchased the saw mill of Mr. Parks, about two miles from Poland.

Mr. Stephen L. Bartlett, of Boston, sole representative of Bensdorp's Royal Dutch Cocoa, passed through the city, Wednesday, on his way to Chicago.

A lamp exploded in W. McGaw's grocery, King street east, Hamilton, the other evening. The firemen were called out, but their services were not required.

Messrs. George and Leonard Hargrave, Lindsay, Ont., have purchased Mr. Adam Doran's grocery business, and will take possession on the first of October.

John Hannah, the Seaforth creamery man, recently shipped two carloads of butter, which weighed 48,000 pounds and netted nearly $10,000. It goes to the old country.

The early closing movement on three nights of the week, during the summer, has proved such a success in Arnprior that an effort will be made to continue it during the year.

There is a movement on foot in Smith Falls, to ask the merchants to extend the early closing into the winter months. It is expected that very little persuasion will have to be used, as the merchants all favor the movement.

From some cause not exactly known fire broke out in the roof of Perrin's biscuit factory, London, about 7.30 the other evening, and before it was quenched perhaps $10 worth of shingles had been destroyed. The firemen were called upon.

The E. B. Eddy Co. inform us that there has been no strike at their mills or factories. The trouble was that some rioters from Ottawa and Hull came and attacked their men and the officers of the company, in the open and in the new paper mill now building, and compelled the workmen to desist from work twice in one day only. No attempt was made to enter any of the company's factories; no work was stopped in any of them, and their usual facilities for meeting all the requirements of the trade have not been in any way interfered with.

When the clerk of C. J. Wall's grocery, corner Talbot street and Market sqare, London, opened the store, the other morning, he found a swarm of bees in charge. They had cleaned out one or two boxes of honey, and it took several hours to get them out of the building.

Herbert Mortimer, bookkeeper for Smith & Keighley, is an extremely modest man. He left, ostensibly on his holidays a few days ago, but said nothing about his intention of taking a wife with him. The boys in the warehouse, however, heard of it, and before he got to his house they had placed a handsome piano lamp there.

NEW CROP DRIED FRUIT.

The season for the fall activity in the staple lines of imported dried fruit—raisins and currants—is at hand, and importers are calculating up the chances of the season. Business is gradually improving in them, and already a fair quantity of new crop Valencia raisins, which have been arriving from time to time at Montreal during the last few weeks, has been turned over at prices which, although high as compared with old stock, are not so when the opening figures of former seasons are considered. The difference between old and new stock this season however, is greatly due to the unfavorable markets that the fruit has experienced during the summer just past. However, this difference in price has effected one good object, it has stimulated the demand for old stock until it is almost cleaned up in Montreal so that new fruit will be in a better position. The same remarks apply to New York also, but there is a factor that is receiving the consideration of importers, and one which is worthy of the attention of their Canadian confreres also, which is the competition of California fruit. But at present values, importers believe in the stability of imported fruit, and ground their belief on the small imports from Denia, which are due to the cause mentioned above, viz., California competition. The imports to date at Montreal are much smaller, although the exact figures are not definitely known, while the first direct steamer has not sailed from Denia, where at last reports she was still waiting for fruit. In fact the exports from Denia, thus far this season, have been 50,000 boxes to America, against 468,000 boxes for the corresponding period last year. It is evident, therefore, that California is feared, and from advices from there it is evident that growers in that state will make a strong effort to force their bog fruit into all sections of their home market. In such a case they will have strong bearing on the values of European imported stock on this side the Atlantic.

In currants there is nothing particular except the scarcity of fruit for the moment. The first imports of new fruit have been received at Montreal during the week, and met with a free sale at 6 to 6¼c. in barrels, half barrels and cases.

DON'T DEPEND ON MEMORY.

Doubtless many merchants, says an exchange, each lose hundreds of dollars annually through a defective memory. A failure to make a charge at once for goods is often likely to result in loss or an error, and a disputed account is something a good merchant invariably endeavors to avoid.

A merchant may think he can wait upon two or three customers at once, charge their accounts and keep everything straight, but it takes a wonderful head to do it.

If a storekeeper does not have time to go to his desk and charge up the goods sold to each customer, he should have a small memorandum book always at hand, in which to briefly make a note of the things purchased and price paid for them. It is not very much trouble for him to do this, and it will repay him many times the extra labor it imposes on him before the end of the year.

Another bad policy is to forget to deliver goods at specified hour. Often, by trusting to his memory, the merchant or clerk overlooks the matter, and the customer is put to great annoyance and inconvenience because the goods fail to materialize. It taxes the patence of a housekeeper to be compelled to send twice for goods. A merchant or clerk should never promise to do anything at a given time unless he knows very well he can perform it, and when he agrees to perform any office of the character referred to he should not allow it, under any circumstances, to slip from his memory. Therefore, in writing out an order which is to be delivered, make a memorandum of the time of delivering and have the goods at their destination on or before the hour when they are expected.

Careful attention to the details of business like those enumerated above contribute a great deal to the success of the retail storekeeper. A neglect of these is often one of the causes of failure.

SOME PECULIAR MERCHANTS WE HAVE KNOWN.

Not long ago a circular was sent out by a monthly journal requesting the opinion of competent persons upon the neccessities required for successful drummers in a certain line. One of these gentlemen, who was requested to give an opinion, said that there were so many varieties, all of them being more or less successful, that it was impossible to lay down a golden rule. The same may be said with regard to merchants. While there are some golden rules that are neccessary for success there are at the same time so many peculiarities apparently opposite in their composition, possessed by men who have made their way in the world, that the wonder is how such things are possible. We have known a few successful merchants in our time and must confess that in many cases what has led to the success in one would perhaps have ruined another. It might be interesting reading to call to mind some of the peculiarities possessed by the merchants we have known.

The principal partners in two of the largest wholesale houses in this city are about as opposite in their characteristics as you could imagine any two human beings to be. One is ever ready to say a good word to his patrons, witty and filled with diplomacy. He believes that mollasses will catch more flies than vinegar. He is shrewd with all and always has an eye to making an honest penny. He is successful and may be said to be wise in his generation. The other gentleman is very reserved in his manner and has very little conversational ability, not anxious at all for noteriety, prompt and hardworking, but not briiliant, but practical. Both have been marked successes.

Two manufacturers have wide difference in their general method of business, one we have in mind is almost unknown to the public and his patrons. He never has anything to do with the business relationship of his customers. Men transacting thousands of dollars a year with the firm would not know him if they tumbled over him in the street. Yet he is regular at his factory and sees most of the people with whom business is transacted, but has never anything to say to them and does not care for an introduction. His great forte is his choice of managers and his own shrewd sound common sense in directing the affairs of the concern. He is master of every detail of the manufacturing business and never goes to church. The other we have in mind sees every customer that he possibly can, does six times the amount of work so far as interviews and general business relationship is concerned. His name is often before the public and everybody knows him. He is so religious that at times he will leave his business to attend a prayer-meeting, and is the head and front of the denomination to which he belongs. There is, however, no choice between the two, so far as success is concerned, and both of them are worth millions.

The difference does not only extend to the retail trade, but it extends to almost every branch of trade, commerce and art. A retailer, who is now dead, was a very marked contrast in his success to many others. He was very prompt, absolute in his rules, undiplomatic and lost many customers because he would not bend his knee or make an exception. His store must be open prompt in the morning, but always half an hour behind any other store, and it must be closed prompt in the evening, no matter how many customers there were in the store at the time. He was a kind of rule of three merchant and his store was regulated in such a manner that work was conducted with the regularity of a chronometer. He was a believer in cash trading and wouldn't have opened an account for a Vanderbilt. Indeed, he said the richer a man was there was all the more reason he should pay cash. He was jolly in his way, affable and loved a joke, but was thundering mean and perhaps never gave a ten-dollar bill to charity in his life. He had few friends because they considered him a crank. But it did not trouble him as he supplied his own amusement and was a world to himself. Another merchant, residing in the same town and in the same line of business, was the opposite. His store was open at all hours and closed when it was convenient to his wishes. He bragged that he worked his clerks longer than anybody else and took more money in his business than any of his competitors with the same number of hands. He wasted more money by carelessness that would have been a fortune when he retired from business. He was very obliging, fulsome in dealings with his customers and comparitively successful.

Our readers can possibly make no comparisons of a similar nature to those given above of the drummers that call on them and do business with them. Some sell goods by personal friendship, others by force of character and power of will and others because they represent houses that the merchant likes. There is really no golden rule in any of these lines. In art one artist makes a success because of his power to produce light and shade while another's success is achieved because he is ignorant of the same. Turner painted landscapes, Landseen animals, Mesonier realistic scenes, Raphael portraits, Milais achieved the greatest success with child pictures, Whittler in black and white, and so on, indefinitely, illustrations might be given to prove that success depends much more upon the individual than upon the methods.—National Grocer.

If you want books, it is rarely wise to pay double price for them to a travelling book-seller.

The neglect to look after minute details in the factory is a source of great loss to many producers.

Compare the quality with any other.

GROCERIES.

The wheels of trade have got back into the track out of which they were jostled by the Exhibition, and are running again at about the same rate as they were before that interruption. On Monday morning the travellers resumed their routes. A fairly good business goes on in the wholesale houses, though the brisk activity that is expected to characterise the fall trade has not yet begun. Sugar is in strong demand, canned goods are awakening livelier interest and a very good trade in tea is reported. The state of trade is much better than it was in the latter fortnight of last September. Just yet there seems to be not quite enough loose money to go round, but very sanguine hopes continue to be held of the extent of the trade that will be done in October and the following two or three months.

CANNED GOODS.

The glorious weather we are now having is beginning to tell upon the position of the tomato pack. Under the influence of liberal sunlight the fruit is taking on a glow much more rapidly, and canners are getting some raw material. They still discourage, however, the anticipation of a large pack. One jobbing house also which freely undertook contracts early in the season, declines to book any more, and has no quotations except such as may easily be withdrawn from. Other jobbers quote at $1.10 to $1.20. Corn is not nearly so far on as it usually is at this season. Jobbers complain that receipts are very backward, and retailers seem more importunate for supplies the greater the difficulty is to furnish them. Peas are reported to be a shorter pack than they were estimated to be. One packer has been allowed by several houses to withdraw partially from his contract to furnish peas, he having urgently represented that he would be at least 10 per cent. short of the quantity necessary to fill the contracts already assumed. Round lots of corn and peas in equal quantities quote from $1.05 to $1.10. Salmon is stiffer at the coast, and there are fewer jobbers here who quote as low as $1.35 now. That price, by a misprint, was quoted $1.25 last week. With the majority of dealers $1.40 is the lowest now going.

The B. C. Commercial Journal says of the salmon market: The canneries are winding up their season's pack, and the end of the month will show pretty well how they stand. The northern canneries are all closed, and the pack is being brought down to shipping points as rapidly as it can be handled. The low prices have stimulated consumption in England, which, together with increased inquiry, has had a hardening effect. The last auction sales at Liverpool show an improvement, prices realized varying from 16s. 6d. up to 20s. 3d. A good deal of enquiry from the east is reported. The Serica and Callao will sail about the end of the month for London, and together will take about 84,000 cases.

Sloan & Crowther received on Saturday a carload of corn from the Simcoe cannery, and a carload of tomatoes from the Erie cannery.

The same house received on Tuesday the first car of Clover Leaf salmon that has come on the market this season. The price is $1.45 for talls and $1.70 for flats.

The N. Y. Bulletin says: Canned lobster is merely holding its own in price, and buyers take hold rather indifferently, as though uninfluenced by the reports made early in the season of shortage in the pack. Prices, therefore, merely hold steady. Formerly Prince Edward Island turned off about 100,000 cases in a season. During the one just ended only 40,000 cases were put up at that point, and the entire pack of the province, it is claimed, will exceed the old Prince Edward Island record very little, if at all. Newfoundland packing is put down as being 25,000 to 35,000 cases short, and, upon the whole, the early reports of small aggregate supply made early in the season would appear to be confirmed by latest statistics. Home demand for the canned crustacean is rather slow at present, but export sales have increased somewhat during the past week, and there are still enquiries that promise well for more movement in the same direction later on.

COFFEE.

Rio coffee has taken a drop in Brazil. Spot stock quotes here from 19 to 21c., having declined in sympathy with the movement in the primary market, where stock appears to be very plentiful. As stock bought at present prices in Rio will not arrive for six weeks or two months, there is time for further change before purchases made now come to hand, and Rio advices favor the probability that the change, if there be any, will be upward. On this market the receipts of high grade Rios are small and infrequent, though a demand exists for such grades. Javas and Mochas show no deviation from the quiet trade that usually is maintained in them.

DRIED FRUIT.

Old currants had got into small compass by the time new reached the market. The first of the new crop came to hand on Tuesday. Prices are not materially changed so far, Provincials quoting at 6¼ to 6⅜c. in barrels. Advices from Patras reports the Provincial, Filiatra, and Pergos currants to be largely very common, damp, and of poor keeping quality. Common provincials are selling in the primary market at 2s. below what the grade of currants usually required for the Canadian market is going at. There is therefore a big margin for quotations. Really fine dry stock, owing to scarcity, is held for good prices, but common and damp grades are neglected. Choice Vostizza and Patras are reported to be all bought up. The last direct steamer has left Patras. New sultana raisins arrived on Monday. The opening price is 12 to 14c. The old stock is limited and preferred by bakers. There is a difference of about 40 per cent. between this year's and last year's prices of sultanas. Low grades are expected to touch 9c., but Vourlas will probably be stationary at 14c. Smyrna advices say that rain did considerable damage to the crop, that shippers raided the market and caused a heavy advance. Easier prices are expected to be the rule. The quality of this season's figs is said to be remarkably good. New Valencia raisins are steady at 7½ to 8c., with old at what holders can get for them, which is usually somewhere in the range of 4 to 5c. It is reported that rains in Denia destroyed or damaged about 5000 tons of the Valencia crop.

NUTS.

The nut trade is featureless and of insignificant proportions. All prices remain as they were. There will be no new stock on the market for three weeks yet. The quotations in last week's "Prices Current" require no amending.

An advance of 6d. in Sicily filberts is cabled from Palermo.

RICE AND SPICES.

Rice is in steady request at firm prices. Fine Japan is 5 to 5½c. Other grades are steady at unchanged quotations. The new crop of Japan rice is reported to be very large. Tapioca has advanced 1s. 2d. in England, and is expected to be higher here.

Spices are quite active, September being one of the best spice months in the year. Low prices have characterized them for sometime.

SUGAR.

The sale of sugar is still a very considerable part of current grocery business. Domestic and factory fruit canning continue on a very large scale, as the raw material is plentiful and cheap. Granulated sugar is unchanged at 5 to 5⅛c. Yellows have held pretty steadily at 3¾c. as their lowest point until the beginning of the week when 3⅝c. was reached. This was probably to bring prices closer to those of low grade raws which were receiving the bulk of the attention given to cheap sugars. What makes it more difficult to get yellows down to a basis to compete with low grade raws here is the fact that the refiners had to buy their supply of raw when prices were higher.

Willet & Gray, in their weekly review of the New York sugar market say:

Raws—Very little business was done in either Muscovados or centrifugals until near the close of the week. This delay of buyers had its usual ending by holders giving way 1-16c. in price. Refiners drew largely upon their own stocks to meet their requirements, and they still hold sufficient stock to protect themselves for a while longer, but if the present large demand for refined holds into

MARKETS—Continued.

October, as it gives signs of doing, there must be increased buying from holders who are waiting in expectation of higher prices, and there may be a moderate advance in raw sugars during the next 30 days. There is nothing new regarding the beet crop, the first estimates of which are now due, as manufacture in some countries has begun in a small way. The European markets give no indications at the moment of a tendency either up or down, and are simply waiting.

Refined—The fruit canning season is now in full effect on the sugar market, and the demand for refined exceeds the supply for prompt shipment, and the trade are reminded of the state of things existing during April by the urgency of the orders for sugar. The country is short of sugar, strange as it may appear in view of the largely increased amounts furnished to consumers since April. The exceptionally large fruit crops have exhausted all the jars in the land and canning will very likely be extended into next month, waiting the manufacture of new material. That the grocers generally are anticipating a good month in October is evidenced by the number of orders now coming in for next month's shipment of sugar. There is nothing doing in foreign refined, the quotations for old crop being above parity, and new crop product is not yet available. The Louisiana crop has improved in prospects recently, and a similar crop to last year is now hoped for. The first sugars may be expected about the middle of October. A good part of the crop will no doubt come to the northern refiners, the same as last year.

The Empire's special cable from London to-day says: Cane quiet, nothing doing; beet, dull, little doing.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

The trade in syrups is still a light one, but it has more life in it than it had a fortnight ago. The abundance and cheapness of fruit tend to keep the demand off syrups. There are dark grades as low as 2⅝c., and prices generally rule easier, as quoted in Prices Current. One house bought two cars last week at easy prices. In molasses, movement is not more active than it was a week ago. The stock of West Indies molasses at Montreal, the chief distributing point in the country, is said to be only 5,000 puncheons, as against 14,000 puncheons a year ago. New Orleans molasses, since it ceased to be classed as a syrup by the Customs collectors, has increased very greatly in consumption.

TEAS.

The trade in teas is fairly active. The benefit of the demand, which is much stronger than at the beginning of the month, goes to Japans and Congous chiefly, as these have the main hold on consumers' favor, are in fullest supply throughout the range of value. Young Hysons are very scarce. Low grades of them would for sometime sell freely if they were in stock, though not nearly so large a volume of the demand awaits them as goes to Japans, the latter getting more and more in the ascendancy every year. The lowest prices are 16c. for Congou, 16½c. for Japans, and 18½c., for Young Hyson. Great uncertainty exists amongst buyers as to the probable course of the Indian tea market during the next few months, and prices during the week have been irregular except where the liquors have possessed any special point and character. This uneasy feeling, has doubtless been caused by the greatly increased estimate of crop as given by the Indian Tea Association in Calcutta at the outset of the season, and by the exceptionally early arrival of the crop in quantity, Judging from figures which we have obtained, giving actual production to the 31st ultimo as wired by many of the representative estates in each of the producing districts, the yield to that date—say for two thirds of the season—shows an increase of only 7 to 8 per cent. as against an estimated increase of about 13 per cent. all round.

PETROLEUM.

The prices do not vary for refined, though trade improves. Local business has been very active this week.

The Petrolia Advertiser reports: Petrolia crude $1.35 per bbl., Oil Springs crude $1.35 per bbl. So far as the business in refined oil is concerned this week, it shows a much stronger feeling in the way of business done, although prices have not advanced any. In fact, Refined oil can be purchased for 9c. in bulk. Now there cannot be any money in selling refined oil at that price, but the fact still remains. Of course a number of new wells are being finished every day, both here, in Moor township and Oil Springs. When we hear of parties bonding or purchasing land and contracting for from two to three wells to as high as twenty, one can readily make up his mind that crude oil is not liable to go up into the fifties, where it would have been long before this if the drill had not been so persistently worked. It's the producers own funeral, and of course they must abide by the consequences. No doubt there is one great point that is being thoroughly demonstrated to the outside public, and to those members of parliament who are so desirous of taking the duty off American refined oil coming into Canada, and that is we have thousands of acres of valuable oil lands all through the various townships sourrounding us which are and will be gradually developed. Such being the case we cannot suffer from any depletion in the raw material so that our refiners here can supply this great Dominion of ours with the very best of illuminating oil, without asking any aid from our American friends. The Standard Oil Co. would indeed very much like to make a slaughter market of this country for their accumulaled stocks of Ohio crude, but we hope and trust that "the powers that be" in their wisdom will see that we are perfectly able to take care of ourselves."

DRUGS AND CHEMICALS.

Unchanged prices and quiet trade are about all there is to note in the drug and chemical business. Just now there is nothing in very special demand; the wares that sell being such as are more or less active at all seasons.

MARKETS—Continued.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

There is no very marked activity in the butter trade, but the market cannot be said to be in an unsatisfactory condition. Quicker movement, a wider demand and higher prices are undoubtedly desirable, but, when all things are considered, it must be manifest that the butter market has seldom been in so good a position at this season in past years. In the first place, there is no residue of old stock; and, in the second, a large volume of summer-made stock has gone off through export channels. Country holders evidently believe in the future of the market, and do not readily come to the prices that purchasers for export hold out. A lot of 150 tubs of straight yellows was sold on Friday at 13c., and this was the lowest for that quality of butter reported this season. There is a good market for any quantity of the same kind at the same price. Good table butter in small lots sells freely at 14 to 16c., and seconds at 11 to 13c. The latter abounds. Of bakers' grades there is a marked scarcity, as the poorest butter keeps generally above the price that lard sells at.

Cheese is very firm at 10 to 10½c. The latter price is hard to obtain, but as the stock bought before the advance at the factories decreases, the higher price is more frequently realized. At the factories, prices are 10 to 10⅛c.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

BEANS—Are $1.70 to $1.75. Trade is continued in a small way. The new crop will begin to arrive in a few weeks.

DRIED APPLES—New fruit is offering, but no concern is evinced by buyers. The price is 6c.

EVAPORATED APPLES—New evaporated are opening low, carloads having been offered at 8½ to 9c. The demand side of the market is indifferent.

HAY—Is arriving more plentifully at $11.50 to $12. Pressing is reported to be more general.

HIDES—There is no change. No. 1 green are 5c. for hides of less than 60 lbs. weight, and 5½c. for hides of not less than that weight. Cured sell at 6c., a car having been shipped at that price on Monday.

HONEY—Is featureless and in light demand at 14 to 16c. for sections, and 7 to 10c. for strained.

HOPS—Are coming into more prominence, though they are not yet very active. New rule at 20 to 25c., and yearlings at 15 to 18c.

ONIONS—New are in and selling at $2 to $2.25 per barrel.

POTATOES—Are dull. Cars can scarcely be disposed of, because wholesalers find no outlet for them. The local demand is the only one looked to for a market, and that is clogged by large street receipts. The price is 35c. on track and 40 to 45c. out of store.

SHEEPSKINS—Are plentiful at 65c. Calfskins are quiet at 5c. for No. 2, and 7c. for No. 1.

WOOL—Are not more eager than they have been for the past several weeks to take quantities at 19c., but supplies keep on arriving.

FISH.

The activity noted last week was but local and temporary, the Exhibition demand being the main sustainer of it. There is some trade now, but cooler weather is needed to bring it up to the level of the usual fall average. Pickerel are 6c. pike 5c. whitefish and salmon trout are 7 to 8c., lake herring are $2.50 to $3, haddock are 6c., B. C. salmon are 16c.

FRUITS.

Fewer peaches are arriving. Prices are consequently stiffer. Early Crawfords are $1 to $1.15, and others are 75 to 85c. Bartlett pears are steady and in lower supply at $4 to $4.75 per barrel. Apples are growing scarcer at $1.75 to $2.75 per barrel. Watermelons are neglected and easy at 5 to 10c. each. Musk melons are $1.50 to $1.75 per barrel. Tomatoes are 20 to 25c. a basket. Egg plant is 25c. Grapes are 2½c. for Champions, 4c. for More's Early, 3 to 3½c. for Concord, 5c. for Rogers and 4c. for Jessicas.

GREEN FRUIT.

There is a very good trade in lemons, of which at the moment there is a very limited stock. Messinas are scarce at $4 to $5.50. Maoris are probably out of stock, as also are Verdellis. Sorrento oranges are $3.75 to $4.50. Jamaicas are $8 to $8.50. Bananas are $1 to $1.50. Sweet potatoes are $3.25 to $4.25.

PROVISIONS.

The continuance of hot weather keeps the demand as high as at midsummer. Stocks are declining rapidly and prices are stiff.

BACON—Long clear is 8¾c. The movement of stock has been confined to trade lots. Smoked back and bellies are 11c., and rolls are 9c.

HAMS—There is no change in the demand, which is active at 12½ to 13c. for smoked.

LARD—The stock of pure receives small additions from current slaughter, but the stock is still small at 10¼ to 10¾c. Compound is active at 8½ to 9c.

MESS PORK—There is little doing in mess pork. It sells at $15 to $15.50 for heavy, and $16.50 to $17.25 for short cut.

DRESSED HOGS—An occasional car arrives at $6.50. Street receipts at about the same figure are quite numerous.

SALT.

A fairly good demand for salt is reported by the manufacturers. Prices are steady at last weeks quotations, Viz.: dairy $1.25, sacks 70c., barrels $1.20. These are the prices for cars.

DRY GOODS.

The brighter aspect of the outlook as well as the quickened life of current trade, which were noted in last weeks report are more conspicuous in this week's business. Of course this week's business was rather a spasmodic than a normal spell of activity, but it has not been followed by the calm that generally comes after such spells.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Sept. 24, 1891.

Trade in groceries is still quiet in a strictly wholesale sense, although jobbers report a little more activity in a small way, consequent upon the fact that it is exhibition week, which has brought with it its incidental purchasers. This, however, cannot be called the regular fall movement, which still keeps off. The fact is there will be no continued period of activity until the farmers are through with their crops and have got the money buttoned up in their inside pocket. Once this feat is accomplished some business may be expected in a regular way. Of course there is business doing all the time from first hands, which at intervals, recently, has quickened into a really active move, but this was due to anticipation on the part of jobbers who, when they considered that they had supplied themselves far enough ahead, discontinued operations. These spells of buying, however, may be taken as an earnest of what is to come, viz., a good active fall business, which should follow the bountiful crops of grain, etc., that Canada has been blessed with. As to actual business features for the week, there are few. They may be condensed as sugar, steady and quiet; dried fruit firmer, especially raisins; tea nothing particular doing, and country produce, etc., etc., without especial feature.

SUGAR, ETC.

The movement continues small in so far as wholesale business is concerned, and there are few features to note. The tendency of values is distinctly firm, and the general impression is that as soon as the present lull is over, and jobbers commence to operate, a good active movement will ensue. At present the latter are doing some business in a small way, but they are not taking any fresh supplies of consequence. Granulated rules steady at 4⅝c., and yellows 3⅝c. to 4¼c. In raw sugars there is not any more business to note than in refined stock. Refiners grades of raw are held for about 3¼c. While grocery Muscovados have been moved from first hands at 3¾ to 4c. for round lots. There is nothing doing in syrups, the demand being limited to a small call for actual wants, prices ruling steady at 2¾ to 3¼c. Molasses, however, has a free movement in 25 and 50 puncheon lots at 38 to 38½c.

TEAS.

There is a fair sort of business doing in teas, but nothing very special, while supplies here are light. Low grade Japans, as usual, find the most favor at steady values, while blacks continue quiet and no further movement is reported in greens.

COFFEE AND SPICES.

The coffee market shows a weaker feeling, although little change can actually be cited as ruling on the spot market. The alteration is due to the fact that Rios have taken a big drop over the line, but there is comparatively no stock on the market, so the change is not appreciable to the same extent. However, business has been done at 19 to 19½c., which is a fractional decline, and Jamaicas are on about the same level.

Spices show a firmer tendency, but there has been no important business as yet to fully demonstrate this.

RICE.

The demand for rice has fallen off to a certain degree since our last, but there is still a fair movement in progress. We quote Patna, $4.50 to $5.00; Japan, $4.25 to $4.50; standard, $3.90, and off grades $3.50 in car lots.

DRIED FRUIT.

The week has not been an active one in new fruit, but there has been a fair business doing for all that in new crop Valencia raisins, although it is not so large as some of the importers would like, a feature in the respect is the wide difference in price between old stock and new, the former being much lower and this has materially stimulated its sale so that there is practically none to be had here, about 3c. being the nominal idea. However despite this difference in price the values on new crop are not high as compared with the opening prices last season. so that it is disappointing to many that business should not be greater. The stock that has arrived so far has sold freely in a small way at 6¼c. A consignment that arrived in port to-day being turned over on this basis. All the fruit so far received has been via Liperpool, and the first direct steamer has not left Denia yet, where she was at last reports waiting for fruit. Nothing in the way of business has transpired in relation to her lots, but advices from primary market show a distinctly firm tendency, and would mean equal to over 6c. laid down here. The same state of affairs prevails in New York, where however the California offerings are a factor for consideration. The first receipts of new crop currants have been received lately and met with a fair demand as the old stock is practically nil, scarcity having been a ruling factor for some weeks back. The shipment mentioned above has been partly turned over already at 6c. per brl., 6⅛ for half barrels and 6¼c. in cases.

CANNED GOODS.

The jobbing and wholesale trade in canned goods is quiet at the moment. Salmon appears to be plentiful now, more so than was expected, and one dealer has sent out circulars offering a leading brand at $1.15 on the coast. As already mentioned the tomato pack is very large, and nothing has transpired of importance since our last. In the natural course of events, though, values should rule very easy. The heavy crop of fruit is having the same effect, and nothing is doing, as buyers are operating very cautiously in anticipation of more favorable terms. Values, therefore, are generally nominal.

GREEN FRUIT.

There is no change in lemons or oranges, business in them being of a normal kind of steady values. Jamaica oranges in barrels move at $7 to $8, and Sorrentos at $3.50 to $4.50 per box. Lemons meet a quiet demand at $3 50 to $4 per box, and on round lots firmer.

FRESH FRUIT.

The market, generally, has been abundantly supplied, and values rule very easy on all descriptions. Grapes are a plentiful offering, Concords moving easy at 2 1-2 to 3c., and others from 3 1-2 to 6c. Pears are not so plentiful as they were, but there is sufficient for the demand, and prices are unchanged. Bartletts rule at $6 to $8, and Flemish beautys $3.50 to $4.50 the brl. Plums are nearly done, those arriving, mostly, showing a wasted condition, selling from 30 to 40c. per basket. Peaches are a light receipt now selling from 75c to $1, as to quality.

APPLES.

As the season advances, the crop gives every promise of being enormous, and a dealer who has just returned from a trip through the various districts in Ontario, etc., says: That 1,000,000 barrels as the Canadian output is not excessive. The fruit shows splendid quality, but the large crop is inducing operators to proceed very cautiously. At present $1.00, or thereabouts, is being asked for the fruit picked, and $1.60 f.o.b., on the cars. Fall apples are coming in freely—St. Lawrence, etc.—and meet a fair demand at $1.00 to $2.00. Some small export consignments of them are also going forward on growers' account.

HOPS.

This product continues to present an indefinite aspect as far as actual business on spot is concerned. It is certain though that considerably lower values have been accepted for new crop stock than was paid for the first purchases. It is well known that considerably under 20c. has been accepted in the country for new crop, and some stock from one of the best growers in Canada would be parted with at the figure mentioned on spot, but buyers at the basis are hard to find. The fact is brewers are only taking for immediate wants, and therefore content themselves with a bale or so at a time. They evidently don't expect values to advance.

PROVISIONS.

There is a good jobbing trade in provisions, especially in pork, which moves freely at quotations. Smoked meats are also receiving considerable attention, but lard continues in slow demand:—We quote Canadian short cut, per barrel is quoted at $17.00 to $17.25; mess pork, western, per barrel $15.25 to $15.75; short cut, western, per brl $17.00 to $17.50; hams, city cured, per pound 10½ to 11½c.; hams, canvassed, per lb 0 00 to 0 00c.; lard, Canadian, in pails, 8¾ to 9c.; bacon, per pound, 9 to 10c.; lard, com., refined, per lb, 7¾ to 8c.

EGGS.

Reports from the country state that dispite the tariff provisions, American buyers are taking all the eggs they can lay their hands on in the Morrisburg district, paying as high as 14c. for good fresh stock, all of which is going into cold storage, either for shipment across the line later, or some other source of outlet. In consequence of these operations, supplies of strictly fresh stock on spot are small, and prices have advanced to 14 to 14¼c. per doz. Medium and poor stock however continue in large supply and, are hard to move at 10c. to 12c., candled stock being only in fair demand at 13c.

BUTTER.

The market is a steady one, with a fair demand for late made creamery for shipment, but otherwise there was nothing special to mention during the week. Holders, however, do a good deal to check business by their policy of holding for extreme values. For business in a regular way 21c. is the idea for August on spot, but more could be made for September creamery if it were here. In Western dairy there is nothing doing for shipment, and the demand for local wants is only a bagatelle. Finest creamery 20½ to 21c, finest townships 16 to 17c., finest Western 14½ to 15c.

CHEESE.

The big operators by their speculative operations have put factorymen into such a humor, aided by the supplementory of small local speculators throughout the country, that values have been forced altogether too high, and as a result the market drags along slowly, and business in a regular way, at a fair margin, is entirely precluded by the first cost of the article. Therefore there is little to note of importance. Finest Brockvilles, etc., 10 to 10⅛c. Finest Eastern and States 9⅞ to 10c. Fine 9¼c. Medium 8 1-2 to 9c. Cable 45s. 6d.

GRAIN.

The grain market shows no change locally, but deliveries at interior points in Manitoba are more freer. The stocks in store show a decrease of 85,359 bushels of wheat, 2,987 bushels of rye, and an increase of 2,500 bushels of corn, 47,685 bushels of peas, 14,463 bushels of oats, 582 bushels of barley, compared with a week ago, and an increase of 97,427 bushels of wheat, 51,034 bushels of oats, and 4,261 bushels of rye, and a decrease of 7,673 bushels of corn, 8,213 bushels of peas, and 13,546 bushels of barley. We quote:—No. 2 hard Manitoba, $1.05 to $1.07; No. 3 do., 97c.; No. 2 Northern, $1.04, peas 80c. per 66 pounds in store; 81c. afloat; oats, 34 to 35c. per 34 pounds; corn, 75 to 77c. duty paid; feed barley, 50c.; good malting do., 55 to 57c.

FLOUR.

The small tiff between the two big city millers here and the reduction prices that it caused has not brightened up the market to any appreciable extent, for buyers obstinately pursuit the hand to mouth policy. The stock in store shows a decrease of 3,578 barrels compared with a week ago, and 4,238 barrels compared with a year ago. Patent spring $5.25 to $5.50, patent winter $5.25 to $5.50, straight roller $4.85 to $5.00, extra $4.60 to $4.70, superfine $4.20 to $4.30, city strong bakers' $0.00 to $5.25, strong bakers' $5.00 to $5.25.

A BIG SURPRISE CAUSES RANDOM GUESSES.

Of the exhibits in the Main building at the Industrial Exhibition none attracted more attention than that of the St. Croix Soap Manufacturing Company, whose brand, the Surprise, has now an enormous sale in every part of the Dominion. Morning, noon, and night the exhibit was surrounded by thousands anxious to see the enormous cake of Surprise soap which was enclosed in a large glass case inside the stand. U. C. packages of this soap were built up in a huge pyramid, and 75,000 samples were given away to be tested by housekeepers, who will thus be made familiar with the superior qualities of this kind of soap for household purposes. The St. Croix Manufacturing Co. placed the big cake of soap on exhibition for the purpose of giving the people an opportunity of guessing its correct weight, coupons being provided free for that purpose. These coupons, when filled in, were deposited in a large box, and the lucky guesser was to receive a prize of $200. Mr. W. J. Forrestall, the Ontario representative of the Company was in charge of the exhibit, and he and his assistant were taxed to the utmost to keep pace with the demands for coupons. At the hour the cake was to be weighed the stand was surrounded by a surging crowd, anxious to hear what the correct weight was. However, Mr. John I. Davidson, president of the Board of Trade and Mr. R. Barron, president of the Grocers' Association, who had the arrangements in their own hands, decided not to announce the weight at that time, but to do so when the cupons had been examined and the name of the winner known. The whole exhibit, including the big cake, was sold to Michie & Co., who will place it in their window. Some idea of the interest this guessing competition has arroused can be gathered from the following, which appeared in the Detroit News last Wednesday:—"The centrepiece of an Industrial Exhibition is the Main building. Here I find that the principal attraction of the Main building is a very nice looking young man, with a lovely moustache, giving away small packages of prize soap. So great is the eagerness of the crowd to obtain this soap that the railing around this building is broken down every day in the mad rush for soap. Here is also found a huge cake of soap, upon the weight of which the people are guessing for a $200 prize. The interest in soap here is something enormous. This popular interest in soap exeeds the expectations of the managers, and at times the services of a dozen policemen are required to force the people from this exhibit to the Art gallery.

The weight of the soap is announced in the following report of Messrs. R. Barron and John I. Davidson :—

TORONTO, Sept 19, 1891.

Messrs Wright & Copp, 40 Wellington street east, Toronto.

DEAR SIRS : The weight of the bar of Surprise Soap as weighed by us was 947 pounds.

The $200 will have to be divided among eleven persons who were the nearest to the exact weight. They will have to forward their coupons to Messrs Wright & Copp, 40 Wellington street east, the Toronto agents of the St. Croix Soap Co., who will pay them the divided amount at once.

CAPE COD'S CRANBERRIES.

It will be a merry and busy time among the sunny sand knolls of Cape Cod this week, says a despatch from Chatham, for then about 1,000 berry pickers will begin to gather its great cranberry harvest. In all Barnstable county, from Buzzard's Bay to the tip end of Provincetown, every level bog among the hills will be bright with the gay garb and animated by the chatter of squads of nimble-fingered pickers.

Most of the harvesters are Cape Cod lads and maidens, who have become expert pickers after long practice, and who, like the country women of Connecticut, yearly earn snug little fortunes at gathering cranberries in September. Some of the best harvesters, though, are Portuguese, who came years ago in whalers from the Azores to the cape, and others are cotton mill hands from Fall River and New Bedford, who looked forward all the year with happy expectations to the annual outing in the cranberry bogs among the fragrant pine woods of the cape.

Clean, sweet and pleasant work it is, that of cape cranberry picking, for the harvesters are in the mild sunlight and wholesome salt air from sunrise till sunset, and at night the stars shine into the open windows of their cabins at the bay, and the night wind comes to them laden with the aroma of pines and ocean. The giris sing and chat at their work in the dry fragrant bogs, the fellows whistle and shout, and make love to the maidens, and pretty nearly a third of the nuptial engagements in the villages between Plymouth and Provincetown are made in the cranberry patches of the cape in September.

The long drought of the summer did not help the cape cranberries, but heavy rains the other day succored them in the nick of time, so they are ripening well now and the crop will be an average one. "It is no better and no worse than that," said Mr. A. D. Makepeace, the cranberry man of West Barnstable, the other day. "If the drought had continued two weeks longer, the berries would have been seriously injured. The Wareham and Carver crops caught more rain and are in a very good condition. I expect, on the whole, that we shall get a fair average crop unless something unexpected happens, for you see the cranberry crop is an extra hazardous one to raise at best, there are so many things that may occur suddenly and spoil the crop. The prices, I anticipate, will open at about the same figure as last year, that is, about $7 a barrel. That is what the sellers reasonably ought to expect, but of course the buyers will have a good deal to say about that when they get together and decide on the price.

"The harvesting is about to begin all along the cape, and the uniform price of ten cents per measure of six quarts will probably be paid by most bog owners to the pickers. There may be a few cases where extra inducements will be offered to pickers, but 10 cents have come to be the uniform price all through south-western Massachusetts. We have little difficulty in getting all the pickers we need."

A WORD TO THE YOUNG MEN.

Too many young men at the present time have an altogether wrong impression of life. Seeing those about them in a prosperous business, employing a large capital, with an immense plant, and doing business on a large scale, they are ambitious to do the same. They do not stop to consider that it has taken years, possibly generations, to develop what they see. They only see it as it is, and believe that in order to become successful it is necessary to do business in the same way, upon the same extensive scale.

A prominent writer says that the great industrial enterprises of the world have, as it were, developed unconsciously to those who have been their principal manipulators. Many of them have commenced so insignificantly that some of our bright young men of to-day would scorn the idea of commencing life in a similar manner. It is said that one of the largest sugar refining institutions of the world was commenced by a single kettle virtually over a kitchen fire, and we know positively of one business which was capitalized very recently for a couple of million dollars that was started in a small wash kitchen, when the stock in trade, fixtures, machinery and business utensils would not have brought $20 under the hammer, and the man who started it lived to see it placed on the market at $2,000,000, and declared several years successful dividends. We know of another business enterprise, which to-day is worth at least $2,500,000, that was commenced on $100, and that was borrowed.

Constant dropping wears away the stone. Constant work, intelligently directed, brings success. It is idle to say that there are no opportunities and things are not what they used to be. The opportunities of to-day are just as great as they ever were, if we only have the ability and the energy to take advantage of them. Mistakes will occur, and bright prospects are sometimes blasted, but the fault generally lies with the individual, and not with the circumstances or with the opportunity. We have heard men say that they have failed to do certain things because circumstances have been against them. Our reply is that they failed because they did not have the ability to make the most of their opportunities and guard against loss. There are many palliating circumstances, we must admit, but it is the individual who has the ability to get up and get who brings success. Many men fail ; some men fail often. Yet all of these ultimately succeed, simply because they do not and will not give up. They are just as ready and eager for the fray as they were before they had been knocked down twice. Indeed, the partial failure has only acted as an incentive for increased effort.—Exchange.

NO SUCH THING AS LUCK.

"You young people," said a successful banker, "are fond of talking of luck and chance. As for myself, I do not believe in either.

"Each year that I live I am more impressed with the order and meaning which underlie events—the least as well as the greatest. Under this inexorable law the smallest incident in our lives works for our good, if we try to do right. If you live long enough to look back, and are observing and thoughtful, you will find this to be true.

"There was a certain snow storm, for example, which for twenty years I regarded as the unluckiest accident of my life. This is a true story, remember.

"At the time of this storm I was a young man just beginning my business career as a clerk in the employ of a large firm of cotton brokers," says a writer in the Jamesbury Advance.

"A heavy hail storm had broken down the telegraph poles coming into the place, and I was bidden to take a despatch to the nearest city and send it by wire to New York. The success of a large venture which the firm had made depended on it.

"I set out in a sleigh with a stout pair of horses; but the fiercest snow storm I ever knew set in, and before I had made half the distance to my destination the drifts were impassable.

"I was forced to turn back. As I plowed my way through the night and storm, I heard a feeble cry for help, and found buried in the snow by the roadside a woman and her child nearly frozen. The almshouse was near and I managed to reach it with them. The mother died that night, but the child lived and remained in the almshouse.

"I could not send the despatch. In consequence our firm lost a third of its capital, and in the financial embarrassment that followed I was thrown out of employment and went to the West.

"For years, as I said, I regarded that storm as a cruel accident.

"But when I look back at it now I find that the loss of money was but a temporary matter, which affected no human life seriously. The firm recovered from the shock in a year or two. My 'ill luck' forced me to exert myself as I had never done before, and new avenues of success opened before me.

"The boy, who would have died if I had not been driven back by the storm, was a thin, nervous little fellow, full of energy and courage. He pushed his way through school and college, became a specialist in medicine, and has made scientific discoveries which have benefited the civilized world.

"We grumble against fate whenever our plans are defeated by what we call accident or luck. It is not in a day, perhaps, nor in a year, possibly not in this life, that we shall see the whole meaning of the defeat. But God sees it, and I am sure means the defeat as a part of our education."—Exchange.

No doubt "ill luck" is the poor excuse of many who do not succeed, whereas the proper term should be want of ability. And yet we take it no man would assert that luck or good fortune does not enter largely into business and every day life.

We overheard the captain of a Boston schooner tell a little story the other day to this effect: "I have been sailing up and down Boston harbor for years," said he; "hardly a day have I been far distant from a certain point on which a schooner went ashore yesterday. But on that day I was obliged to sail out to another port, and when I was there a shooner went ashore. A tramp boat came along and helped her off and got $3,000 salvage. I sailed by ten minutes later. There was ill luck for you."

Can any one gainsay that? A man dies and a clerk steps into the business. Of course he must have ability to carry it on—but another clerk may have just as much ability and work for a man who lives on and on—he has no chance to rise.

Had there been no rebellion, Grant would have died unknown, and so we might go on giving similar cases.

Mind you, we have no sympathy with those who are continually crying about ill luck, nor yet for those that wait, Macawber like, for something to turn up. But we do claim that luck and chance do play a part in the world. Opportunity gives some men the chance—let the men be equal to it. To others it may not come, and they have no opportunity to know whether or not they would be equal to it.—New England Grocer.

THE LESSON OF A RECENT COMMERCIAL FAILURE.

The recent suspension of a prominent retail house in this city is ascribed on good authority to the ambition of its proprietor to do a more extensive trade than the means at his command warranted. Having by enterprise and hard work attained success in a moderate way of business, like many other merchants under similar circumstances, it was his ambition to branch out in a bigger establishment on a more prominent thoroughfare, where rents and other expenses of doing business were largely increased, without a corresponding gain in sales. Financial embarrassment—the usual result—followed this step, which it is probable would not have occurred had a more conservative policy been followed. The merchant who has the wisdom to let well enough alone, and to restrict his business to safe limits, not only makes more money than those who possess less discretion, but what is even better, preserves his dignity and peace of mind. The position of the trader who must give the best part of his time to "shinning around" to provide means to carry on a business too large for his capital, is most unenviable. The attention demanded to the details of even a small business, if success is to be attained therein, will absorb the best energies of its proprietor. When to this is added the anxiety incident to insufficient means, prosperity is next to impossible. There are found now and then merchants of such rare financial skill that they are able to overcome even so great an obstacle to success as lack of capital, but they are the exception rather than the rule. Recent statistics of mercantile failures on this coast show that 40 per cent. of these disasters came not from inexperience in trade, but from insufficient means. The loss to creditors by failures thus caused is by no means the worst feature of this exhibit. In a majority of such instances solvent merchants are obliged to meet the competition of such insolvents, which is often of the most risky character.—Ex.

CERTIFICATES OF STRENGTH AND PURITY.

OFFICE OF THE PUBLIC ANALYST,

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Co., Montreal:

GENTLEMEN,—I have personally taken samples from a large stock of your Granulated Sugar, "REDPATH" brand, and carefully tested them by the Polariscope, and I find these samples to be as near to absolute purity as can be obtained by any process of Sugar-Refining.

The test by the Polariscope showed in yesterday s yield 99·90 per cent. of Pure Cane Sugar, which may be considered commercially as ABSOLUTELY PURE SUGAR.

JOHN BAKER EDWARDS, P.L.D., D.C.L., F.C.S.,

Public Analyst for the District of Montreal, and Professor of Chemistry.

CHEMICAL LABORATORY, MEDICAL FACULTY, McGILL UNIVERSITY.

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Company:

GENTLEMEN,—I have taken and tested a sample of your "EXTRA GRANULATED" Sugar, and find that it yielded 99·88 per cent. of Pure Sugar It is practicaHy as pure and good a Sugar as can be manufactured.

Yours truly,

G. P. GIRDWOOD.

It is well-known

That successful Doctors read all the latest medical books and papers and go abroad occasionally to study. Successful lawyers read legal publications to learn the latest legal decisions and points constantly cropping up. Teachers, clergymen, druggists, architects, all read the publication issued in the interests of their profession. They must do so to keep up with the times.

The same applies to grocers and general merchants. They must not only read the best papers published in their interests but must also watch the advertisements closely. There they learn the rise and fall in prices; latest trade news and methods of buying, handling and selling goods, so that they may make the greatest profit. A doctor reads much that he already knows, so does a lawyer. So does a number of any of the other professions. So will a merchant. It is often the issue of the paper he misses that is worth dollars to him. His best and safest policy, therefore, is to subscribe for his trade paper.

The only exclusively grocery and general store paper is THE CANADIAN GROCER issued weekly, subscription price $2.00 per year.

--- THE SUCCESSFUL GROCER ---

READS HIS TRADE PAPER.

OCTOBER 2, 1891.

DEAR SIR,

We beg to hand you herewith a sample copy of THE CANADIAN GROCER and ask you to look over it carefully, not for the sake of passing the time, and with the idea that its pages cannot contain anything of value to you, but with the same carefulness and attention that you would give to a new investment on which you expected good returns.

You are one of a few who are not now subscribers to THE CANADIAN GROCER. We know that it is only the matter of a short time when every grocer and general storekeeper in Canada will be on our lists. But we want them now. You would have been with us long ago if the matter had been put to you as plainly as it is now. Supposing a line of goods were offered you in which you could make a profit of fifty per cent., would you let it pass? One year's subscription to THE CANADIAN GROCER will pay you One Hundred per cent. at the least. Such has been the experience of others.

Reliable reports of the leading markets are given. This feature alone will often save many times the subscription. To prove this we quote from a commercial traveller's letter received the other day. He says:—" * * * * I have watched with a great deal of interest the growth of your paper, which is now acknowledged to be the best in Canada. Your editorial and market columns are replete with information, and your selections from leading American papers are always good. By the way, I sometimes think the wholesale prices you quote are just a little below the mark, at least it sometimes happens that they are below what I am at liberty to sell at, but as your paper is published particularly in the interests of the retail trade, I suppose it is commendable to err on the right side, or in the interests of your customers, but the trouble is the prices quoted on some things occasionally show no margin at all, and the storekeeper is willing to swear that you are right." The news is entirely for and about business men; articles dealing with the best and most profitable ways of conducting business, being the experience of successful merchants, articles on the latest and most approved methods of window dressing, interior store arrangements, with photogravure illustrations of the best grocery stores in the country, office arrangement, advertising, handling clerks, etc., are given from time to time. Will you give it a trial? The subscription price is TWO DOLLARS per annum. Fill out the blanks on page 42 of this number, return at once and get the balance of the year free.

Vol. V. TORONTO, OCTOBER 2, 1891. No. 40

WITH the feeling that we have done our best to make it a credit to the season, we deliver this year's Fall Number of THE GROCER into the hands of our readers. If it calls forth a little admiration from them, it will repay us for the outlay of time, money and special effort that has been made upon it. As to our own opinion of it, we naturally think that there is little in the best conception of a fall number that is not realized in this particular one. It is much larger and more handsome than our autumn issue of last year. The difference is due to and indicates the progress THE GROCER has made since a year ago. It is as an index of our rate of progress that we wish the Fall Number always to be taken, and if each future year's stride onward is as great as that of last year, the future Fall Numbers will improve upon each other by the same ratio of progression as that of this year improves upon that of last year.

This number, ample though it is, does not quite fill out the scale of the plan we had designed for it The cause of this is that we preferred to be punctual rather than ideal. We had a time to appear, and we have appeared just when we are due, according to promise. We regret that this promptness must cause disappointment to advertisers whose copy was not forthcoming early enough to go in. It was not our fault, however, as warning was more than once given that the Number could not wait. If we had taken a week longer, several additional pages would have been put in to afford room for the advertising matter that had to be left out. Sixty-four pages make up a bulky volume to go out in one issue of a paper, and the fact of that space being inadequate to meet the advertising demand upon it, supplies its own comment. It shows that the extent and character of our circulation are appreciated. Some other valuable matter we strained a point in vain to find room for. Articles specially contributed by members of the trade fully qualified to write upon the subjects discussed have been crowded out. Several illustrations had to suffer the same fate. None of the material we had would have been superfluous if we could have foreseen, in time to make provision for, the great demand upon our space by advertisers. As it is, the excess matter which overflows from this Number would of itself make up a very good special issue.

It is pretty generally known to all whom it concerns—that is, to the manufacturers and jobbers whose goods retail through the grocery and general store trades—that THE GROCER can count more individual connections with those trades than any other paper or medium in Canada. It is the great nerve centre of these trades. It is the organ though which the advertiser or agitator of any movement for the benefit of these trades can make the strongest impression upon them. And it is so regarded. This year we have gone on filling in the gaps in our list at all the points where grocers and general merchants trade. In most places the list is solid, presenting no unfilled outlines for the names of traders not in it. Not only is our subscription list a dense one ; it is also far-extending. There is no grocer west of Winnipeg whose name is not on it as a subscriber in full standing. In the whole Canadian trade numbers few non-subscribers.

The great scope of our circulation must be satisfactory to our readers. The friends of the trade must regard with hope the growth of any common agency for its welfare. Associations have come into existence rapidly and in large numbers, but these manifestations of community of trade feeling are not always connected with what is their most fertile cause. That cause is THE CANADIAN GROCER. It has diffused and inculcated association principles until the whole body of the trade is gradually becoming impregnated with them. It leavens the whole mass of the trade with the example of associations whose doings it reports. THE CANADIAN GROCER is the most successful thing that has resulted from common action on the part of the trade. Its success ought to give encouragement to adherents of the idea that a national association can be welded together out of the local bodies scattered throughout the country. It also shows that wholesalers and retailers can put shoulder to shoulder and work out a common end, and if they can do it in one thing they can do it in another without bracing against each other at opposite ends of the yoke.

A review of our pages throughout the year intervening between this and our last Fall number, will show that events, movements, and tendencies have chased each other rapidly across the horizon of trade. None of them have been too fleet-winged to be caught and reproduced in THE GROCER. Our record for the year is a long one. It comprises the report of all news bearing upon our readers' interests ; the editorial presentation of all the trade questions that have occurred ; articles upon the causes of failures, stock-keeping, book-keeping and like subjects ; the extension of association influence ; the views of intelligent and well-informed readers upon timely topics ; sketches of successful business men ; detailed market reports; the advertisements of leading distributors. The value of such matter we leave our readers to estimate, and we take their awards every day in renewals.

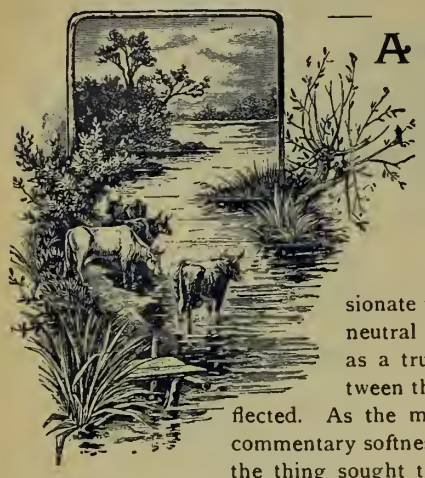
In a year when the forces of nature have wrought so generously by man, and at a season when the store-houses of the country are bursting with fulness, it is a source of satisfaction to us to find warrant in the circumstances of our own progress to issue a Number whose key note is that of the prosperity of the season. And as the autumn fair exhibits products of the year's industry in attractive array with the sole commercial object of promoting busines between buyer and seller, so the Fall Number, with its copious assortment of advertisements laid open before the eyes of thousands, brings advertisers and retailers together in what my be called an autumn fair issue.

The Facts in Market Reports.



A MARKET report is useful only to the extent to which it is trustworthy. If it is not trust worthy itis worse than useless: it is injurious. To be reliable, it must be based on full information, and expressed in an independent medium. It is a dispassionate presentation of facts. It is neutral between buyer and seller, as a true mirror ought to be between the sight and the object reflected. As the mirror should introduce no commentary softness or harshness to modify the thing sought to be beheld, so the report should aim at strict identity between the fact and the professed utterance of the fact. In one sense the report should not be a market influence. That is, it should not weigh a grain on the side either of cheapness or dearness: it should be neither a bull nor a bear. In another sense it ought to be a market influence, and the degree to which it is one in that sense is the test of its value: it ought to promote business, and therein be one of the chief auxiliaries of advertising as a market influence.

There are market reports and there are market reports so-called. The latter usually exemplify one or all of the following faults; They are prepared in haste; the information is obtained from questionable sources; the reporter does not realize the importance of his position as an arbiter between buyer and seller; he is lacking in industry; or, he is wanting in the judgment to put two and two together properly; consequently, trifles are made matters of moment, exceptions are put forward as the rule, the eccentric is taken for the normal; the report may be biassed by fear, favor, animus, or affection, of which a particular person or interest may be the object. The fault that is most commonly at the bottom of inaccuracy is laziness. Sense of duty is better than any amount of brilliancy, almost everywhere, and it is out of oll comparison better in the market reporter.

The market is frequently disturbed by effects of combination or competition, which may bring about an abnormal condition for the time being. It is not the business of the market report to aggravate that condition. If the market is going to pieces, it is an easy matter for the report to do a little of the shading and postpone indefinitely the restoration of profitable prices. In the same way, the market report may furnish inflating material for those whose designs are to put and maintain prices at unreasonably high points. Such are not functions of a report. They are mischievous interferences and are usually soon found out to be so.

There are reports which may be denominated as neither good nor bad. What prevents them from being bad is the fact that nobody reads them. Their baneful essence thus gets no chance of escaping, and no harm is done. They are regarded as so much inconsequential babble, which nobody can correct, and all agree to let it flow on. If the matter of such reports were taken seriously it would undoubtedly do some harm for a time, but would ultimately have to lapse into the neglected state it is in. A market report of a Toronto paper, in its issue of the 10th inst., quotes ½c. of difference between lots of less than 15 barrels and lots of not less than 15 barrels of granulated sugar; the same report quotes $1.55 for flat tins of salmon. A daily paper of the same date and place quotes yellow sugar 4 to 4½c., peas at $1.40 to $1.45, corn at $1.20 to $1.25, new tomatoes at $1.60 to $1.65, prunes 8½ to 9c., Valencia raisins 6¼ to 6½c. Another paper speaks of Palermo lemons being so much "per barrel," of canned mackerel in barrels, and numerous other absurdities. In one paper the stock item of the arrival of Nagasaki Japans at about 20c. has been running for weeks. The Japans in question were mostly consumed before that paper had got through talking about their arrival. These are not rarities. They are rather typical specimens of the journals from which they are taken. The fact that such nonsense appears day after day, week after week, is evidence that nobody reads it. If people who are concerned did read it, there is no doubt that healthy criticism would be brought to bear upon it, unless, as indeed is the case, the stuff looks too hopelessly beyond redemption by criticism. There are more travesties of market reports than there are market reports.

The methods of the conscientious commercial reporter are the same as those of the man of science. He will not, any more than the latter, jump at conclusions, or allow surmises to be the steps by which he moves towards the truth. Some men apparently cannot resist the fascination there is in a plausible conjecture, and have a certain facility in getting up ingenious theories. Their usefulness is not in market work, where everything must be verified. The tendency to generalize from a single fact is nearly as common, where the activity to get about and learn all the facts is wanting. Patience, industry and careful observation are the qualities most essential. The disposition to make the wish father to the thought or to the statement of the thought must be crushed out. Credulity must be controlled. Truth must be got out of the very bottom of the well. Then the state of the market, unmixed with the feelings or guesses, and uncolored by the fancy of the writer, as well as free from the taint of particular interests, will be the result.

The ideal market report is no doubt more approximately realized by the reputable journals of special trades than by any other branch of the press. Reports of the market are the fundamental specialty of such papers. The matter of them is intended for traders, not for consumers, and on that account information is more freely given by the leading distributors to the special trade press than to general newspapers. Further, the trade press, circulating among a particular body of traders, has nothing to gain by working upon the prejudices of the general public, to excite them against any action on the part of the government in the matter of duty, on the part of the wholesalers in the matter of time or profits, on the part of the retailers in the matter of refusing to sell this or that article of merchandise. The paper circulates only in the sphere of trade, and is not nearly so likely to allow extraneous considerations to give obliqueness to its sketch of the market.

"The truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth," is the formula that states most exactly what should be rendered by every market report. Where that test is satisfied business is benefited, though occasionally individuals are not interested in seeing so frank a face put upon commercial news. No sound interest, however, is hurt by it, and the truthful market report has done as much good to commerce as the truthful parliamentary or court report has done to public service or to justice. No good end is served by keeping or raising clouds between buyer and seller. It is a very short-sighted policy that depends upon obscuring the real aspect of things. This touches the sources of the information rather than the medium of its diffusion. Those in a commercial position to know the facts should not consider that the suppression or the contradiction of them is going to prop up anything that ought not to be propped up. Market reports will be published any way. The truth will come forth where pains are taken to get at it, and they will be taken by such a paper as THE GROCER, which makes a specialty of accuracy. Where quotations, reports and views of the situation which emerge from a thorough canvass of those who have to do with the wholesale distribution of the wares concerned are presented to readers every week a well informed trade is the result. The grocery trade is the best informed one in Canada, and THE CANADIAN GROCER circulates freely throughout it.

"Champignon" is a word apt to scare one on sight,
And whenever I see, I denounce it,
"Mushroom" is good enough, and far easier to write,
And besides—every man can pronounce it.

Association Benefits for Association Members.

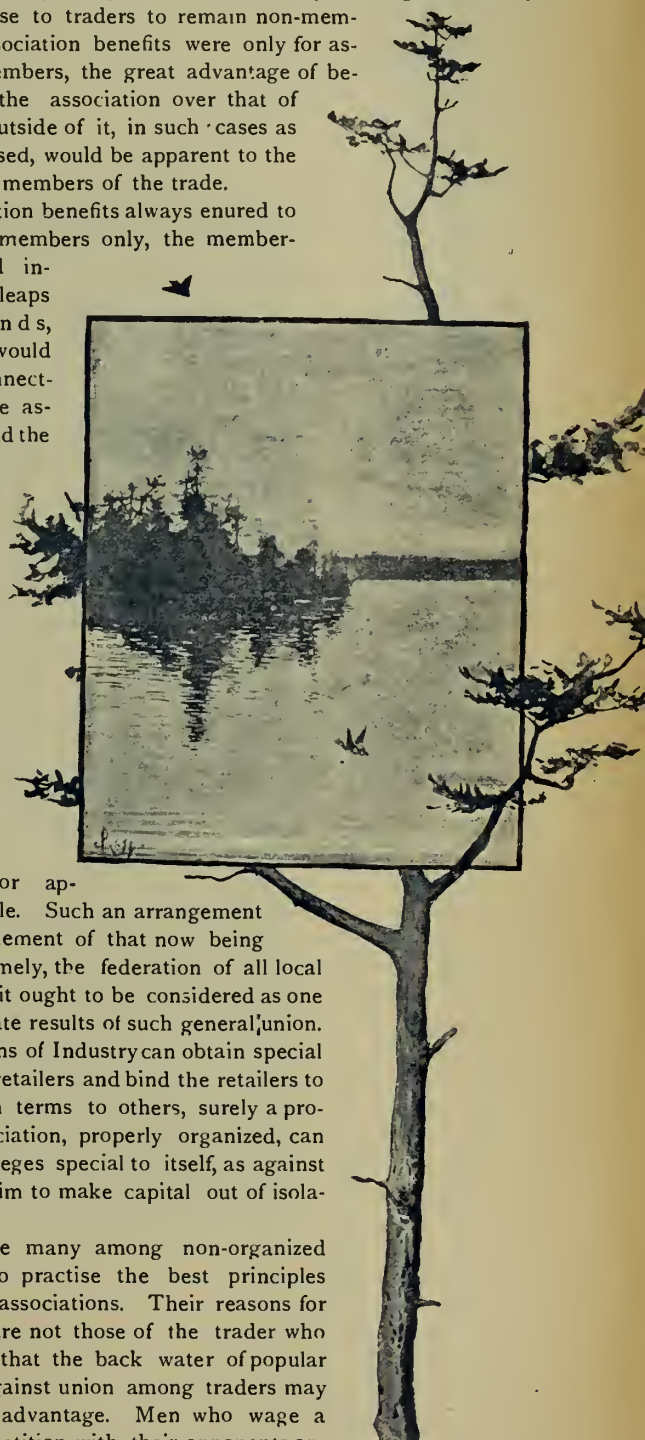
It is time that Associations bethought themselves of their own special interests as distinct from the interests of the whole trade. So long as they go on winning benefits that are as free to people outside of the Association as to people in it, so long will they virtually be putting a premium on staying outside. Traders who do not belong will be likely to consider that they do not need to belong, as in all the victories won by association they are sharers equally with the members. This must delay the realizing of the Association idea, and of course cause the victories to be fewer and of less moment. Associations to be better must become more selfish.

It is true that there are important benefits which can be derived only through membership, but they are not of the nature that appeals most strongly to some minds, and so are too generally deemed of little account. The good that comes from meeting together in friendly council, from acting together for the furtherance of common ends, is not sufficiently appreciated by those who have no part in it. There are various good results flow from merely breaking down the barriers of reserve, from rubbing off that film of exclusiveness in which the individual's self is apt to be wrapped, which acts as a non-conductor of sympathy between trader and trader. And because outsiders are inexperienced in the essential effects of Association, the majority are liable to and do underestimate the value of these effects. The argument of more material advantages is necessary to bring them in. The miracle of the loaves and fishes attracted more followers than the sublime teachings and revelations of the Author of that miracle. It is in the nature of 'the general' to prefer tangible to subtle effects, no matter how much more potential the latter may be. And since the bulk of the tangible effects can be got without joining associations at all, there are many grocers who are kept from joining by that sole consideration. Associations have to a considerable extent prevailed in the matter of wholesalers doing a retail business. All grocers, non-members as well as members, enjoy the fruits of this arrangement. In Toronto, the exertions of the local association have brought peddling to be more strictly regulated than it ever was before, and the results accrue to members as to non-members. The Toronto Association caused a very great mitigation, practically a cessation, of the vexatious following up of tobacco because of some official's fault in not seeing that it bore the Inland Revenue stamp. This is a relief to all grocers. There are many other results of Association treaties, such for example, as the trade discounts on starch, the substituting of ten days for spot cash as the condition for full discount, that are as open to non-members as to members.

Of course it is sometimes difficult to corral advantages and confine them to the associations. It would necessitate the incorporating of associations and the merging of them into one provincial or national institution. The latter movement is already in progress, and the former will most probably be an early consequence of the realization of the latter. When the association shall have provincial extension and legal existence it will be comparatively easy for it to obtain special recognition from manufacturers, wholesalers and even from legislatures, town and city councils, etc. Then what it wins will be for itself, and those who do not belong will perceive the disadvantage of remaining aloof.

This would prevent and render unnecessary a resort to such questionable, though sometimes defensible practices as boycotting. The association does not aim to strengthen the position of outsiders whose object is to make capital of their independence. Outsiders should not reap where they do not sow. It is conceivable that one designing man in a town will do his utmost to form a local association that will comprehend the whole local trade; help to get it in running order; force it into some attitude that is strongly at variance with the views of consumers; and then depart from it to make himself solid with these consumers, by opposing the association and drawing its hostility upon himself if he can, that he may seem a persecuted man. Then his advertisement appeals to people's sympathy as well as their cupidity, for he will sell to more customers at lower prices. It is not only conceivable but it is a fact, that there are men who, probably not going the length of this supposed one to promote local union, yet rather forward than hinder it by their influence, for the sole purpose of getting into a position that is peculiar in their town, by remaining outside of it when it is formed. It places the association at a disadvantage, rouses odium against it and really furthers the selfish ends of the outsider, to resort to an attempt to boycott him among wholesalers. It would be much better if the association had within itself and entirely under its own control, privileges that would vastly outweigh such temptations as these to traders to remain non-members. If association benefits were only for association members, the great advantage of belonging to the association over that of remaining outside of it, in such cases as those supposed, would be apparent to the most selfish members of the trade.

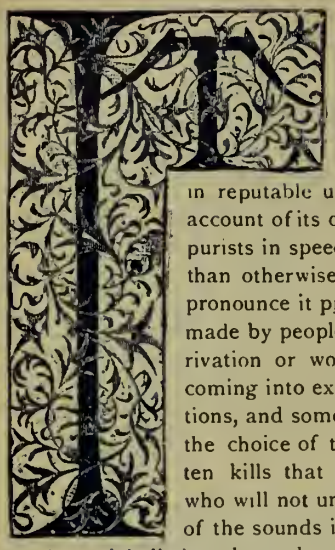
If association benefits always enured to association members only, the membership would increase by leaps and bounds, members would continue connected with the association, and the mass and solidity of the body would make it an irresistible agency of reform and progress. It would furnish solutions of questions that are now very perplexing or appear insoluble. Such an arrangement is the complement of that now being agitated, namely, the federation of all local bodies, and it ought to be considered as one of the ultimate results of such general union. If the Patrons of Industry can obtain special terms from retailers and bind the retailers to give no such terms to others, surely a provincial association, properly organized, can secure privileges special to itself, as against those who aim to make capital out of isolation.



There are many among non-organized traders who practise the best principles adopted by associations. Their reasons for separation are not those of the trader who stays apart that the back water of popular prejudice against union among traders may flow to his advantage. Men who wage a manly competition with their opponents are not the enemies of association, even if they do not become members. The enemies are those who professedly denounce associations as leagues against the people, though such men are themselves the last to give a thought to the interests of the people.

Now tannic acid's tincture deep
Doth rob my weary eyes of sleep,
And every drop of blood red juice
With my digestion plays the deuce.

Words Heard At The Grocery Counter.



IT WOULD be too much to expect of the public, or even of educated people among the public, that they should be able to pronounce correctly the names of all things kept in grocery stocks. Many a word in reputable use as a commercial term would, on account of its origin, be ranked as a barbarism by purists in speech, who would feel rather flattered than otherwise with the idea that they could not pronounce it properly. Such words are coinages made by people unacquainted with the laws of derivation or word-composition. New names are coming into existence as rapidly as new preparations, and some very queer notions often underlie the choice of them. It is certain that a name often kills that which bears it. There are people who will not undertake to express orally the sum of the sounds involved in the strange chain of letters that is labelled on the packages of odd-named things. That ought to be considered by the proprietors of such goods. It is well that names should be as picturesque as possible in their suggestiveness, but they should suggest as much as possible their own pronunciation, if the people interested in selling them want to have them inquired for. At some future date we may particularize names that are a fetter to the trade in the articles that bear them. What is well-known is the fact that a great many people are very sensitive to ridicule, and would rather forego a purchase than expose themselves to the danger of correction or remark by pronouncing at a venture.

But the names of staples are often grossly abused in the mouths of people. Things that are asked for every day are frequently almost disguised by the utterance of men and women who can read and write. This tends to vitiate pronunciation in stores, and that is not a good effect, looked at from either the stand point of elegance or business. There are fastidious people who like to hear their grocer give a thing its right name. They like to have their children come in contact with correctness of all kinds as much as they can. Nothing is lost by the endeavor to give things the names they are entitled to. Those who did not know the pronunciation before they heard it from the grocer will take his quantity and accent as authority, frequently with a feeling of secret pleasure that they have found out the right way before stumbling into an error.

Geographical names furnish a considerable part of the grocer's vocabulary, and some of them are stumbling-blocks. 'Vostizza,' the name of a Grecian town, noted for its currants, is usually pronounced as it is written, whereas it ought to be pronounced as if spelt vos-teet-sa, with the 'o' long, as in 'old,' and the accent on 'teet.' 'Rio,' which is short for 'Rio de Janeiro,' often coupled with coffee, is pronounced as if the 'i' were long, as in 'iron.' Usage has established this, however, but 'Reo' represents the native, and primarily correct pronunciation. 'Java,' also identified with coffee, ought to be pronounced with a broad sound to the first 'a.' 'Barbados,' referred to often as a source of raw sugar, molasses, etc., should have the accent on the second 'ba,' and be pronounced as if written Bar-bay-duz, the first 'a' being broad. 'Ivica', an island in the Mediterranean whence almonds are shipped, should be pronounced as if written Iv-ee-sa, with the accent on the 'ee.' 'Bordeaux,' as the source of walnuts should be called Bor-do, the 'o' in both cases being as in 'old.' 'Cayenne' pepper is often called Ki-en pepper, but the name suggests its pronunciation. 'Ceylon' in 'Ceylon tea' ought to be pronounced as if it we Se-lone, with the accent on 'lone.' 'Demerara,' which is associated in the grocer's mind with sugar, has 'a' in both cases sounded like 'ah,' with the accent on the first of them. 'Cognac,' which gives a name to a French brandy, ought to be uttered as if spelt Kon yak, with the 'o' as in 'old,' and the accent on 'yak.' 'Maori,' naming certain lemons, is Ma-o-ri with 'a' as in 'at,' 'o' as in 'old' and 'i' indefinite, the accent being on 'o'. 'Hiogo,' connected with Japan tea, is "Hee o go, o" in both cases as in 'old' and accent on the first one. 'Worcester' as the name of a sauce, is in sound 'Wooster.' 'Bosnia,' as descriptive of prunes, is Boznia, with the accent on 'Boz' and the 'o' as in 'not.' 'Pekoe Souchong' is Peck o Soo shong, with the accent on each first syllable. 'Sisal' a port in Yucatan, which gives its name to a hemp used as rope material is Siz-al, the accent on the 'al', the 'a' of which is like 'ah,' while 'i' is the same as in 'pin.

There are numberless words not geographical in their reference mispronounced by customers. Many leave out a letter, as the first 'r' in 'cartridge' and 'partridge,' the second 'p' in 'pumpkin,' the 'y' in 'yeast,' the first 'r' in 'sarsaparilla' the second 'i' in 'vitriol,' the 'ant' in 'currants.' In cases where a letter should be dropped in the pronunciation it is often put in. 'Venison' should be pronounced as 'venzn', 'chestnut' as 'chesnut', 'groats' as 'grots'. One sound is wrongly substituted for another in certain words, as in 'licorice' where the last syllable is improperly uttered as if written 'ish'; an 'm' wrongly takes the place of 'n' in 'cranberries'; steelyard' is mis-spoken as if it were stillyard, and an 's' is vulgarly put at the end; the word 'ration' ought always to be pronounced ray-shun; the word 'senna' as it is spelt, not 'seenie'; 'camphor' is not 'camfire', but Kam-fur; 'horse radish' is to be uttered as written, not 'horse reddish'; 'halibut' should be pronounced hall-i-but, the accent on the first syllable; 'apricot' should be pronounced with the 'a' as in 'ape'; 'Cochineal' is pronounced like cotch-i-neal, not 'coach i neal'; 'syrup' is not 'surrup,' but a short and fine sound is to be given the 'y'; 'tomatoes' may be pronounced with the 'a' long or broad, but the best usage is in favor of the former, the 'a' being as in 'ate'; the various forms 'catsup', 'ketchup', 'catchup' are all used with equal sanction from lexicographers. The word has nothing to do with the English words 'catch' 'up', 'sup' or 'soup.' It is East Indian in its make-up. 'Resin' is just as good as 'rosin.' The word 'quintal', which denotes a weight of eight stone, that is a long hundred weight, is sometimes written and pronounced 'kentle.' 'Aloes' is of two syllables, not three, as often pronounced; al-oz represents the pronunciation. A great many people stupidly put an 'r' to the end of 'lozenge'. 'Pecan' as the name of a species of nut is pronounced properly pe-kawn, with the accent on 'kawn'. In vermicelli, the 'c' ought to be sounded 'sh'.

The list of mispronounced words might be extended ad infinitum if attention were paid to the monstrosities committed by many illiterate people. The words already noted suffer in utterance at the tongues of many people who ought to and do know better. Such people now and then speak of molasses as if that word were a plural and there were such a thing as a molass. And the grocer sometimes asks how many his customer wants, instead of how much. 'Cheese' sounds like a plural, too, and is very often spoken of as 'they.' Other words, which seem like colloquialisms, are good English words. 'Mother,' the name given to the sediment deposited in vinegar barrels, is one. It is simply an extension, with a change from 'd' to 'th,' of the word 'mud.' This word tempts one off into a pursuit of interesting derivations among grocery names, but space is too short. One or two cases may be mentioned. 'Mustard,' for example, is so named because the powdered seeds of the plant were first mixed with 'must' to make a condiment. 'Must' is the unfermented juice of the grape. 'Cereal,' a name given to grains, such as wheat, rye, rice, is taken from 'Ceres,' the name of the divinity that in Roman mythology was regarded as the guardian of the fruits of the earth. 'Pickerel' is a diminutive of 'pike.' 'Haddie' is Scotch for 'haddock.' 'Nicotine,' the name of an extract from tobacco, is so called after Nicot, the man who in the 17th century introduced tobacco into France.

Since sugar's down a cent or so,
Why shouldn't kisses
From sweetest misses
Come down on youthful lips, d'ye know?

Some Effects of the Present Terms Offered the Retail Grocery Trade.

About a year or less ago, the Guild of Wholesale Grocers altered the terms upon which goods might be bought by their customers, in this wise : Goods formerly known as "sixty days" were shortened to thirty days, the discounts for cash being reduced from one and a half per cent. off in fifteen days, to one per cent. off in ten days, while goods formerly sold on four months' credit were altered to three months ; the discounts for cash in this class being the same as before, viz., three per cent. off in fifteen days, saving only the substitution of ten for fifteen days.

This then is a correct statement of the alteration, the effects of which we mean to discuss in this paper. In order to arrive at a correct estimate of the workings of these new terms we thought it necessary to procure the opinions of some of the best of our retail trade here, in Hamilton, and in Montreal ; of the wholesaler and of his traveller (usually very well informed in these matters), and of the brokers. We did thus enquire, of both cash and credit, of both Greek and Barbarian, and with interesting results. The opinions asked for have been cheerfully given in the main, but with a woeful lack of the evidence of having ever thought the matter over at all, in some cases. So many of our tradesmen are so little given to consulting Madam How and Lady Why, that when occasion does offer they are not prepared to set forth any opinion, but rather close up, like oysters, with a snap. One man writes that "discounts are too small for cash in proportion to the time as compared with former discounts allowed," when, as a matter of fact, the reverse is the case. Another man says, "that the terms are objectionable, because they are neither favorable to the cash nor credit buyer ;" while another says nothing but that "he is in favor of the old terms," as are, we have no doubt, many others. The climax is reached by the outspoken man, who says that "the new terms are simply ruinous to the retail trade." One prominent Torontonian writes a very full and complete denunciation of the guild's iniquity and autocratic methods ; nor is he so very far astray. The best commentary on the subject to our hand, says three or four things in a very few lines : "1st, fewer middlemen (that is, buy direct from the manufacturer) : 2nd, fewer retail stores ; 3rd, fewer dollars saved by discounts ; 4th, fewer considerations for large buyers ;" and all these are many enough to ponder over deeply. The last of our contributions, before starting upon the subject proper, is the subjoined schedule, showing the condition of the trade, furnished us by the efficient and painstaking Toronto agent of Bradstreet's, Mr. T. C. Irving :

The total number of grocers and general store dealers reported to Bradstreet's as having failed in Canada during the first six months of 1890 and 1891, with totals of actual assets and liabilities is as follows :

	1890.			1891,
	FAILURES.	ASSETS.	LIABILITIES	FAILURES.	ASSETS.	LIABILITIES.
Ontario	135	$443,757	$941,262	137	$267,580	$611,762
Quebec	87	156,778	310,689	131	284,043	825,418
New Brunswick	5	5,350	18,600	14	53,200	100,141
Nova Scotia	21	74,950	138,380	37	140,500	239,287

Total	274	$840,932	$1,694,171	356	$864,826	$2,072,546

It will be apparent to the most simple tyro in the grocery business that the halving of the time allowance in the heavy items comprising sixty days goods would of itself be revolutionary ; this has been actually the case. Leaving out the question of discounts, for after all that bore less heavily than anything else, the mere fact that the purchaser of, say, twenty-five barrels of sugar, had to pay for them in thirty instead of sixty days, meant something more than poetry to eleven out of every twelve grocers. If we could arrive definitely at the effect produced by this one change, we imagine that a short and readable paper would be the result.

The first effect which we would notice is that of curtailed buying. This is indisputable. The wonder is that the retail grocers have been such fools as not to have reached this desirable quality long since. The folly of endeavoring to carry a large part of a wholesaler's stock for him ought to have been apparent long ago, and the shortening of the time limit for payment was, we may safely affirm, something of the nature of an "eye-opener" for the weary, overworked and overstocked retailer. We do not disclaim against legitimate speculation. "Goods well bought are already half sold," and it may be stated without fear of contradiction, that many of the dollars earned during the past three years have been secured by buying, not selling. We urge against allowing oneself to be persuaded into buying ordinary goods, in anything but the very smallest quantities obtainable at close prices. So long as the guild puts a premium on small buyings, we say, encourage it by buying small.

Another effect has been to operate hardly upon the credit buyer. It could not possibly be otherwise, and those who say, so much the worse for the credit buyer, do violence to their ideas of that which is right and fair. With all due deference to those who preach cash all round, we must dissent. There is not cash enough to go round for one thing, and credit is therefore a practical necessity for the proper conducting of trade. Some of the best trade among grocers is conducted upon credit principles, and to say that a rule which operates objectionably upon respectable traders is a good one, requires some knowledge of the subject which we have not been able to secure. One of the most discerning of the travellers of our acquaintance remarked the other day, that he knew of good men who had had all they could do to keep above water on account of the short terms on heavy invoices ; and he further assured me that his experience was not exceptional by any means. These large invoices coming due before the goods are opened in many cases must be a source of much embarrassment and difficulty to many a weary storekeeper.

A third effect has been to curtail the losses of the wholesale houses. Formerly a person might effect a credit for a considerable amount before payment could be decently demanded, and before the expiring of the old terms of four months many a rank dead-beat had run up sums not at all comforting or satisfactory to the wholesale merchant, especially when renewals were in order. Now, before such a condition of things can exist, the false shows itself, also the true. Yes, the wholesaler knew his "muttons" when he engineered the new terms through, however much the other way the knife might cut.

Effect four might consist of the engendering of a better class of retail traders. We think this because that there is not the same inducement for the rascal to get in his work. He cannot "get in" enough to pay. Then if there are any in the trade they will speedily take themselves out, so that it may safely be stated that every day the standard of men in the retail trade is becoming higher and better. Of course the wholesale man, not being subject to this purifying and clarifying process, is not thus progressing, so that ere long we may expect to be confronted by the edifying spectacle of the retail traders undertaking to regulate the wholesalers, and why should they not? Who gave it into the hands of the guild to say, why and how these things should be? If they only all knew it, they legislate by means of a pure autocracy, and nothing short of a threatened revolution secured the paltry ten days grace for discount. We would like very much to know what is to hinder the whole trade working harmoniously together, whenever this matter comes up, instead of a baker's dozen of men, influential enough in a way perhaps, sitting down and deciding the fortunes, nothing less, of a thousand or two fellow citizens. When next the trade is tampered with, we hope the "legislature" will be called for advice.

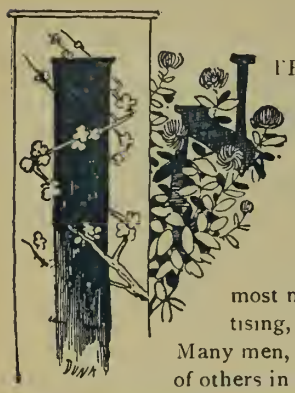
Another result has been, of course, to reduce actual cash discount at the expense of the retailer for the benefit of the wholesale dealer. We imagine we see a certain wholesaler's hands go up in holy horror at the rank heresy contained in the sentence just written. His argument was this, when last heard from: "You see we count up the cost of an article, including the discount we allow to cash buyers, so that if we do not have to take off so much, we do not need to put it on, thus making a lower price for everything, excepting, of course, 'listed goods.'" Any grocer who has persuaded a customer out of wanting a tin can in with her five pounds of tea, knows the whole procedure. Well, granted the wholesale man's premises, where, oh where! are the allowances in the shape of reduced prices? "Ask of the winds." Everything is in statu quo. There is no denying the fact that business is more profitable for the wholesale man in the matter of discounts. After all, is there any adequate cause of complaint? Perhaps not, the objections in many ways are, to say the truth, rather over weighted by the points to be made in favor of the new order. We do not desire to return to the old order. Any step in the direction of shortened credits, will, we imagine, find favor with the best section of any trade, in fact most of those of whom we spoke as having expressed themselves, did not entirely condemn the new terms. Perhaps some point could be given this article, if an attempt were made to line out some changes suggested by a study of the whole matter. These opinions being personal, are of course given for what they are worth as such.

In the first place this system into which we are drifting of doing all the business and getting all the money during the first twenty days of the month and starving the other ten days, is pernicious, in fact very much so. To an ordinary trader it is a burdensome and severe trial. What must it be to a large and extensive business? And it can be averted by a systematic effort to make two "firsts" of the month, viz., 1st and 15th. Let all statements be sent out twice instead of only once a month, strive to secure payments instead of leaving tradesmen to hunt up the accounts and come or send and pay you. Make known your intention, you wholesale men, to send around regularly twice a month to secure settlements wherever there is a desire to settle, not simply as a demand, but rather as a convenience to your customers. Supply your travellers with duplicate order books, so that a correct copy of that which is bought may remain with the buyer. You may smile at these suggestions, but the house which wakes up to the fact that these innovations are quite necessary, will not only secure the hearty thanks of a large group of buyers, but will also, especially by means of the statements on the 1st and 15th, do much to break up what is becoming an unmitigated nuisance, and a most serious inconvenience.

Then regarding the terms themselves. Is there any pressing necessity for two classes of merchandise? We think not. The best interests of the grocery trade demand that all goods shall be classed the same and bear the same treatment regarding terms. We have long thought that a proposal to sell goods at a uniform price of two months' credit with a discount of two per cent. within fifteen days would be an equitable and fair one, and one which would meet with universal favor. This might appear too much on sugar, but we are convinced that the saving from the shortened credit and discount on 3 months goods would fairly meet the case. Besides, under the aforementioned scheme of "adding on before you take off" there need be no actual loss. We would again record our being in accord with the scheme of shortening credits and encouraging cash buyers, or rather encouraging all to become cash buyers. We may be wrong, but we imagine that this levelling up of all goods to one class, with a settling day, such as the issuing of statements every fifteen days would inaugurate, would be the very thing to build up and encourage cash buyers. Settlements would be placed beyond all cavil and dispute, and, providing of course that the cash was to hand, "settling day" would become a real pleasure, as it ought to be. No rule can be made to cover the case of a "prominent" wholesale merchant who is not far from Church street, going west, coolly gives five per cent. off wherever it is necessary to procure an order, "salting" the poor buyer, wherever possible. His case suggests the thought that he would drive a coach and four through any agreement. Nor would any agreement do anything for the breakers of one agreement, and the upholders of another which suits them better to keep. These things must of themselves work their own cure. It is too bad that honest traders pay for the fun in the meantime. We have now finished. To many, other points, which are possibly more important, have been omitted. Perhaps sufficient has been said to suit both the editor and the reader.

RICHARD DONALD, JR.

Advertising For Retail Grocers.



THESE days of almost universal advertising, I take it for granted that there are very few business men who would contend that advertising, if properly done, does not pay. The vast amount of money spent in advertising by some of the shrewdest men of business in all parts of the civilized world, is to most minds, conclusive evidence that advertising, when properly conducted, does pay. Many men, emboldened no doubt by the success of others in the field of advertising, have launched out in the same path, and made a failure of it, simply because they did not understand how the thing should be done.

It might as well be contended for the reason that many merchants and tradesmen fail to carry on business profitably, that trade and commerce do not pay at all, as to say that because advertising does not always pay everybody who indulges in it, it pays no one. I take it that you agree with me then, gentle readers, that advertising where perseveringly and intelligently prosecuted, is a good paying investment. This then being true, it will be conceded that the art of advertising is to the retail grocer—as to other business men—a suitable means to the desired and desirable end of success.

The question, then, that naturally arises is, what is the best way for retail grocers to advertise? In reply, I would say that advertisements should only be placed where they are likely to meet the eyes of a considerable number of probable customers. What profit is there, for instance, for a retail grocer in placing his advertisement in a hotel register, or a card hanging in a railway station? Are people during the hurry and bustle of travel likely to care a brass button whether or not Brown is offering the best value in teas to be found in town, or whether or not it is the correct caper to patronize the Liverpool warehouse because the proprietor is the happy possessor of "a choice and well selected stock of seasonable groceries?" What also, I would enquire, does a grocer expect to gain from a tin sign nailed to a telegraph pole, or a fence, 25 or 30 miles from his place of business, advising the people to "Buy your tobacco from Green and save a cent a pound?" Are many people likely to go fifteen or twenty miles out of their way to save a cent a pound on tobacco? If any do they are not likely to be of a class very desirable as customers.

Of course, it makes a difference to a retail dealer, in advertising, whether his place of business is in a large town or city, or in a country village. If in the former, he has a much larger territory to appeal to in his announcements than if located in the latter. If situated in a metropolitan centre, a retail grocer may, perhaps, find it to his advantage to reach out for trade from outlying towns and villages. But, on the other hand, a grocer in one of these outlying towns could hardly expect an advertisement placed in one of the metropolitan papers, or even in a journal published in a rival town, to render him an adequate return; even though these newspapers have a limited circulation in his own immediate neighborhood. He would be paying for circulation that can do him but little good, seeing that only a few probable customers are reached. It would, no doubt, pay a manufacturer of soap, for instance, to advertise his wares in a high-class magazine like Harper's or Century, or in a metropolitan daily, because every reader is a possible customer, and the constituency he appeals to is large; but a Century reader, located perhaps in Chicago, would take but little interest in an announcement in its columns, except perhaps as a curiosity, that Black & White, of Boston, are offering splendid value in raisins and currants. I believe that the best paying advertising medium for a retail grocer, if he is doing business in a large town or city, is to be found in some largely circulated newspapers published in his own town, because the circulation of town papers is usually confined to the place of publication and the district immediately tributary, for retail trade, thereto. As newspaper advertising rates are usually regulated by circulation, it can easily be seen that our advertiser pays only for what he gets in the way of circulation; in other words, none of the circulation he pays for is wasted, so far as he is concerned. If a grocer's lot in life, however, is to be found in a country town or village, he will on the same principle fire off his ammunition through the columns of one or more of his local papers, every copy of which should contain his advertisement changed each issue.

In looking over country newspapers, how often one is struck by the incongruity of some of the advertisements. Such, for instance, as advertising winter goods in the middle of summer. Perhaps we are gravely informed in the middle of July that the Italian Warehouse has "just received a large consignment of Christmas fruits and other choice holiday goods." Money spent in such advertising is worse than thrown away. No wonder some grocers find that advertising does not pay! Another style of advertisement to be religiously avoided in my opinion—though favored by many—is the tricky advertisement. It usually has quite an innocent look, and starts off with some beguiling remarks about the Prince of Wales or Emperor William or some other notable, and first thing you know you are reading about somebody's neckties or some one else's soap, or how some fortunate fellow had his liver made all right through using Smith's Sarsaparilla, all of which no doubt is supposed to be immensely clever, but the question is, does it help sell the goods advertised or does it create a feeling of antagonism against the wares of the people who have so often fooled us? For my part, most decidedly the latter. Another objectionable style is the familiar advertisement, such as "Say, mister, try a pound of our 5c. tea." Then there is the advertisement that looks as if it had been set up by the printer's devil, who apparently has mixed a little molasses with the ink, just for a joke. And we must not forget our old friend who sticks by us so closely, the circus style of advertisement, calling upon the people to "come right along and take advantage of the wonderful bargains we are offering." We also are never without the always interesting advertising liar, who gets in his fine work (in his own estimation) to the tune of "goods at half price; money no object." And, lastly, there is the man who lacks originality, and who, in commencing, tells us that "Peter Jones begs to inform his numerous friends and the public generally that he has opened out in the market block a well-selected stock of staple and fancy groceries, and hopes by diligence and attention to business to merit a share of their patronage." And so on to the end of the chapter.

Advertisements, then, should first of all be in the right medium, original and frequently changed, tastefully arranged, and made to say, in straightforward and dignified language, exactly what the advertiser means, and, above all, the truth only should be told; for lying pays no better in advertising than in anything else.

Bookkeeping For a Modest Business.

READER, if you are a merchant in a large way of business, employing a staff of efficient clerks, do not read this article; it is not intended for you. It is addressed to the small storekeeper, who, with the assistance of his family, runs the corner store, to be met with in every section of a large city. To such a one is asked the question: What about your bookkeeping? Do you know a simple and short way of keeping the accounts between yourself and your customers? Is it one of the trials of your life to find out how much Mrs. Murphy owes you? And are you prepared to make out her account at a moment's notice? If not, why not? Here is a plan by means of three books by which you can grasp the situation. Let us give them a name: First, a day-book; second, a ledger; third, a cash-book. You do not need a "bills receivable" or a "bills payable" book. Those to whom you owe money will take care that you do not forget it, and if you have a note to meet, a small memorandum book is all you need for that.

1st. Your day-book lies on your desk all the time. In it you enter all credit sales, all orders received, and also all monies received in payment of accounts. You use such a book now, and possibly by systematising it, it would be in good order. Mrs. Brown comes in and leaves an order. Down it goes in your day-book to be checked off when the goods are sent out. Mr. Jones comes in and pays his account of $5.75 in full. Enter that in your day-book: Mr. Jones, Cr. by cash, $5.75. Then in comes Mrs. Robinson with a tale of woe, and a two dollar bill on account. Enter that also as Mrs. Robinson, Cr. by cash on account, $2. Now comes a cash customer, leaves an order and pays for it; mark it paid. The next comes in and buys some article, pays for it and carries it away. No booking needed here at all, and consequently the day-book does not come into use. Our day-book as far as we have gone now appears as follows:—

Wednesday, Aug. 16.

Mrs. Brown, ——— Street.

18 lbs. Granulated Sugar	$1.00
1 lb. Coffee	40
1 lb. Mixed Tea	60
Matches 10, soap 10	20

Mr. Jones, ——— Street.

Credit by cash	$5.75

Mrs. Robinson, ——— Street.

Credit by cash on account	$2.00

Mr. Jackson, ——— Street.

18 lbs. Granulated	$1.00
½ lb. Mixed Tea	30
1 bar N. P. Soap	15
2 bars Electric Soap	10
1 C. F. B. Powder	10
(Paid.)	$1.65

This is a glance at our day-book. Now for the ledger. At the head of each page should appear a customer's name and address. The ledger for the purpose we have in view is ruled as below, and here is Mrs. Brown's entry with a credit of $1.50 on account:—

Mrs. Brown, ——— Street.

1891.		Dr.		Cr.
Aug. 16	Sugar $1, Coffee 40, Tea 60, Matches 10, Soap 10	$ 2	20
		1	50
Aug. 20				$ 1	50

How simple to make out a bill from such a showing as this. When entering the items from the day book to the ledger, you place a distinctive mark opposite the entry in the day book to show that it has been posted. Our next book is the cash book, and for the small store the simpler it is the better. It shows at a glance both receipts and expenditure. Here is the ruling of the page with a few entries to illustrate the mode of procedure:

1891		$	c.	$	c.
Aug 20	To Cash on hand			21	00
	1 Bag potatoes 50c., 1 doz. celery 50c., bread 75c.	1	75
	Paid T. Wilson's ac. $5.19, paid John Jones on ac. $7.00	12	19
20	Cash receipts			14	25
21	Bread 75c., 1 bbl. salt $1.50, milk ac. $2.10	4	35
21	Cash receipts			11	20
22	Paid W. Robinson's ac. $17.28, small wares 75c.	18	03
22	Cash receipts			15	10
23	Paid rent to 22nd, $20.00	20	00
23	Cash receipts			10	75
		56	32	72	30
	To Cash on hand			15	98

This is intended to show a week's transactions, but is abbreviated for lack of space. At the close of the week both columns are added up as shown in the above, and the cash on hand brought down. When the amount of cash on hand becomes large an entry "Deposited in bank" should appear in paid out column, sufficient being kept on hand to meet current expenses. This simple method of bookkeeping is intended for the small storekeeper, and will be all he requires for a small business. With larger concerns this article has nothing to do, and is not intended to exemplify the bookkeeping in a large establishment, where a bookkeeper is kept.

How Travellers' Visits Are Received.

Being a traveler, I suppose, entitles me to know something about this subject, but it seems to me that the merchants of the country, the men we call upon, are the best entitled to speak. I think I am correct in saying that they fully appreciate the value and importance of commercial travellers. Generally speaking, as a class, we are received kindly and courteously, although dropping in on the merchants at all hours of the day, and even late at night, and often during their most busy moments, when perhaps they are worried over some of the many petty annoyances inseparable from business. At such times it occasionally happens that they are further annoyed by the persistency of the salesman, but he is a wise traveller who is willing to bide his time. Judging from the great increase in the number of travellers, and the increasing favor with which they are received, they have become firmly established. Years ago, before the writer started on the road, merchants used to have to make frequent visits to the wholesale centres for the purpose of buying. Now they can buy their goods right at home from samples, and often to better advantage than they can buy direct from the wholesaler or manufacturer, owing in part to the keen competition among travellers, but owing principally to the good feeling between merchants and travelers. How a traveller is received depends largely upon the general outlook. This year unusually good crops should put spirit into the merchants. To the drummers who sacrifice the comforts of home for the toilsome life of the road, they should extend open arms.

A Drummer's Reflections.

It's fifteen years now that I've carried the grip
And sold coffees, teas, sugar and rice,
But when I reflect on each troublesome trip,
Why the reflection, my friend, isn't nice.

Of course, you must know, and I don't mean to say
That I've not had my share of good times,
But allowing for all the joys of each day,
The cares are as dollars to dimes.

I'm just in the humor this blustry wet night
To stir up a few of my troubles,
So if you've the patience to listen, I might
Be able to break your own bubbles.

I do not believe there's a man on the road
Objects to hard toil or rough weather,
Or sweltering up Durham's main street with a load
When the sun's strong enough to burn leather.

Nor will he complain if his meals are not right,
The porridge burnt brown as a berry,
Nor yet if he's caught in a snow storm at night,
And for brandy is handed out sherry.

For these are contingencies likely to strike
Every person who drinks in ozone,
But what every "ooy" on the road does dislike
Is the customer's cross, grumpy tone.

I know how I feel on this point, and may state
That travellers are nothing but human,
And though we're not treated o'er kindly by Fate,
We're tender at times like a woman.

And when we endeavor to do by the trade
What is right, good and best for us all,
We expect to receive, when our visits are made,
If no orders, at least not a bawl.

How few of you, friends, think it's rough on a chap
As he enters your store with a smile,
To greet him with rudeness, and insult mayhap,
Though he comes for your good all the while.

Each smile from you means just a dollar more won,
And each hearty handshake one more friend,
Just try it and see, it's quite easily done,
And perfection from practice does tend.

Civility always will get its reward,
While rudeness has never been known
To gain a man's friendship, or even regard,
And can reap but the tares it has sown.

So kindly remember to treat "the boy" well
As he smilingly enters your store,
Though orders are light you can cheerfully tell
That the next time he comes he'll get more.

Why Don't You Run Your Own Business?

BELOW is given a lengthy article from the Chicago Journal of Commerce on the abuses of advertising agencies, which is worth its length in gold to both the large and small advertiser.

Advertising agencies have had their day. They have flourished like the green bay tree. And have made money. But as is quoted below, "bigotry, deceit, petty jealousies and fraud may prosper for a time, but the end is inevitable, failure and disgrace."

The way these agencies do business is this: As soon as they see a firm doing a little advertising they find out the exact amount to be spent. The agent then makes up a list of papers and submits it. The advertiser is surprised, and his heart at once gladdens at getting into so many papers at such a small figure, and the agent's contract is signed, then a placard neatly framed is hung in a conspicuous place in the advertiser's office, with the legend:

ALL PROPOSITIONS FOR ADVERTISING
should be made to W. E. FLEECEYOU & Co.
Advertising Agents.
WHO HAVE CHARGE OF WHATEVER BUSINESS WE HAVE TO DO WITH NEWSPAPERS.

The advertiser retires to his private office, congratulating himself on the time and money he has saved and at once prepares for a big run of business. Then the agent begins his work. In the list of papers he had submitted there are probably not more than three of value to the advertiser or anybody else. These three are among the best known in the country, and are the bait with which the advertiser is caught. The rest of the list is composed of papers that the advertiser has never seen or heard of. He thinks of course they are as valuable and well-known as the three mentioned. The copy for the advertisement is then made out and printed and sent, together with a letter, to each paper on the list. The letter is an offer, (generally seventy-five per cent. lower than regular advertising rates) to run the advertisement, and finishes something like this: "If you accept our offer we will forward you cheque by return mail less our twenty-five per cent. commission." Oh ye gods what a chance this is for the half-starved publishers who make up this list! Of course the offer is accepted, the "ad" is inserted, and the paper—save the mark—appears. The quality of the paper used is of the cheapest, the ink is nothing better than coal tar, and the type is worn down to the second-nick in nine cases out of ten, and it is almost impossible to decipher the advertisement. But the advertiser does not know this. He has the utmost confidence in the agency, and thinks all is right. However, the months slip by, "the business that he looked for never came," his money and his confidence in advertising are gone; he plants his foot down firmly and says "advertising don't pay."

Just another word. You would never think of handing your book-keeping over to an agency, or your correspondence. And yet you do it with the most important part of your business. The old saying: "He that by the plow would thrive, himself must either hold or drive" might be very properly applied here.

This is what the Journal of Commerce says:

It is absolutely necessary in this age of competition for business men to advertise. They must disseminate the knowledge among the people of the intrinsic value of their products or merchandise.

Every day there are thousands of dollars virtually thrown away because of the lack of knowledge of how or when to advertise, and too frequently on account of the confidence reposed in men who make a specialty of dealing with the publishers of papers throughout the country.

There is another class of advertising agents who are prone to impose upon the publisher and abuse the confidence of their patrons. Their cupidity and selfishness is too apparent to in any manner consider equity and justice. Instances have been known where publications of reputed worth and bona fide circulation have been ignored, for the simple reason that space could not be obtained upon such advantageous terms as desired.

Oftentimes the agent referred to or his representative allows personal prejudice and strong political or religious preferences to interfere with the transactions of their legitimate business, and not infrequently the advertiser who selects a list of papers whose circulation and standard of excellence are apparent, is given to understand either directly or by innuendo that such and such a paper against which the agent may have a real or fancied grievance, is not worthy of his consideration, and for that reason is stricken from the list of papers to be favored with his business. The advertiser who is a thorough man of business is looking only for results which he knows a judicious and liberal use of printer's ink always insures, and his wishes should not be thwarted by the narrow gauge policy of ignorant and prejudiced bigots, who form the class to which reference is made.

The advertising agent who endeavors to increase his income by trickery and alleged smart business methods, with the publisher on the one hand, and his patron on the other, must sooner or later reap the result of such questionable means, and if he loses the confidence of one, and the business of the other, he has no one to blame but his own shortsighted self. An instance may be cited which will give the interested reader an idea how the unscrupulous advertising agent herewith referred to is prone to abstract a profit both from the publisher and his patron, the advertiser.

The advertiser selects his list of papers in which he desires his advertisement to appear. The agent notes that among the list selected there is possibly one or two papers in which he has no contracted space. He forthwith communicates with the publisher and is informed that there is no deviation from the card rates and that no commission is allowed. For example we will say that the space desired is $100 per month. The agent has the letter wherein it is explicitly stated that no less price will be accepted. Reluctantly he shows it to the advertiser, who thus satisfied that that is the ultimatum, consents that the agent place his advertisement in that especial publication at the price named. Then it is the agent begins to work upon the cupidity and firmness of the publisher. A letter is forwarded stating that the agent is very sorry that the valuable paper aforesaid was not at first included in the list selected and that the amount of money appropriated for the purpose was nearly, if not quite exhausted, but upon his own responsibility he will offer say $60, which he has every reason to believe will be refused. It is refused.

This serves to lengthen the correspondence and the next letter is cunningly worded. The publisher is, figuratively, patted upon the back and told that after further consideration it had been decided to strike from the list a less important publication and make his valuable journal the best offer possible, and that it would be considered a favor if the enclosed check for $75 would be accepted for the space mentioned. Nine times out of ten the publisher does not refuse the $75 at hand cash in advance for the space.

The advertising agent has thus acquired the $100 space for $75, and credits himself with what his ingenious correspondence earned him. Of course he charges the advertiser a small per cent., say 12½c., and thus on the one publication his aggregate profit is $37.50. Such methods are considered sharp, and there are advertising agents who do not hesitate to employ them. Many business men, however are having their eyes opened to the deceit and trickery, as practiced by a certain class of agents who pass as the sponsors for honesty and integrity in business. It is for this reason that large advertisers have found it to their advantage to place a competent man in charge of that department of their business. Much more than his salary is saved in commissions usually allowed by the provincial press, and there is, beside, the satisfaction of conducting their own business without hindrance or interference. No petty spites or jealousies enter into the contract-making.

Every advertising agent who has the business interests of his patron at heart should and does study how best to serve him. Bigotry, deceit, petty jealousies and fraud may prosper for a time, but the end is inevitable, failure and disgrace.

The Survival of the Fittest.

The thoroughgoing upholders of unadulterated competition are fond of the above phrase. They disapprove of the interference of any agency to prevent business disaster that must clearly follow excessive competition. The fittest, according to their view, will survive, the weakest will go to the wall. The adherents of such a view think they are arguing when they fall back on this phrase. They take it for granted that it expresses the principle on which human affairs are ordered. They forget that it is but one of the formulas of what is merely a theory, and that a theory which has been put by biologists to account for how life has attained to its present phase, and not as an ethical principle. Accepted in the application which the Philadelphia Cash Grocer makes of it, it means that morality is weakening not strengthening as a social force. That of course is not true. Nor is the use of the phrase admirable from any standpoint. If a man believes in what it enunciates he must be a fatalist. He holds that those who survive are the fittest. The fact that they survive is the reason that they are the fittest. The means by which they survive, the accidents which prevented their effacement, are of no moment to him as materials whereon to form a judgment of a man's essential fitness. A believer in such a theory can shut his eyes and say that moral, physical and intellectual efforts are worthless, if he finds them predominating on the side that goes to the wall.

Civilization is nothing but the triumph of man's moral sense over man's brute force. Before the moral sense became the chief bond of social unity, there is no doubt the fittest to survive in such rough times were the ones who did. But civilized society has come into existence just in defence of the weakest and in restraint of the strongest. Consequently, those who survive in trade or any other field of activity may be, as compared with those who go down, the weaker in the strife. A phrase that is a better comment upon the outcome of business competition is "The race is not always to the swift." There is more truth in that than in "The fittest survive."

If the traders wage a campaign against each other in price-cutting, the man with the larger capital may survive. But that does not prove him the fitter of the two. Capital is an accident, not an essential, and it would probably be in circulation if the particular man who is supposed to have had it in this case were dead. It represents a certain amount of power in itself which must not be taken into the account of a man's essential fitness. Also, in a business rivalry between two men the abler may be handicapped by a large family. And he may go under. The fitter in such a case does not survive. The test of fitness must be a man's power and will to benefit the cause he is connected with. The extent to which a man can satisfy that test is not to be measured by the degree of his success in a business competition. His unscrupulousness or special advantage sometimes does more than his fitness. The same principle has been exploded in other forms of expression and other special applications. It was involved in the ordeal by combat of the Middle Ages, the man who killed his antagonist being held to be the one who was morally as well as physically entitled to live. Many a man who had the best end of the difference went down before a more skilled, more collected or more powerful adversary, and the ordeal passed out of social usage because it proved to be no test of the sort of fitness it had been adopted to bring out. In the same way the Malthusian doctrine regarded that portion of the population which emerged from the struggle for existence as the one which was the fitter to exist. It would oppose any interference by philanthropists, economists or mutual effort to check the effects of starvation, unhealthy environment, etc., but let the struggle go on in civilization as it had gone on in the most primitive barbarism. So it is with those who plead for untrammeled freedom of competition; they condemn associations because these would temper its excesses with moderation, and so would prevent the alleged effect of selecting the fit from the unfit by a destructive and far from unerring process of discrimination.

In competition, as in any other social relation between men, morality ought to subsist. A healthy trade sense, as exacting at least as public opinion, should be established, and then competition will be moderated. To say that a half-witted man, who has money enough to outstay a poorer but able rival, shows himself thereby to be a fitter man than his rival is nonsense. A knave who dupes the public, fleeces his creditors and impoverishes his rival is surely not a "fit" man to stay in business. There ought to be a few more conditions than mere survival involved in the test of fitness. A good name from creditors and customers ought to go along with the accident of self-preservation; but a good name from creditors and customers to a man who had been forced to the wall in the modern circumstances of competition would be worth just as much. There is no lack of eulogy for the soldiers who come off alive from a hard-won victory, while probably the men who fell did the most of the fighting. In the same way the general progress of trade in any place or department of commerce may be as much owing to men who have had to succumb to sharp competition as to men who have not.

There is a good deal of the cant of the evolution theory talked these days. Several catchy phrases were coined by the discoverers of and investigators into that theory, and these phrases are very glibly quoted as if they were the very touchstone of social, political and religious truth. This "survival of the fittest" is such a phrase. The fittest to evade the just consequences of their own rascality are not a desirable fittest, and if unregulated competition favors such more than it does square men, it surely is in need of modifying. Of those who have outlived some sharp spells of competition, a very great proportion undoubtedly have thereby shown themselves to be of the right metal for business, but it is equally true that others have come successfully through hard passes by virtue of trickery rather than business ability. To check the excesses of competition, to put an end to the pirate trading in stocks bought back at a pittance in the dollar by the man who had run for the fall, to obtain a fair profit on goods sold, to limit credit, to consolidate the influence of the trade for better collection laws, etc., are legitimate objects to be sought by conjoint effort. It is gratifying to see that this is more clearly recognized every day, and that as a consequence there are getting to be more associations. They cannot be too numerous. Competition has its laws. Trade needs some authority to lay them down, and that trade is gradually evolving as it brings associations more numerously into existence.

The Virtue next to Godliness.

The Moslem's Koran teaches, sagely too,
That "cleanliness to godliness is kin":
So, grocer friends, be sure whate'er you do,
See that your store and goods be ever clean.

Strange as it seems to some, I know,
Their trade does not increase.
The reason why I straight can show,
They don't apply 'nuff elbow grease.

What reck they though the flies hold revel
Like wanton artists on a spree,
They'd sooner see things to the devil
Then dust, and scrub, and cleanly be.

My First Drunk.

I AM now a middle-aged man and a firm believer in total abstinence. Don't misunderstand me ; I am not going to inflict upon you a temperance sermon. What I propose to do is to relate how I first tasted of the cup that cheers and inebriates.

At the age of fourteen I was apprenticed to a grocer in a town in Scotland. He was a hard-working, pushing young fellow and did a rattling trade, but temptation in the shape of liquor got the better of him and he began to neglect his business. The result was, of course, an assignment. I had been with him for two years when the crash came, and could not but feel sorry for him, as he had struggled hard to mend his ways, but without success. Well, in due course a solicitor to the estate was appointed, and a few evenings afterwards the solicitor, a big burly man, and two appraisers, came to the store to value the stock. The solicitor had forgotten to bring a clerk with him, and I was engaged to write down the various items and their values. We first went to the cellar, but got no further. The grocer, whom I will call Jones, tapped a quarter cask of port wine and filled a large goblet with the rosy liquid. Each took a long pull and smacked his lips, remarking that it was good stuff—in fact, it was so good that the goblet had to be replenished and sampled all over again. I resisted at first, but was induced to take a sip. I liked it so well that I took another sip, explaining that it "tasted fine." I wrote down the quantity and the value, and a quarter cask of sherry was next in order. Apparently the sherry was a superior article also, as the goblet was filled twice and I had my share. By this time I had begun to lose my sense of awe of the big men around me, and did not hesitate to express my opinion freely and decidedly upon the quality of the liquor. Well, a whisky quarter cask was next touched, but one goblet appeared to be enough. I had my share of it also. Then came brandy—Hennessy's best—and it came in for a good sampling, especially from the solicitor and one of the appraisers, an auctioneer. All this time jokes were being cracked, and it looked more like a convivial meeting than a stock-appraising. I began to feel very much exhilarated, and laughed as loud and as long as any of them. The writing and figures began to dance before my eyes, but I had still sense enough to know what I was doing. But as bad luck would have it, they next approached some cases of champagne. Jones insisted upon opening a bottle. The others offered no objection and I was deputed to procure a supply of crackers and cheese to lay a sort of foundation on their stomachs. I managed, not without some difficulty, to get the eatables, and when I came back to the cellar I found the merry company seated on boxes and each with a glass of the sparkling beverage in his hand. After I placed the crackers and cheese on the top of a barrel I found a seat also, and was handed a tumbler of champagne. The solicitor got on his feet and made a rattling speech referring to Jones' embarrassment, and expressing the hope that he would get a favorable settlement from his creditors and would soon be in business again. We all sang "For he's a jolly good fellow" and I remember that I started the chorus and Jones shook me warmly by the hand, in fact he was so much affected that I expected every moment he would embrace me and weep out his sorrows on my manly bosom. Jones before replying insisted upon refilling the glasses. At this juncture the solicitor asked if any one could sing a song. I at once began a popular ditty in these days, "The Bobby," and they all joined in the chorus. Then Jones got up to reply, but as he had been imbibing very freely he could only stand, sobbing as if his heart would break, and saying nothing but "My dear friends (sob), I thank you (sob) from the bottom of my heart (sob, sob, sob)." Finally he sat down but my tears were falling fast and I could see that the others were also dropping silent tears. The gloom was dreadful but the auctioneer dispelled it by beginning to sing in lusty tones "Should auld acquaintance be forgot." Immediately we all joined in, and when the grand old song was finished the solicitor suggested that the stock-taking should be deferred till the next day, and that they should make a "night of it." This was received with cheers, and then the fun began in earnest. Song, speech, and story followed each other in quick succession, and the last thing I remembered was the solicitor trying to dance "The Sword dance" over two brooms crossed on the floor, the auctioneer supplying the music in imitation of the bagpipes.

How I got home was explained to me in the morning, and that is a morning I won't forget in a hurry. While my head was splitting and my tongue sticking to the roof of my mouth, my esteemed parent gave me a lecture I have never forgotten. It appears he got alarmed at my absence and called at the store. He failed to get an entrance for some time, and when he went down to the cellar his amazement and indignation were great. I suspect he gave them a bit of his mind,—at least that's what I got next morning. I did not taste liquor again for some years. Jones did not again start in business, his stock being sold by auction, and I completed my apprenticeship with another firm.

SCOTTY.

The Manufacture of Candied Peel.

Few storekeepers who are in the daily habit of weighing out the candied peels of the orange, lemon and citron have any idea of the way in which these necessary adjuncts to the toothsome cake or pudding are prepared. They are probably aware that the fruit is not grown in Canada, but the mode of its preparation is to them a blank. What would be the surprise of the storekeeper to know that the fruit, when it arrives in this country, is in pickle, and as salt as salt can make it? At the place of growth the lemons and oranges, likewise the citrons, are cut in halves and placed in very large barrels, termed pipes ; each pipe being filled with brine to the top before shipping. In this manner it arrives at the confectioner's, whose duty it is to extract the salt and finish the preserving process. The common mode of procedure is to open the pipe at the end and allow the brine to run off. The fruit is then placed in large steam coppers with fresh water and boiled until tender. It is then taken from the copper and thrown into a tub of fresh water and, as soon as it can be handled, the pulp is taken from the peels ; the latter going into fresh water again. The water being changed every day until the peels are thoroughly freshened no trace of salt left. As soon as perfectly fresh, they are taken out and drained, and then carefully packed into other tubs. Each tub, when full, has a lid which fits inside and can be fastened on the top of the peels. This is done to prevent them floating during the process of preserving. Thick syrup, boiling hot, is then poured into the tub until the peels are submerged. The next morning the syrup, which has now lost considerable of its sweetening qualities, is drawn off, more sugar is added and the whole boiled up again, to be once more poured on to the peels. This performance continues for several days, until the syrup, when drawn off, is almost as thick as when it went on. It is now in a preserved state, and will absorb no more sugar. After being left for a few days in this syrup, the peel are taken out, drained and slightly dried, when they become the drained peel of commerce, as known to the baker ; but that which is destined to pass over the grocer's counter has to undergo the further process of candying. A quantity of sugar is taken and boiled to a certain consistency, when the peels are thrown in and the confectioner manipulates his spatula until the syrup is grained, when, with a fork and a sharp stick, he picks out the peels one by one and places them upon wire trays to drain. The syrup hardens upon the peels, and, as soon as cold, they are ready to be placed in boxes and sold to the grocer, and by him passed on to the housekeeper to be cut up and placed in the cakes and puddings which from time to time adorn our tables.

WHY ADVERTISE IN A PAPER WITH CIRCULATION DIVIDED OVER SEVERAL TRADES, IF YOU ONLY WANT TO REACH ONE OF THEM? MORE THAN HALF THE CIRCULATION OF A GENERAL PAPER IS LOST TO YOU

Two Legal Points as to Book Debts.

TWO judicial utterances that have an important bearing for retail traders, particularly general merchants and grocers, have recently been made, the one by Judge Muir at Guelph, the other by Judge Rose According to the first, a debt contracted by a wife who has been forbidden by her husband to pledge his credit, cannot be collected from the husband if he can furnish satisfactory evidence that he had so forbidden her. The other deliverance is,that it is no libel to advertise debts for sale, if the debtor has persisted in his neglect or refusal to pay a long-standing account.

Traders who do a credit business will learn with some uneasiness that it is so precarious to open an account to a married woman without the formal sanction of her husband. Heretofore it was thought to be necessary and sufficient for a husband to serve the trader with, or to advertise, a notice of his intention not to be responsible for debts undertaken by his wife. But according to Judge Muir's view of the matter, it is not necessary for the trader to be advised by the husband. It seems that, in the eye of the law, a man must be presumed irresponsible unless he formally undertakes or acknowledges responsibility. If a wife cannot, without obtaining first her husband's consent, put him in for a bill of goods that he as well as she will make use of, then there is a legal loop hole by which husband and wife, if they are unprincipled, with the assistance of some third party as a witness, may swindle the merchant out of payment of his account. It is an easy matter for an unscrupulous man to warn his wife solemnly in the presence of some respectable third person that she is not to buy anything on credit. In such a case she will probably buy to the full limits of her husband's credit, and practically with his consent. When, however, such a man is served with the account, he will make a theatrical display of prostrating astonishment. He will be unable to understand it, as it has been an invariable rule of his to do no business but on a strictly cash basis. He will learn with horror that the goods were ordered by his wife, and will recall the fact that he forbade her to contract debts. An action may or may not be begun, according as the trader is or is not satisfied of its futility, the nature of the evidence forthcoming swaying him to one course or the other. Such a probability of knavery is not at all far-fetched. It will appear to be a reasonably likely and frequent outcome of a widespread apprehension that the law on the matter is as it is quoted by Judge Muir. There is not a legal loop-hole open which has not been used again and again by debtors who would seem to be above taking advantage of such means of escaping the payment of their debts, or the punishment of their repudiation of them from any other standpoint. The number of civil servants who are not above taking advantage of the defect in the law which makes their salaries non-garnishable, the number of wage-earners who carefully keep from allowing the attachable amount of their pay to remain in employers' hands, the number of fathers who get out of paying their sons' debts, etc., are already too numerous. The law has many defects, and human honesty is too rarely found to be above the temptation of making the most of them. To add to the number of them will simply be to extend the practice of fraud.

There is one effect of this legal ruling that may be healthy. It may bring within moderate bounds the number of accounts that are on the storekeeper's books. If it is the means of making some accounts worthless it is likely also to be a means of making fewer accounts. The trader will see the wisdom of making the husband assume responsibility before the debt gets large, while wives will probably be less prone to buy on credit. It is possible that there may exist very many instances of accounts opened by wives contrary to the orders of their husbands, but which have been paid simply because the husband did not suppose such prohibition released him from responsibility. Now, however, it is likely to be different. Where the husband in good faith forbids his wife to contract debts he will be likely to repudiate them as readily as the man who imposes such a prohibition in a scheming way. There are many men who are made debtors by their wives, the men themselves being genuine in their aversion to such financial entanglements. Such men, afraid of scandal if they gave formal notice to the traders concerned, have been forced by their wives into debt. Now no scandal is necessary. Only the wife needs to be told in the presence of a discreet witness that the husband will not be responsible, and the husband can not be made responsible. This makes his position much less embarrassing, and he can repudiate a debt without difficulty. These considerations ought to take hold of the mind of the trader, and the result will be fewer and safer accounts. In that way the knowledge of this view of the law will be good. That it is the law, however, is not a matter of decision, but one of incidental statement in a summing up by the judge.

The other law point referred to did emerge in a decision which settled an action undertaken against an agency that had posted an account for sale. It is a relief to know that it is not libellous to publish a debt for sale, after every other method of getting money out of it has been exhausted. It would truly be an anomaly if a debtor could evade with impunity the payment of an account justly due to another man, and then recover damages from that other man because the latter had tried to turn the account into money by putting it on the market. The trader will learn with satisfaction that recourse may be had to posting accounts for sale when every other means of collecting them has failed. It is in his power to expose the man who has not redeemed his credit. The knowledge of that fact may mend the honesty of some dignified deadbeats who cannot be got at by any other mode of attack. It makes them wince to publish their names as debtors They usually terrorize the trader from resorting to such a course by their threats of vengeance of the law, but such threats are impotent. Law is not violated though dignity may be touched.

Cut off in His Prime.

The news of the death of George S. Findlay, a traveller for W. H. Gillard & Co., wholesale grocers, Hamilton, will be received with keen regret by his many friends among the trade. Mr. Findlay was a native of Hamilton, Scotland, and came from there to Hamilton, Ont., in his 19th year. For nine years and a half he was employed by the late firm of Simpson Stuart & Co., and after a year or two with Lucas, Park & Co. he entered the service of W. H. Gillard & Co., with whom he has remained for the last seven years, being highly thought of by his employers. He was a prominent member of the A. O. U. W., having been Master of Concord Lodge, which he with one or two others was chiefly instrumental in forming, and from which he received a silver service as a token of the high regard in which he was held by the members. He also belonged to Temple Lodge, A, F. & A. M., and was a member of the Congregational Church. His illness has been long and painful. He leaves a widow and several children, together with his mother and a large circle of friends to mourn his loss. At his own request, Concord Lodge, A. O. U. W., will take charge of his funeral.

Tall camels bear o'er Arab sand
The golden berry that, forsooth,
Was blessed in every clime and land.

But now, alas, the scene is changed ;
In dark and gruesome alleyway,
With coloured mud we see arranged
The coffee bean of modern day.

Whate'er the changes that are made,
Thy bean is pure alway.

Pedlar vs. Storekeepr.

One of the questions which agitate the mind of the storekeeper is, how to cope with the pedlar. It is felt that a great injustice is done to the storekeeper by the unfair competition to which he is subjected. In large cities the pedlar makes his presence felt most, and in small towns and villages he is seldom or never heard of. The reason for this is plain. He requires a large field for his operations In small towns and villages the population is too much scattered to enable him to make a success of peddling ; therefore, he hies him to a large city, where he can meet fresh faces at every turn. His business is strictly cash, and his turnover large. It is claimed by some that he always handles the refuse of the market, but this is not the case. While some pedlars pick up the refuse in order to sell at low prices, there are others who handle good fruit, and they are perhaps the most dangerous competitors the storekeepers have. It works this way : Mr. A., who keeps the store, may have bought in the same market as the pedlar. He may have paid exactly the same price, but when Mrs. B., who is his customer, comes along, he has to calculate on a month's credit, perhaps, while, if Mrs. B. stops the pedlar, she buys the same stuff at a lower rate, but has to plank down the cash. And there is the point—cash vs. credit. The man who sells for cash has but little loss and can easily outsell the man who sells for credit. A loaf of bread is bought for 10 cents and sold for 11 cents, just a profit of 1 cent per loaf. A customer buys a loaf and pays cash. The storekeeper has made a cent profit. Supposing that this transaction takes place on the 1st of the month, and that same 10 cents is again invested in bread on the 2nd, at the end of ten working days the storekeeper has his original 10 cents and 10 cents profit besides, or enough to invest in two loaves, which now earn 2 cents daily. At the end of five days more he is enabled to buy three loaves with the original 10 cents, plus the profit earned It will be found that at the end of the month he can purchase about seven loaves of bread. Now, if on the 1st of the month he had booked that loaf of bread and the customer was a straightforward, honest party, who always settled on the 1st, our friend the storekeeper would be just one cent ahead on the trans action. So much for cash as against credit, leaving out losses by bad debts, errors, etc. Nowthe pedlar has just that advantage. He sells his goods and gets the money. He turns that money over many times more in the course of the month than the storekeeper does, besides making no bad debts, being under less expense, and suffering no loss. No wonder then that associations get to work to put a ring around the pedlar's operations. In Toronto the fight has been going on a long time, but the pedlar proves to be a stubborn foe. He claims the earth, and seems determined to get it. It behooves the tradesmen of the city to work shoulder to shoulder and see that their representatives in the city council do their duty in the matter. The Markets and License Committee is about to recommend that the pedlars be prohibited on certain streets from plying their vocation, but even if this passes the council, it can only come into force next July—in other words, at the end of the license year. A new council comes into power in January, and they may not see the matter in the same light as their predecessors. The tradesmen should be on the lookout, and when the would-be aldermen come around hand-shaking at the end of 1891, just politely ask them what they propose to do with the pedlars.

Uniformity in Store Package Butter.

The butter problem is one of the most difficult questions of the day. We will start with the word uniformity. It is no doubt understood to the sorrow of many country merchants that our Canadian butter is at a very low ebb in the old country. I was very much pleased to see that the travelling dairy is trying to introduce a system of uniformity among butter makers, that is, to try and get all butter makers to make butter in the same way. It is a well known fact that at present a merchant may in the course of a few days get a great many different colors and shades of butter, and he finds it very hard to select and blend them so as to have many tubs of a uniform shade. Now I would suggest that the travelling dairy print in circular form the best system of making butter, and the one adopted by them, and let every merchant throughout the Dominion have a copy, so that he could get the circulars printed and distributed to every customer, pressing home to everyone the great necessity of making butter all on the same plan, showing that this must be done in order to develop a demand in the English market. When in England in 1885, I visited eight days with my uncle, whose business was solely in butter, milk and eggs. I noticed he was exceedingly particular that all receipts were perfectly fresh, or he would return them at once. Then you see we have quite a competition in New Zealand. The country storekeepers are not careful enough about handling the butter. Many have poor, unventilated cellars, all colors are thrown in together and are not put up in good shape. A traveller told me the other day I could get a few tubs of choice butter out north. Well, I sent for four tubs, and on arrival it was only No. 2. We turned the butter out on our stone slabs, and we found several colors in one tub. Another had one-half inch of salt in the bottom. Between salt and over weight of the tubs I had to dock 15 lbs. on the four tubs. Now, butter shipped to England in that condition will net the merchant poor returns, and he certainly can blame no one but himself.

Too little attention is given to the care and manufacture of butter. Badly ventilated cellars, keeping the cream too long, having only one set of pans and consequently not airing them enough, leaving too much buttermilk in the butter, are leading causes of deterioration in the manufactured artice, being destructive of its keeping powers. Now, I do not know any better way to remedy all these difficulties than for the Government to issue a circular giving in detail the proper system, and putting it into the hands of every farmer throughout the Dominion, and urging upon the attention of all makers the fact that such an article will always demand a ready sale and yield good returns. I am sure of this fact, that if butter is shipped in good shape—if the weights are all right and the quality originally good—there will be no trouble to repeat the orders. I hope that every merchant in our Dominion will take a deep interest in the butter question, and keep the one motto in view —uniformity. I have not been able to give the subject much thought lately, but I know your excellent paper is alive on the subject.

A Few Hints for Spectacular Window Effects.

THE newspaper carries the fame of the merchant and the virtues of a few of his goods through the country at large; but for catching and alluring the transient, as well as retaining and increasing the local trade, there is no better medium than a tempting and neatly dressed window. Grocers should take special interest in this matter. There is nothing that appeals so strongly to a man as his stomach, and when catering to that above all things he wants cleanliness. No matter how you have your window dressed, neatly or artistically, have it bright and clean. No old fly-blown goods that have their age but too plainly depicted in their appearance. Goods should not be left there long enough to get that way. Your window should be changed in summer time daily if possible. Do not let the flies be more industrious than you.

Great taste may be displayed in this line by showing your goods in an original and artistic manner. Seek always new ideas. Never have the same window twice if possible, as people grow tired looking at it and pass on. If you have your goods in right side up one time, turn them upside down the next. Change and variety are what you want. Do your best to get them.

If a line of goods is handsomely wrapped and cased, with a moderate supply of advertising matter and show cards, by utilizing everything you can make a big display with a few goods. Save your fancy cases, wrappers, etc., and use them. Build your window up and make it look stocky. Show your goods in original packages, if they happen to be attractive. People are sometimes interested in style of packing, etc. A barrel of Lazenby's pickles, for instance, placed in your window with the head partially knocked out, and the bottles tumbled out carelessly, will attract more attention than five dozen bottles of the same goods arranged systematically. During the summer months, when the heat and dust are most injurious to your goods, the grocer can change from a strictly grocery window and display his taste in some other attractive manner. People's senses are generally held by the improbable, and a few green sods, bright flowers, ferns, etc, a picnic scene, a stream of running water, or a representation of anything of local interest, will brighten the store, be refreshing to look at during the heated term, and create endless talk. Display your taste and originality, and with a little extra work you will find your well-dressed windows will bring you what we all want—an increased business. D. M.

The State's Business Interests.

It is now tolerably certain that the preliminary meeting for the purpose of increasing the effectiveness of the various commercial organizations of the state, the formation of a central association, will be held in Rochester some time next month. The name of the central organization will be the New York State Board of Trade, but beyond that no definite arrangements have been made nor rules formulated. While the New York Board of Trade and Transportation is the prime mover in the scheme, it does not desire to be in the slightest degree dictatorial in the matter, and any suggestions that have emenated from the board are simply suggestions that may be adopted or rejected, according to the pleasure of the conference. The suggestions that have been made contemplate the simplest and most economical plan of organization, but one that will be effective in securing prompt co-operation and action among the various State bodies on questions of common interest. The form of organization suggested follows closely that of the National Board of Trade and it is well illustrated by the following extract from the Constitution of the Massachusetts State Board of Trade Viz.: "Article 11 Sec. 1. Every local board of trade or other body organized in this State for general commercial and not for special or private purposes, may be admitted to membership in this association on the approval of two-thirds of the bodies represented at any meeting of the association, and shall be accorded the following representation: Each association having fifty members or less shall be entitled to one delegate; over fifty members, two delegates, and for each additional fifty members, one additional delegate."

It is not considered feasible to hold the initial meeting of the Board in New York city, as that is too far away from the western cities. Several of the more interior towns have sent invitations to have the organization meeting held there, and as the Rochester Chamoer of Commerce's invitation was first received, it is probable that it will be accepted. Many of the commercial organizations do not hold meetings during the summer months, including September, and the question of their co-operation in the movement will be acted upon at the first meeting in October. So far, twenty organizations have agreed to appoint delegates to attend the first meeting. These include, in addition to the New York Board of Trade and Transportation, the Buffalo Merchants' Exchange; Chamber of Commerce, Albany; The Board of Trade, Elmira; Business Men's Association and Exchange, Syracuse; Rochester Chamber of Commerce, Rochester; Olean Board of Trade; Board of Trade, Corning; Italian Chamber of Commerce, New York; Board of Trade, Mount Vernon; Business Men's Association, Niagara Falls; Retail Grocers' Union, New York; Crockery Board of Trade, New York; Board of Trade, Hudson; Coal Dealers' Board of Trade, Albany; United Retail Grocers' Association, Brooklyn; Trunkman's Association, New York, and the Jewelers' Board of Trade, New York.

The promoters of the movement earnestly hope that every Chamber of Commerce, Board of Trade, Exchange, Merchants' and Manufacturers' association, &c., &c., receiving this request will be represented at the convention, it being understood that attendance at the convention, shall not bind any organization to become a member unless the plan adopted shall be approved by such organization. There are on record in New York State 137 commercial organizations that are eligible for membership in the proposed State Board. It is conservatively estimated that they represent an aggregate of thirty thousand merchants, bankers and manufacturers, and should they be banded successfully together it is believed that a pressure can be brought to bear on legislation affecting business interests that will secure such safety for capital from legislative attack that could not otherwise be secured.

As a matter of fact, the excitement that existed in commercial, financial and manufacturing circles during the last session of the State Legislature on account of the threatened passage of the Liston, Listing, Interest and other bills, is responsible for the present movement in the direction of establishing a central business organization. It was found to be a most difficult matter to bring the various commercial associations into line in order to make a combined and effective protest against the measures. The matter was referred to the Committee on Legislation of the New York Board of Trade, who informally communicated with a number of State organizations, and finding the sentiment in every case favorable, it was determined to recommend the establishment of a State Board.

GROCERIES.—Trade is more backward than it was a week ago. There is less sugar selling, canned goods are quieter and teas not so active. Payments are not specially complained of, but evidently there is no more money current among the retail trade than what suffices to keep business going at its present quiet movement. There is not the same feeling now as was general a year ago when dulness prevailed. Then the trade was somewhat disheartened, now it is hopeful. The material basis for a good circulation exists, and all that is wanted is to get it moving. Business cannot but mend when the grain begins to sell, however early or late that may be. In the meantime trade will be apt to drag a little.

CANNED GOODS.—Orders are not coming forward very freely. The tomato pack has now nearly all the chances in its favor, so that the apprehension of a short pack is now pretty well dissipated. Buyers are consequently neither eager nor numerous and prices are weakening. It is probable that stock could be bought as low as $1.05, though $1.10 is the prevailing quotation. There ought to be no excuse for resorting to an inferior quality of raw material for this year's pack, as the tomatoes are excellent. The pack may be curtailed, if not by limitations in the quantity of raw material, probably by limitations in the time left canners to operate. They made a very late beginning Peas seem to be showing signs of prospective scarcity. Orders are only partially filled by some packers, and the demand is becoming more ernest. The price is $1.10 to $1.20. Corn is $1.05 to $1.10. Apples quote nominally yet as nobody is interested in them. They will rule low this year. Salmon is quiet but $1.35 is quoted less generally, $1.40 being the most common lowest point.

Perkins, Ince & Co., have just received the first shipment of the Nimpkish River Salmon, the whole season's pack of which they have secured.

The British Columbia Commercial Bulletin says: The market is reported quiet, but firm. Fraser River brands are quoted at $4.60 a case, while, last year, they fetched $4.75 and $4.80 a case. The short pack, in all probability, will send the prices higher as the season advances, and already it is noted that the market is hardening in England. Shipments to Eastern Canada, this year, are fair, and it is expected will reach about 60,000 cases for the season.

COFFEE.—Fresh receipts of Mocha coffee have increased the stock of that growth and made prices rather easier, though the same figures are used for quotations. The lowest price quoted for Mocha, 32c., could probably be shaded. Rio coffees are 19 to 21c., with no sign of recovery from the position that last week's drop brought them to. The coffee trade is about of the ordinary volume.

DRIED FRUIT.—Only a moderate quantity of new currants is yet on the market. The price is 6½c. per barrel. Old quote about ⅛c. less, but, all there is of them would muster a very small quantity. Two direct shipments are now on the way. All the remainder of the new crop in fact is afloat. Trade in Valencia raisins is dull. New are selling at 7 1-2c., while all are 4 to 5c. The new came in too early to find a bare market,and as there is some very acceptable old fruit the new is not receiving much attention. They are cabled firm at Denia, and likely to advance for good quality. Sultana raisins are selling moderately well at 11 to 12c. The long difference between this and last season's prices is not having the stimulating effect upon the demand it would be supposed to have. Prunes are slow of sale at 5½ to 6½c. New stock will soon be forthcoming. New Eleme figs will arrive this week. They are on board the Sarnia. Old figs in good condition are plentiful and demoralized. They are said to be obtainable at 6c. in 10 lb. boxes. A big consignment that was brought here proved too large for this market to distribnte and a considerable portion of it was disposed of in the United States. There is still a surpulus on the spot.

NUTS.—No new nuts are yet quite due. Interest in this class of stock is not quite due yet either. Business goes on in lots of 25 and 30 lbs. with the sale of an occasional bale at steady prices,

RICE AND SPICES.—The demand for rice varies little, and a airly good trade is reported. Japan continues to be in leading equest. Spices are going out quite freely.

SUGAR.—A falling-off in the sugar trade begins to be quite perceptible. Its mainstay, the fruit supply is failing it. The change in the demand has not so far affected the price of granulated, which remains 5⅞c. in quantities of less than 15 barrels and 5c. in quantities not less. Yellows are rather dull and are accumulating. The competition of low grade raws, as well as the decline in the demand, affects prices, which quote from 3⅝c. up for brands. Raws are also easier, 3.45 being touched in this week's trade.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.—Syrups are moving somewhat at prices ranging from 2½c. up. Corn syrups are offering at 3¾ to 4c. per lb. In molasses there is little business yet heard of. Some moderate-sized sales of New Orleans are reported.

TEAS.—The tea trade is less brisk than it was a week ago. Stocks are now in good condition, and scarcity is wanting as an incentive. Blacks from 7d. upwards represent the best value that has been received for years, while the difference in quality for 1d. below that is remarkable. The lowest grades do not yield quality equal to that of a year ago. Prices range from 15c. upwards. Young Hysons are arriving. There is a scarcity of really good this year. The quality of the early samples is below that of last season. The lowest priced Hyson in stock is 17c. Japans from 16 to 20c. are in very good demand.

The local demand for new season's Indian teas continues steady. The London market appears to have recovered itself. Considering the time of year, rather a large amount of Indian tea has been offered. Prices have been fully maintained for all medium and fine grades, but some irregularity has been shown in the common sorts. It must not be forgotten, however, that a large quantity of very indifferent stuff was brought forward. The supply of Ceylon was smaller than for some time past, and prices were firm all round. Private advices from Calcutta say: "Owing to a falling off in the Bombay demand, common and medium Pekoes, with ordinary liquors, sold at easier rates. All other descriptions were in good demand at hardening values. Fair liquoring Pekoe Souchongs in many cases advanced 3 pie.

PETROLEUM.—Prices are steady, but without change on last week's quotations. The trade is growing larger every day.

The Petrolia Advertiser reports: Petrolia crude $1.35½ per bbl, Oil Springs crude $1.35½ per bbl. The price of crude still continues to be dubbed $1.35, but that is merely nominal, as the very few transactions that take place on Change at that figure clearly indicate. It is every day getting firmer and firmer, and only the few operators that appear on Change, is the reason of its remaining at that figure. By the 1st of October we fully expect the price to reach $1.40. Refined still remains at 9 cents in bulk or 12 cents in barrels. We don't expect these figures to last, as they are both too low, and are only the result of some cutting on the part of one or two refiners who are trying to make it uncomfortably warm for those who are not overburdened with crude.

DRUGS AND CHEMICALS.—This week's trade offers no feature for special comment. Business is reported fairly active, with prices unchanged in lines handled by the grocery and general store trade.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.—The hot weather has caused a very marked decline in the receipts of butter. Prices are stiffer accordingly, good dairy tub being salable at from 15 to 17c., the latter figure of course representing the very choicest stock. The country does not seem to be overstocked. The fall trade will in all probability lack the usual drawback of bad butter arriving in shoals of packages. There is not so active inquiry from holders as to prices for future delivery with an eye to catching an export market this fall. This goes to show that the excess is not great, and that there is probably more than warm weather at the bottom of the present shortage in the supply. Seconds bring from 11 to 13c. and sell more readily than they did. Baker's grades are in stronger request on account of the stiffening in the value of lard, but that description of butter is quite scarce. The source of supply for grades to sell below 11c. is usually surplus butter carried over from the previous year. There was no surplus carried over last spring; hence very low grades are not to be had in quantites.

Cheese is higher. It is not so much because of any change in the English market or new strength on the part of makers' prices as because stock bought before the advance reported two weeks ago is mostly sold, and replenishment must be on the basis of the advance. Prices are 10 to 10½c.

BEANS—Are easier at $1.65 to $1.75. A few samples of new have been shown.

DRIED APPLES—Are 6 to 7c. Stock offers freely, but does not readily find buyers.

EVAPORATED APPLES—Are very dull at 8 to 8½c.

HAY—Receipts are larger and prices weaker. Pressing has begun quite generally. On track bales of timothy are $11 to $11.50.

HIDES—No. 1 green are 5c. for cows' and 5½c. for steers'. Buffs are 6c. in carloads. Hides are somewhat dull.

MARKETS.—Continued.

HONEY—Is 7 to 10c., according to quality, for strained. Sections are 12½c.

HOPS—Are weak and several cents cheaper. There is not much activity yet, but prices rule at 12 to 13c. for choice yearlings and new crop stock.

ONIONS—Are quiet at $2 to $2.25 per barrel.

POTATOES—The market shows no improvement. Stock is very plentiful, street receipts being particularly large, and carloads are very hard to sell at 35c. Out of store prices are 40 to 45c.

SKINS—Are steady and firmer as the wool grows' at 65 to 70c. Calfskins are 5c. for No. 2 and 7c. for No. 1.

WOOL—The demand is indifferent. Wool comes in freely at 18 to 19c. for fleeces.

FISH—The warm weather of the past few weeks has been a drawback to the fish trade. Small sales and not many of them are the order of current trade. There is no class of stock upon the market other than what was noted as here a week ago. Pickerel are 6c., pike 5c., whitefish and salmon trout 7 to 8c., lake herring $2.50 to $3, haddock 6c., British Columbia salmon 16c.

FRUITS—Peaches come in quite freely. The price is better, $1 to $1.25 for Crawfords and 75 to 85c. for other sorts. Bartlett pears are as good as done. The few to be had are worth $6 to $7 per barrel. Apples are plentiful and easier at $1.25 per barrel. Watermelons are out of stock. Muskmelons are $1.50 to $1.75 per barrel. Tomatoes are firmer at 25 to 35c. per basket. In grapes, Champions are done, More's Early are 4c., Concord 3c., Rogers 4c., Jessicas 3½ to 4c.

GREEN FRUIT—Lemons have had a good spell of it during the hot weather. Stocks are now very low and prices high. Messinas are very scarce at $5.50 to $7. Maoris are $9 to $10. Verdellis are all but done at $5.50 to $7. There are no Sorrento oranges. Jamaicas are $8 to $8.50. New Floridas are coming in at $4.50 to $5. They are rather green yet. Bananas have about got through their season and quote at $1 to $1.50. Sweet potatoes are $3.25 to $4.25.

PROVISIONS—There has been a slackening of activity in some lines, notably in hams. Other smoked meats have continued to go out at about the same rate of movement as was chronicled a week ago. Long clear had another lively week of it, one house having a big call on it to supply outside packers whose stock was exhausted. The week ended with all stocks virtually exhausted. Hogs are not arriving freely since the weather became so warm. Bacon—Long clear is 8¾ to 9c. and about out of stock. Some new is coming in. Smoked backs and bellies are 10½ to 11c. Rolls are 9c. Hams—Smoked are down to 11½ to 12½c. The demand has shrunk considerably. Lard—Pure has gone up to 10½ and 11c. Compound is steady at 8½ to 9c. Mess Pork—Heavy is $15 to $15.50, and short cut is $17 to $17.25. Dressed Hogs are quiet at $6.50 to $6.75. Supplies are backward on account of the heat. The packers are ready to begin cutting on a large scale when supplies begin to arrive freely.

SALT.—Trade is fairly good at last week's prices. Until cutting becomes general among the packers the season's trade in barrel salt will be slow. The prices of last week have held throughout this week. They are 70c. for coarse sacks, 85c. for fine sacks, $1.20 for barrels.

DRY GOODS.—This trade is not so much affected by delay in the autumn movement of grain. Business is done on longer time and easier terms generally than in the grocery trade, so that an assured outlook induces buying more readily than in the grocery trade, where the conditions have to be fully realized before buying begins to be very active. Good reports of trade are the rule among the dry goods houses these days.

Montreal Markets.

MONTREAL, 1st OCT., 1891.

The week does not show any appreciable change as yet, but within the past few days a somewhat more active feeling has been shown in several of the leading lines which may be taken as an indication that trade is commencing to open up. Anyhow jobbers show more desire for business, which should mean that consumers are beginning to take more freely, and as a consequence trade in a wholesale way shows a wider basis than a week ago, while the tone generally is steady. A good sign also is the activity in wines and spirits which is always a fair barometer of the position. The business in this respect has been especially good from first hands during the past few days. Dried fruit is another feature. Arrivals are light so far compared with last season, and the indications point to a smaller supply this, so that sellers show a firm tone. First direct arrivals of raisins and currants are expected in the course of a fortnight or so, and business has been done to arrive on a comparatively shady basis. Sugar, tea and coffee all show steadiness, while the movement in them also is beginning to pick up. On the whole, the week gives unmistakable signs of more activity.

SUGAR, ETC.—The sugar market does not show any particular change from a week ago, but business shows a somewhat freer tendency within the last few days. Values rule the same. We quote granulated 4⅝c., yellows 3⅝ and 4¼c. Remarks made last week regarding raw stock may be repeated, for matters are precisely the same.

Syrups are moving slowly at 2¾ to 3¼c. and business in molasses is confined to a few jobbing sales at 38 to 38½c. for Barbadoes.

TEAS—Trade in Japan teas has been dull during the week, as the attention of the trade was centered on the usual fall sale by Messrs. Duncan, at which the values realized were very fair. A better movement is expected from this time forward. Low grade blacks are firmer in London, but are neglected here.

COFFEES AND SPICES—The weaker feeling and unsettled state of outside markets have not affected the local coffee market to any appreciable extent yet, and prices hold fairly steady for the reason that really desirable grades are hard to get. Consequently, we quote the old basis of 19 to 20c., as business could not be done any better than that. For spices there is a better demand, and values show some advance, several fair lots of pepper being moved during the week.

RICE.—A better delivery is reported in rice, but prices show no change. Advices since our last state that a great part of the crop in Japan has been destroyed by storms, but as no details are given, the effect is simply a matter of conjecture. We quote Patna $4.50 Japan $4.25 to $4.50, standard $3.90, and off grades $3.50, all in car lots.

DRIED FRUIT.—There has been no change in the market since our last, and with the prospect of exceedingly light arrivals, holders show a firm tendency. This is easily understood. The annual consumptive wants of Canada for dried fruit are increasing every year, and it now takes, at a very low estimate, 300,000 boxes of raisins to supply us. When it is stated therefore that the receipts of new crop and the lots on the way so far amount to only 80,000 boxes, it is easy to understand that holders are firm, even allowing for the very large stocks of old material that are in the country already. The first direct fruit steamer, the Avlona, left Denia on the 21st, and will, bar accidents, arrive here about the 15th October. She brings out 57,000 boxes Valencia raisins, which is an unusually small quantity, while the cargo is very well distributed throughout Canada, and she has no large accounts in Montreal. The Dracona, the next and last direct fruit steamer, will follow her in about a fortnight, which vessel is reported to have only 15,000 boxes of raisins. Fruit ex Avlona has been offering this week at 18s. to 19s., according to quality, C. I. F., or equal to 5½ to 5¾c., Montreal terms. On spot sales of new fruit continue to be made at 6¼c. for best brands, no inferior stock yet to hand. For old stock, of which supplies, as already stated, are becoming much reduced, common sells at 3¾c. The scarcity of currants is still a feature of the market, and they are a much wanted article on spot at 6 to 6¼c. for prompt delivery. To arrive by the Avlona, the steamer referred to above, sales have been made at 6c. for invoices comprising barrels, half-barrels and cases, while in smaller lots business has been done at 6c. for barrels and 6 1-8c. for half-barrels and cases. Supplies on the way are supposed to be very light.

GREEN FRUIT—The market for green fruit shows no particular change. Lemons and oranges move along quietly, the former being somewhat firmer at $4 to $4.50 per box. New Eleme figs are commencing to arrive, and business has opened in them at steady prices. We quote 14 to 15c. as a range for business transpiring.

FRESH FRUIT—There has been no change of a material kind in this connection since our last. Arrivals continue large and values generally easy. Grapes are a heavy supply on the market at present, and prices rule low at 2 to 3c. for Concord and 3 to 3½c. for Niagara. Pears rule at $3.04 per barrel and 50 to 60c. per basket, plums 75c. to $1, quinces 75 to 90c., and peaches 75c. to $1 per basket. Fall apples are a glut, and prices show an easy tendency at $1 to $1.25 per barrel.

CANNED GOODS—Business in canned goods is very small, while the pack of both fruit and vegetables promises to be exceptionally large. Buyers, therefore, seem assured of the future, and show no desire for business at all beyond supplying immediate wants, the movement on this account being small. In fish the market here is said to be pretty well stocked up with salmon, and despite the repeated stories anent the pack, Montreal dealers seem confident that they will have all the stock they want to select from. Advices from the West indicate that canners are winding up their season's pack, so that it will soon be settled to a certainty exactly how they stand. In a jobbing way on spot, values on all descriptions of goods have an easy tendency.

FISH.—The fish market does not show any marked activity, for the reason that arrivals so far are inconsiderable, and most dealers expect a light supply this fall—arguing thus from the light catch in several sections, some being practically a failure. As a consequence, values have a firm tendency. Labrador herring are a small stock at present, offering at $4.75 to $5.25 per barrel, and half barrels $2.75 to $3.00. There is little or no Cape Breton stock here, and it is held for $5.00 to $5.50. Cod of all kinds is scarce and firm, and there are no green cod offering to speak of. No. 1 rule at $5.00 to $5.50, other grades in proportion ; and Labrador salmon are firm at $16.00 for No. 1, Nos. 2 and 3 at a reduction of $1.00 and $2.00 respectively.

HOPS.—Locally there has been nothing particular to say regarding the market, for the reason that business from second hands is a bagatelle. A few lots are on spot and held for full figures, but there are reports of offers on a basis considerably below, in fact it is certain that 15c. would move a good quantity, if the buyer could be found willing to pay the figure.

PROVISIONS.—The demand this week for provisions is not so brisk, but prices all round rule steady, with no change to note. Short cut pork is especially firm in tone under a somewhat restricted supply. Canadian short cut per barrel is quoted at $17.00 to $17.25; mess pork, western, per barrel $15.25 to $15.75; short cut, western, per brl $17.25 to $17.50 ; hams, city cured, per pound 10½ to 11½c.; hams, canvassed, per lb 0 00 to 0 00c.; lard, Canadian, in pails, 8¾ to 9c.; bacon, per pound, 9 to 10c.; lard, com., refined, per lb, 7¾ to 8c.

EGGS.—The local demand for eggs continues good, and the improvement in tone effected by the country buying noted in our last is fully maintained. The supply of culls and poor stock generally is pretty well cleared up, and this, of course, adds strength to the situation. Choice fresh candled stock is firm at 14 to 14½c.

BUTTER.—The market is a quiet one, and were it not for the demand for late made creamery for shipment, the market would be a very dull one. In this connection, though, the inquiry from shippers continues fair, and were it not for the extreme views held by holders, a good free movement would result. As it is, good figures have been paid for guaranteed September stock in the country—21½ to 22c. being spoken of—but so far the highest figure actually made on a spot turnover has been 21¾c. In Western dairy there is nothing doing, dealers here being content to let those buyers in the West who sent up the price do all the business they like. For the stock, 14½ to 15c. is the idea here, but holders will not listen to propositions on this basis. It is understood that a good deal of this stock is being consigned by the buyers aforesaid. Perhaps when they come to balance up they will have the experience and somebody else the profit. Finest creamery, 21½ to 21¾c. ; finest Townships, 16 to 17c. ; finest Western, 14½ to 15c.

CHEESE—Another week and no change in the dead lock between buyers and sellers, and with holders in their present temper and buyers so stubborn it looks as though we were going to have a dragging market for some time to come. This is always a result when prices in the country are forced up unduly, and now, if speculators have their fingers burned as they generally do to a certain extent, it will take a very small quilt to cover the mourners. It seems hard that a small clique of speculators should be able to break up the market in this way, but as the factorymen have been getting good figures there is no great cause to complain. The latter should not be jockeyed into the false step of holding their late makes too long, however, and would be wise to sell them at prevailing quotations. Of course it is natural to expect more for September than August, but it seems unlikely now that the difference will be great. In fact the quality of the last half of August is such that such difference, if there is any, will only be sentimental. We quote the following range as a nominal one, for business is small at present, for whereas 50s. to 51s. could easily have been made a fortnight ago, cable bids are now 1s. lower: Finest Brockville, etc., 10 to 10⅛c.; finest Eastern and States, 9⅞ to 10c.; fine, 9¼ to 10c.; medium, 8½ to 9c.; cable, 45s. 6d.

GRAIN.—The market does not show any particular activity, while values naturally have an easier tendency with the approach of the time for offerings of new crops. The stocks in store, compared with those of a week ago, show a decrease of 4,589 bushels of wheat, 13,000 corn, and an increase of 29,636 bushels of peas, 3,679 bushels of oats, 11,810 bushels of barley nnd 2,462 bushels of rye. Compared with a year ago there is an increase of 82,817 bushels of wheat, 26,925 bushels of peas, 75,250 bushels of oats, 6,041 bushels of rye, and a decrease of 16,190 bushels of corn and 1,041 bushels of barley. We quote:—No. 2 hard Manitoba, $1.05 to $1.07 ; No. 3 do., 97c.; No. 2 Northern, $1.04, peas 77c. per 66 pounds in store, 78c. afloat ; oats, 32 to 33c. per 34 pounds; corn, 75 to 77c. duty paid ; feed barley, 48c. ; good malting do., 55 to 57c.

FLOUR— There is only a small jobbing trade doing in flour, and prices have a downward tendency, and we quote values somewhat lower than a week ago. The stock in store shows an increase of 5,681 bbls. for the week, and 2,469 bbls. compared with the corresponding date last year. Patent spring $5.25 to $5 40, patent winter $5.25 to $5.40, straight roller $4 80 to $5.90 extra $4.40 to $4.50, superfine $4.20 to $4.30, city strong bakers' $5, strong bakers' $5.

Halifax Prices Current.

HALIFAX, Oct. 1, 1891.

BREADSTUFFS.—There is very little change to note since our last week report. Markets all seem to hang on close fluctuations. We reduce our quotations slightly on oatmeal, and rolled oats. Cornmeal may be said to be a little easier. Oats a trifle lower.

Manitoba highest grade patents, $6.00 to 6.25 ; High grade patents, $5.30 to 5.50 ; Good 90 per cent Patents, $5.20 to 5.30 ; Straight grade, $5.00 to 5.10 ; Superior extras, $4.75 to 4.85 ; Good seconds, $4.40 to 4.55 ; Graham flour, $4.90 to 5.10 ; Oatmeal, $5.90 to 6.00 ; Oatmeal rolled $5.00 to 5.10 ; Kiln dried corn meal, $3.55 to 3.60 ; Rolled wheat, $5.50 ; Wheat bran per ton, $18.50 to 19.50 ; Middlings, $25 to $25.50 ; Cracked corn per ton, including bags, $39.00 ; Ground oil cake, $34 to $35 ; Moulee, $26 ; Split Peas $4.40 to $4.50 ; White beans per bushel, $1.80 to 1.90 ; Pot Barley per bbl, $3.90 to $4.10 ; Canadian oats choice quality, 43c. to 45 ; P. E. I. Oats 40c. to 43.

SUGAR.—A good seasonable demand for refined sugars is reported with granulated at about 4½c. at the refineries. There has been some business in choice bright and lower grades of yellows.

Cut loaf, 5½c.; Granulated, 4⅝ to 4¾.; Circle A, 4½c. ; White extra C, 4¼c. ; Standard, 3¾c. to 3⅞c; Extra yellow C, 3⅝c ; Yellow C, 3½c. to 3⅝c.

MOLASSES.—There has been no activity in molasses. Stocks are said to be much lighter than at this time last year, and holders seem to manifest confidence at present prices, but should outside lots be attracted to Canada between now and the closing of navigation on the St. Lawrence, the position may be changed.

Barbados, 40c. ; Demerara, 35 to 38c. ; Diamond N. 48c. ; Porto Rico, 37 to 38c.; Trinidad, 34 to 35c. ; Antigua, 34 to 35.

FISH.—There is nothing new to note in the fish situation here. Codfish, Hard C.B., $4.80, ex vessel ; Western shore, $4.50.

St. John Markets.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Sept. 30, 1891.

Our annual exhibition opened last week, and is bringing lots of visitors to the city and causes quite an improvement in business.

FLOUR —There has been a steady demand for flour. Prices are a little easier. We quote : Manitoba Patents, $5.90 to $6.00 ; high grade patents, $5.50 to $5.55 ; medium patents, $5.20 to $5.30.

MEAL—Is somewhat easier with a fair demand. Several large lots of American ground have lately been placed on the market, which has had a tendency to lower prices. The last sales are reported at $5.30 to $5.35 for local ground, $3.40 to $3.45 for American.

OATMEAL—Is much scarcer, though as soon as the new arrives prices will be much lower. It is being sold at $8.25 per barrel

BUTTER—Is still very scarce for choice stock, and prices are firm at 17 to 19c.

EGGS—The receipts have been light with a firm market for good stock at 11 to 12c.

POTATOES—Are reported to be rotting badly. The quantity offering is not large, and prices are firmer at $1 to $1.20.

CHEESE—Our market is pretty well supplied. Prices remain firm at 10¼ to 10¾c.

APPLES —Are coming in very freely. Gravensteins sell for $1.75 to $2.50.

FISH—The supply is considerably short of that at the same time last season, and prices remain firm. Large cod are selling ex vessel at $4.60 to $4.70, mediums $3.70 to $3.85. Pollock are scarce and sell steady at $1.60 to $1.75.

The Toronto Secretary is in receipt of communications from the Mayor, the Chief Constable and the License Inspector, in reply to his letter re the enforcement of the peddling by-law, which he sent in accordance with instructions received at last meeting of the Association.

St. Lawrence Starch Co.

(LIMITED)

Starch Manufacturers,

PORT CREDIT, ONTARIO.

The advertisement of the St. Lawrence Starch Co., Port Credit, Ont., which appears this issue for the first time since they commenced operations at the beginning of this year, deserves more than passing notice, on account of the close alliance that the members of this Company have had with the grocery trade of Canada for the past 17 years. The directorate of the Company is Jas. Kilgour, President; Robt. Kilgour, Vice-President; John Gray, Managing Director; and Arch. Hutchison, Secretary and Treasurer.

The Messrs. Kilgour are widely known on account of their business as Kilgour Bros., paper bag manufacturers; and Mr. Gray was for the last 17 years superintendent of the Edwardsburg Starch Co., previous to which time he was engaged in one of the largest factories of the same kind in Scotland, where he had the fullest opportunities of studying the business in all its phases. Mr. Hutchison was likewise employed in the Edwardsburg Co. and is widely known throughout Canada, having been their western representative for about fifteen years.

The thoroughly practical knowledge which the management of this Company have of their business in all its details places them in a position to offer to the public a very superior quality of goods, which, we notice, are very rapidly coming into first favor in the market. They seemed from the outset to have recognised the fact that all preeminence of position as manufacturers is created only one way—by making the very best quality of goods which it is possible to turn out, and likewise to put such goods up in the most acceptable manner.

Being the most recently erected factory of the kind in the Dominion, they have introduced into it the most modern improved machinery, and neither expense nor research has been spared to get the latest appliances to produce the best results in this branch of business.

The high standard of their brands of St. Lawrence Corn Starch for cooking and Ivory Gloss for the laundry is already displacing similar goods of both home and foreign manufacture, evidence of the fact that from the beginning of their career they have been placing a line of goods on the market the quality of which must be perfect.

We cannot but compliment them on the taste displayed in the selection of designs for both their shelf goods and box labels. It is seldom that one sees so many labels so well selected, and they present a very handsome appearance if properly and prominently placed in the store.

Many buyers can bear us out in all that we say relative to the goods of the St. Lawrence Starch Co., and to those who have not yet handled them we should suggest your giving them a trial, confident that you will have the greatest satisfaction in handing them over the counter to the most fastidious customer whom it might be your privilege to serve. For brands and values we refer our readers to Prices Current.

CERTIFICATES OF STRENGTH AND PURITY.

OFFICE OF THE PUBLIC ANALYST,

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Co., Montreal:

GENTLEMEN,—I have personally taken samples from a large stock of your Granulated Sugar, "REDPATH" brand, and carefully tested them by the Polariscope, and I find these samples to be as near to absolute purity as can be obtained by any process of Sugar-Refining.

The test by the Polariscope showed in yesterday's yield 99·90 per cent. of Pure Cane Sugar, which may be considered commercially as ABSOLUTELY PURE SUGAR.

JOHN BAKER EDWARDS, P.L.D., D.C.L., F.C.S.,

Public Analyst for the District of Montreal, and Professor of Chemistry.

CHEMICAL LABORATORY, MEDICAL FACULTY, MCGILL UNIVERSITY.

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Company:

GENTLEMEN,—I have taken and tested a sample of your "EXTRA GRANULATED" Sugar, and find that it yielded 99·88 per cent. of Pure Sugar. It is practically as pure and good a Sugar as can be manufactured.

Yours truly,

G. P. GIRDWOOD.

It is well-known

That successful Doctors read all the latest medical books and papers and go abroad occasionally to study. Successful lawyers read legal publications to learn the latest legal decisions and points constantly cropping up. Teachers, clergymen, druggists, architects, all read the publication issued in the interests of their profession. They must do so to keep up with the times.

The same applies to grocers and general merchants. They must not only read the best papers published in their interests but must also watch the advertisements closely. There they learn the rise and fall in prices; latest trade news and methods of buying, handling and selling goods, so that they may make the greatest profit. A doctor reads much that he already knows, so does a lawyer. So does a number of any of the other professions. So will a merchant. It is often the issue of the paper he misses that is worth dollars to him. His best and safest policy, therefore, is to subscribe for his trade paper.

The only exclusively grocery and general store paper is THE CANADIAN GROCER issued weekly, subscription price $2.00 per year.

ORDER IVORY BAR SOAP

The Tomato Pack in Quebec.

In Quebec Province the pack of tomatoes will, it is said, be enormous. Packers are working night and day in order to keep up with supplies. It is worthy of note in this connection also, as applying to the Montreal market, that a very large new packing establishment is now in working operation at St. Eustache. This district is considered to be the banner tomato district of Quebec, and the proprietors of this new concern state that their capacity for output is quite equal to the requirements of their district. They may be considered, therefore, as a new and important factor in the source of supply. Briefly, there can be no possible doubt of a large supply of canned tomatoes, as evidenced by the fact that farmers are practically giving them away at the retail markets in Montreal because the packing establishments cannot take care of all they are getting, and their owners don't want them to rot away.

Toronto Travellers' Association.

The first annual meeting of the City Travellers' Association was held at their rooms in Richmond Hall on Friday evening, and was very largely attended. The report of the secretary showed a very substantial fund in the treasury, and a flourishing condition of the financial affairs of the Association. Six new members were introduced, and after the transaction of routine business the election of officers for the ensuing year was proceeded with, with the following result: M. C. Lynde, president (by acclamation); F. Gallow, first vice-president; J. Mortimer, second vice-president; J. Owen, secretary (re-elected by acclamation); Gus Piper, treasurer (re-elected by acclamation); R. M. Corrie, chaplain; S. H. Moore, marshal; C. Spencer, guard; board of directors, E. Davis, C. S. Fairbairn, B. McCann, A. A. Graham, F. B. Nicholson, G. Symons, F. McDonald, C. J. Graham, R. M. Corrie, V. J. Gingrau, S. G. Martin, R. W. Beaddie. After the election of officers was completed, a very pleasant feature of the meeting was introduced, in the presentation of a gold-headed cane, accompanied by an address, to the retiring president, Mr. R. Maxwell, and also the presentation to the secretary, Mr. James Owen, of another gold-headed cane and address, both of whom responded in a manner only familiar to the knights of the grip.

Chinese Sugar.

At a meeting on Monday of the Labor Day Committee and Trades' Council of Vancouver the importation of Chinese sugar was freely commented upon, with the result that the following resolution was unanimously adopted:—

Whereas, it has come to the knowledge of this Council that Chinese made sugar is being extensively imported into this city and Province, to the possible serious injury of an important local industry by reason of the conditions of manufacture causing a most unequal competition;

Be it therefore resolved that we recommend the members of the various unions herein represented, and the public generally, to buy only the B. C. Refinery Company's manufacture, and to deal by preference with those stores that sell exclusively that brand, as the members of this Council pledge themselves to do;

And be it further resolved that we invite the co-operation of the workingmen of the other cities of this Province for the encouragement of an important Provincial industry and the protection of white labor.

Bannerman's Patent Phenyle.

In this issue on page 52 will be found the advertisement of this article, which will be of interest to our readers. We have examined this matter to a considerable extent and feel satisfied that it has great merits. It is a well-known fact to the public that an article of this kind is greatly needed. It is a saving to everyone to prevent diseases if possible, and by the use of this disinfectant much trouble of this kind and money may be saved. Every household would be benefitted by its use, and more especially all public places. Although great care may be used, we know that many of them are rank, bad and unsafe. This article comes well recommended by all the best people of Chicago and by many cities in the South, where it has done good service, and it bears testimonials from their various boards of health. It is not half as expensive as any other disinfectant that we know of. It is not only a disinfectant, but it is a Germicide and Deodorizer. Mr. Alonzo W. Spooner, of Port Hope, is the sole proprietor and manufacturer for Canada, and we wish him every success. This article will be handled by the hardware and general stores, same as Paris Green, etc.

Our Illustrations.

The well-known manufactories and business places of which illustrations are scattered through this issue possess an interest for our readers to which something supplementary in the way of letter-press is due. Accordingly some descriptive reference is made to the subject of each of the illustrations, and all matter relating to them is grouped under the above-named general head. As was stated in the introduction, we were unable to wait on several other cuts which were promised to be forthcoming on the date this issue goes out. Those that appear constitute a very important feature of the number.

F. F. DALLEY & CO., HAMILTON.

F. F. Dalley & Co., Hamilton, manufacturers of blacking, inks, shoe dressing, harness oils, flavoring extracts, patent medicines, dye stuffs, spices, baking powder, etc., and wholesale dealers in oils, drug sundries, etc., are located in a large handsome brick building at 99 James street, north, Hamilton, Ont. Inside, the arrangement of the different flats is complete. The first flat is divided into general and private offices and sample rooms, and the rear half is the packing and shipping department. The cellars extend completely under the whole building, and contain a fifteen horse power engine, two boilers, drug and spice mill, mixers. The second flat is used for putting up the various articles manufactured. Here from thirty to forty hands are kept constantly employed. The top flat is the laboratory, where all goods are made under the personal supervision of Mr. E. A. Dalley, whose thorough knowledge of the various branches of this intricate business eminently fit him for that work. The business was established in 1846 by the father of the Messrs. Dalley now of the firm. From small beginnings it has constantly increased until the firm name has become a household word and a guarantee of the excellence of the goods. The business extends throughout the Dominion, and half a dozen travellers are constantly on the road booking orders.

THE BRITISH COLUMBIA SUGAR REFINING CO. (L'TD.)

The British Columbia Sugar Refinery, which started up on Jan. 17th of this year, is now in full swing. The company is under the management of Mr. B. T. Rodgers, formerly with Havemeyers & Elder, sugar refiners, New York. He is the youngest manager of a refinery on the continent. The refinery was built with a capacity of 200 barrels per day, and has since been increased to a capacity of 350 barrels. It is so arranged that should the trade require more, it can be made to turn out 800 barrels, which will most likely be needed in a few years. Only cane sugar that is imported from Manilla and Java is used. The company is looking for the westerly trade only, the refinery being fitted up with all modern machinery and built on a siding of the C. P. R., with a wharf to receive the raw sugar from the ocean ships and also to ship to points along the coast. They have large storage capacity that will take 8,000 tons of raw sugar. The building is lighted by electric light, and last but not least, it turns out a good sample of all grades of refined sugars.

LEITCH BROS., OAK LAKE, MAN.

The cut of the mill on another page shows a five-storey building 45x45 ft., with attached stone engine and boiler house, 35x47 ft. A Corliss engine of 200 horse-power runs the mill. The mill was fitted up by Wm. & J. G. Grey, of Toronto, with capacity of 250 barrels. Being on main line of the C. P. R. right along side of the track, it has excellent shipping advantages. The Leitch Bros. are four in number, Archibald, Alexander, Angus J. and Malcolm. The mill has ten double set of rolls, and all the latest improved packers, purifiers and cleaning machinery, and a storage capacity for 30,000 bushels. The mill's foreman is D. W. Round, formerly of the Ogilvie milling Co., Goderich, Ont. The soil around Oak Lake is sandy loam, and the wheat grown in that section is seldom frozen and affords extra advantages in making flour. Their stroug bakers' flour in 1890 was adopted by the government as the standard for that year. The firm have a good connection in British Columbia, and are extending their trade east to Quebec and the Lower Provinces.

STORE OF HENRY SAUNDERS, VICTORIA, B.C.

It is a pleasure for us to be able to show a cut of the inside of Henry Saunders' grocery, liquor, etc., store, at Victoria, B.C. The house was established twenty-five years ago, and is without doubt the bon ton grocery of the city—in fact of the far West. The place of business is one of the most elegant in the city, being centrally located and handsomely fitted: two floors, two basements 40 x 124 feet in dimensions, and light and airy, making one of the neatest and most attractive stores for displaying goods in the province. Mr. Saunders sells goods on their merits, and prides himself somewhat for the fact that no misrepresentations are made in their sale. This is the contracting supply house for Her Majesty's navy at Esquimalt. A large number of hands are employed. Several wagons are kept constantly busy in handling his large business, the steady growth of which must always be a satisfaction to the proprietor. A glance at our cuts will give the reader an idea of the skill shown in the array of goods.

GEO. E. TUCKETT & SON.

A cut of the new establishment of Geo. E. Tuckett & Son, Hamilton, Ont., is shown. This firm was established in 1857, when they started business with but a few employees. They have since developed into one of the largest tobacco concerns in Canada. In April of the present year they moved from their old premises, which had several times to be enlarged to do the amount of business their orders called for. Their present quarters take up nearly two acres of ground, having an excise and storage building in the rear of the one shown. The building has a solid stone foundation, is built of solid brick, and is fire-proof. It is heated by steam and lighted by gas. The engine-room contains a fifty horse-power engine, manufactured by Messrs. Goldie & McCulloch, of Galt, Ont. There is a tunnel built from the main building to the excise building, where the raw tobacco is brought to an elevator and carried to the top floor. There some fifty people are at work, opening and selecting the stock and working the hands (a hand is 6 leaves of tobacco) into shape for the rolling room below. On the fourth floor the tobacco is moistened and got into shape for working. There are, also separate from this large room, and at each side, lunch rooms, where the employes can bring their lunch and eat at the tables which are built for them. There are two of these rooms, one for the girls and one for the men. On the floor below is the rolling room. Here the tobacco is stemmed, stripped and rolled into sizes ready to be pressed into plugs. Fully two hundred hands are at work here the year round. On the first floor are the presses on trucks, where the tobacco is run under hydraulic pressure and brought out in plugs. These are then packed in boxes and shipped not only to Canadian points, but to Ceylon, New Zealand, Australia, and to Egypt, for the British soldiers. The plug tobaccos which the firm manufacture are, T. & B., Solace and Aromatic and the cut tobacco T. & B. The cut tobacco is put up in packages of ⅛, and ¼ lb. and in 1 lb. and ½ lb. tins. The office on this floor is very attractive There is the private office of Mr. Geo. E. Tuckett, to the left of the main entrance and the general office. On the right are the enquiry office and excise office. On the ground floor the cut tobacco is put up also, where the boxes are made to pack these goods in. In all, the factory is one of the most modern on the continent, and the company are now in shape to fill orders of any size. The factory is under the management of Mr. G. T. Tuckett, one of Hamilton's most popular young men, and the "son" in the firm's name. Our representative had the pleasure of being shown through this establishment by Mr. J. W. Lamoreaux, who has charge of the office department. It is really a little world in itself.

THE ITALIAN WAREHOUSE, KINGSTON.

This business was originally started in 1868, Mr. J. S. Henderson having carried it on since 1879. Large additions, alterations, etc., were made to the premises two years ago, when Mr. Henderson took in the store adjoining and added a large warehouse to the rear of the grocery department, which now has a continuous depth of 132 feet. The frontage of both grocery and liquor departments is 38 feet. The large show window 20 feet wide on the grocery side of the premises is often admired by crowds of visitors and the citizens generally. It is handsomely and freshly decorated from time to time. As we saw it a week or two ago it represented the Rideau Canal locks at Kingston mills, and everything to the minutest detail around that pretty and delightful spot was fully represented. This is only one of many windows which have been dressed in similar style. The work is done by Mr. D. McGun, the foreman, who has been in Mr. Henderson's employ for about ten years. The assortment of fine groceries, fruits, confectionery, etc., etc., kept in the grocery department is simply wonderful, and many wonder how it pays to keep such an immense establishment. But it does pay, and we are informed that almost daily Mr. Henderson receives orders from Toronto, Hamilton and other Western cities for goods, mostly private family orders. The business is almost entirely confined to the retail. The amount of business done is enormous for a retail store. In the liquor departments adjoining a large trade is also carried on, not alone with the city family trade, as in this department Mr. Henderson branches out and solicits orders from the trade all over the surrounding country.

THOMAS LAURY & SON.

For a firm that has stood the test as long as the one named, and which has a reputation such as this one from Ontario to the Pacific coast and east to the Atlantic, little need be said. In conversation with Mr. Thos. Laury a few weeks ago our representative learned from the good natured proprietor that he would wager that not one ham of any other manufacture than his and Messrs. Fearman's, could be found in Hamilton. This goes to show just what kind of goods the Hamilton people turn out, and how it is appreciated by the grocers and consumers. Messrs. Laury & Son manufacture pure leaf lard, hams and bacon, and are always pleased to send prices and sample orders of goods, upon application to their office, Hamilton, Ont.

THE ST. JOHN'S STONE AND CHINA WARE CO.

This firm is the largest of its kind in Canada, and yet we suppose there are many of our readers who have never had a glimpse of their factory, or a chance to read much about the establishment. The reason of this is that the firm does business among the wholesale and jobbing trade only, and yet there is hardly a merchant in Canada to-day who does not sell these goods. The firm had a beautiful exhibit at Montreal Exhibition this year, and Mr. S. Macdonald, who was on the grounds from the time they opened until they closed, is to be congratulated on his efforts to please and explain the manufacture of chinaware. The firm's place of business is St. John's, P.Q. There they manufacture everything in the stone or china ware line—pitchers, toilet sets, sanitary ware and stone ware. The company have illustrated catalogues and hangers which will be sent on application.

GOWANS, KENT & CO.

The lamp sample room of Gowans, Kent & Co. bursts in all its splendor upon the beholder who enters it when it is intensely dark and experiences the effect of a sudden and liberal flow of light. It is indeed a gorgeous spectacle. It is hard to believe that the multitude of lamps brought together in it are all unlike, and but merely samples. The panoramic effect is deepened by the background of mirrors that ranges along the whole circuit of the room. The disposition of the lamps in groups and the general fitting of the room, its drapings, its colors, etc., are very artistic. It is a dreamland vision realized. Among the new things exemplified are lamps with onyx pillars and gold plating and lamps of antique silver plating, very beautiful goods. The Pittsburgh lamp for which Gowans, Kent & Co. are the sole Dominion Agents, are shown in many elegant forms. The points of excellence of this lamp are becoming generally apprehended, and its superiority is telling in the way of greatly increased trade. The sample room will be a permanent feature and one that the trade should see.

BENSDORP'S COCOA EXHIBIT, INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION, Toronto.

BENSDORP'S ROYAL DUTCH COCOA.

To those who saw the exhibit of this favorite cocoa at the Industrial Exhibition, our illustration of that handsome display will recall the immense throng of spectators and samplers who hedged it round from morn till night, every day the great show was open. The cost of that exhibit, including advertising, was $1,500. It took thirty thousand cups of cocoa to go round among the thirsty crowd which encircled Bensdorp's quarter. The total consumption was 50 cases of goods and 264 gallons of milk. All this went down with the crowd as did the claims of the Cocoa to be an A 1 article.

Messrs. David Morton & Sons, Victora Soap Works, Hamilton, have just purchased Bengough's oil portrait of the late Sir John Macdonald, as he was wont to be seen in his seat in the House of Commons. Messrs. Morton & Sons are having it reproduced in an oleograph, in sixteen printings, by the Toronto Lithographing Company, as a show card for their "N. P." Soap. The sum paid was two thousand dollars.

Chat By The Way.

McVerney Bros, of Bathurst, are opening a grocery store in Moncton, N. B.

Mr. James Ireland, of the West Oxford Factory, has completed one of the 5,000 lb. cheese for Messrs. Lipton & Co., Chicago.

Messrs. C. & W. Richards have opened out their stock of general merchandise in the stand vacated by J. G. Steacy, Frankville, Ont.

All the travellers of Messrs. Caverhill, Rose, Hughes & Co., Montreal, were in for the exhibition;—in fact nearly all the travellers of the grocery houses were in.

Mr. Alexander McDonald, Cornwall, Ont., is repairing the stand in the Snetsinger block next door to the Clifton House. He will remove his stock of grocer's thither.

Willis Rowe, son of Lt-Col. Rowe, for the past three years in a large general store at Angus, Que., is about to enter into business with Henry Hewson in the L. H. Derick store at Noyan.

Page & Needham, a grocery firm on Pender street, near Howe, Vancouver, B. C., have sold out their business to I. D. McNider, who will continue it at the old stand.

J. O. Davis, Prince Albert, Sask., has removed his general store business to the building next door west of Sproat & McLeod's where he is busy opening out a large and fresh supply of goods.

John Caniff, grocer, Canifton, Ont., died Saturday with stricture of the heart. The deceased had kept a grocery at Canifton nearly all his life except during an interval of a few years when he was in the States.

Mr. Herb, C. Davis has purchased Mr. Graham's grocery business in Dundas and will take possession when Mr. Graham steps into the post office. He has been a success as a baseball player, and we have no doubt he will put up a good game behind the counter.

Parties in Madoc, Ont., have been systematically robbing the merchants there by having duplicate keys of their stores. This was discovered by a woman dissatisfied with a pair of stolen boots which she brought to the original owner for exchange.

A horse owned by M. Conroy, grocer, Kingston was found in its field the other day with its side almost literally laid open. How it was done no one knows, but a barbed wire fence has come under suspicion. The horse is now under the care of a veterinary surgeon.

Mr. Fred. Sutherland, of Orwell, Ont., has exchanged his dwelling house, store and stock of general goods with Mr. F. C. Paulin, for a house and lot on Wellington street and two houses in West Toronto Junction. Mr. O. Norsworthy will enter into partnership with Mr. Paulin in the store at Orwell and will conduct it.

Mr. T. W. Scandrett, son of Mr. John Scandrett, grocer, London, has been called to the bar. Mr. Scandrett was a student in the office of E. Meredith, Q. C. He was a faithful student, and worked conscientiously, passing as solicitor in May, and his bar examination this month, when he stood among the first twelve, intead of among the oral list, as appeared when the lists were published.

The name alone of the E. B. Eddy Co. brings up a big concourse of ideas in most minds, and really needs little in the way of descriptive account to enlarge the popular notion of the great industries it is identified with. The two advertisements which in this issue put before the attention of the trade some of the standard wares manufactured by the company, will remind rather than inform the grocers and general merchants of the country that the source of supply for these goods is the E. B. Eddy Co. Their matches have pleaded their own cause effectively enough to be on the very crest of popular favor to-day. The claims of their fibreware upon domestic regard have been admitted without reserve, and they are excellent trade-making material for the dealer.

"My friend," earnestly exclaimed the temperance lecturer, pointing a long, quivering forefinger straight at the cowering figure of a man on the back seat, "What will you do when you come to the end of your career, and find honor, hope, friends, home and all that make life valuable or the future cheering, are lost?" "Lost!" echoed Mr. Rambo, dimly conscious that a question had been addressed to him, "B, George (hic) I'd avertizhe!"

In the Division Court the Case of R. G. Barrett, owner of the steamer Steinhoff, who sued the Victoria Park Compaay for $100, was decided in favor of the plaintiff, who secured $80. On the occasion of the Grocers' picnic in Victoria park last month the Steinhoff was chartered by the Park company to make five trips at $20 each. The steamer made four trips all right, but owing to the dense fog did not complete the last, a great number of those at the picnic having in consequence to walk back to the city. The company refused to pay the steamer's owner, claiming a breach of the agreement.

It is surprising, the progress and development the National Cash Register has made in producing a perfect and reliable business system for retailers, by adapting their registers to the requirements of their users, giving them a complete check on all monetary transactions. A noticeable feature of the late Exhibition was their exhibit of fourteen different kinds of cash registers, comprising total and detail adders, and check-device machines, suited to all the requirements of business. This company has 45,000 machines in use in all parts of the world. The grand stride it has made in the past augurs well for the future. The day cannot be far distant when all merchants will consider a National Cash Register as necessary an acquisition in their business as their stock.

The E. B. Eddy Co. advise their agents to notify the trade that No. 1 Telegraph Matches of the same uniformly good quality and the same guaranteed count in the small box as heretofore, are now put up in neatly made, handsomely printed woodboard ¼ gross caddies, enclosed in strongly cleated, tongued and grooved, planed inside and outside, plainly stencilled, perfectly strong and tight 10 gross cases. The weight of these No, 1 10 gross cases is only 60 lbs as against 80 to 85 lbs. or 90 lbs., the weight of all other cases of Matches except their No. 1 "Telegraphs." So soon as it was known bysome of the trade that this change was in contemplation they had such increased demand for the neater, newer, lighter packages that it was necessary to at once put them in full supply on the market, so agents can now accept orders for immediate shipment of the new goods giving as much notice as possible ahead of the probable requirments of the trade so that Company may govern themselves accordingly. The two last issues of the "CANADIAN GROCER" contain an illustration of the new box.

To-day it is imperative that dealers in matches should keep in stock only the best and most reliable brands. The general run of people haven't time to "fool around" with bad matches. Nothing is more disgusting and annoying than to come across matches that won't light, to strike them in every conceivable way, and on every article within your reach, and then have them fool you with a phizz and a splutter and all to no purpose. Oh, is it not annoying? All the bad within you seems to be most uncomfortably near the surface. Your language is not of the choicest Who comes in for all this abuse? Is it the manufacturer? No. The jobber? No. The retail grocer? Yes. He is the unlucky one. All the hard names and abuse are his. Does he deserve it? Yes, most emphatically yes. There is no excuse whatever for him, when there are matches like the "Railroad" and "Steamship" brands to be had, brands that are guaranteed and that you can depend on as being good in every respect, although comparatively new, being made in Quebec Province, and sold by H. A. Nelson & Sons, of Toronto. When matches are guaranteed sure fire and full count every time, the trade will and must have them. Consumers soon begin to recognise which are the right goods, and unless you can supply them you must give place to those who can Attention might also be drawn to the attractive way in which the Railroad and Steamship matches are put on the market. No cheap, eye-sore label.

This celebrated Yeast and the bread made from it attracted the attention of thousands at the Toronto Exhibition, 1891.

It is now put up in One Dollar Boxes, containing 3 dozen 5 cent packages. Be sure and get one from your Wholesale Grocer, as there is nothing equal to it in the Market.

WHY Do 75 per cent. of our Canadian Canners buy their labels and other lithographic work from

The Sabiston Litho. & Pub. Co.?

BECAUSE They have the largest corps of skilled Artists in the country.

BECAUSE They have the best machinery.

BECAUSE Their equipment is more complete than any other Litho. house in the country, and

BECAUSE They turn out the most satisfactory work.

This Company occupies 4 flats of the GAZETTE building, in Montreal, equal to a floo space of 35,000 square feet.

The business was commenced a little over 3 years ago by A. Sabiston and from the smallest establishment at that time has grown within the above period to be the largest of its kind in the country. This fact speaks for itself.

SPECIAL TO OUR READERS.

As the design of THE CANADIAN GROCER is to benefit mutually all interested in the business, we would request all parties ordering goods or making purchases of any description from houses advertising with us to mention in their letter that such advertisement was noticed in THE CANADIAN GROCER.

In this month the country merchant usually makes out the accounts of his credit customers. When the debtors are numerous and the accounts lengthened out by a great many small items, the task is no easy one. Where the trader is short-handed and has to make up his books by the light of the lamp, the difficulty of getting all the statements made out is sometimes very great. Stock-taking is not a more dreaded process. The making out of accounts is itself a species of stock-taking: the list of accounts rendered being an inventory of the whereabouts and the various amounts of the portion of the trader's capital that is held on a credit-tenure by his customers. There ought to be some satisfaction in the drudgery this year. The statements will be more likely to be followed by early and full payments than those of many past years. Taken from one end of Canada to the other, the crops are probably as good as were ever raised in the country. The basis of sufficient means, therefore, to pay the accounts of the country merchants is not wanting, though the conversion of products into money may not be generally negotiated as soon as desirable.

* * * *

A good big sheaf of country store accounts is undoubtedly valuable property this year, and in a farming section ought to represent 100 cents on the dollar. But there are other claims on the crop. A large amount has to go for interest on mortgages, to pay for buildings, farm implements, etc. There are many other creditors besides the country merchant waiting for the first movement of the grain crop, in order to change notes or accounts against farmers into cash. The merchant ought to be in ahead of everybody else. He should not be put off until the whole crop has been marketed and the proceeds transferred to the hands of implement men, note-shavers, etc. Accounts ought therefore to be made out and delivered, with the modest request that payment shall be made in a few days It will not do to wait till the farmer asks for his account. Some traders have rather a slipshod habit of letting their books go to seed, as it were, simply charging for what is bought for future payment, and crediting what is given on account, never having clear ideas as to how this or that customer stands. Of course they lose money. The rule of making out statements of all, even the most petty, accounts on the books, ought to be rigidly followed at this time of year. When the customer gets his bill he should also be led to realize that prompt payment is the thing expected and desired. Scores of people receive their accounts without taking to themselves the hint that they are wanted to come down with the ready cash for the balance due. They frequently feel that the trader would not insult them by sending them a dun, but as he has a rule of making out accounts at this time of year, he simply hands them theirs in a formals ort of way. Then the matter is let go. The trader can get credit, and can afford to give some. They are good for the amount any time, and it's all right. There are plenty of people who could pay their accounts almost at sight, who are an unreasonably long time paying them, simply because they have this easy way of looking at their indebtedness. It might awaken some conscience in them if they knew how exact the grocer's creditors are. The suggestion of early payment ought to be the postscript in every account.

* * * *

A class of account more difficult to collect than the farmers' is that of the workmen, mechanics and small tradesmen of the hamlets and villages in which country stores stand. Many of these are supposed to have something due them from the farmers at this time of year, and so ought to be served with statements now. Their accounts are supposed to be kept within narrower limits than the farmers', as their means of livelihood are generally taken up concurrently with consumption, so that there is less to look for from them in the fall. Such accounts ought at no time to represent any great amount of money.

* * * *

To some customers the merchant hands his statement of indebtedness with almost as much fear and trembling as the tailor experiences when he comes to try the finished coat on his most mulish customer. The trader knows beforehand that the debtor or the debtor's wife will vehemently declare there are things in that bill which were never received, or which, received, were paid for at the time. There are no means of proving the truth of the statement of account save by the merchant's books, and the books, the protesting debtor will affirm, have been stuffed with entries here and there that there was no corresponding business for. And let one protesting debtor whisper his suspicions to some other debtor, and there will soon be other protesters. This is one of the vexations of the credit system. The merchant carries the farmer all year, gets no thanks at the time, and gets abuse very often when the account comes to be settled. Pass-books or coupons ought to be used in every store where a credit trade is done. They keep the debtor reminded as to how fast his account is growing, and they furnish a check not only upon the entries in the merchant's books, but also on the reckless declarations that this or that particular item is wrong.

A CONFERENCE OF DELEGATES.

The preparations which have been going on for some weeks past by the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association, with a view to getting the various local associations together, are likely to culminate on Monday afternoon next, when delegates from those invited are expected to come together. Monday evening being the regular association meeting, it is hoped there will be a large turn out of the Toronto men, as it is altogether likely the men from the west will stay over. The Secretary has been instructed to get the members out as much as possible, and there is no doubt that much good will result from the meeting. THE GROCER extends to the delegates a cordial greeting, and will be pleased to have them call at the office.

THE FAIRS.

Taken all in all, this autumn's fairs ought to be the best ever held in one season in this country. And, judged by the reports that come from the various points at which they are held, they appear to be the best the country has ever had. The reasons why they ought to be lie in the conditions by which they are favored. In the first place, there never was larger scope for a selection of exhibits, and probably there never was so high a general level of excellence in the natural products of the country. Abundance and superiority offer exceptional resources for the stocking of stalls and halls at the fair. Also manual and mechanical accomplishment is making progress, and must have more trophies to show now than it ever had. However men may differ about the economy of the present trade policy of the country, they must agree in crediting to it a very great development in the skill of many classes of artisans. Our own manufactured products are an improved feature every year at the fairs held throughout the country.

But the condition that brings crowds out to look at the fine exhibits is the glorious weather that has ruled steadily since the opening of September. Fine, bright sunny days, with an average temperature that would seem more seasonable in July, have been very plentiful, and hardly a board of directors could be unfortunate in their choice of a fair day this year. Perhaps no one now alive ever saw the trees so fresh-looking on the first of October. There was nothing to prevent their looking fresh. They had little wear and tear in the way of storms or frost to bleach or strip off their leaves. There was enough moisture in the form of heavy dews to keep their foliage refreshed. We are having a grand autumn, we have had a full harvest, and our fairs are a great success as a consequence.

It is desirable that they should be a success in the two respects of attractive exhibits and large crowds, that they may be a success as promoters of business. The fall fairs are looked to to give a start to the mass of farm produce held in first hands. They are meeting places between representatives of supply and demand. They were instituted for a market purpose, and directly or indirectly they serve the purpose contemplated in their origin. If they do not incite to many transactions between buyer and seller on the spot, they at all events advertise what is on the market. Also, among the number of strangers who visit them or who read good reports of them, the fairs are an influence to attract population and capital to the country. They are an economic influence, and the best weather is not too good for them.

THAT FALL NUMBER OF OURS.

Batches of our Fall Number have been distributed from every post office in the country long before this, and already we begin to hear in flattering notes from our friends something of the reception the issue received. We value such compliments as judgments, because they are uttered by busy men, who have also a right to criticise us adversely if we do not come up to their expectations, and who can not always snatch a moment from business to notice merit. The issue was got out on time. For that there is some credit due to us, as much of the matter came in at the last moment. The issue went through the press 40,000 times, the paper in it weighed nearly three tons, yet the whole thing was got off our hands in time for the mails we catch for every issue. The number speaks for itself. Its matter and make-up meet with praise from all the quarters we have yet heard from. Its advertisements are of attractive composition ; new type, the highest quality of ink and paper, combining to produce the freshest and most taking appearance. Regular advertisers receive the benefit of this special issue without extra cost. No other journal can give than an equal advantage in the Canadian grocery trade.

A DANGER AND A BENEFIT POINTED OUT.

At the last meeting of the Manchester, Eng., Grocers' Association, according to the Grocer' Review of that city, President Duckworth said that he should strongly deprecate coming to any resolution binding themselves to any prices. The moment they did that they would find themselves stranded on the rocks. (Applause.) They would steer clear if they left themselves free and took their own course how they conducted their own businesses. There was a great advantage in associations like their own when each member treated the other in an honourable manner, and did not resort to any means whereby he could draw trade from one of his fellows. As an instance of the good to be derived from an association, he would like to say that a few weeks ago he received a wire from a competitor of his, in the same town, stating that, as Kiel butters had risen, he intended raising the price 1d. per lb., and asking his co-operation. He readily granted it, and both of them obtained the higher price, which they were justly entitled to through the state of the market. (Hear, hear.) Now, he felt confident that had not that gentleman been a member of a similar association he would never have heard from him, and they would have remained fighting one another with advanced prices, and would have had to go without even a legitimate profit. (Applause.) It was most impracticable to attempt to control prices, and over it many associations had split. They could not tie themselves down to hard and fast lines, but they ought to possess that esprit de corps which would keep them from beating one another down. (Hear, hear.) He considered that there was enough business for all if it was conducted in a proper way, and his experience had led him to have full confidence in the fact that the grocer could get a profit on every article. There was no necessity to play "ducks and drakes" with the stock to catch trade. The more they combined the greater confidence would exist, and the greater satisfaction derived from the business carried on. (Applause.)

A MEED OF PRAISE WHERE IT IS DUE.

The Petrolia Advertiser takes this notice of the store of one of our friends in that town :—Whilst passing the general store of Mr. John Rogers, in the Kerr block, the other day, we were attracted by a large number of barrels, and we were curious to know what they contained. Upon inquiry we were informed that a carload of 80 barrels of sugar had just been received, and that this was the third consignment of a like quantity since the preserving season commenced about two months ago. When we take into consideration the fact that Mr. Rogers has sold, within two months, two carloads, containing 160 barrels or 44,800 pounds of sugar, and has just received another 22,400 pounds which he expects to sell before October is out, we may perhaps have some idea of the enormous business that is accomplished in his unostentatious way. There is little of show or pretentious parade in this store. But there is a solidity about it that speaks volumes. His customers know that they can depend upon getting a good sound article at a fair honest value. He does not cut the price in one thing and put it on to another. Mr. Rogers is a man of sound principles. In the seven years that he has conducted business here he has exemplified this fact beyond doubt, and is now reaping the benefit of it. His store is well stocked with groceries, boots and shoes, staple dry goods, glass and crockery ware. His motto is "Right." He makes a point to sell the right goods, of a right quality, at a right price. We wish him continued success.

REAL OR FICTITIOUS.

Editor CANADIAN GROCER:

Sir,—Would you kindly let me know through THE GROCER if there is a company doing business in Toronto by the name of the United States Club Company. There is an agent around here selling tickets and getting all the farmers to join. He says that the company is going to start a store in the "Soo," and he is offering every thing at less than cost. A reply will oblige. P. M.

[There is no such name to be found in the city directory. We should judge from the style quoted that it is a limited company if it exists. If it is, we have seen no notice in either the Canada or the Ontario Gazette of its having applied for or having obtained incorporation. Nor have we heard of any advertisement of such a concern. It is, therefore, the safe course to assume that there is no such company. If there is, it should be able to show credentials of some description. Farmers ought to be warned by stationary traders that a good deal of swindling has been done under pretensions similar to the representations of this agent. —EDITOR.]

THE NEED FOR WIDER UNION.

WIARTON, ONT., SEPT. 26TH 1891.

To the Editor of THE CANADIAN GROCER.

SIR,—The need of organization among the retail merchants of the country was never so apparent as at the present time. They have been finding fault with the Wholesale Grocers' Guild when an association of the kind among themselves is the one thing needful. In many places they are sapping their life-blood fighting the Patron stores, when by united, well-directed effort on their part the latter might never have obtained a foothold. Meantime prices are demoralized. The non-patron merchant who buys his goods cheaper is underselling the Patron store, and eventually will succeed in crowding the latter out, but at what a sacrifice? Now all this might have been prevented if the retail merchants had an association in every place, and had they taken firm ground. Had they said to the wholesaler, "We do not want you to supply Patron stores," the wholesaler as in duty bound would have acceded to their wishes, because if this war of prices continues the wholesaler as well as the retailer will suffer. There have been some pretty bad failures already. Perhaps it is not too late yet for merchants to organize and take action on this line.

Yours truly,

TRAVELLER.

THE WINDSOR ASSOCIATION.

Reports of a hitch in the relations that originally existed among the members of the Windsor Grocers' and Provision Dealers' Association having got abroad, THE GROCER deemed the matter worth looking into, and upon inquiry obtained the following official version of the facts: The association was just formed when the changes in the duties took place on sugars and tobaccos. A special meeting was immediately called and a list of prices made out at which the articles affected were to be sold. Granulated sugar was to be 17 lbs. for a dollar, if the market continued at the then quoted prices, but a committee was appointed to watch the market closely, and if any change occurred it was empowered to make a change in the prices and notify the secretary, he to at once notify all members of their decision. The object was that there should be no sugar sold at or below cost. The thing worked smoothly enough for a few weeks. Then D. W. Mason, of the Queen's Grocery, Sandwich street, treasurer of the association, bought from T. B. Escott & Co., of London, a carload of sugar at the usual slight reduction on car lots, and notwithstanding the fact that he found he had more than he could conveniently handle, and that some other members of the association took part of it spot cash to relieve him, he at once announced a great sugar sale, flooding the town with dodgers proclaiming, for two days only, 20 lbs. granulated sugar and 1 lb. 25c. tea for $1.25, 20 lbs. granulated sugar and 3 bars soap for $1.25, etc., etc. This action on his part was resented by the secretary, who called the executive committee together and placed the dodger in their hands. A special meeting was called, and at that meeting the treasurer was treated to considerable plain talk by his fellow-members. He went off angry. Moral suasion was then tried. Arguments were brought to bear, but without effect. Charges were preferred against him, but he resigned before they were reported on. His resignation was accepted. The resolution fixing prices was rescinded unknown to him, so that he was beaten at his own game.

With respect to the trouble between the association and the millers, the statement that gives the association's account of the matter is the following letter:

WINDSOR, Ont., Sept. 29, 1891.

To the Editor CANADIAN GROCER.

SIR,—As a statement to the effect that the grocers of Windsor have declared a boycott on Mr. Thomas Vallans, of the Champion Mills, has been going the rounds of the press, I consider it my duty as secretary of the Windsor Grocers' and Provision Dealers' Association to give you the facts in the case for publication.

Mr. Vallans built and commenced running the Champion Mills in Windsor thirteen years ago, and from the first has paid as much, if not more, attention to the retail part of his business than to supplying storekeepers with the products of his mill. You can to-day, and always could, purchase at the mill two lbs. of flour or meal or any other article he had in stock. This has been known to the retailers here, and Mr. Vallans has often been told that he could not expect to command the trade of the merchants here as long as he persisted in this method of doing business. This has been the case many times before the association was formed or even thought of.

On the 16th of September, a regular meeting of this association was held. When a member who has recently come to Windsor and started business in the immediate neighborhood of Mr. Vallans' mill made the statement that a customer had come in to his store and asked the price of the ⅛-bbl. sacks of flour, upon being told the price, she replied she was afraid he would sell no flour, as that was four cents more than it could be bought at the mill for. The flour the merchant had in stock was the Champion Mills flour, so he immediately went to the mill and asked: "Is it true that you retail flour here?" Upon being answered in the affirmative, he asked: "What are you selling the sacks for?" The answer was 4 cents less than every storekeeper was selling for, showing that the miller had made a drop in price a few weeks previously of 25 cents a barrel to the retailer and 32 cents to the consumer, without so much as notifying the storekeepers who were selling his flour of his intention of doing so.

This statement having been made at the meeting above referred to, the matter was fully discussed, and resulted in the appointment of a committee with instructions to wait on Mr. Vallans and lay the matter before him, and request him to at once quit the business of retailing and sell only to storekeepers. Should he refuse to do so the members of the association seriously contemplate passing a resolution binding themselves not to buy from him.

Now, sir, I want everybody to know that the Windsor Grocers' and Provision Dealers' Association passed the following resolution at their regular meeting held on the 16th of June last:

"Moved by Jas. Anderson, seconded by H. Albert, that this association be known as an auxiliary of the Windsor Board of Trade. —Carried.

Moreover, sir, I believe every member of the association regrets that our local miller will insist on pursuing this course, and thereby driving money out of the town that rightfully should stay in it. It is and has been for years the only flouring mill here, and we are all convinced that his flour is just as good as it can be made, and in fact superior to some that is sold here. Notwithstanding the fact that this association pledges itself to buy only Vallans flour if he will only use us decently as merchants, he still refuses to give up the business of retailing. We very much regret the fact that Chatham, Highgate, Guelph, St. Thomas and half a dozen other mills are selling flour here, in fact I don't believe that our local mill supplies one half of the flour consumed here, in Windsor, Walkerville and Sandwich. This should not be. Mr. Vallans should do at least nine-tenths of the local business, and we individually and collectively as an association regret that he does not. The reason he does not must not be looked for since the formation of this association, but to his business methods ever since he came here.

I am, sir, respectfully,

B. G. DAVIS,
Secretary

THE MAN WHO SLEEPS IN TRADE.

Many years ago we remember having a talk over methods of doing business with an old-time merchant. We remember that he said to us practically: "No man should go to sleep over his business, and by that I mean that he should be alert and watchful over every sale or purchase, always being certain that the man he deals with is ready to catch him napping."

Further, he said, in the course of many long talks (for he was much given to telling his experience of the days when he "was on the road") that many close buyers were "close" only on certain goods and at certain times; and most men got off their guard quite frequently, and that his harvest came at such times as this.

In other words he made good profitable sales when his customers, as he put it, had "gone to sleep."

No doubt many of our readers can recall occasions when they, too, have "gone to sleep," and when they have accepted prices and goods, and have neither studied their own requirements nor made a study of the goods or the markets. How many men can truly say that they really rely on their own judgments as to the market? And how many really have no judgment at all in the matter, and have never tried to have any, and have been and are content to let others do their thinking for them? Very, very many, we fear, could attest to the truth of this statement if they would, and are now sailing along with the hand of another at the helm of their business. There are hundreds of men in this city and other large centers, who are fattening on the lack of knowledge of the men to whom they supply goods.

These latter are the men who, by their lack of business knowledge, are keeping themselves from a financial competency, because what they should gain by close buying is daily going into the coffers of those who have had the energy and ambition to master their business thoroughly. These are of those who make possible great fortunes amassed in the jobbing trade, but who, for themselves, can barely scrape out of their toil and risk a bare existence.

If you have been asleep, wake up! Study your business and that of all the rest of the world, and be independent of the judgment of any one. When a man can say to himself, "I have saved to-day five per cent. on my purchases alone" over the prices that he has been wont to accept as all right and proper, the day has then come when he can begin to own his business.

For the minute that the purchaser shows to the practiced seller that he has waked up to the necessities of the occasion the time has then come when he will command the respect of that man, and will always get the best price that the goods can be sold at.

A regular daily study of the market and a study of wants and needs will always supply material to ward off sleep.—National Grocer.

SEASONABLE GOODS.

From the close of summer until nearly the end of the year the importing and jobbing grocery trades are generally kept pretty busy receiving new crop goods, the receipts of such articles being always much heavier in the fall and early winter months than during the remainder of the year. This month dried currants, foreign and domestic raisins, French prunes, Jordan almonds, French vegetables, New York State and California honey, Edam cheese and several descriptions of canned goods usually come to hand. In October the following articles may be expected:—Preserved fruits, mince meat, many kinds of canned fruits and vegetables, several descriptions of almonds, Turkish and California prunes, figs, Moyune green teas, and New Orleans molasses. The month of November brings to hand, fresh from the field or the factory, choice dates, Sicily almonds, filberts, walnuts, pecan nuts and peanuts, dried julienne, canned poultry, catsups, and bird-seed. In December we may look for new crop Fard dates, and in January for imported molasses. With this long list of goods coming to market in so brief a space of time the jobbing trade, as we have said, are kept busily employed, receiving, distributing and storing, until the usual dullness following the holidays sets in and affords them an opportunity to take an inventory and reckon up their annual gains—or losses. A period of such activity for the wholesale grocers naturally is a season of more than usual bustle for successful retailers. New crop goods must be placed in stock immediately after their arrival in jobbers' hands, otherwise rival dealers may steal a march upon the negligent retailer and draw away his patrons by attractive displays of new edibles of various kinds. Having purchased and received the goods, the next thing—most important of all, in fact—is to sell them. This may be no trouble, perhaps, in cases where there is a steady, large demand for both staple and fancy groceries, but as a rule there is less trouble experienced in stocking up than in disposing of goods. It would appear that the first step in the latter process ought to be an announcement in the newspapers, or in the shape of a circular, that new crop goods have been received, with a description of their merits. In every package of staple articles sent out of the store should be placed a leaflet calling attention to new goods which are generally considered as luxuries and which, in consequence, need a little push to get the public to make a trial of them. Do not imagine that everybody in town is so deeply interested in your business that they are aware without being told through the usual channels that toothsome delicacies have come to hand, and that you are ready to dispose of them at reasonable prices. As it is part of your business to keep posted as to the times when the new crops of groceries are to be expected, and to have them in stock promptly, so it is also part of your duty to yourself as a business man to promptly acquaint your patrons and the public generally with the fact that new goods are in market, that you have them in your store and are desirous of selling them.

All signs point to a very profitable year for grocers as well as other retail dealers in this country, and the promising outlook may encourage a good many grocers to stock up more liberally this season than in former years. As to the wisdom of this policy we can only say that conservatism is always the safest policy in purchasing goods, because of the tendency of the markets to fluctuate, but we believe that the retail grocers in many localities will have a better opportunity this winter than ever before to extend the sale of fancy groceries. The consumption of staples is not so much affected by periods of depression or revival of business as is that of the luxuries which people can do without. Hence when prosperous times come around it is the demand for luxuries that most quickly expands. Now this is the class of goods that pays the retailer best, and it behooves him to take pains to stimulate the demand for them as much as possible, in order that he may reap the benefit in increased profits. The goods that we have mentioned above, and which are now or shortly will be in season, belong principally to the order of luxuries, or goods that can be dispensed with at a pinch. Upon his degree of success in distributing them will depend much of the grocer's profit during the next six months. Therefore we say, push them. Let your patrons and the public generally know of their arrival, point out to them their merits in your advertisement in the local papers, taking care to change the form and matter often. Distribute the useful and inexpensive leaflet, containing a description of the goods you particularly wish to dispose of. There are a good many articles, mostly imported delicacies, that are not known at all in some neighborhoods; the local grocers, having never had a call for them, never have thought of ordering a small lot and trying to introduce them. A glance through any jobbing price list will show you what goods we mean—we have not the space to enumerate them here—and, judging by the cheerful trade outlook, this fall and winter would be a good time to introduce them in such localities. They come under the head of "seasonable goods," and ought to have a place at this time of year in every enterprising grocer's stock.—Merchants' Review.

THE PATRONS' OPPOSITION TO COMBINES.

In the following letter which appeared in the Empire last week Mr. F. E. Tobias, Hamilton, gives utterance to a few truths that cannot be too widely scattered among consumers and traders:—

SIR,—Under the heading of "London News," dated 23rd inst., there appeared in your columns recently a brief account of a meeting of the grand court of the Patrons of Industry of Ontario. I would beg space for this letter in connection with this institution.

In the first place I would draw attention to the remark of President Kennedy, who stated that the farmers of Manitoba "were very anxious for organization against monopolies and combines." Ye gods! I wonder whether the majority of your readers are aware that this organization is one of the wickedest combines that exist? Their very title is a satire, for the only industries they would patronise are their own Their mode of procedure at present is to get some fool to sign a one-sided agreement to supply them goods at 12 per cent. advance on invoice cost, and they only agree to trade with him on this understanding, whilst they are not bound at all. Now, in the first place, and on the face of it, it is absurd and unbusinesslike. For what man can invest his capital, pay freight, rent, taxes, insurance, allow for shrinkages, breakages, and make other necessary allowances, and get a living at 12 per cent?

Would these "highly intelligent" individuals like to sell their produce on the same basis? If it cost them 75 cents a bushel to raise wheat, would they like to sell it at say 84c.? Why, they would rise in rebellion! If it cost them 8 cents to produce one pound of butter, how would they like to accept 9 cents a pound for it? The trouble is that very few of them know what 12 per cent. advance means. Some of them do, but the majority do not.

Why, sir, the farmers belonging to this monstrously unjust society in the county of Monck have openly declared that they would crush out the merchants of Dunnville! And in Haldimand one of them the other day said they were going to "do away with the commercial traveller and his top buggy and make them work as they (the farmers) did." As a traveller, let me tell that man that we work every bit as hard as they do, and put in from three to six hours a day more than they. So short-sighted are these "anti-combine" patrons that they cannot see that by endeavoring to kill off everyone's business but their own, they will, if successful (which is doubtful), kill themselves; for, if everyone is to be a producer, who will consume the surplus produced, and, if no surplus be produced, how can a community thrive?

The fact is the farmer has been spoiled and petted by the merchant until the former has become "too big for his boots," and the latter is perfectly frightened to take a firm stand when necessity should compel him to do so. Too much and too long credit have been the leading factors in this, and new countries opening up in the west have had a tendency to reduce prices in older settled parts. Had the men in the latter parts managed their affairs to suit the times, all might have been well; but instead of curtailing expenditure, they went on and on, buying superfluous machinery, etc., till they got head over heels in debt, and when, now, they recognize the necessity of economy, they expect the merchant who has trusted them, and fed and clothed them, to do the economizing for them. Gratitude they do not recognize, but they will turn and sting the hand that helped them! Truly has it been said that "Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn." Whilst there are many good, honest and capable farmers, there are many more who are the opposite, and they are to be found most prominently in such associations as the P. O. I. Not capable of managing their own affairs successfully, they attempt to regulate the affairs of others.

To the merchants I would say, stand firm; do not be bullied or "bluffed" into any such undertaking as they expect of you, and the natural end of this association will come as surely as the end of the Grangers came in disaster and death to the institution. Apologising for the length of this communication,

I remain yours, etc.,

F. E. TOBIAS.

P.S.—There are two very able articles in THE CANADIAN GROCER of February 29 and July 10 last, but unfortunately the general public do not see this publication. That article in the latter number I commend to newspapers' particular attention.

CHOICE OF A CALLING.

I once heard a young man who was a clerk in a grocery store, say: "If my parents had been in possession of a little more means, I should have been educated for a different calling than the simple grocery business." He seemed to deplore the fact of having been compelled to become a grocery man. I thought I would put a few questions to him relative to the countries to which the articles he held for sale were indigenous, and I found him as lamentably ignorant in geography as upon most subjects. I began to dilate at some length upon those countries whence the various articles for human consumption were imported, speaking of their climate, inhabitants, flora, etc. And when I found the young man most interested in my discourse, I closed by saying: "You see all these things a good grocer should know, or he does not come up to the standard of his calling." He understood the rebuke, and his face was covered with blushes.

Several evenings afterwards I was sitting in my room when some one knocked at my door, and who should come in but the young man of the grocery store. He told me that he had resolved to spend his nights trying to improve himself intellectually, and he desired me to give him the necessary instructions.

I do not think I ever had a more painstaking pupil, and after a few years of drudgery the young man acquired a good education. To-day he owns one of the largest business houses in that city, and is proud to be a simple grocer.—Cincinnati Grocer.

THE REWARD OF LABOR.

What are grocers' clerks getting for their toil?

It is likely that this question would draw forth a different answer from each clerk to whom it should be put. And these replies would give a remarkably clear insight into the characters of those interrogated.

One lad may get three dollars per week for his work. If he ever gets more it will be because with years he becomes physically, rather than mentally, larger and stronger. His labor yields him three dollars, and nothing more.

Another lad gets three dollars in cash and a growing knowledge of the business. His reward is double. It is money and valuable experience; and the experience will make him more serviceable to his employer, who can afford to pay him larger wages.

Thus knowledge becomes capital with the boy, which he can invest with his present, or some other, employer, and draw constantly enlarging dividends upon.

The reward of labor depends upon whom the employe recognizes as his master. If the employer be the master he will be apt to continue so. But if the employe be his own master, demanding of himself the best services of which he is capable, his reward will be greater, for he will be worthier of better things.

The clerk who acts only at the specific directions of his employer, and has no ambition to put his own thought into the work, will always need a master, for he cannot master himself. And the man who furnishes the brains will get the larger profit when working in conjunction with the man who can supply nothing but sluggish muscle.

Expert labor can always command a good price. There is on Broadway in this city an illustration of this. An employer had in his service a young man who worked for something more than his wages. He worked for skill and perfection in his calling. He knew his business thoroughly, and when his employer discharged him, in order to fill his place with an employe who would work for less, it developed that the apparent servant was the master of the situation. He knew the business better than his employer, and, entering into competition with him, drew away his custom and became a leader in his line.

Clerks who do not work for expert knowledge, as well as for the money received at the week's end, do not get out of their labor all the reward that it ought to bring. The work that yields no reward in the doing of it is not properly done. There should be profit in the labor as well as from the labor. —St. Louis Grocery Reporter.

Mr. Wilkinson, grocer, of Ingersoll, had a narrow escape from being gored by a ferocious bull on Thames street the other evening His agility and presence of mind in dodging the infuriated beast in all probability saved his life.

There is a large demand for potatoes in the Cuban markets, and so encouraging are the reports that a number of dealers in Nova Scotia have gone extensively into the business. Last week the steamer Winthrop carried to New York 450 barrels consigned to dealers in Havana. The Monticello on Saturday landed 394 barrels. A thousand barrels have been shipped from Digby alone, to the West Indies.

Among the passengers on the SS. Empress of China was Mr. J. Sampson, who is connected with the firm of Messrs. Reid Evans & Co., who are one of the largest tea houses in China.

Brown, Smellie & Co., general merchants, Russell, Man., have decided to enlarge their premises, their business having increased to such proportions ; their present accomodation is no longer sufficient.

At the last meeting of the Deseronto town council a petition, neatly engrossed and bound together by a blue ribbon, was presented by several grocers asking for a repeal of the early-closing by-law. It was held over for future consideration.

It is said that T. L. Snook, Kingston, will appeal against the decision given by Judge Rose in the case of Green vs. the Canadian collecting agency. The appeal will be heard in the court of Queen's bench.

The handsome new granite vault, erected by George E. Tuckett in Burlington cemetery, has been completed. The vault is a very handsome structure of Canadian grey granite, some of the stones weighing eight tons.

Wilson & Ranahan is the style of a new grocery house which has started at 265 Dundas street, London. Mr. Wilson has been the junior in Wilson Bros., Richmond street, and Mr. Ranahan was senior clerk with John Lawson, Dundas street. Both are popular, energetic young men with many years' practical experience, which will stand them in good stead.

Messrs. Willet and Maloney, Vivianville, Ont., have bought out Mr. Mageau and purpose stocking their place with fresh lines of dry goods and groceries. The brothers Armstrong in the same village have purchased the general store business of Johnston and Purvis which they purpose extending.

R. Hutchison & Son, grocers, Listowel, announce in an advertisement filling about one-third of a page of the Banner of that town, that on and after the first of November next they will do business only on a strictly cash basis. They urge, logically enough, the greater economy to both buyer and seller as their reason for this departure. On the one hand prices have not to carry a big expense account that the credit system entails, on the other, losses through bad debts are not suffered.

"The boycott of the Grocers' association against non-members of the association—particularly Messrs. Wm. Kenny and C. Lacroix—still continues, and the boycotted men still hang on with tenacity. The agent for McCormick, of London, was here the other day, and went away without a single order because his house had sold goods to Kenny when it had been warned by the association not to do it. Joe Wilcox, the traveller, looked awful tired when he was leaving town.—Sarnia Sun.

The license commissioners of London, Ont., have decided that the separation of ownership of liquor stores and grocery stores shall be made absolute from and after the expiration of the present year's licenses.

A consignment of about 50,000 pounds of raw sugar, slightly damaged, for the underwriters, was sold at the Grand Trunk freight sheds, London, Ont., on Saturday. Mr. A. M. Smith was the purchaser at 2½ cents a pound.

The Oriental Traders' Company of Vancouver, will shortly open a warehouse in Toronto, where they already have an agent, which will be the distributing point for their trade in the eastern provinces. They also contemplate establishing a branch warehouse in Victoria which is deemed necessary to secure the advantages of shipping by the Upton Steamship Line to and from the Orient.

The removal of the duty on sugar has caused a falling off in revenue. The Customs receipts during the past month at the Montreal Custom house were $587,460.23 as compared with $793,088.95 for September, 1890, a decrease for the present year of $205,628.82. The inland revenue receipts for September were $179,807.59, and for the same month last year $151,392.81, showing an increase in favour of the present year of $28,404.78.

With all reverence, etc., we tell this tale. It was in a church in an eastern town where our representative was spending Sunday, and had turned out in his best suit of clothes to early morning service. When all was over and the crowd were leaving in a hurry to do justice to the usual Sunday dinner, our reporter was gently tapped on the left shoulder by one of the prominent business men of the town, and on the right by the pastor of the church. The preacher welcomed him and inquired after his spiritual welfare, and the merchant wanted to know what so many lines of space would cost him to advertise in THE GROCER. This is the first time our man didn't want an advertisement. There is no telling what might have been done in the church, had the minister held the pulpit, but he being close at hand, we cannot illustrate what might have been the outcome of the merchant's inquiry by referring to ad. on page so and so.

Eby, Blain & Co., have removed into their new building across on Scott and Front streets, formerly occupied by Frank Smith & Co. It has been partially rebuilt, and is now one of the most complete and commodious in Canada.

The Globe Tobacco Works at London, Ont., have been seized by the sheriff, and the stock and plant advertised for sale. The concern, which is one of considerable importance, only started up about seven months ago and was granted a 10 years' exemption from civic taxation. The seizure is understood to be the result of an effort on the part of some of the directors to reorganize the company. They will probably buy in the property and continue the business.

The regular annual meeting of the Montreal Grocers' association was held on Thursday evening, the 1st. inst., in the Mechanics' Institute. The election of officers took place and resulted as follows :—President, Mr. S. Demers ; vice-president, Mr. John Robertson ; honorary-secretary, Ald. T. Gauthier ; Treasurer, Mr. John Scanlon ; and committee, Messrs. A. D. Fraser, James O'Shaughnessy, J. O. Levesque, P. Desormiers, O. Lebrecque, and H. Viger.

In the conflagration which swept away so much property in Halifax last week, the following losers are noted as more or less connected with the grocery trade : John Taylor & Co., wholesale fish dealers ; Joseph R. Sieman, grocer and liquor dealer ; the Halifax broom factory ; J. B. Neilly & Co., commission merchants ; Shatford Bros., oil dealers ; John Cronan, grocer ; Mary J. Morley, grocer ; Mrs. M. A. Roache, grocer ; Wm. Wise, Wm. Barnes, Geo. Gilbert, fish dealers.

On Saturday, September 26th, the remains of an old lifelong resident of the township of Adolphustown, universally respected, were laid at rest. John Joseph Watson has been a well-known character in the Midland district for half a century. He was born near the site of his late residence—which is a beautiful edifice on the north shore of the Bay of Quinte, with a commanding view in all directions—in the year 1816, and was consequently at the time of his decease in his 76th year. Among his classmates at the school house near by was Sir John A. Macdonald. The deceased was a successful business man, and accumulated considerable of a fortune. He carried on a mercantile business and farming combined. His broad intelligence and genial manner led him into municipal matters, and for a number of years he represented the township in the county council. He was warden of the county.

NOTES TAKEN ON THE ROAD.

Mr. L. Revell, grocer, 479 York st., Hamilton, contemplates purchasing another store in that city if he can get what suits him in location.

Mr. Wm. Mitchell, formerly of Hamilton, has opened up again in the grocery line in the flourishing town of Grimsby under very favorable circumstances, his stock all new and first class.

One of the oldest grocerymen in Hamilton, and still in that business, is Mr. W. Ronald, York street. He has completed his thirty-third year in the trade, and although his son James H. has taken an active interest, the father still remains at the helm. Mr. Ronald expressed himself as satisfied with trade generally, and reports the prospective trade as particularly promising.

Mr. J. E. Doyle, Hamilton, makes hay while the sun shines, and he has got a good supply of that "hay" money in his pocket now, the result of years of hard labor in the grocery trade.

One trade well worked is better for a man than to be Jack of all trades, even if he can master them all, and S. E. Mabey, Grimsby, realizes that. He has made money at his business of buying, shipping and butchering stock, since he relieved himself of a stock of groceries, and Mr. Mabey is now "The Butcher" of Grimsby. He is fully alive to his responsibility, and buys nothing but boneless cattle and tender lambs, and is therefore in great favor with "popular authority" on meats.

Messrs. Kenney & Co., grocers, Guelph, have opened a meat shop in connection with their business. Meat in connection with the grocery trade now is like a kitchen to a dining-room—indispensable.

B. R. Nelles, proprietor of the Beaver brand of canned goods, is now very busy packing and shipping car lots from his canning establishment at Grimsby. The location of this factory, being, as it were, in the garden of Ontario, has every facility for putting up stock of a superior quality, and that is what Mr. Nelles makes it a point to do. He will make some consignments "under special label" this year to England, where his goods will compare favorably with, if not excel, anything in that market.

J. E. McElderry, Guelph, has been in the grocery business in his present stand over 20 years, and looking from his door but few names can be read on signs that were on at that time. Mr. McElderry says it requires close attention to business in all its details now-a-days, to keep on the right side of the ledger in the grocery trade, "unless one is in the wholesale trade and a Guild, then he has some one to do it for him."

Mr. R. Mitchell, Guelph, is generally the recipient of the choice 1st prize exhibit of apples in the county fair, and this year they were very fine and make an excellent display in his store, they being arranged in front of a long mirror amongst the shelf goods. Mr. Mitchell's store, like the majority in Guelph, is kept clean, and goods are so arranged that one has to remark on the ingenuity and good taste of the management. When I go to Guelph again I'll try and find out if some of the clerks are not entitled to a good share of praise for this state of things in that city.

Mr. Wm. Buckley, Guelph, succeeds to the grocery business of S. K. Townsend of that place. G. H. Townsend, formerly with S. K. Townsend, will remain a year with Mr. Buckley. This will enable him to steer clear of dead beats and poor pays that are always ready to jump on a new man in any town or city.

Compare the quality with any other.

TORONTO, Oct. 8, 1891.

GROCERIES.

More headway in selling is to be reported this week. The improvement is slight, but no more could be looked for while the grain market is so nearly at a standstill. The price of wheat is the barometer for the moment, and until that becomes steady at a dollar or over, if it is to get to that figure, the circulation of money will likely be slow. The orders received by the grocery houses are for current trade only. Scarcely any business is done in a speculative way. A local sign that brisker times are at hand is the increasing number of farmers' wagons loaded with produce of one description or another, that are to be seen on the street market. Work on the farms has slackened, roads and weather are yet good, so that movement of farm produce ought, if prices suit, to become strong. It would seem that the danger of overstocking, though carefully guarded against by the retail trade, is this fall at a minimum, as the country should be capable of absorbing more grocery stock than in any previous fall and winter for years.

CANNED GOODS.

A quiet spell has settled upon this branch of the trade. Every line in it has now pretty well emerged from the prospective stage, and in the situation there appears to be little to make retailers specially eager to secure stock now. The tomato packers have had an unexpected lengthening of the time wherein to operate, owing to the remarkably fine weather lately enjoyed. It may turn out yet though that there is not more than enough time to get a large pack ready. The present attitude of buyers, that of standing aloof, is no doubt warranted by the views of the market that the situation suggests. If there be a large pack it comes on a bare market, and the price struck at the outset was a low one, so that those who have bought will be likely to get their own again out of the stock. Prices rule now at $1.05 to $1.15. Peas are firm at $1.10 to $1.15. Longer time does not show the pack to appear larger than that estimate of it upon which the price moved up three weeks ago. Corn is steady from $1.05 up. Some sales as low as $1 have been heard of. Salmon is rather quiet, from $1.35 for talls and $1.70 for flats. New peaches are in to sell at $2.10 to $2 25 for twos and $3 to $3.50 for threes. There are new apples in and they quote at $1 to $1.10 for threes and $2.60 to $2.75 for gallons. Some new California canned pineapples are in to sell at $3. They are of the clover leaf brand.

The B. C. Commercial Journal says : The bark Serica cleared Sept. 28 for London with 38,623 cases of salmon, valued at $200,782, which is the first shipment of this season's fish for the United Kingdom. The Callao will also sail shortly. The Rothesay Bay, which arrived Sept 27, 150 days out from Glasgow, is under charter to load salmon for the United Kingdom, direct port, at 43s. 6d. Up to Sept. 18, arrivals of Alaska fish at San Francisco, were 334,609 cases against 281,539 cases for 1889. Salmon is being rushed forward, but it is probable that final figures will be about equal to last year. From the fact that preparations were not extensive, it is expected that in some quarters the final figures may show a smaller pack than heretofore. The impression is gaining ground that the entire pack of the Pacific coast will be about equal to former years, but the factor of the Alaska pack is a very uncertain one, as no reliable information is to be had. This statement must be received with caution.

COFFEE.

Easier prices for Rio coffees have been followed by a reduction in the quotations on Mochas and Javas, stocks of which at the moment are quite full. Mocha ranges from 30 to 35c., with Java at 27 to 32c. Rio is unchanged at 19 to 21c. and high grades are not more plentiful than they were reported to be a fortnight ago. The demand for coffee is steady.

DRIED FRUIT.

The market is becoming fairly stocked with new season's fruits. The second shipment of Valencia raisins that by direct steamer, having arrived, prices are easier for new fruit, the basis for off stalk being now 6½c. Old are still plentiful and receiving the greater part of the attention given to Valencias at 4½ to 5c. Sultana raisins are likewise easier as stocks increase and the old crop goods disappear. Prices are 10 to 11c. Malaga raisins have begun to arrive but are not in sufficient stock to be yet quotable at the prices to hold for the season. The receipts of them so far comprise small lots of Imperial London layers, Connoisseur clusters, black baskets and extra dessert. The layers open at $3, the clusters at $4. They are very choice fruit this season. This autumn there are fewer London layers than formerly. As the country has grown in wealth, the demand has run more on the better grades. One wholesale house, which at one time imported large quantities, have ordered only 50 boxes this year.

Sultana raisins are cabled 2s. firmer in the primary markets. New Eleme figs are now in, and are quoted at 11 to 12c., in 10 lb. boxes. The fruit is said to be of first-class quality. Currants are steady at 6⅜c. for barrels, old and new being on an equality. The quantity of the former on the market is a small one. The arrival of new prunes will soon be due. The market is yet well stocked with old at easy prices, 5½ to 6½c. being the range of quotations for cases.

Smith & Keighley are offering a line of 14 oz. old stock figs at 3c.

NUTS.

The volume of business at this time of year is never large, and the present season is not an exception to that rule. A business in small-sized lots goes on, but even in that way the orders received are few in number. The accession of new stock always starts business going. Arrivals of filberts are expected in a short time.

RICE AND SPICES.

The demand for rice shows about the usual strength. A fair movement of stock at firm prices is about all the comment called for by the local market. Abroad the situation is stronger than it has been at any other part of the year. Burmah shippers are reported to be making offers to repurchase from English buyers cleaned rice contracted to be delivered. Terms have been asked even for re-shipment back to Burmah in cases where delivery has been made. Tapioca is firm at 5½c. White pepper has advanced 1d. per lb. in England. Nutmegs are stronger than they have been for months, no stock being obtainable at less than 75c., with $1.20 as outside quotation for fine quality.

SUGAR.

There is a considerable quantity of sugar sold by wholesalers, but the supply appears to be rather more than the market requires. A diminution of the supply, however, there must be for the remainder of the fall as the Moncton refinery has closed down and the Woodside refinery is reported to be about to close. The price of yellows under the pressure of temporary over-production and the competition of raw, has shrunk to 3⅝c. as the regular quotation for the lowest grade, and 3½c., at Montreal for carloads to western or northern points. This latter price is reported even to be shaded in the case of large deals. Raws range from 3.45, and holders appear to be in a position to adapt still further their quotations to those going for yellow. Granulated is steady at 5 to 5⅛c.

In their weekly statistical Willet & Gray, New York, say: Raws declined ⅛c. Refined unchanged for granulated, ⅛c. lower for many other grades. Total stock in all the principal countries at latest uneven dates, 567, 859 tons, against 427,781 tons at same dates last year. The market for raws has tended in favor of buyers, who have obtained an advantage of ⅛c. per lb. in their purchases, and are now asking a further reduction. Cuba is still a seller of the balance of crop, and the tendency of prices their favors buyers. The beet sugar countries are steady and quiet while waiting for new crop sugars. M. Licht has not yet issued his first crop estimates, but telegraphs that the prospects are favorable. For refined—There has been a fair demand during the week, but refiners have caught up with deliveries and found it necessary to lower prices for many grades of refined. Those grades for which prices are sustained, including granulated, must soon take the downward tendency to get on to the new parity of prices growing out of the beginning of a new campaign year. The production in October will be considerably reduced to meet the smaller consumption.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Low prices have benefited trade in syrups, the value of which is now better than has been hitherto obtainable at any time. Quotations run from 2½c. upwards. In molasses the chief movement has been in New Orleans stocks, table grades of which have sold quite freely recently.

TEAS.

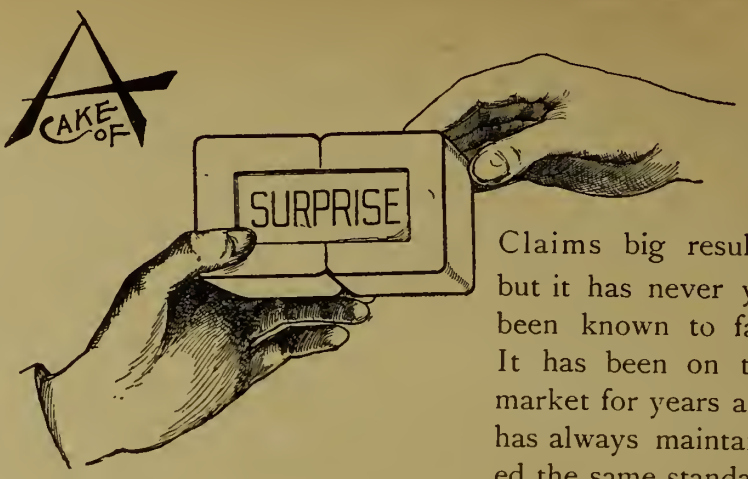
No perceptible lapse from last week's generally satisfactory business comes up for notice. Lowness of old stocks and moderate buying of new leave the retail traders throughout the country ready to buy when the money gets into their hands to warrant a little stocking ahead. The value appears to be good; in Japans particularly business is said to be on a basis here much lower than the state of the primary market would sanction. Japans sell well at 16 to 20c., as do medium grades. Blacks are steady from 15c. upwards. Young Hysons are in demand, but the grades in leading favor are scarce. Prices are 17c. and upwards.

Mail advices from Japan report in substance that the exports this year will probably show an increase of 2,000,000 or 3,000,000 lbs., reaching about 50,000,000; but as the consumption of Japan teas in the United States and Canada steadily increases, the quantity will probably not be found excessive. The grades now principally shipping are common to good medium. The higher grades are practically finished, and arrivals from this time to the end of the season (estimated at 30,000 piculs) will consist chiefly of the lower grades. Quotations remain unchanged, the natives holding firmly to their previous line of valuation.

PETROLEUM.

The local market offers little to make any special reference to. The trade is fairly good, the time of year being on when refined is coming into its strongest period of demand. Prices show no tendency either upward or downward, the firmness noted a few weeks ago not having held out nor ended in any advance. Canadian refined is steady at 15 to 16c.

The Petrolia Advertiser reports: Petrolia crude $1.35¾ per bbl., Oil Springs Crude $1.35¾ per bbl., $1.35¾ is the price which ruled on Thursday on Change, and at which figure several hundred barrels exchanged hands. The past week has not been a particularly stirring one so far as anything in relation to the oil business is concerned. The market has been quiet but firm, with an upward tendency, while the territory shows up very little that can excite much interest. The North West and the Township of Moore gradually giving up their claim to phenomenal, and will soon be known as a matter of history. The new strikes which were brought in during the week have all been of very small calibre, but which in the aggregate may tend to keep up the production, and prove to all would-be skeptics that the precious fluid is still here for the simple pumping. Refined still keeps at 12 cents in barrels and nine cents in bulk, at which prices a large quantity is now being sent out.



Claims big results, but it has never yet been known to fail. It has been on the market for years and has always maintained the same standard of excellence, and always will.

DRUGS AND CHEMICALS.

Improvement in the drug trade seems to be the uniform experience of wholesalers. Prices are steady in all lines which concern the grocer or general trader, and business in these lines may be considered stationary. In holiday goods there is some activity, as buying is just now seasonable for such wares.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

The market for butter improves as receipts decline in volume. The hot weather of the past month acted as a check to delivery and backed the firm ideas of holders. Prices show this advantage in the position of the supply side of the market as they have advanced all the way to 17c., with a few sales of rare butter at 19c. The range of prices is from 15 to 17c. for choice, and 11 to 13c. for medium grades. The demand for both classes of butter is good, with the supply stronger in the latter. The market is not sufficiently stocked with choice and not overstocked with seconds. Altogether the position has improved very materially for sellers, who seem disposed to make the most of the advantage. The demand is equal to the absorption of more stock than is arriving, but high prices begin to check business somewhat. The dip in the temperature on Monday night was followed by larger receipts, but prices remain unchanged.

Cheese is fairly active and unquestionably firm at 10 to 10½c. for full creams.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

BEANS—Are shrinking in quotation as new come in. They quote now $1.50 to $1.60.

DRIED APPLES—Are offering but moderately at 6½c, with some interest on the part of the demand.

EVAPORATED APPLES—Are offering quite freely at 8 to 8½c.

HAY—Is in adequate supply at $11 to $11.50 for pressed timothy.

HIDES—Green are steady at 5 to 5½c., but cured are down to 5⅞c.

HONEY—Is quiet at 7 to 10c. for strained and 12½c. for comb.

HOPS—Are coming forward steadily at 13 to 15c. for new and choice yearlings.

ONIONS—Are unchanged but more plentiful at $2 to $2.25.

POTATOES—Are dull at 35c. for cars, though these do not sell readily, and 45c. for lots out of store.

SKINS—Sheep are firm at 70c. and calf at 5 to 7c.

WOOL—Is listless at 18 to 19c.

FRUITS.

The receipts of fruit in all lines but apples are beginning to fall off very considerably. Apples have been very plentiful, and though arriving less freely now, are still beyond the capacity of the demand to dispose of them. They run at 50c. to $1.50 per barrel; peaches are 75c. to $1.50 per basket; quinces 50c. per basket; plums 70 to 90c. per basket; pears, $2 to $5 per barrel; crabapples, 10 to 15c. per basket;

COOK'S FRIEND BAKING POWDER.

The Best Grocers Make a point of Keeping it always in Stock.

MARKETS—Continued.

muskmelons $1 to $1.50 per barrel; grapes are 1¼ to 1¾c. per lb. Cape cod cranberries, very fine stock this season, have arrived. They sell at $8 to $8.50 per barrel.

GREEN FRUIT.

The demand for Jamaica oranges is slow; the fruit is not yet fully sweetened. The price is $8 to $8.50. New Florida and Louisiana oranges are in and selling at $4.50 to $5. They are not yet at their best either. Lemons are scarce; Maoris are the only variety. They sell at $8 to $9. There are a few old Messinas at $4 to $5. The cooler weather of the past few days has checked the smart demand for lemons that had been quite steady for a long time before that. Bananas are scarce at $1.25 to $1.75 per bunch. Baltimore sweet potatoes are $2.50 to $3, and Jerseys are $3 to $3.50.

PROVISIONS.

The market is stocked only with the remains of the last pack and with such additions as are made from the new raw material that is arriving. Of the old pack the largest unconsumed surplus is in hams, which are steady at 11½ to 12½c. Hogs are coming in more freely since the change in the weather. Before Tuesday morning the supply of hogs had fallen off, but the drop of 25 degrees in the temperature the night before greatly improved the demand of buyers and increased the receipts.

BACON—Long clear is now scarce at 9c. The market is recruited by some supplies of new. Smoked backs and bellies are 11c. Rolls are 9c.

HAMS—Are but moderately active at 11½ to 12½c.

LARD—The scarcity of pure makes the price, 10½ to 11c., very firm. Compound is 8½ to 9c.

MESS PORK—Heavy is quiet at $15 to $15.50, and short cut at $17 to $17.25.

DRESSED HOGS—Are arriving at $6 to $6.50.

FISH.

The receipts of fish are light, but they would not need to be heavy to supply the demand. Salmon trout are quite scarce at 7c., and white fish are hard to get at all at 8c. Lake herring are quiet at $2.50 to $3. Pike are 5c., and pickerel 6c. Haddock are 6 to 6½c. British Columbia salmon are 14 to 16c., and are becoming scarce. Freezing is now going on, the excess over present requirements being all needed to put down for winter consumption.

SALT.

The sales of the week have been satisfactory. Prices have not changed for any description. The resumption of operations by the packers has improved the demand for barrel salt. Coarse sacks are 70c., fine sacks 85c., barrels $1.20.

FLOUR AND FEED.

A moderately good demand is kept up for flour, on which the quotations in car lots are given in Prices Current. In smaller lots they quote at $5.75 for Manitoba patent, $5.25 to $5.35 for Ontario patents, $4.50 for straight roller, $4.40 to $4.50 for extra, $2.25 to $4 for low grades, $5.25 to $5.40 for strong bakers'. Graham flour is $4.50, standard oatmeal $4.25, rolled oats $4.35. Kiln-dried corn meal is $4, rolled wheat $5, wheat bran $12, cracked corn $30, mixed chop $20 to $25, split peas $4, pot barley $4.50, oats 30 to 32c.

DRY GOODS.

The fine weather has been unfavorable rather than otherwise to some departments of trade referred to above, notably that in dressed hogs, but in no other branch has its effect been so strongly felt as in the dry goods trade. The need of a spell of cool weather was very clearly realized on all hands, and things began to mend among the dry goods men when such weather came. There is ample room for improvement yet.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Oct. 8, 1891.

The grocery market generally shows a fair degree of activity, but the movement is not as extensive as it might be. It is picking up however, sugar is moving fairly well, and the same can be said of tea, while locally coffee holds its position firmly, despite the unsettled feeling of primary markets. In dried fruit buyers are not taking hold freely, but importers and jobbers with light receipts of new stock show no anxiety as to the future.

SUGAR AND SYRUP.

A fair trade is doing in sugar but there is no special activity to note, though graulated is unchanged, but yellows have sold somewhat lower during the week at 3½c. In fact there is some desire shown to induce business through concessions.

Syrups have not yet commenced to move freely but a few sales are being made on a 2¾ to 3¼c. basis. There is a fair jobbing demand for Molasses, Barbadoes being quoted at 38c.

TEAS.

Japan teas furnish more business than a week ago, anything worth 13½ to 15c. moving pretty freely, while the feeling generally is firm. There is very little doing in blacks on this market.

COFFEE AND SPICES.

The unsettled condition of affairs at primary markets still exists, but locally coffee is quite firm and unchanged. This is accounted for by the fact of limited supplies, while there are no low grades offering, and all kinds are scarce. In fact really good coffee, Nos. 5 or 6, is difficult to obtain, and bring relatively high prices. Prices therefore rule unchanged, and we note the sale of a round lot of Rio at 19½c.

Spices rule quiet with no enquiry. There is no Pimento on the market, while pepper, cloves, etc., are not wanted, hence prices are more or less nominal.

RICE.

There is a fair business doing in rice at unchanged prices. Cables from abroad note a hardening in values, but the competition between some local dealers continues, despite this although the cutting is said to have ceased. We quote: Patna, $4.50 to $5; Japan, $4.25 to $4.50; standard, $3.90, and off grades $3.50 in car lots.

DRIED FRUIT.

Holders show no anxiety regarding dried fruit despite the fact that buyers are very indifferant or at any rate appear so at the moment. The jobbers therefore are not doing much on actual consumptive account, the reason for this being plain, the good supply of old stock still to be disposed of in the country. Holders admit that this is considerable but say that the light receipts this fall are a counter reason why there should be no anxiety. Therefore although consumers are showing no desire for business there has been business from first hand in fruit to arrive on a steady basis. The Avolona will be in port in two weeks at the latest and sales to arrive of Valencia raisins are made at 18s. for strictly wholesale lots of a 1000 boxes, which is equal to 5¼ to 5⅜c. In a regular way no such figures could be had, and jobbing from stock here is going steadily on at 6 to 6¼c. on new fruit. Reports of lower offers are prevalent, but they cannot be confirmed and in fact are very doubtful. For old stock Valencia sellers are taking what they can get, the quantity available on spot being further reduced now at 3½c. is a fair quotation for it. Currants show no alteration, the scarcity being very noticeable, in fact the spot market is absolutely bare of stock at the moment. Several enquiries are noted and business could be done at 6 to 6¼c. for prompt delivery. To arrive transactions are noted on the basis of 5⅞ to 6¼c. according to the size of the package. The quantity on the Avolona is not exactly known, but is supposed to be about 200 tons which is a very small consignment.

CANNED GOODS.

The feature that occupies most attention at present is the pack of tomatoes. There is no need to modify our remarks of last week for the pack promises to be enormous. The inside price now is 95c. here, but the tendency is such that lower values are quite possible on round lots very shortly. In other lines of vegetables no change is to note. In fish, salmon remains as before. Advices from the coast intimate smaller shipments but buyers continue independent and there is plenty to fill all wants.

GREEN FRUIT.

There is no change in this branch, with a very ordinary jobbing trade to note. Oranges rule unchanged at $4.50 to $5, with little or no business doing; and lemons $4.50 to $6 per box, according to quality. The supply of the latter is small.

FRESH FRUIT.

The supply of all kinds of fresh fruit, with one exception, is plentifully maintained, and there is no scarcity to note except in pears, which are in lighter receipt than formerly, and rule steady at $4 to $5 and $6, according to quality. Grapes are in heavy supply and easy. Concord sell at 2 to 2½c., Niagara 2 1-2 to 3c., and Delawares at 3 to 4c.

per lb. Quince remain 50 to 75c., and plum are all done. Receipts of cranberries are freer, prices ruling from $7.50 to $8 per barrel.

APPLES.

There is nothing new to say with regard to winter apples, but the heavy receipts of fall stock continue, and to a certain extent may be taken as a criterion of what to expect with later varieties. Each day sees heavy arrivals of them, and now it is a question of what buyers will give rather than an asking price. Car lots are selling at 50c. to $1 per barrel, and no one can have any difficulty in filling his wants on this basis. Consignments on export account continue, and some returns which have been received regarding the early shipments show more favorable conditions in Liverpool than on spot. It should be remembered, however, that the stock being shipped is better than that offering locally.

FISH.

The arrivals are still inconsiderable, while the market does not show any particular change from a week ago. Values generally, rule steady. Cod of best kind continues scarce. No. 1 being steady at $5.00 to $5.50, other grades in proportions. Labrador salmon rules firm at $16.00 for prime stock and herring show no change from $4.75 to $5.25 per bbl.

HOPS.

The hop market remains quiet, with no business of sufficient importance to offer a reliable quotation. The tone, however, may be described as easy, and it is more than likely that 15c. would move stock here if it was bid.

PROVISIONS.

The week did not show anything particularly new and has had a quiet close. Demand for pork has continued fairly good, owing to the commencement of lumbering preparations and smoked meats and lard have held their own at steady prices. Canadian short cut, per brl. $17 to $17.25 ; mess pork, western, per brl. $15.25 to $15.75 ; short cut, western, per brl. $17.25 to $17.50 ; hams, city cured, per lb. 10 1-2 to 11 1-2 ; hams, canvassed, per lb. 00 to 00 ; lard Canadian, in pails, 8¾ to 9c ; bacon, per lb. 9 to 10c ; lard com. refined per lb. 7¾ to 8c.

EGGS.

The egg market has not shown any important change. Fresh candled stock still moving at 14 to 14½c. There is some export demand, but dealers claim that offerings are not quite the thing for the English market, and are operating carefully. Culls have been pretty well cleared up of the local market.

BUTTER.

The market rules quiet, for with holders showing very extreme views on late made creamery, the opportunity for shipping business is limited. As high as 22¾c. has, it is claimed, been paid in the country, but no business in a general way is possible on such a basis on spot. For dairy stock the demand calls for something of the quality of Morrisburg or Brockville stock, so the business in Western dairy is small, as this class of stock is in small supply. Holders are asking 15c. for Western, but it is hard to make for a round lot.

CHEESE.

It is now simply a question of strength between the holder on this side and the English buyer on the other. The former has bought the cheese at a pretty high figure and is finding it slow work in getting the Britisher to pay it. However the factory man, aside from those west of Toronto, is pretty well out of it, as he has sold the ballance of his season's make at 10 to 10¼c., so he can afford to look on the fight with indifference. We quote the following as fair spot values:—Finest Septembers, 10c.; finest August and Septembers, 9¾ to 9⅞c.; fine, 9¼ to 9 1-2c.; medium, 8 1-2 to 9c. ; cable, 46s.

GRAIN.

The grain market, locally, is a purely nominal one as regard values, for business is quiet and small. The stocks in store compared with those of a week ago show a decrease of 83,752 bushels of wheat, 6,083 bushels of peas, and an increase of 300 bushels of corn, 29,130 bushels of oats, 13,897 bushels of barley, 6,250 bushels of rye. Compared with the corresponding period last year there is an increase of 2,329 bushels of wheat, 107,020 bushels of oats, 13,456 bushels of barley, 9,567 bushels of rye, and a decrease of 59,979 bushels of corn, 8,036 bushels of peas. We quote: No. 1 hard Manitoba, $0 No. 2 do. $1.05 to $1.07 ; No. 3 do., 97c ; No. 2 Northern, $1.04 ; peas, 76c. per 66 pounds in store, 77c. afloat; oats, 32c. to 33c. per 34 pounds ; corn, 68c. to 69c duty paid ; feed barley, 48c ; good malting do. 55c. to 57c.

FLOUR.

There is only a small local jobbing business doing in flour, and prices are more or less nominal with an easy tendency. The stock in store is 2,936 barrels less than that of a week ago, and 767 barrels less than that of the corresponding time last year. Patent spring $5 25 to $5.40 ; Patent winter $5.25 to $5.40 ; straight roller $4.80 to $4.90 ; Extra $4.40 to $4.50 ; Superfine $4.20 to $4.30; City strong bakers' $5 ; Strong bakers' $5.

HALIFAX MARKET QUOTATIONS.

(Wholesale Selling Rates.)

HALIFAX, Oct. 7, 1891.

BREADSTUFFS.—There is very little change to note since our last week's report. Buyers are unwilling to lay in stocks until future prices are better assured.

SUGAR.—There is only a fair trade doing in sugars, and while prices are not quotably changed, the competitions between refineries have resulted in some cutting, and sales are reported to have been effected below the nominal figures.

TEAS.—There has not been much doing in teas during the week, but a better movement is expected from this forward. Some grade blacks are firmer in London, but this has not affected prices here as yet.

FISH.—The alongshore catching season is virtually over, and many owners have taken in and housed their seines, regarding the chances of large schools of fish coming in after this date as too remote to justify them in exposing their property to destruction by the October gales, that may now come on at any day.

A SALMON MAN EN ROUTE.

Carl Strauss, of London, Eng., passed through the city on Saturday afternoon on his way from British Columbia to the old country. Mr. Strauss is the representative in England of the salmon industry on the coast province. His headquarters are in London, but he comes out every summer to the Fraser river, and as soon as the pack has been completed returns to the old country. As three-quarters of the total salmon pack of British Columbia goes to England, it is easily understood how large are the interests Mr. Strauss represents. He is one of the veterans of the coast, arriving there in '62. and what he does not know about salmon and the salmon trade could be put into a small 15-cent can of that edible. "This season," said Mr. Strauss, "the pack is about 100,000 cases less than last year, when over 400,000 cases were packed. 1890 was the salmon leap year, for, as perhaps you know, every fourth season the salmon swarm in large numbers. I regard this year's pack as very satisfactory considering the big haul of 1890. There are four runs of salmon each season, and this year they were all light and thin with the exception of the sockeyes, which were wonderfully abundant. The increase in this run was due to the new hatchery placed in the Fraser river by the Dominion Government. The restrictions that the Government has enforced respecting the taking of the fish, while reducing the pack slightly at present, will have the effect in future of increasing the yield.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

WAUPOOS, Oct. 1st, '91.

Editor CANADIAN GROCER.

DEAR SIR,—Would you kindly advise me where I can procure a brand of tobacco called "Sunny South," and where made, and oblige, Yours respectfully,

JAMES S. CARR.

[Any of our readers who can furnish the information asked for in the foregoing inquiry will oblige by forwarding it to this office.—ED.]

AS YOU LIKE IT.

Weight versus measures; if not weight why not?

How many pounds are there in a box of fruit? How many in a crate? How many in a basket? Come, you who are buying and selling by measure, tell us: Are you buying and selling fruit, or empty space with some fruit?

What is your standard for a box of California fruit, for instance? We are gravely informed that a box of plums contains 20 lbs., of cherries 10 lbs., of peaches 20 lbs. net, of pears 40 lbs.

And then in the measurements of your fruits, produce and provisions, how uniform the means of measurement and how easy to fix a standard! That is shown by a little lesson in nomenclature, as follows:

Tub of butter.	Basket of peaches.
Box of cheese.	Crate of muskmelons.
Bolt of cloth.	Box of raisins.
Hogshead of prunes.	Barrel of cider.
Barrel of rice.	Barrel of cranberries.
Tierce of lard.	Basket of grapes.
Stone of salt.	Barrel of flour.
Peck of spinach.	Bunch of pieplant.
Dozen (12) of eggs.	Dozen (13) buns.

Beautiful system isn't it? You know so clearly and see so quickly how much you are buying and selling.—Northwest Trade.

CASH AS AN AVAILABLE ASSET.

Promises to pay are sometimes good. Cash in hand is always reliable. Book accounts, no matter how good they may be, will not pay a bill or take up a note when it falls due. Having too many accounts "good as wheat" has ruined many a man, for the simple reason that he could not realize on them at the time when he needed money the most. It would seem impossible to do business without credit; but all business need not necessarily be done on a credit basis. Keep a supply of ready money always on hand, no matter what the temptation may be otherwise. This is an absolutely safe rule for all business men. Occasions may arise, and often do arise, when cash, and cash only, will do the talking. During a stringency in the money market, and in times of panic, it is the man who has the cash who is master of the situation. Instances are known where millionaires, many times over, could not raise money on the giltest of gilt edge securities. The great firm of Baring Bros., one of the oldest and wealthiest banking firms in the world, got into trouble because they had too many "securities" and not enough cash. And so it is likely to happen with every business man, if he neglects this all-important matter of ready money. Any man may be a shrewd investor and money maker, and yet a spendthrift, not in the sense that he throws his money away, but for the reason that he has it all "invested" when his cash drawer should be full of coin. It is a bad, and, oftentimes, a ruinous system of doing business, to have one's entire capital tied up in stocks and bonds, or merchandise and book accounts. Never fail to keep a good cash balance in one or more banks, when misfortune is much less likely to overtake you.—Grocers' Monthly Review.

POTATO EXPORT TRADE.

The potato trade has recently been a good deal concerned to know what action the Spanish government would take in regard to duties upon Canadian potatoes shipped into the West Indies. Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, the Commercial Enquirer says, have heretofore supplied a very large part of the requirements of West Indian ports, and the duties charged upon the entry of the goods have been so high that, should they remain in force, about all of this trade would be diverted to the United States, under the recent reciprocity treaty which admits potatoes from the United States into the West India ports free of duty. Spain, however, has a treaty with England which provides that British products shall be admitted into the Spanish possessions upon as favorable terms as those of any other nation, and efforts have been made upon these grounds to induce the Spanish government to remit duties upon Canadian agricultural products to the extent of the concessions granted to the United States. The argument of our government has been that having procured these concessions from Spain at the cost of similar concessions in duties from West Indian products imported into the States, the discrimination as to duties on the part of Spain in favor of the United States is fully justified, and that if the products of other nations should be admitted into the West Indies upon the same terms as have been granted to the United States, the whole principle of reciprocity would be subverted. The decision of Spain has been against our interests, however, at least for the present season. A cargo of Nova Scotia potatoes has been admitted into Cuba free of duty, the Spanish authorities considering themselves bound to this course by the treaty with England referred to. But this treaty will expire next February, and while we can learn of no official declaration upon the subject, it is generally believed by those most interested that Spain will not renew it in its present form, and that thereafter a discrimination will be made in favor of the United States.

Do not, on any account, store honey in a cellar. The dampness causes it to sweat, and then the cappings will break and you have a lot of ruined honey. Our honey room is in the second storey of our house and will hold two tons. It is 6x10 feet and nine feet high, with two doors—one on each side—one opening from the hall, the other opening into a room over the porch. This room has one window. Here we put our honey first to let it harden, keeping this room light. After exposing it to the light for about two weeks, we place it in the honey room. Never on any account, place more than two boxes on top of one another, but place shelves above each other on the order of a library. If little red ants bother honey, place the honey on a bench and put each leg or foot in a pan of water, and my word for it, if you keep water in the pans no ants will bother the honey. Our honey room is as dark as anything can be made to be.—Maryland Farmer.

The principal centre of the citron candying industry is Leghorn. Italy enjoys a considerable advantage over Corsica in this industry on account of the drawback allowed on the sugar used in the process of candying; this almost amounts to a bounty on the export. The manufacturer pays duty on his sugar in the ordinary way, but the amount of drawback returned is calculated on the amount of sugar estimated to have been used in candying the citrons. This estimate, being always considerably in excess of the real amount consumed, is equivalent to endowing the Italian candied citron industry to that extent.—Provision Trade Gazette.

OFFICE OF THE PUBLIC ANALYST,

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Co., Montreal:

GENTLEMEN,—I have personally taken samples from a large stock of your Granulated Sugar, "REDPATH" brand, and carefully tested them by the Polariscope, and I find these samples to be as near to absolute purity as can be obtained by any process of Sugar-Refining.

The test by the Polariscope showed in yesterday s yield 99·90 per cent. of Pure Cane Sugar, which may be considered commercially as ABSOLUTELY PURE SUGAR.

It is well-known

That successful Doctors read all the latest medical books and papers and go abroad occasionally to study. Successful lawyers read legal publications to learn the latest legal decisions and points constantly cropping up. Teachers, clergymen, druggists, architects, all read the publication issued in the interests of their profession. They must do so to keep up with the times.

The same applies to grocers and general merchants. They must not only read the best papers published in their interests but must also watch the advertisements closely. There they learn the rise and fall in prices; latest trade news and methods of buying, handling and selling goods, so that they may make the greatest profit. A doctor reads much that he already knows, so does a lawyer. So does a number of any of the other professions. So will a merchant. It is often the issue of the paper he misses that is worth dollars to him. His best and safest policy, therefore, is to subscribe for his trade paper.

The only exclusively grocery and general store paper is THE CANADIAN GROCER issued weekly, subscription price $2.00 per year.

SPECIAL TO OUR READERS.

As the design of THE CANADIAN GROCER is to benefit mutually all interested in the business, we would request all parties ordering goods or making purchases of any description from houses advertising with us to mention in their letter that such advertisement was noticed in THE CANADIAN GROCER.

The meeting of the delegates which was held here on Monday is an important event in the annals of the trade. If things go on as they have gone on and as they tend, the grocery trade of Canada will have a history in a few years that will be worth writing, and that will possess a peculiar interest for the student of economy. The association is an agency of conscious history—making, a means towards a clearly discerned end. It ought to be developed and extended. The days of blind groping and of moving in a circle are passing away. They are disappearing before a general movement of conjoint effort. The meeting of Monday shows that the sum of local conjoint efforts is within possibility of collection. The delegates from the Associations represented were got together with comparatively little trouble and in a short time. They were accessible because they were connected with Toronto. This shows the value of confederacy, and also of a recognized centre. The bold move of the Toronto secretary in urging the adoption of a wider basis of membership is thus justified by its results. It is to be hoped that other associations will speedily avail themselves of the clause in the Toronto constitution which makes two of their members eligible for membership in the Toronto body.

* * * *

Enlarged views, enthusiasm and massed force are begotten of such gatherings as that on Monday. The danger of working at cross purposes or of wasting strength is provided against when counsel is taken from all quarters. The tactics of the most skilled generals have usually been directed to dividing the forces of their opponents in all doubtful engagements. A score or so of associations scattered over the country present too loose a front to a common opponent if they are not held together in some scheme of comprehension. The bond of union links the separate vertebræ into a firm spinal column, and too much backbone the associations cannot have. It will nerve the smallest of them to feel that it has the support of the whole organized trade. That will bring in members faster than any other agency. The strongest of local associations cannot help acquiring an insulated temper, if it has no intercourse with its fellows, any more than an individual man can who lives apart. Confined views are to be avoided. A broader way of looking at things was apparent from the very outset of the proceedings on Monday. Interchange of thought stimulated thought, and Toronto members never appeared to better advantage than they did then. The same no doubt could be said of the other members by any one familiar with them as participants in the proceedings of their local meetings. The touch of other conditions and considerations opens up ideas.

* * * *

Of not the least value is the enthusiasm generated. To find others zealous in the pursuit of the same end as oneself is pursuing is inspiriting. There is more heart in the grocers who met together on Monday than there was before they met. They have got better acquainted and have come to like each other. That brings out latent force for the carrying out of a common object. Trade affinity is not strong enough to do much of itself. It must be organized, and the best fruit of organization is friendly feeling, the nursing medium of all improvement. Friendly feeling does more than trade feeling for the benefit of trade. Trade feeling is too often animosity towards fellow traders.

* * * *

The delegates reflect credit upon the associations which sent them. They were clear-headed, fluent men, with intimate knowledge of the ins and outs of what they were talking about. There was no talking for the sake of talking. An idea was flung out every time a man spoke, and often great ingenuity and insight were shown in the remarks. They would compare favorably in the relevance, clearness, and originality of their suggestions and proposals with a body of similar size made up of members of any one of the learned professions. They illustrated well the value of business as a means of mental discipline. It would be a wholesome thing for those grocers who consider themselves above their calling to be present at the deliberations of such a body. They would learn that they would have to level up, not that they had levelled down. If a few associations can send such men to a general meeting why cannot many associations do the same thing? The practice of choosing delegates to represent associations at a central gathering would then result in great benefit. The deliberations of selected representatives could not but put the trade on a much higher plane than it now stands upon. Plainly the right class of men are in the trade if they could be brought together. The deputies who were here this week show this to be the case, and also their coming together shows that general association is possible.

CHEAPER GRANULATED SUGAR.

The decline of ⅛c. in the price of granulated sugar on Saturday had been looked for for some time before it came. The fruit-preserving demand has almost spent itself, and lower prices are therefore not a surprise. The fall in price is not an unmixed good to the retailer. It brings him again to the dangerous possibility of selling 20 lbs. for a dollar. That is a round number of pounds, and round numbers have a fascination for traders, though they do not succeed in attracting prices upwards from a number that is inconvenient for dividing. When the trader could not give 20lbs. for a dollar, he sold, not 19 lbs., but 18 lbs., the latter number representing more profit and being more amenable to division. Now he will strain a point to sell 20 lbs. The man who does a big enough business to warrant his buying in 15 barrel lots will do so, and having paid 4⅞c. a pound, he will try to sell at 5c. a pound. This will be the despair of the trader who must buy in smaller lots and pay 5c. a pound. Yet, if his big rival gives 20 lbs. for a dollar, the small trader must do it too. It is a pity, when a change had to be made from the point prices stood at, that it was not equal to about ⅜c., thus putting both the small and the large buyer in a position to obtain a profit on 20 lbs. for a dollar. If there be as much money in the country this fall as everybody calculates upon, the trade in selling sugar by the barrel to supply farmers for the winter ought to be a big one. But if there is to be no profit on it, it is of little consequence how big the trade is. Already we hear of some retailers offering 20 lbs. for a dollar.

CLEARANCE PRICES.

Grocers ought to make a big push to get rid of all lines that are likely to be cast in the shade by seasonable holiday stock. To be able to lay in fresh stocks of all the new Christmas goods, the retailer must bestir himself to unload everything that will look rusty or be out of demand by that time. It will not do to keep a thing beyond the period of its salableness. Rather than lose all on it, loose enough to make it sell. That is not price-cutting. It is marking down the price as the article depreciates in market value. Such stock has to be treated like damaged ware to make a clearance of it while it is wanted, and in time to leave a bare place for what is seasonable.

There are various articles kept in stock by the grocer that will become lumber if the price never eases; they will fill space and consume interest, while the goods in current demand would be causing a turn in the amount invested in them every few days, yielding a fair profit every time they move. Table ware is often kept till it has eaten up the margin in interest, and then sold at the sacrifice of more than the margin. Articles that suffer for want of use cannot be kept long and sold at full prices. It is attention to these matters that makes the difference often between a progressive and a backward grocer. The former begins to make his clearances in time. He has foresight and keenness. Another will not recognize in time whither he is drifting, and will be caught often with a big collection of unsold and unsalable goods, which no body would count as an asset. There is something due to new goods. They want all the advantage that trim surroundings can give them, they want no shabby looking fellowwares in their environment. What has passed its season has forfeited its profit, and ought to be sold if from no other motive than to brighten up the store for the benefit of the new goods.

THE FALL PEDDLING TRADE.

Toronto traders have this season stronger reasons than usual for insisting on the pedlars' by-law being enforced. When fruit and vegetables are cheap, the pedlar's trade in them is always large, the grocer's correspondingly small. This autumn the prices of potatoes and of apples have been almost phenomenally low. Hence the pedlar lays in stock every day, the larger consumption due to lower prices enables him to dispose of a great deal of stock, and not wishing to keep any over night he drums the street hard until he gets rid of it. This stops the demand for the grocer. The remarkable cheapness of the pedlar's prices of to-day, as compared with the grocer's prices of yesterday or last week persuades the housewife that it is a saving of money to buy of the former. The fact that nobody cares to handle potatoes in a large way just now leads to big street arrivals every day, and the grower, real or pretended, drives from door to door to get rid of them. For the same reason that carloads are not handled, the grocer also has to buy of the grower, and prices often are no easier to the grocer than to the consumer. This makes the difficulty of meeting the pedlar's prices a hard one. Apples are selling on the street these days very freely. The small stock of the pedlar and the methods he resorts to to get rid of it enable him to take advantage of the sudden dips in price that the market takes. All this makes competition with the pedlar a rather one-sided affair. He has made big encroachments this year in the berry, peach and pear trade of the city grocers. It is no wonder the Toronto Association was urgent in its report to the city council to have the pedlars kept strictly within the limits of their license rights.

At the evening session of the meeting of the delegates on Monday, ex-President Mills made a good suggestion when he advised that the co-operation of the landlords who owned stores tenanted by grocers be secured. As heavy tax payers these would have an influence, and it would not be difficult to show them that the business of the pedlars was a depreciating factor of some moment in the rental value of the premises used by grocers. The interest of their tenants ought to be enough of itself to induce the landlords to lend their weight to the movement of the stationary grocery trade for the better regulation of the peddling business. The general public have been appealed to in vain. Their support cannot be depended on, as they reason that the greater the competition the greater is the probability that prices will be kept down. That consideration offsets the annoyance caused by the pedlars.

THE SCARCITY OF FRUIT JARS.

The scarcity of jars this summer and fall became more aggravated as the preserving season advanced. Loud and numerous have been the complaints made of late about the consequences of this scarcity. It checked trade to a very marked degree. With some dealers the result was very exasperating. They could not sell jars because they could get none to sell. The demand for fruit fell off because no jars could be got to put it in. The sales of sugar shrank into much smaller volume under the same cause. Fruit, whose very abundance exposed prices to hourly downward fluctuations, was a source of loss because it could neither be kept nor sold. In no former summer has trade been blockaded to a like extent by the same cause. The preserving of the first fruit of the season taxed the supply of jars pretty severely. Consumption has been at work upon domestic supplies, many jars have been emptied in time to come into service for the second time in the season, but that has no effect on the dearth. In the summer of 1890 the buyers of old material could get all the jars they wanted, and more. They could scarcely give any away. This summer the demand upon them would have cleaned out half a dozen times as much stock as they had on hand. The fault for the scarcity lies at nobody's door. It could hardly have been prevented, unless manufacturers could have foreseen the abundance of the fruit crop and the removal of the duty from sugar. Importation has been put out of the question by the strength of the demand and corresponding scarcity in the United States.

THE DOMINION GUILD IN SESSION.

On Tuesday afternoon the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild met in the Board of Trade rooms, in London, to transact their annual business. The delegates are: Messrs. William Ince, president, Toronto; Edgar A. Wills, secretary, Toronto; T. S. Kinnear, Lewis A. Howard, H. Blain, W. C. Crowther, P. C. Larkin, W. W. Keighley, H. C. Boomer, J. W. Lang, Toronto; George J. Fenwick, Kingston; W. A. Gilmour, Brockville; Richard Turner, Quebec; Charles P. P. Herbert, J. C. Rose, G. A. Irwin, D. T. Tees, Charles Chaput, H. LaPorte and Geo. W. Childs, Montreal; A. Balfour, R. A. Sterling, C. Scott and A. Turner, Hamilton; L. A. Carrier, Quebec, and James Watt, Brantford.

DELEGATES FROM ASSOCIATIONS MEET.

The meeting arranged for some time ago, with the object of focussing association opinion upon some of the more prominent trade questions of the day, was held in the Palmer House, Toronto, on Monday last. The following delegats from the associations invited were present : Messrs, John Ronan, J. O. Carpenter, B. Winnifrith, from Hamilton ; Mr. James Craig from Trenton ; Messrs. W. H. Ferguson, C. J. Wall from London ; Messrs. Geo. Heyward and John McCorvie from Chatham ; Messrs. Geo. Wenino and W. H. Hill from Sarnia. The members of the Executive Committee of the Toronto Association were also present.

President Barron extended a welcome from the Toronto Association. The Secretary read the list of subjects which had been drafted by the Toronto Executive as specially calling for discussion. They were : The Wholesale Grocers' Guild, The terms of the Guild, selling to consumers by wholesalers, the peddling question, the giving of credit to irresponsible traders, the disposal of bankrupt stocks, settlements granted insolvent debtors, supply stores, and the curtailment of credit.

Mr. Barron was then moved into the chair.

Mr. Thackray was requested to record the proceedings.

The following summary of questions emerged from the discussion which followed, the secretary being instructed to forward a copy of these questions to every Association in Ontario, and to prominent grocers in the towns and villages of the province, with a request that answers be prepared and returned as soon as possible :

The questions were as follows :

ON THE WHOLESALE GROCERS' GUILD.

1. What is the feeling of your Association on the time terms as last put in force by the Wholesale Grocers' Guild ?

2. As to the sliding scale of prices on quantities of starches, sugar and various other goods as enforced by the Guild ?

3. Would you be in favor of the following terms on sugars and syrups : 45 days, with 1½ per cent. discount for cash in 15 days, all other goods 3 months, with 3 per cent. discount for cash in 15 days ?

THE SELLING TO CONSUMERS BY WHOLESALE HOUSES.

1. Are wholesale houses in the habit of selling to consumers in your locality ?

2. Do they sell to charitable institutions, hotels, or any but retailers ?

3. What steps would you suggest to stop this practice in future ?

4. Do you know of any professedly wholesale houses who are or who have been selling to consumers ?

THE GIVING OF CREDIT TO IRRESPONSIBLE TRADERS.

1. Would you, in cases where credit has been given to irresponsible traders, be in favor of withdrawing your custom from the wholesale house granting such credit ?

2 What are your views as to the disposal of bankrupt and bankrupt stocks ?

SUPPLY STORES.

1. Are there any supply stores in your locality ; if so, by whom are they supplied ?

2. What means do you suggest for their suppression ?

PEDDLING—HUCKSTERS, ETC.

1. How is the peddling business conducted in your locality ?

2. What action has been taken with regard to its suppression ?

3. Can you suggest further steps with a view to its suppression ?

4. What license fee, if any, is paid by pedlars in your locality ?

These questions having been agreed upon the meeting was adjourned, the President inviting the delegates to attend the regular Association meeting in the evening. The afternoon meeting was adjourned at 6 o'clock, the delegates meeting in Richmond hall again at 7.30 p.m., when the last questions were decided upon.

TORONTO RETAIL GROCERS' ASSOCIATION.

The regular monthly meeting of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association was held on Monday evening. Business was hurried through, as the hour was well on when the evening session of the delegates was over, and the local association had arranged to adjourn at about 9:30 or 10 p. m. for the dinner got up in compliment to the visitors. Consequently only the routine business of the monthly meeting could be sandwiched in between these two matters. President Barron called the meeting to order at about 9:15. The following other members were present : Messrs. Gibson, Thackray, Mills, Williamson, McCulloch, Hodgins, Sykes, Johnson, Butcher, Binnie, White, Sinclair Calhoun, Donald, Clarke, Tolchard, Booth, Saunders, Roberts, White. The following delegates were also present : Messrs. Ferguson and Wall, London; Craig, Trenton; Watson, Simcoe; Ronan and Carpenter, Hamilton; Hill, Sarnia.

The President opened the meeting by referring to the visitors present, for whom he bespoke a hearty reception from the Toronto Association. The members responded by a burst of applause, and the President conveyed to the visitors the welcome which was thus signified. In response neat speeches were made by Mr. Ferguson of London, Mr. Craig of Trenton, Mr. Watson of Simcoe, Mr. Ronan of Hamilton, and Mr. Hill of Sarnia, all pronouncing the meeting they had attended here to be one of the pleasantest they ever had anything to do with, and expressing sanguine hopes as to the beneficial results of their coming together in this way.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

All the officers answered the roll-call.

NEW MEMBERS.

Mr. Thackray moved that Mr. Snow and Mr. Mulqueen be accepted as members.—Carried.

THE PIC-NIC REPORT.

Mr. Mills, the treasurer of the pic-nic committee, presented the report of that committee, which showed a gratifying balance on the right side of the ledger. The report was adopted.

Mr. Gibson moved, seconded by Mr. Tolchard, that the thanks of the Association be conveyed to Mr. Mills for his painstaking and satisfactory management of the financial affairs of the pic-nic.—Carried unanimously.

Mr. Mills made a suitable reply.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Letters were read, from the Chatham Association, asking for a copy of the municipal by-law regulating the city peddling trade; from Mr. Donald, tendering his resignation from the executive committee; from Mayor Clarke, in reply to the Association's complaint as to laxity in the enforcement of the peddling by-law, stating that the matter had been laid before the board of police commissioners; from Chief of Police Grassett, to whom the commissioners had passed on the Association's letter, stating that he had forwarded it again to License Inspector Awde, and expressing the opinion that breaches of the by-law were infrequent; from Inspector Awde, questioning the truth of the charge that the by-law was very commonly violated, and asking that a particular accusation be made, so that he may have something more than vague fault-finding to deal with, promising his confidence to all who would come forward with charges pointing to particular cases of violation.

The letter from the Chatham Association has been answered by the secretary.

Mr. Donald's resignation was not accepted, in view of the short time in which his tenure of office would expire.

The letters from the Mayor, Chief of Police, and License Inspector were referred to the executive committee.

The meeting then adjourned, all the members and visitors repairing to the dining-room of the Palmer House.

THE DINNER.

Thirty-two gentlemen gathered in the dining hall of the Palmer House, round the festive board, at the head of which sat President Barron, while installed as vice-chairman at the other end, was ex-president Mills. The following constituted the rest of the company: Messrs. Ferguson, Craig, Ronan, Carpenter, Williamson, Binnie, Jones, Stewart, Donald, Clarke, Roberts,

Sykes, Sinclair, Mills, Hill, Tolchard, White, Calhoun, Booth, McCulloch, Shaw, Johnson, Gibson, Thackray, Wall, Heyward, McCorvie, Watson, Riddell.

Ample justice was done to the menu, which was followed by the conventional toasts and the usual amount of after-dinner speaking. Messrs. Booth, Mills, Donald, Ferguson, Craig, Watson, McCorvie, Heyward, Wall, Gibson, all took a hand in, and the evening was worn away very agreeably, the speeches being all the happier because there was little chance to premeditate them. The most cordial good feeling found frequent expression, and laudatory words were again and again uttered to the credit of the association principle, for introducing such a spirit of intimacy among members of a trade that but a few years ago seemed to be possessed of more mutual antagonism than any other feeling. Respect for their calling was a prominent sentiment in the utterances of various speakers. They deprecated the habit of mind in a grocer which disposed him to blame adverse accident or unfortunate necessity because he had drifted into the trade. Robust common sense and fraternal feeling pervaded all the speeches. The party broke up shortly after midnight.

KEEP YOUR PROMISES.

It may appear somewhat strange to take the above headline as a text for an article addressed to men of business, or more correctly, perhaps, men engaged in conducting business for themselves. But there is, nevertheless, abundance of room for such an article. There are many men who do not seriously consider the promises they make, previous to making them. If they did they would not make them at all. There could possibly be no better recommendation for a business than as Skakespeare put it :

"He was ever precise in promise-keeping."

When it becomes known in business circles that a man's word is just as good as his bond, the world trusts him, and would sooner take his word than many other people's bond. Confidence in one another is certainly the very life and soul of sound business, and when once confidence is seriously shaken, it takes an immense amount of struggling to get it back again. Some men are very easy in their promises, and very slack in their fulfilment. All our readers know well that if they have a promise from a customer that an overdue bill shall be paid on a certain date, they know well that it is a disappointment to them if it is not fulfilled, and at the same time, they never look upon that customer with the same degree of confidence that they did previously. They are always reminded of the broken promise when dealing with them. It is exactly the same when dealing with some one else, and when you are placed in the position of your customer, and make a promise and do not fulfil it. It is a great deal better to make no promises, and to face the music, as it were, by saying that you cannot do it, or that you would rather not than to make a rash promise, and knowing that there is some doubt as to fulfilling it.

It has been said that there is "honor among thieves." If, therefore, there is honor to be found among lawbreakers, there is much more reason that honor should be the standard of business. In your dealings with drummers the one who makes loose promises is often the one to be guarded against. His only object is to effect a sale, and he will do this at the expense of truth and at the expense of his own honor, sometimes. The large volume of business that is transacted every day upon our exchanges by the simple word of mouth, without any written contract whatever, is an example to all other business men. We are used to calling these men speculators, and names that are hardly justifiable, yet when we look upon their record and the large volume of business transacted by them without any written contract whatever, it is quite evident that they are men who fulfil their promises.

We once knew a peculiar and interesting gentleman, who laid it down as the first principle in his business, never to give a note promising to pay, and if he was asked for the payment of any sum of money, would never promise it unless he was absolutely certain that he would be able to fulfil it. He would sooner risk the ill-will of the person he was trading with, by not making a promise than by making one, that there was the least doubt of being fulfilled. No doubt, this gentleman experienced some difficulty at times, but, in the end, he came out ahead. One day he made an appointment with a gentleman who was about to make a long journey, and the hour named left very little time for him to catch the train. As the hand of the clock pointed to the hour of the appointment, the traveller became quite anxious, when a friend stepped up and told him of the appointment he had made, the reply was unique, the gentleman saying, that if so and so promised to be there at a stated hour, you can depend upon its fulfilment, as he never made a promise that he did not perform it is needless to add that the appointment was kept, and the traveller was happy.

The old adge that "Promises" are like pie-crusts made to be broken" is not applicable to busines men. Therefore be careful of making promises.—National grocer.

BUTTER AND CHEESE WANTED.

A British Columbia firm want the names of two or three first-class butter and cheese dealers who are prepared to supply them from time to time with these commodities. Readers who are in a position to do so should send names, address and particulars to THE GROCER at once.

A MODEL PACKING HOUSE.

During the past month Mr. W. Ryan, one of the best known and most enterprising provision merchants of this city, has been making extensive alterations to his large warehouses, 70 and 72 Front street east, refitting a portion of them with the necessary machinery and apparatus for packing and curing hams, bacon, pork, and rendering lard. THE GROCER called one afternoon this week and was shown over the premises. The cellars, which are concreted and well drained, are each 35 feet by 130, and are particularly adapted for curing and storing. In the rear portion of No. 70 is situated the cutting room, a spacious, clean apartment 60 feet by 30, adjoining which is the boiler room, boiler being a 30 horse power. On the second flat are two large jacket driers, one large lard press, and one very large cooler. On the third flat are two mammoth lard tanks and smoke house. The machinery is of the latest improved and best kind, and THE GROCER feels safe in saying that when the work is finished Mr. Ryan will have one of the best and finest equipped packing houses in the province. Mr. Ryan intends making the curing of extra fine hams and breakfast bacon a specialty. The large quantities of produce and provisions in the remaining portions of the warehouses, and the activity in every department are evidences of the large business carried on by Mr. Ryan. We wish him every success in the enterprise he has shown in refitting and thoroughly equipping his packing house.

FILL ORDERS CORRECTLY.

If there is one thing above all others that will cause a dealer to lose his customers, it is his carelessness in filling orders, and in the delivery of goods. This applies to all classes of business men, who supply the wants of the consumer. A customer may give an order for half a dozen or more articles, in the filling of which one small item may be overlooked. In the majority of cases, this slight oversight will cause more trouble than if all the other articles had been omitted and the one small item sent forward. The checking system is almost a certain preventive of these costly mistakes. That system should be strictly adhered to by all sellers, who should make it an ironclad rule that no goods be sent out of the house without having been checked off after the order is filled. Some merchants depend entirely too much on their memory, but the safest plan, after all, is to put orders on the book when they are taken. The dealer should never be without a memorandum book or tab, upon which to note the articles purchased by a customer. Details of this sort are too important to be overlooked, and carelessness is a dangerous habit to form.—Ex.

THE WARE OF THE PRESENT AND FUTURE.

DOES THE GROCERY BUSINESS PAY?

This question, answered in various ways by different men, is always interesting and debatable. The foundation of a fortune, says an eminent capitalist, "lies in hard work." The working grocers are the successful men in the trade. Nearly all of the leading jobbers of the country commenced with no other capital than their natural abilities and capacity for work. The same is true of the prominent retailer and hundreds of others, whose name und record are unknown out of their respective neighborhoods.

Work, then, is the stepping stone to fortune, the extent of which will depend upon the character of the work, its continuity and the ability of the worker to husband and invest his net earnings.

Almost daily, however, we meet grocers from different parts of the country, who complain of slow trade, who assert that "there is no longer any profit in the business; too much competition; where there was one store ten years ago, there are now twenty little shops that cut away trade," and so the excuses go on. The men who succeed rise above such drawbacks, asserting their individuality and activity. They push ahead, not stopping to consider drawbacks or discouragements.

Some of the unsuccessful grocers and others belonging to the class who say, "I am holding my own," will find a conclusive answer to their position and argument in the experience of hundreds of money-acquiring grocers all over the land. Over in Brooklyn, where competition is excessive, there are many foreign-born grocers who have achieved a marked success. There is one who came to this country only five years ago penniless, who to-day is worth over $40,000, owns valuable real estate, keeps several stores and sells goods so cheap as to astonish and annoy his neighbors, who are puzzled to know how he does it. We venture the opinion that he is up at daylight and at work until bedtime; that in the beginning he spent nothing except for subsistence, and then as little as possible. He overcame the most difficult step to fortune—laying a foundation, or as others put it, making a beginning.

We could multiply such instances by the hundred in the ranks of grocers and from record of retailers in other branches of business, for the principles requisite for success are the same, regardless of the character of the business. One or two instances will suffice: A few years ago we were directed to a tailor, an industrious German, who occupied very small and poorly furnished quarters on the east side of the city. His shop had a poverty stricken look, but he made good clothes and held the patronage of well-to-do people, many of whom were sent to him by one of the richest cloth jobbing firms in the city. Last week we again called upon this same tailor. The credit clerk of one of our largest dry goods houses states that he is rich, owns a fine property in the business section, a tenement on the east side, a flat on the west side, houses in Harlem and still keeps a little tailor shop on—street, by no means pretentious, but neat, quiet and well appointed. He is worth at least $100,000. What is the secret of his success? Nothing more than that he worked, gave satisfaction, held and increased his trade, saved, invested and the accumulations grew with rapidity. One of his customers remarked, that he "attended to business instead of ball playing and the races."

One other case: In —— street is a shoe dealer who a few years ago lost all he had by a rascally partner. He started anew and in debt, and to-day is worth $100,000. He says "hard work and economy is all there is to it. I lived over my store and my wife did the work, for we thought it better to do this and discount bills. A friend who lived in a fine house criticised my way, little knowing I could buy him out three or four times over. Now I am able to own my stock free from any claims. I live in a $15,000 house. My wife keeps a servant. Myself and children each have a Columbia bicycle, and we live generously, but we save and pay for what is bought, whether it be boots and shoes or real estate." In short, he followed the advice penned by the Hon. Charles A. Dana, when getting $15 per week on the New York Tribune—"Pay as you go"—and who to-day is able to spend a fortune on art treasures and books, and whose newspaper, the Sun, shines for all.

It does not require a brilliant mind, or special qualifications, to attain success. Luck is not to be considered. A classical education is not necessary, but the better educated a man the more marked his success, provided he has the capacity and willingness to work and save.

Stop, then, my good friend, you who are out of conceit with your business, and look at yourself and see if you have laid the right sort of a foundation. Possibly you may discover that you started wrong and now have travelled so far and are so badly handicapped that you are out of the race, too old to start afresh. If so, do not grumble and lay the blame on the business, but go to work and train your boys and your clerks to avoid your mistake.

The grocery business is all right; it is the men who handle it who are responsible for success or failure. It is a business with fewer risks than almost any other. Dull times seldom come to the grocer. His stock is quickly turned; never goes out of style; is always wanted; is subject to no closer competition than any other; in fact, profits are more liberal than with many other lines of goods. Therefore, be content with your calling, satisfied that if you work and save the measure of your success is a mere matter of a few years' intelligent effort. —American Grocer.

CAN SPECULATION BE CHECKED?

No better evidence that there is a general expectation in trade circles of rising markets and widespread activity could well be furnished than the appearance of warnings against the fostering of a speculative spirit. It is well worth, under the circumstances, to inquire whether it is profitable to take active measures to oppose a speculative tendency. We know that past experience has taught that, in the long run, the evil after effects of a wildly speculative fever largely counterbalance temporary advantages. We know that a boom usually lets in a good deal of foreign material. In other words, it drives work abroad which could have been kept at home had not the demand been artificially exaggerated by the operations of outsiders. A boom may be defined as a scare of buyers, created by speculators. During such a period only a few are great gainers, a far larger number of manufacturers and traders profit more than they otherwise do, while the great majority look back upon such a period with mortification and regret.

Yet it is difficult to see how a rise can be prevented when circumstances warrant the movement. Speculators cannot be kept out of any business. They are buyers when others are still in doubt, and are only too glad to sell their goods. The more venturesome in the trade are the first to follow the lead thus taken, purchasing raw materials liberally, while they hold back on a part of their product. The craze spreads until all are involved in it, and the great majority have reached the conclusion that a passing fever is to be the normal condition for a long period to come. It is then that he becomes a public enemy who dares to utter sentiments which a short time before would have received general applause.

However numerous those may be who are determined to oppose a rapid rise, there will always be a small but powerful minority who initiate the movement, and give it sufficient impetus to win over converts rapidly. We question whether there are many who have witnessed former booms, who have not back of all their protestations the desire to take an earlier hand in buying, and be quicker at selling than they were before. We believe that this feeling is far more general, and would prove a more potent factor for action than the desire to preserve the trade generally from any future dangers and complications by abstinence from or resistance to a rising market.

So far as we can learn there are none in the trade now who look forward to advances in price at all comparable with the famous boom period of 1879-1880. The word "boom" is so intimately associated in the minds of many with that extraordinary time that it is possibly misleading and unwise to use it now in connection with the improvement looked forward to. The term has, however, become identified with any upward tendency in trade, and has entered general usage in that sense.—Ex.

The Leamington canning factory has been paying $300 a day for apples for some time.

Mr. J. Buckley Hodgins, London, is retiring with honor and a fortune, it is said, from the grocery trade.

We are pleased to see Mr. Taylor, of Taylor, Scott & Co., at business again after his accident.

The early closing arrangement among Moncton, N.B., grocers has been partly broken up.

Joseph Hiscock, grocer, has been awarded the contract of supplying groceries to the Kingston Orphans' Home.

A very large consignment of tea for Toronto, Montreal, Kingston and other centres was divided up at Smith's Falls last week.

Geo. Shillington, groceries and hardware, Carberry, Man., has purchased the hardware stock of R. Black, of the same place.

The Aylmer canning factory received an order from London, England, last week for 8,000 cases of canned apples and 1,200 cases of canned meats.

W. Hobert Dyde, of the firm of Redden & Co., grocers, Kingston, was married on the 5th inst. to Miss Francis A. Fenwick, daughter of Mr. G. S. Fenwick.

Smart's Tea Company, 295 Young street, Toronto, with a stock at $1,749.31, was sold to J. W. Broderick, of London, Ont., on the 7th inst, at 60 cents on the dollar.

On the 7th inst. Mr. J. D. Hay, of Davidson & Hay, wholesale grocers, Toronto, was married to Miss Hendrie, the eldest daughter of Mr. William Hendrie, Holmdale, Hamilton. The wedding was one of the social events of the year.

The grocers of Montreal on the 7th inst. presented to Mr. A. T. Hodge, traveller for Messrs. Chase & Sanborn, an address, together with a beautiful china dinner set, with silver knives and forks, upon the occasion of his marriage. From his employers and fellow employees he received a silver tea set, engraved, and from the Iona Social Club, of which he is a popular officer, he was the recipient of a splendid ice pitcher and goblet, also engraved.

THE GROCER is informed that a Toronto wholesale house is selling to the Patrons of Industry. We do not believe that any reputable firm would do so when all discountenance any such action. Such double dealing would be unfair to the retailer and the jobber. The Guild says to a merchant that he must be either a retailer or wholesaler. He cannot be both under the sugar agreement. The jobber has a monopoly of the wholesale trade, and he has no possible right to sell the Patrons.

NOTES TAKEN ON THE ROAD.

The grocery trade in a manufacturing town is a very precarious business until a man has learned by experience the ups and downs of it. The mechanic who comes to town a stranger and goes to work in the shop is only on "trial," to start with. His employers may or may not like him; and on the other hand, after a week or two he may not like his job. In either case the chances are, if he is a family man, that the grocer has him on his book, and will probably always have him there unless he decides to tear out that particular leaf. It is this class of roving artisans that bring discredit on the honest mechanic, who settles down at his work to make a home, and in many cases has to suffer for the shortcomings of his brother workman. Few grocerymen in manufacturing towns but could retire a good many hundreds, and often thousands of dollars, if they had cash for the bad book accounts they have against dead beat transient workmen. They suffer far more loss by them than the city grocers do from the genteel, slippery dead beat among them, because in the former case prices, cash or credit are on a rock bottom basis, while in the latter allowance is often made for the risk. I think a high price is often a good test, as the beat is seldom a kicker about prices.

Mr. J. Gander, grocer, Merriton, is working up a very nice trade in that town. His location is a good one. He has long been a resident of that locality, and having the experience of a long service in the grocery business, as well as a successful record, he has a good basis to work on.

Mrs. Leo has again returned to Merriton, after an absence of two years, and once more opens out a first-class grocery stock. She is a good business woman, and after a trip to the North-west and other sections of the country, it is safe to make the assertion that she thinks the business chances are as good in Merriton as any where.

Flynn Bros., grocers, St. Catharines, have shipped large quantities of fruit this season, mostly to points in western Ontario. In this way they have turned several hundred dollars of accounts into cash. They also report their meat trade as nearly double that of any former year.

Mr. Leeson, grocer, Merriton, is one of the oldest business men in that busy manufacturing town, and although he owns a grocery store, he is quite independent of that business. Mr. Leeson owns a tug on the Welland Canal and a coal and wood yard in Merriton. His son now has charge of the grocery business. They pay cash for all they buy and have no sleepless nights over "bills payable."

Mr. A. Wilson, grocer, St. Catharines, says the Fall Number of the CANADIAN GROCER was a "Calker" this year, and that the trade must respond liberally in its patronage to warrant such an edition. Mr. Wilson is strongly in favor of the present short credit system adopted by the wholesalers, and he can stand still another twist. He said, if Toronto grocers would bridle their tongues about the Guild and come to an agreement on a percentage of profits outside of Guild articles, they would be better off

Business in Thorold is pretty well cut up, and I think in the grocery line Mr. S. McMann is the only one that adheres strictly to that business, and I am satisfied he is doing better than if he carried on a a boot and shoe business, or a hardware business, or any other business with it. A general store is all right and necessary in a place where business can be done but by two or three stores, but in a city or fair sized town, it looks to me like going back fifty-years, when my father had a blacksmith and wagon shop connected with his grocery store.

Messrs Chatfield & Neelon, St. Catharines, are successors to the old established firm of Burrows & Chatfield. Mr. Neelon says their trade has been good all summer. St. Catharines has been reported dull for months, but the plumbing gasfitting and tinwork which this firm have had to do have kept them out of the dull swim entirely. This firm has had a large sale of stoves the past year, among which the Sultana Heater takes the lead. In ranges they have just taken in the John Bull and contemplate a large sale the coming Season.

One of the most useful articles lately placed on the market, and one which is bound to command a large sale when its excellence becomes generally known, is the Star Fire Lighter, manufactured by the Star Mfg Co., London. It does away altogether with the dangerous use of coal oil for starting fires, and obviates the necessity of pine or kindling. It is put up in cakes containing six squares each, one square being sufficient to light a fire. It is useful not only for wood fire, but will ignite soft coal without difficulty. Its great usefulness is also combined with cheapness, five cents worth being sufficient for eighteen fires. It has been placed on sale at the various grocery stores and its increased sale since its introduction is sufficient recommendation. If any of our readers have not tried it we would advise them to do so and they will not regret it.

AN IDEAL CLERK.

We do not often incline to print, we are too modest ; the dew and shade of morning light suits better our complexion than does the glare of noonday ; but when great necessities are thrust upon us, what would you do ?

The necessity in this case that so beguiles us to lay ourselves at the mercy of the devil —printers devil of course—and the public is a demand upon us for a synopsis of an ideal clerk, labeled " A Nineteenth Century Impossibility."

Handsome, of course, because his customers are chiefly ladies with great eyes of unearthly sweetness ; patience than which Job's was an invalid frazlin ; elasticity of movement that would put the flea to shame ; oratory of such unctious flavor as would reduce a Shylock to distribute sheckles, and taste, quotha, such as the richest of the orient could not satisfy ; meek, too, as Moses (when the bullrushes past him) ; your foot upon his prostrate neck, in seeming ; a scholar and a gentleman, forsooth ; so blind to circumstance of birth or paltry greed ; as honest as the daily sun and thrice as searching—Cash !—New Orleans Trade Index.

ODD MOMENTS.

Various questions have been discussed during the past few months, says a contemporary and communications on the different subjects have been presented by readers in various parts of the country. Whether a man can be a storekeeper and a Christian; what constitutes good and bad storekeeping; how would you spend a yearly income of a million dollars, are some of the subjects which have engaged the attention of the public, and now the question how to spend winter evenings seems to be the one under consideration.

To many of our readers daylight and leisure rarely come together, and there are not many evenings when they have much choice as to occupation. However, we can safely say, with a recent writer, that much more can be made of the odd moments if they are wisely seized on.

" Take it in the single matter of reading; in these days of pocket editions and the popularization of good literature, practically anybody can, between the hours of uprising and sleep, get a precious impulse from a five minutes' perusal of some masterpiece of fiction, essay, poetry, or philosophy. There are always spare fractions of an hour, before or after meal-time, in the journey to and from our place of business, or during the many brief waiting-whiles of daily existence, when man is betwixt and between as to actual work; and these interludes of quiet and inactivity, rightly appreciated, can be made to yield rich harvestings of comfort, instruction and inspiration,—of education in the deepest and most catholic sense. The world fairly teems with examples of those who have gained their power and their success in this way.

" Many so-called self-made men who have earned an education by snatching these odd moments from the very maw of Time, in order to read the prized volume, say that they relished and got good from it fifty times more because they came by it so. They have consumed the books that made them informed, between the stints of work, perchance while the right hand swung the blacksmith's hammer, or the eye glanced from the printed page to the machine whose movements it superintended. Of course, the knowledge thus acquired was scrappy and unregulated when compared with that received from the college curriculum: but it was sternly mastered, what there was of it, and the choice lay between that and nothing at all. Hence, to such seekers after light, odd moments are golden beacons and good friends, to stead them when naught else can."

WORKING FOR TRADE.

There are those who believe that a merchant's work should go no further than to offer a stock of merchandise for sale in an attractive store. Like many professional men and stock brokers they regard it undignified and contrary to the ethics of their calling to solicit business.

The merchant who is content to await trade and who puts forth no effort to increase business by solicitation or otherwise, confesses by his action that he is deficient in push and enterprise.

If it requires the calling upon people at their houses and the maintainence of a stable to win additional business do not debate over the expense, but render the required service.

It is well to remember that people are always willing to pay for goods according to the character and cost of the service required in their distribution. That is why one store averages 25 per cent. gross and 12 per cent. net profit and another in a different neighborhood in the same place 16 per cent. gross and 8 per cent. net.

It is legitimate and requisite to push for business in every honorable way. Appeal to the eye, and ear, the taste of people. Do not deceive yourself with the notion that because you are located in a small place you cannot expand your business. It doesn't matter if yours is the only store in a village of fifty houses and no other store within miles trade can be developed. Teach people to use goods which are new to them ; tempt them with delicacies, and if you cannot do any better, work on their feelings as do the the patent medicine men. Get trade and and keep getting trade. The means and methods are without limit, because new measures can be adopted even if they must be invented. We prefer such as are free from clap-trap—those that are like a flash in the pan. Avoid anything which offends public opinion ; which caters to nastiness ; which sounds like buncombe. One can blow his own horn without calling into question his sanity. To those who work and push, new ways will suggest themselves as one result of their continued effort and experience. It pays to be alive and vigorous, even if it is in the line of storekeeping.—American Grocer.

GROCERIES.

The fine open weather is not a propagator of trade. What it will be mainly turned to account for is fall ploughing. More land will be turned over this autumn than the farmers commonly get time for between wet weather and frost. This hinders buying at the retail counters and is felt through all the grades of the trade. Moreover, the same cause keeps money scarce, for, until farmers turn their attention to selling, fall circulation must be postponed. Preserving operations have about come to a close, so that the last motive of hot weather activity is pretty well exhausted as a business impulse before fall trade can be said to have fairly started. Payments which begin to be due at the middle of the month will probably be as prompt as usual, as buying has not been on a large scale.

CANNED GOODS.

The great abundance and cheapness of raw tomatoes have caused somewhat of a recoil in the demand for the canned product. The price in lots is $1.05. Some packers report themselves yet unable to fill orders not taken some time ago, the business booked during and before the cool spell which hindered the ripening having been considerable. They admit that there is a glut of raw material, but say that they can make daily use of only so much as their manufacturing capacity is equal to. The fact that they are getting their raw material very cheap ought of itself to affect prices as soon as the output of stock exceeds the requirements defined in orders now placed for future delivery. Corn is arriving freely, and a full pack is the general estimate. It quotes as low as $1.05. Peas are firm at $1.10 as lowest quotation. A moderately good business in salmon is reported, most sellers starting from the same point, $1.40, with occasional transactions at $1.35. Lobsters are quiet and unchanged.

It is reported that anti-pool canners are already at work packing oysters in Baltimore and naming comparatively low prices. Apparently the outsiders are inclined to keep under the umbrella.

The B. C. Commercial Journal says: The bark Callao cleared Oct. 23 for Liverpool with 41,600 cases valued at $212.090. The situation in England is as bad as ever. The market is very flat, and prices continue low. The news of the large pack in Alaska has created an unfavorable effect. Late quotations are 20s.6d. per case ex-ship in London, It is estimated that there are 360,000 cases in warehouse in England.

It is generally known that the Alaska pack for this season is over 600,000 cases, and it probably will be as much as the previous year. In 1890 Alaska packed 688,332 cases, and in 1889 709,347 cases. The arrivals of Alaska in San Francisco up till September 29th were 445,216 cases, against 329,395 for 1890, and 216,801 for 1889. In view of the above heavy arrivals and the disastrous effect in prices, a combination has been formed in San Francisco, concerning which the Commercial News says: "The event of the week has been the combination formed among the Alaska salmon packers. The agreement was entered into Wednesday afternoon, and while a number of details are to be perfected, rates now in force are $1.05 for King, $1 for red and 95c. for silver salmon. Such action was necessary to save the market from demoralization, as the pack in Alaska promises to exceed early anticipation."

COFFEE.

The week's business in coffee has been an average one. Prices show no variation from last week's quotations. Stocks are full in all lines but choice Rios.

DRIED FRUIT.

The prices of Valencia raisins have ruled low lately, as there has been some cutting in new fruit. Very good off-stalk are offering from 6¾ to 7c., with 7¼c. in some cases. The demand is but fair, the cheap old stock still unsold coming in for a good share of the current trade. Sultanas are moderately active at 10 to 11c. Eleme figs are being received quite liberally and selling at 11 to 12c. in 10-lb boxes. For seven-crown figs the price is 16 1-2 to 17c. Currants quote from 6¼ up. Dried fruit generally is in slightly improved request since the fall-off in the supply of native fruits.

NUTS.

The trade in nuts is at about its minimum activity at this time of year. Little can be said about the current week's business except that it is very small. New Tarragona almonds are afloat and expected to arrive here in about ten days. Filberts are cabled firmer in Sicily.

RICE AND SPICES.

Rice is selling quite freely but without any change in quotations. In spices black pepper has declined to 12½ and 14c., at which prices it is easy.

Messrs. Richard Gough & Co., New York, are in receipt of advices through which they are enabled to make the following statement regarding the India rice situation: "From Burmah comes verification of the recent reports of impending famine. The works for the relief of the distress are being vigorously carried on, £60,000 having so far been granted for the purpose, and £40,000 for special agricultural advances, and it is expected that these amounts will have to be much increased. The scarcity of food supplies in Lower Burmah, caused by the over-exportation of rice during the past season, is engaging the special attention of the British Chief Commissioner, Sir A. McKenzie, who, on September 19, held a meeting of the principal millers and rice merchants of Rangoon, to ascertain the amount of the available stocks. The general opinion was that about 50,000 tons would be available, a portion of which would be shipped from Singapore. Some estimates have placed the requirements of Burmah until new crop as high as 125,000 to 150,000 tons in excess of their stocks on hand, and the fact that most of the ordinary Asiatic sources of supply have by this time of the year usually disposed of their exportable surplus has caused the Government to invite European millers to make tenders of cleaned Rangoon, Bassein, etc., for reshipment to Burmah. The reports of the growing crop are so far favorable."

SUGAR.

The price of granulated sugar took a drop of ⅛c. on Saturday, and is therefore quoted now at 4 7 8 to 5c. This is a consequence of the easing off of the demand, which since the slowing up of preserving activity rests upon a dull basis. For all sugars there is a much slacker demand than there was. Brighter times are looked for when the grain market becomes lively, and sugar now has to wait on that as well as any other grocery line. Yellows are quiet from 3 1-2c. upwards. The lowest price in common quotation is 3⅝c., but there are sales at the figure first mentioned. Raws are selling as low as 3.40.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

The business in neither syrups nor molasses shows any improvement. A very mild demand for syrups is met at prices ranging from 2½c. upwards. Molasses is quiet, trade in West Indian not being pushed by importers, though a little continues to be done in New Orleans stock.

TEAS.

While no marked trade feature has appeared in this week's business to distinguish it from that of a week ago, there is a degree more of spirit in the general movement of tea than there was then. The conditions have not yet arrived to start the big winter demand for large households, that comes in to the benefit of retailers in the fall in every good year. Farmers buy by the chest when money is plentiful, and a good deal of that sort of business is expected to be done in the near future. Good value in Japans continues to be given for grades from about 20c. upwards. Buying is briskest in the lowest grades, those selling at 16c. Blacks are in satisfactory request. The lowest point in the quotations for them is 15c. Young Hysons are scarce, while a strong demand for a limited supply of them exists. There is nothing in stock to sell below 17c.

The month's statistics show an increase of 5,000,000 lbs. in the stock of British grown tea. Still deliveries during September rank among the heaviest of any month on record, an encouraging feature when it is remembered that September is a comparatively light month. All good liquoring descriptions passed very firmly with occasional slight advances, poorest kinds alone showing a tendency to weaker prices. The market this week has fully maintained the steady tone previously ruling, competition being brisk for all grades, especially for finest kinds, as these descriptions are much wanted and still very scarce. Advices from Calcutta to Toronto state : 'There was less demand at auction, common grades declined 3 per cent., and medium about half an anna. The few fine teas on offer were well competed for and sold at late rates"

Gow, Wilson & Stantons' circular state : It is satisfactory to note that the week's average price for Ceylon has again advanced a farthing per pound, making a gain of half penny in a fortnight. It now stands a penny above the quotation a month ago. Demand for all but poor liquoring teas has been very strong, with animated competition, advances being paid here and there, especially for choice parcels of Pekoe and broken Pekoe. Commonest teas alone have lacked the support of buyers. Quality has as usual at this season been gradually improving and thus inducing more concentrated attention towards Ceylon growths.

PETROLEUM.

The market is not in any specially interesting stage so as to influence business one way or the other. The present requirements of consumers impart all the activity there is in the trade. Prices are unchanged, Canadian refined being 15 to 16c.

The Petrolia Advertiser reports: Petrolia crude 1.35¼ per bbl., Oil Springs crude $1.35¼ per bbl. Crude remains about the same as last week, nothing having transpired to make any material change. The drill keeps at it night and day, but no heavy gushers are brought to light. In the aggregate the production is increasing, but not to the extent to cause any alarm on the part of the producers or to affect the price. On the other hand the stocks are decreasing fast, and by the end of the present month every shadow of a surplus will have vanished—whether ever to appear again is a question to be demonstrated by the inevitable future. Refined remains still at 12½ cents in barrels or 9 to 9½ cents in bulk. At these figures there is any amount going out, and, notwithstanding these prices a very good article is being make.

DRUGS AND CHEMICALS.

The trade in chemicals handled by general traders and grocers is a normal one, sulphur, alum, vitriol and such lines being in steady request at unchanged prices.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

BUTTER.—Receipts of butter both here and at outside points have been very light all week, and prices are higher. Country merchants in some sections north and west say they have increased buying prices for fresh sweet grades at 20c. in trade without getting an increased supply. On spot fine gradesare urgently inquired for at full prices. Consignments have come forward in mixed qualities from common to good and have sold at 14 to 16c. Picked or selected lots have gone as high as 19c. while bakers have been able to buy the culls at 10c. up as to quality. Dealers look for an increased make when the cheese factories close. Creameries are very scarce and firm at 25 to 26c. In British Columbia, Ontario dairy is worth 25c. and Manitoba 20 to 22c.

CHEESE.—Quiet and without change. Dealers are buying small lots of August make at 9½ to 9⅝c. here. Out of stock sales have been made at 10 to 10½c.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

BEANS—New crop is beginning to move and prices are unsettled. Quality averages good. In the west a car of choice hand picked sold for Halifax at $1.55 f.o.b. Local dealers have not yet purchased many, but a car of prime medium was distributed among the dealers, this week at $1.35 to $1.40. Resales in smaller quantities are being made at $1.55 to $1.65.

DRESSED MEATS—Beef is plentiful and easy at 3½ to 5c. for forequarters, and 6c. to 8c. for hind. Veal is scarce and firm at 8½ to 9c. Mutton and lamb easy at 7 to 8c. respectively, mutton is not wanted.

DRIED FRUIT—Weak and unsettled. Offerings are larger and sellers are asking for bids, while buyers are holding off. Ordinary dried sold out of store at 5 1-2c. today, and dealers would not pay over 4 1-2 to 5c. for lots delivered here. Evaporated lower; 50-box lots sold here at 7c., and cars were offered to arrive at the same price.

EGGS—Have advanced still further. Held fresh are offered at 15c., but for strictly new-laid buyers have to pay 16c. Receipts have fallen off materially this week, and it has at times been difficult to secure supplies and a few pickled have come out.

HAY AND STRAW—Demand for hay continues good, supply is liberal, and prices are steady at $11.50 for average timothy on track. Straw dull and unchanged, at $5.50 to $6.50.

HONEY—Supplies are coming forward freely and prices are irregular. Good quality extracted sells at 9 to 10c. Comb averages 15 to 16c., but the range is 13 to 18c.

HOPS—Are still quiet. Local dealers are getting 14 to 16c, for single bales out of stock for 1891 and 12 to 14c. for 1890, but for large lots of 1891 Canadians 13 to 14c. is quoted.

POTATOES AND VEGETABLES—The potatoe market is very irregular. Light street receipts here have advanced out of store prices to 50 to 60c. per bag, but 45c. seems to be the top figure for track offerings, owing to the uneven quality. Onions are plentiful and easy at $2 to $2.25 per bbl. for natives.

POULTRY AND GAME—In fair demand at steady prices. Chickens are selling at 30 to 35c. for country store stock, and 50 to 60c. a pair for hand picked. Ducks rule from 45 to 60c. a pair. Geese sold at 5c. for scalded to 7½c. for hand picked. Turkeys steady at 12½c. per lb.

Partridges are steady at 50c. a brace for average quality. Wild ducks scarce and firm, with prices ranging from 40 to 75c. a pair for butter ball to large black.

DRESSED HOGS AND PROVISIONS.

Receipts of dressed hogs are light. Demand for packers weights are good at steady prices but smaller hogs are slow. Good packing hogs 125 to 300 lbs have sold readily at $5.90 to $6.10 per cwt.

BACON—Long clear is selling as soon as ready, the supply being hardly liberal enough for the demand. Prices are firm at 9c. No larger lots are obtainable.

PORK—Mess is lower at $14.50 to $15. Short-cut Canadian remains steady at $17 to $17.50.

SMOKED MEATS—Hams are still plentiful and easy at 11c. for old. New make of backs and bellies are going at 11c. and rolls at 9c.

LARD—Since cutting has become more general, the supply of lard has been larger and values are easier, at 10 1-2 to 10¾c. for pure. Compound remains at 8 1-2 to 9c.

FRUITS.

Fewer fruits remain to market now. Apples are improving, quotations now running from $1 to $1.75 per barrel. Pears are in great variety at $2.50 to $4.50 per barrel. Quite a liberal supply of peaches for the fag-end of the season continues to be received at 60 to 90c. Grapes are firmer and higher with cooler weather, at 2 to 3c. for Concord, 2 1-2 to 4c. for Rogers, and 3 1-2 to 4c. for Niagaras. Quinces are very plentiful at $3 to $3.25 per barrel and 40 to 50c. a basket. Cranberries are $8 to $8.50 per barrel and $3 to $3.50 per box.

GREEN FRUIT.

Maori lemons are the only description now in stock. They quote at $8.50 to $9. Jamaica oranges are plentiful and well seasoned usually, at $7.50 to $8. Re-packed in New York they arrive here in good condition. Florida oranges are in very slender supply so far. They are green and hard yet. It will be a fortnight before they are ripened for use. They are worth $3.50 to $4.50. The market for them opens this year lower than it ever did before. Bananas are scarce at $1.25 to $1.75. Sweet potatoes quote at $2.75 to $3.00 for Baltimores, and $3.50 for Jerseys.

FISH.

A slow trade is the order of the season. A very moderate quantity of any description is selling, with prices in the main on the basis reported last week. There is one exception. Lake herring quote as low as $1.75 and up to $2.50 per hundred, by count, but this is owing to an increase in the receipts of quite small fish. British Columbia salmon is 16c. and selling quietly. A car is standing on offer now, and there is every probability that there will be a big loss upon them before they are disposed of.

SALT.

Seasonable activity is reported by the salt houses. Prices are unchanged. In car lots the quotations are: Dairy, $1.20; fine sacks, 88c.; coarse sacks. 70c.; barrels, $1.20. The demand seems to be strongest for coarse sacks.

DRY GOODS.

Orders are small. The retail traders are cautious and the wholesalers are not pushing trade. The weather is too fine for the sort of trade that is commonly seasonable at this time of year. Last week's trade however, was better than that of the corresponding week of a year ago. That is not saying much, however.

FLOUR AND FEED.

Trade is fairly active. Prices in some lines are easier. In trade lots prices are: $5.75 for Manitoba patent, $5.25 to $5.35 for Ontario patents, $4.50 for straight roller, $4.40 to $4.50 for extra, $2.25 to $4 for low grades, $5.25 to $5.40 for strong bakers'. Graham flour is $4.50, standard oatmeal $3.80 to 4. rolled oats $4. Kiln-dried corn meal is $4, rolled wheat $5, wheat bran $12, cracked corn $30, mixed chop $20 to $25, split peas $4, pot barley $4.25, oats 30c.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Oct. 15, 1891.

The grocery and allied markets generally show a better feeling this week, but the change is hardly appreciable yet. However the last half of October is the time that activity ensures, consequent upon the advance in freights after that, and some anticipatory ordering is already being done, which gives the market generally a more lively look. Dried fruit—Teas, spices, coffees, etc., have shared in the improvement.

SUGAR, ETC.

There is a fair business doing in sugars, and while raws are stronger and have advanced on all grades, the local refiners have made no advance in the price of refined, but hint at an early advance of strength on raws Granulated is still quoted at 4⅝ and yellows 3½ to 4¼ according to quality.

There is a very small demand for syrups, and prices are unchanged at 2¾ to 3¼c., no transactions of importance are reported in molasses, but there is a fair jobbing trade passing in Barbadoes at 38 to 38½c.

TEAS.

There is a good demand for Japan teas, anything worth from 13½ to 15c. bring in very good demand. Better goods are also moving well, business on the whole being very fair. Blocks are quiet and more or less neglected on spot

COFFEES AND SPICES.

The coffee market has shown no change during the week, but a fair degree of activity has experienced and were it not for the unsettled condition of primary markets the demand would be better. Rios have sold at 19 to 19½ and Jamaica at the same figure in fair sized lots. Spices have shown more activity during the week, and some fair sized lots of pepper have changed hands at 9½ and cloves at 9¼c.

RICE.

There is a good demand for rice at unchanged prices. We quote:—Patna, $4.50 to $5; Japan, $4.25 to $4.50; standard, $3.90, and off grades $3.50 in car lots.

DRIED FRUIT.

The market for dried fruit has shown considerable activity during the week, and some large sales of prime new Valencia to arrive have been made on the basis of 18s. to 18s. 6d. for first hands, seconds moving for 1s. less. The S. S. Avlona arrived in port today, being the first direct steamer from Spain this season. She only brings between 50,000 and 60,000 boxes altogether. This quantity is small, but although this is so the demand is disappointing. Jobbers are now taking orders from customers at 5½ to 6c., which is a noticeable decline from previous figures. It is expected, however, that as soon as the season for domestic green fruit which is very plentiful, that more attention will be paid to foreign dried, and prices are consequently expected to improve.

The S. S. Avlona also brings first direct shipments of new currants, for the moment the market is fully supplied. A fair demand is experienced and considerable sales have been made ex ship of round lots at 5⅝ to 6c. The quantity to hand and expected is only moderate in the aggregate, but owing to the lower grades lacking keeping qualities they have an easy tendency.

CANNED GOODS.

There is nothing doing in canned goods, the large supplies of fresh fruit and vegetables being very large and sufficient for all requirements. The tomato pack for this province alone is estimated at 23,000 cases, and while packers are asking $1, they would, no doubt, accept a bid of 95c. or less for a round lot.

GREEN FRUIT.

The market shows no change in green fruit, and lemons and oranges are unchanged at $4.50 to $6 for the former, and $3.50 to $4.50 per case for the latter.

FISH.

There is no change in fish, and the arrivals so far, have not been large. Prices, generally, are steady under an ordinary sort of demand.

PROVISIONS.

The position of the provisian market is without change of note. Pork continues to move out in a very satisfactory manner at firm prices, the stocks in dealers' hands here being very small. Canadian short cut, per brl. $17 to $17.25; mess pork, western, per brl. $15.25 to $15.75; short cut, western, per brl. $17.25 to $17.50; hams, city cured, per lb. 10 1-2 to 11 1-2; hams, canvassed, per lb. 00 to 00; lard Canadian, in pails, 0.08¾ to 9c; bacon, per lb. 9c. to 10c; lard com. refined, per lb. 7¾ to 8c.

EGGS.

The demand for eggs was good to-day, and the receipts moderate. The market holds steady at 14 to 14½c. with an occasional sale at 15c.

PARTRIDGE.

The receipts of partridge are moderate and are picked up freely on arrival. Choice birds bring 40 to 45c. per brace, and seconds about 25c.

BUTTER.

Butter does not take on any particular activity, but for all that moves along in a steady satisfactory way. For late made creamery high prices have checked the demand, and the movement is small in consequence, but shippers are paying more attention to seconds, Townships, etc., at 17 to 18c., and some business has been done for export, while the supply is not large, which has a hardening tendency on prices. Western dairy is not active, the quality being unacceptable. Late made creamery, 22 to 22½c.; earlier makes, 21½ to 21¾c.; finest Townships, 17 to 18c.; finest Western, 14½ to 15c.

CHEESE.

Cheese presents a fairly steady aspect, and although not active, enquiry for French country stock, which has been experienced since Saturday, has stirred up business a little. This induced some free buying in St. Hyacinthe on Saturday, where 5,000 odd cheese were taken from first hands at 9⅝c., and at the wharf the other day 3,000 more odd were turned over, the most of it at 9¾c., with the rise which meant a fraction or so more. On the whole, therefore, it is safe to call it a steady 10c. market at the present time. At any rate strictly finest late made stock, which is not plentiful here, could not be moved under that figure, while colored would undoubtedly command a premium, and unless more of it is turned out in the country, may be possibly worth a noticeable fraction over white before long. Finest Septembers, 10c.; finest August and Septembers, 9¾ to 9⅞c.; fine, 9⅜ to 9½c.; medium, 9 to 9¼c.; cable, 46s. 6d.

GRAIN.

No business of importance is reported in grain and prices are unchanged. We quote: No. 1 hard Manitoba, $o No. 2 do. $1.05 to $1.07 ; No. 3 do., 97c ; No. 2 Northern, $1.04; peas, 74c. per 66 pounds in store, 75c. afloat; oats, 31c. to 32c. per 34 pounds ; corn, 68c. to 69c duty paid ; feed barley, 48c ; good malting do. 55c. to 57c.

FLOUR.

The flour market does not pick up any and business is still of the same jobbing kind that has been noted from day to day. A slow movement progresses countrywards, but with the fine reports generally of all kinds of produce from the farming sections buyers anticipate a smaller movement on this account. On lower province and eastern account nothing beyond the ordinary is doing as buyers have not commenced to think of winter stocks yet. Patent spring $5.15 to $5.30 ; Patent winter $5.00 to $5.25 ; straight roller $4.75 to $4.85 ; Extra $4.40 to $4.50 ; Superfine $4.10 to $4.25 ; City strong bakers' $5.00 ; Strong bakers' $4.75 to $5.00.

ST. JOHN, N. B., MARKETS.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Oct. 12, 1891.

There was not the increase in trade the past week that had been looked for, though good business was done. Buyers seem to be holding off, as they are only filling immediate wants. Flour, sugar and molasses are a shade easier, while fish are in good demand and prices are firmer, with a prospect for still greater advance. Canned goods are arriving from the packers, and prospects point to lower prices in some lines than last season.

FLOUR—While there is a good demand for breadstuffs, the prices are weakening. We quote : Manitoba, $5.80 to $6 ; high grade family, $5.40 to $5.50 ; medium patent, $5 to $5.15.

MEAL—Tnere is only a small amount moving and prices are unchanged.

OATMEAL—The trade is well supplied with oatmeal at the lower prices, though the amount moving is not large, $4.60 to $4.75 being the present price

FISH—Our market has been only fairly supplied with big fish, pollock being especially in demand, and prices have advanced from 50c. a quintal the past ten days, with prospects good for still higher prices.

COD—Are not coming in as freely as usual, which has caused a firmer tone to the market.

COUNTRY PRODUCE—Butter still keeps scarce and prices are not much changed. Cheese is in only limited demand, with all dealers fairly well stocked, 10 to 10½c. being the prevailing price. Potatoes are in good demand and sell readily at $1.10 to $1.15 per barrel. Beans are $1.80 to $1.90, pot barley is $4.15 to $4.25, split peas $4 to $4.25, rice 3¾ to 3⅞c., oats 38 to 41c.

Customer—You sell cracked eggs at half price, do you not ?

Clerk—Yes'm, we always sell cracked goods at 50 per cent. discount. Anything else to-day ?

Customer—Yes you may give me a dollar's worth of cracked wheat, and here is your fifty cents

HOW BAD DEBTS ARE MADE.

People often wonder how it is that a retail grocer gets so many bad debts among his accounts. To the dealer who has had the "experience," while the deadbeats have the "money," the operation is a very simple one.

The whole trouble arises from the slowness of the dealer to say "no" when more credit is wanted. The merchant grants a little more credit in order, as he thinks, to keep his customers in good nature and so secure the old balance. But it is just here he makes a fatal mistake. It a customer cannot pay one week's or one month's bill, certainly the lapse of time will not help matters, but the account will get so large that the customer will find it cheaper to "move than to pay rent," as the expression goes, and he jumps his account and goes to look for some other victim.

This is the history of three-fourths of all the cases of bad debts; and if the merchant had said "no" when the first bill was in arrears, his loss would have been small compared with what it finally was. And further, a firm refusal to extend credit would often have the effect of making the customer pay up, hoping for another chance to "get in" to the grocer. Then is the time to give the dead-beater the grand bounce and be rid of him.

Bear in mind, and act upon the knowledge, that if a man cannot pay one week's bill, he certainly cannot pay a two weeks' bill.—St. Louis Grocer.

IRASCIBLE STOREKEEPERS.

It is a fact that some men cannot help being fretful and cross. They are born so, and they carry these unamiable qualities from the cradle to the grave. We feel sorry for such people, says a contemporary, for we regard their failings as incurable diseases.

Men who are constitutionally of an irascible temper ought not to engage in the storekeeping business ; for in that field they are likely to encounter so many crosses and tribulations that they are sure to fret themselves to death in a few years, not to speak of the worry they occasion other people.

Irascibility is one of the worst faults a retail storekeeper could possibly have, as it drives away trade, makes enemies, and while he may be at heart a very good fellow, his manner conveys the general impression to his customers that he is about as near a savage as it is possible for a white man to be.

A man, to become a successful storekeeper, must be patient and self-possessed at all times. He cannot afford to fly in a passion at every trifling annoyance which he encounters. The children of a town hate an irascible merchant, and will give him the go-by whenever they can, or else in a spirit of malicious mischief constantly devise schemes for fretting and annoying him. They will yell at him derisively when he goes down the street, slam his doors and perhaps break his windows and do other things which tend to keep him in a state of continuous mental disturbance.

We pity a man of this kind. We believe it is a mistake for him to attempt to continue in business. He had better sell out his store and stock and remove to some secluded and quiet locality where he will not be brought into constant friction with other people.

Irascibility grows upon a man when it once gets a good hold upon him. As he gets to be older he becomes a chronic grumbler. He opposes every movement of a public spirited character in the town in which he resides. He is a disturbing factor in church and politics. Nothing in the world seems to move in accordance with his opinions. He is really deserving of sympathy, but he never gets it. His fellow townsmen learn to dislike him, and as the gray hairs whiten his crown, he is derisively called "Old Snarly." Even his age is not respected.

It seems to us as we contemplate the career of such a man, that his existence is not worth the trouble which it costs him.

THE POSITION OF COFFEE.

Three months ago, on March 21st, we stated that the statistical position of coffee was sounder than it ever had been before, and that there was no chance of prices falling for some months to come. So far our prediction has been fully verified. The import season of the London and Continental markets is over, and the world's supply stands at 50,000 tons below that of last year. The effect has naturally been to enhance the price of coffee, but instead of causing consumption to drop off, it has increased in the United States, one of the most, if not quite the most, important consuming country, and a high authority in London States that the home consumption may be said to be increasing pretty steadily, it having comprised during the first five months of the year 114,310 cwt. against 107,630 cwt. in 1890, and would probably further augment if circumstances all round were more propitious for dealers and consumers. The last mail from home brought out the news of a fall in the price, but this was due to there being no desirable qualities brought forward, and buyers not being keen about purchasing those kinds that were to be found in the salerooms, and sellers, especially Central American, requiring money and allowing their parcels to be knocked down at whatever sum was offered for them. Since then there has been a reaction, but little attention at the present time need be paid to Reuter's quotations, which afford only a comparative idea of the true value of the product, and are largely influenced by speculative action. The position of coffee to-day is stronger than it was, and if only a consignment of really good plantation could find its way into the salerooms, there is no telling what price it would realize.

There now looms before us that spectre of the Brocken, the Brazil estimates. A good authority lately set down the total exports of coffee from Brazil for the season 1890-91 at five and a quarter millions, and taking the estimate, seven millions, which we are inclined to consider at least half a million too high, Brazil will export one and three-quarter million bags above what she has done this past season, or, reducing it into tons, one hundred thousand tons. That this will have an effect on the market it cannot be doubted, but much of it will not reach home till after all East Indian, which promises to be an early crop in every district, has been marketed. We shall be surprised if the world's supply of coffee on May 31st, 1892, stands at a higher figure than it did on the same date in 1890. We are told that the production is going to increase enormously, but those who give utterance to these statements appear to utterly ignore the numerous "ifs" on which this depends.

Where planters have most to fear, in our opinion, is from Java. Plantation crops are reported to be heavy, and being of a quality similar to East Indian, it will cause London buyers to hold off as much as possible till larger supplies come forward. Coffee from Southern Indian districts should be in the market some weeks before the first Java reaches Amsterdam, and we may safely predict that, provided the first consignments show a clean, bold, and coloury bean, the price they will realise will equal the average of the past season. Reports from the various districts so far point to the quality of exports being decidedly better than last season's, which will have some effect on the value of the coffee in London. We shall be much surprised if the average of next season's "plantation" falls below 95s. In the meantime there is no reason to anticipate a general fall in price. We prefer to wait and see this Brazil crop of seven million bags shipped before we make any forecast on the effect it will have on the future of coffee, and in the meantime would advise planters to put all their available land, not already opened, under coffee.—Madras Times.

THE MANUFACTURE OF OLIVE OIL.

The gathering of the olive is as far as possible done by hand, and the greatest care must be taken to pick only the dead-ripe olives, and to avoid breaking the bearing twigs which will produce the next year's crop. Coarse sheets are sometimes spread under the trees, and the fruit gently shaken off, so that only the perfectly ligh: portion falls. It is then looked over, cleared of accidental admixture and inferior berries, and taken to the mills as soon as possible. The peasants often pretend that keeping the fruit till it ferments facilitates pressing and gives a larger yield. This is, however, an excuse for delay, and any supposed advantage is more than counterbalanced by a deterioration of quality. The simplest and most primitive mill was one in which one or two large mill-stones travelled edgewise over a bed of hard stone. Oxen or horses attached to a strong radial axis furnished the power. In this way the fruit was reduced, stones and all, to a slimy paste. But more perfect and complete machinery of modern design had superseded the old picturesque oil mill, which, as far as France is concerned, is now only to be found in remote villages. Besides, changes in the arrangements of the industry have tended to do away with the old cumbrous mill. It is now very unusual for a farmer or olive grower to press his own crops. In all centres of olive culture there are sure to be one or more professional oil pressers, who have embarked considerable capital in the requisite plant. Of these there are two classes. First, there are those who simply crush and press for the farmer who brings his crop to them, and who are paid in kind by retaining a percentage of the produce as agreed upon. Then there are others who may be called merchant crushers. These buy up olives from the growers and dealers, manufacture the oil, and sell it themselves.

Several large firms in Marseilles possess branch mills in different centers of olive culture and in Algeria and Tunis, working upon the large scale, and their produce is as well known by its trade as are special wines. The system of the lower grade of oil crushers is obviously liable to abuses which are difficult to suppress, and the peasant frequently finds, when his oil is returned to him, it is very far below the calculation he had made of the probable yield of his crop. The crushed fruit is distributed into short, squat sacks, made of esparto and horse-hair, holding about 15 lbs. each. The mouths of these scourtins, as they are called, are indrawn, as if half closed. Consequently when 10 or 12 of them are piled one above the other on the bed plate of the press the bottom of one bag rests on the mouth of the next below and perfectly closes it. When the pile is set true the press is worked very slowly and gradually. The oil oozes from all sides of the scourtins, and trickles from the delivery groove of the bed plate into a receiver. This first pressing is huile vierge, virgin oil, and has a delicate greenish color, and a peculiar nutty flavor. Cleanliness in the crushing mill and press is an essential. Everything about the oil must be scrupulously clean, so that no color or stale and rancid flavor be communicated to it. When the oil ceases to flow, the bags are taken out, and their hard, apparently dry contents broken up. The mass is mixed with boiling water and steamed. A second time it is pressed, precisely as before, and the mixture of oil and water that comes away is allowed to stand till the oil has cleared and risen to the top. It is then syphoned off as second quality oil. The marc, or residue, is either sold as oil cake for stock feeding or manure, or is treated by quite another class of manufacturers, who get from it a third quality of oil, suitable only for soap making, by treating it with chemicals, chiefly bisulphide of carbon. The processes up to this point do not admit of any variety, but the skill of different firms is supposed to be shown in clarifying and refining. The product of the presses is kept in immense tanks or in jars, till a sediment has deposited itself, when the clear oil is separated and filtered through specially prepared papers, through cotton or other ways, fancied to be trade secrets. It will be clear, then, that olive growing and oil pressing are two distinct trades, and that they are best kept separate. Unless a grower had a large capital at command to work a mill, and kept a staff of skilled hands, he would never be able to attend to the digging, pruning, and fertilizing of his olive trees, more particularly as this has to be done just at the same time of the year as the all important first pressing. The grower has plenty to do, if he attends to his work properly. Left to itself the olive tree certainly produces some fruit, but one well cultivated repays its owner ten-fold. An outlay of about £10 per acre is considered a sound investment. A full grown Pendoulier well cared for will give about 30 gallon measures of olives for its crop; the Cayon under similar circumstances may give an average of 7 or 8 gallons. The output of oil is about 14 per cent. for the two pressings. —Textile Mercury.

OFFICE OF THE PUBLIC ANALYST,

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Co., Montreal:

GENTLEMEN,—I have personally taken samples from a large stock of your Granulated Sugar, "REDPATH" brand, and carefully tested them by the Polariscope, and I find these samples to be as near to absolute purity as can be obtained by any process of Sugar-Refining.

The test by the Polariscope showed in yesterday s yield 99·90 per cent. of Pure Cane Sugar, which may be considered commercially as ABSOLUTELY PURE SUGAR.

It is well-known

That successful Doctors read all the latest medical books and papers and go abroad occasionally to study. Successful lawyers read legal publications to learn the latest legal decisions and points constantly cropping up. Teachers, clergymen, druggists, architects, all read the publication issued in the interests of their profession. They must do so to keep up with the times.

The same applies to grocers and general merchants. They must not only read the best papers published in their interests but must also watch the advertisements closely. There they learn the rise and fall in prices; latest trade news and methods of buying, handling and selling goods, so that they may make the greatest profit. A doctor reads much that he already knows, so does a lawyer. So does a number of any of the other professions. So will a merchant. It is often the issue of the paper he misses that is worth dollars to him. His best and safest policy, therefore, is to subscribe for his trade paper.

The only exclusively grocery and general store paper is THE CANADIAN GROCER issued weekly, subscription price $2.00 per year.

SPECIAL TO OUR READERS.

As the design of THE CANADIAN GROCER is to benefit mutually all interested in the business, we would request all parties ordering goods or making purchases of any description from houses advertising with us to mention in their letter that such advertisement was noticed in THE CANADIAN GROCER.

There are some wholesale grocers who adhere strictly both to the letter and the spirit of the rule to sell only to retailers. There are others who consider that the principle of this rule is upheld, so long as the only exceptions from it are in favor of employes, very intimate friends, and people they have other than grocery business connections with. There probably could not be much said against that view of the matter, if the exceptions admitted were few. A wholesaler, like any other man, ought to have some latitude of discretion in the management of his own business. But the exclusion of everybody except retailers from its list of customers is a creditable thing to any house which enforces it, and we learn that one firm has decided to make this an inflexible and invariable practice. It is purely a recognition of the rights of the retailer and a desire to avoid any seeming violation of those rights which has led the house in question to adopt this rule. So thoroughly is the principle carried out that members of the firm even have to buy their household supplies from retail grocers. Thus there is no ground for suspicion that faith is broken with the trade. Such a method is the only one to put a stop to business between wholesalers and consumers. The fact that it has been adopted in the case referred to transpired in conversation in the most casual way. The firm to whom honor for the departure is due desire that their name shall not be connected with it, for fear that a bid for cheap popularity may seem to be the motive which led to it.

* * * *

It is right to say something from the point of view of the employes. The travellers, the office men, the warehouse men, who have families, no doubt have been taught by usage to look upon their standing as privileged customers of the firm as part of their remuneration. It pieces out the stipulated salary very considerably to add to it the discount of retailers' profits on the groceries they consume in a year. To take that suddenly off is to reduce salaries in effect. It means twice the retail grocer's profits to them, for instead of having those profits on a year's bill added to their stated salaries, they are to have them taken off. A time-established custom like that of regarding employes as retailers ought not to be revoked without compensation to the employes in the form of increased pay.

* * * *

There are wholesale houses in the grocery trade which are engaged in other commercial or industrial activities as well as that of the grocery trade. Employes or associates in these other relations, as well as wholesalers in other departments of trade, are apt to expect favors that will make them independent of the retailer. An instance of a house that finds such claims as these embarrassing on account of a good reciprocal spirit on the other side, has also come under our notice. This house sends for some retail grocer who deals with it and is near the would-be preferred customer, and asks this grocer to deliver the goods as ordered, and take the margin. The retailer sends his delivery wagon to the warehouse, brings the goods to the man who ordered them and gets his profit the same as if he made the sale. Here the wholesale house gives a profit it does not get itself. It charges the customer the wholesale price and charges itself the retail price. The same house has been known to make the sale as ordered, deliver at its own expense, and forward the margin of profit to one of its customers who locally would be entitled to the order.

* * * *

This is scrupulous dealing. Is it appreciated always? A generous man cannot fail to be grateful for such treatment, but all men are not generous. It is a fact to which many retailers can certify, that very often wholesale grocers fill orders they receive from large concerns or corporations in a town, forward the goods and send a check to the local retailer who is on their books as a customer, the check representing the difference between the aggregate retail and wholesale prices of the goods involved in the transaction In too many instances these checks are not even acknowledged. An extreme case of thanklessness is reported: An hotel man sent an order for a quantity of goods to a Montreal wholesale house; the house at once forwarded the order to the only grocer in the hotel man's village, and wrote to the hotel man informing him that he could deal as cheaply with the resident retailer and advising him to do so. That was the end of the matter for some time, no further communication being heard from either hotel man or retailer. But one of the firm happened to stay at the hotel in the village some weeks afterwards. He then learned that the retailer had made the sale, but that the retailer had placed the order with another wholesale house, one in opposition to that which had furnished him the order and bespoken the custom of the hotel man. Of course such a man as that must be an exceptional one, and it would be a pity that his indescribable meanness should endanger the principle of selling only to retailers.

DOMINION WHOLESALE GROCERS' GUILD MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Guild was held in the Board of Trade rooms, London, Ont., 13th, 14th, and 15th inst Mr. Ince, President, was in the chair.

The following were present :—Quebec, Messrs. Turner and Carrier ; Montreal, Messrs. Hebert, Childs, Tees, Chaput, Laporte and Rose; Kingston, Mr. G. F. Fenwick; Brockville, Mr. W. A. Gilmour; Hamilton, Messrs. Balfour, Bristol, Sterling, Gillard and Turner; Berlin, Mr. Wm. Roos; St. Thomas, Mr. J. McAdams; Brantford, Mr. G. Watts; Sarnia, Mr. T. Kenny; London, Messrs. Smith, Cleghorn, Screaton, Masuret and Elliot; Toronto, Messrs. Ince, Blain, Crowther, Keighley, Boomer and Larkin.

RE NEXT ANNUAL MEETING.

Moved, seconded and resolved, That the invitation of the Hamilton, London and Brantford Guild, through Messrs. Turner and Bristol, for the next annual meeting of the Guild being held in Hamilton, be accepted. Carried unanimously.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The President called for nominations for the office of President.

On motion of Mr. Turner, of Hamilton, seconded by Mr. Hebert, Mr. Ince was nominated. The nomination was received with acclamation. Mr. Ince, in a brief but pointed speech, absolutely declined to accept the office, and pointed out to the meeting that he had now been seven years in the position and that he gave due notice a year ago or more that he would not and could not retain the position any longer. Every effort was made by the meeting to induce Mr. Ince to re-consider his decision. It was without avail, however, and on motion of Mr. Bristol, seconded by Mr. Tees, Mr. Chas. P. Hebert, of Montreal, was nominated for the office. There being no other nominations, the President declared Mr. Hebert President for the ensuing year. The declaration was received with loud acclamations, every member rising to his feet.

Nominations were then called for the Vice-Presidency. Mr. Blain nominated Mr. Fenwick. Mr. Fenwick absolutely declined, and nominated, seconded by Mr. Masuret, Mr. Hugh Blain for the office. There being no other nominations, the President declared Mr. Blain duly elected Vice-President. The decision was received with loud applause.

Mr. Balfour proposed Mr. E. A. Wills as Secretary. The election, however, was not proceeded with, the secretary having requested that the matter be held over for discussion at the morning session, in order that he might confer with the retiring and newly-elected presidents.

This was concurred in, and the meeting adjourned to meet again on Thursday, the 15th, at 10.30 a.m.

In the meantime Mr. Masuret, on behalf of the London members of the Hamilton, London and Brantford Guild, invited the delegates remaining over to partake of their hospitality in a visit to the Opera House and afterwards to a dejeuner at the club; also to luncheon on Thursday at the club, driving over afterwards to the Kennels.

Meeting adjourned.

THURSDAY, Oct. 15, 10.30 a.m.

President Chas. P. Hebert in the chair.

The following resolution of thanks was passed to the London Board of Trade :—

Moved, seconded and resolved, That the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild, in meeting assembled, hereby tenders through the London members of the Hamilton, London and Brantford Guild, its cordial thanks to the President and officers of the London Board of Trade for their great kindness in placing at the disposal of the Guild the use of their rooms for their place of meeting. Carried unanimously.

Replied to by Mr. Masuret.

Resolution of thanks to London members of the H. L. & B. Guild :—Moved, seconded and resolved, that the thanks of the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild be, and are hereby tendered to the London members of the Hamilton, London and Brantford Guild for their most cordial reception and hearty entertainment of the delegates attending this meeting. Carried unanimously.

Replied to by Mr. Masuret.

Resolution of thanks to Mr. Ince :—Moved, seconded and resolved, that the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild recognizing the able and indefatigable manner in which Mr. Ince has for many years past occupied the position of President of the Guild, hereby tender that gentleman their most hearty thanks for the many services which he has always so willingly and gladly bestowed upon the Guild, and furthermore that the following Committee be appointed to draw up a suitable testimonial to be hereafter presented to Mr. Ince : Messrs. C. P. Hebert, Blain, Turner of Hamilton, and Masuret. Carried.

The meeting adjourned.

WITH THE HOUNDS.

Of the run the London Advertiser says : The weekly run was held Thursday in special honor of the the Wholesale Grocers' Guild members from a distance. Many of them were forced to take early trains for home, and had to deny themselves the hospitality of the Hunt. Messrs. Ince and Blain, of Toronto ; Carrier, of Quebec ; Herbert Irwin and Tees, of Montreal ; Sterling, of Hamilton ; Fenwick, of Kingston, and several more were present, accompanied by local wholesale and retail grocers. The gathering was one of the largest ever seen at Glenmore, the ladies in particular turning out in unusual numbers. Carriage after carriage rolled up, and the occupants were immediately invited into the club house to partake of the refreshments provided in plenty by the Hunt. On the north side of the building the Seventh Band rendered sprightly airs while the hounds in the rear kept up a lively accompaniment. They generally know when a run is in prospect. Their noisy impatience in the kennels and their frantic joy on being released for the cross country chase gives a splendid illustration of "animal spirits."

Among those noticed on the grounds were M. Masuret, Major Smith, R. C. Macfie, George C. Gibbons, John Marshall R. Larmour, Lieut.-Col. Dawson, Ald. J. Fitzgerald, A. E. Pavey, W. J. Craig, Samuel Screaton, R. A. Jones, J. R. Minhinnick, W. J. Reid, Harry Carling, H. R. Abbott, Charles Richardson, Patrick Mulhern, E. A. Cleghorn, John Hunt, Captain Cartwright, Captain Denison, Dr. English, Isaac Waterman, Adam Beck, Dr. Niven, John Fulcher, W. R. Wadsworth, J. Bland, W. C. L. Gill, R. C. Struthers, E. B. Smith, John Coote, H. B. White, W. H. Ferguson, E. Sutton and others.

The run was one of the prettiest, the course being laid so that the spectators in carriages could witness nearly all the jumps. Huntsman Fulcher located the throw-off at the snug little hamlet of Masonville. The onlookers drove via the Proof Line and the 5th concession, as the hunters rode over Gibson's Crump's and Jackson's farms, crossed Adelaide street and Dart's property to the 5th concession, down which they came in full view of their itinerant audience assembled at the junction of the two last named roads. It was glorious hunting weather—cool and bright—and the sight of the scarlet-attired horsemen flying over the sun-lit fields was very pleasant to the eye, the more so to those who were strangers to the spectacle. There was an unusual number of vehicles in line, making an imposing escort.

READ FROM COVER TO COVER.

WINDSOR, Oct. 14th, 1891.

DEAR SIR—Occasionally, I do not receive my GROCER, and as I did not get The Fall Number, please send me a copy, as I read all of them from cover to cover, and would not be without its good business hints.

Yours truly, H. G. TAYLOR.

The President of the Brooklyn United Retail Grocers' Association, has received by acclamation the Republican nomination for Mayor. Mr. Meyer is a man of fine physical appearance, who was educated in the public schools and then devoted three years in preparation for the Lutheran ministry. He is a man of sterling integrity, tact and good executive ability. He is immensely popular in the Eastern District of Brooklyn and seems to possess the faculty of securing the enthusiastic support of his admirers. We have no doubt of his leading with credit an enthusiastic canvass, and of his fulfilling, if elected, the pledges which he has made or will make.—American Grocer.

THE PATRONS OF INDUSTRY AND CASH TRADE.

A correspondent, whose name we have just added to our subscription list, writes: "How are you on the Patrons of Industry? What do you think of them? They are trying to organize in this county (Grey), but I do not think they will succeed very well, as other kindred societies, the Grangers, Farmers' Clubs, etc., have not succeeded. You cannot get a farmer to work for nothing and board himself. I believe in getting a cash system established, but I think giving discounts off regular prices for cash purchases is the best plan."

There is no ambiguity in the attitude of THE GROCER upon the first question. The Patrons of Industry have received some attention in these columns before now, as we have watched and commented upon their progress from the moment of the founding of their first lodges. They are an exotic institution, and until about half a year ago were a branch of the parent body in the United States. They are an economic symptom of hard times. The association was incubated in a period of agricultural depression in the United States. In that country the Farmers' Alliance has since cast it into the shade. Both associations are identified with chimerical and impracticable theories of government, finance and trade. They have discovered nothing; the views they hold have been enthusiastically supported before, and nearly all of them have been consigned by practical men to the limbo of exploded ideas. In what respect is the business of the trader at any point less essential than that of the primary distributor, that is, than that of the producer? Why, therefore, should the trader be combined against more than the producer, to whom the Patrons wish to cut a shorter road through the profits of the traders? Can not prices in the case of traders, as well as in that of producers, be left to the play of supply and demand, or to the division which cuts up the supply and causes competition? Ultimately they will be, despite the guarantees the Patrons secure in the form of discount treaties with storekeepers. Time and again, financiers, corporations, states, have tried to fix the value of a currency they issued by putting it on a land basis, and in spite of their efforts the value of this money depreciated in every case and brought ruin on all who handled it. The Patrons will succeed no better in fixing an arbitrary limit to their traders' profits. If the Patrons become numerous enough to get control of the stores of the country (which they never will), they would simply have to be admitted as an expense item for which discount would have to be made by wholesalers in their prices to retailers; the discount would be made up for by previous addition. No such agreement as the Patrons impose on the trader can ever be carried out slavishly; it will be evaded or it will be the end of the unhappy trader who undertakes it. If the Patrons would contract to furnish a constant definite market force, agreeing to take 300 barrels of sugar, and a specified quantity of other goods every year, then there would be a covenant in which each party is responsible to the other, and the thing might be a success. But the trader has nothing but the vague promise of customers, in whose behalf he may overstock himself, in whose service he may have all his merchandise burnt up, on whose account he may become ineligible as a credit customer in the wholesale market, and between whose spells of intermittent buying he may go to the wall. The Patrons may decree, but they will not effect, the change whereby the trader will sink from the position of an independent business man to that of a hireling.

We agree with our correspondent that discount for cash usually induces more trade than the rule to sell for cash does. Where discounts are given, the trade of a man who may be perfectly good but lacks ready money is not driven away. That plan secures both the cash and credit trade. Along with selection of customers who are considered worthy of credit, the discount plan must be the most satisfactory. It is better for a trader to refuse credit to those who are undeserving of it than to refuse credit to everybody, at the same time holding out the inducement of discount for all persons to buy for cash.

THE REAL AND THE IDEAL ASSOCIATION.

BY RICHARD DONALD, JR.

The present seems an exceedingly opportune time to discuss ideal association methods and workings. We have before us the strenuous efforts of the executive of the Toronto Association to awaken a lively interest in united work and its possible results. We are now entering upon another season of long, dull evenings, to be made useful or otherwise by the above means, if thought desirable. We are fast becoming rid of that undesirable, and withal, nonsensical idea, that no matter how learned we may become, no matter how well we may manage our business affairs, no matter how beneficial to others some of our cherished plans would be, at no personal loss whatever, we say that we are speedily becoming rid of the idea that we must live for self and self alone. It is well that this is so.

These aforementioned conditions being existent, as all will probably allow, there is good ground for hoping that a few observations in the way of suggested lines of action would not be amiss; but rather meet with perhaps more than passing notice from the crowds of busy men who weekly read the contents of their GROCER One of the necessary requisites, of course, of any successful society, is an intelligent and regular attendance; and to secure this very comfortable and reassuring feature of a society's outfit, is perhaps a task of some magnitude, if not of the greatest, in the work. If we could in the course of a paragraph or two, outline some easily worked plan, which might engender a hearty enough interest to create a regular attendance at the meetings of the Groeers' Association, then indeed would we have accomplished our task, and be amply repaid thereby.

Man is essentially a social creature, and this latent quality, when brought out and broadened and brightened in the process, is of the most intense interest to students of human nature. The growth in the social qualities of any of us, is encouraged or retarded, just in so far as we allow them to be, and also allow ourselves to be influenced by others. A man who permits the cares of business to overlap into his night of rest, ease and recreation, to the extent of debarring himself from the society of others, will find himself eventually lagging in the race for mental and commercial supremacy, when running against the man, who notwithstanding that he mayhap has many sore distresses on his mind, does, when his day's work is over, betake himself to the haunts of other congenial spirits there to receive his just reward, in the shape of bright conversation, agreeable company and uplifting tendencies.

If this be so, we must then provide means of entertainment, fit proportioned to the work of the man throughout the day. The grocer having all the live-long day been bothered most to death, with petty details and miserable annoyances, does not find the antithesis of this in the same round of petty detail, etc., only of another description, at the meeting in the night. Rather the reverse. We would then, consign all business to the executive committee, and at the very utmost the first-half hour only to the association meeting. This done, the battle is almost won. The ground is then clear for some real good to be done, and improvement to each participant will soon follow. Do not do this, but prolong over the whole meeting your letters for constitutions, information, etc., somebody's "tuppenny hapeny" grievances, and a lot of "smalls" utterly unintelligible to the majority of those present; and it will be small wonder if occasionally there is a quorum present at about 9:45, and an odd officer does not turn up until "buzzed."

Our ideal association will then immediately upon the selection of officers, appoint a programme committee pretty well described by the name. This committee would proceed to lay out a series of instructive debates, essays and addresses, with discussions thereon, for the year's work; having a due regard to the important point that rocks must be avoided, in the shape of dryness, sameness and want-of-promptness. This programme should include something out of the ordinary, once in a while, to which extraordinary thing, every one should be invited, and get without extra expense. After the programme has been drawn out, a very important point remains, and it is this—get every one to take some part in it, no matter how small it may be; "look after the back seats." Many a man strays into the back seats, who if properly taken in hand, would make a first-class debater, and a useful member of the society. Direct promise to participate has been found the most effectual method to accomplish this end, because, if the promise is never fulfilled, there is the one good done, viz., some notice has been given the attender that his presence has been noticed. So much for the meetings. With the help of a good wide-a-wake president and secretary no persons should go away feeling that they had wasted an evening, or that they had been neglected in any way. The business being promptly done, the after part should be as promptly attacked, and the interest sustained therein to the end.

Many other spheres of usefulness remain undiscribed, to our sorrow. The editor says that this paper is already too long, nor do we wonder. After all, the meeting is the "piece de resistance" of the grocers' association. If these meetings be not successful, then will every other venture be tinctured with the same poison. One grand idea should always be before the mind of those in the trade, and it is this :—strive, every man of you, to live up to the highest notch of business ability, honesty and manliness. Don't be carried away by that insane idea, that the almighty dollar is, and constitutes everything for which you strive. Are there not greater things, honor, city, province, and Dominion? Which of you shall say calmly and decisively: "Here is my little store, by it I shall live, in it I shall exist, and outside of it let others do as they like; as for me, I am content?" Surely that is not our goal, surely there is a niche for every one, in accomplishing good and noble deeds in the world's theatre, no matter how small that niche may be, or how small its influence. There is a miserable, ill-bred manner some ignorant people have, of disparaging the grocer and his trade. All trade is honorable if made so by the honest practices of the men engaged therein; but if ever so honest, the grocer must keep true to the march of progressive business methods, must keep himself in thorough accord with current business literature, must have as good an education as can possibly be got, and above all, must present to the country with his fellows, a strong unbroken front, displaying in the breeze a broad pennon, with this device :

"Our toil hath made the country great."

Now, we know of no better educator than a good meeting of interested parties, inclined towards the betterment of themselves, their business interests, and the collection of useful information regarding the calling in which they are engaged. We can very well imagine a meeting of grocers gathered together to discuss the profitableness or reverse of buying in conjunction with others; the best methods of blending teas and selling them; how to contrive to make one thousand dollars do when two are actually necessary; the requisite knowledge to dress windows and decorate stores properly; the credit, both wholesale and retail, so lavishly given by one and so sparingly by the other; and many other problems. These all have been attacked, in a way, but surely not systematically. In our ideal association we would have a decent programme laid out, embracing these and many other points, and if properly managed we do not fear small attendances, but we do, indeed, court success.

REMINISCENCES.

While engaged for about two years as corresponding clerk in a wholesale grocery warehouse in another colony, some amusing incidents came under my observation. The firm received large consignments of liquor from manufacturers in Great Britain and Europe and had a bonded warehouse in connection with their establishment where all these consignments were placed. The man in charge of the bond was an old Irishman, a character in his way. He came to me one day with a long face and told me that he narrowly escaped getting into serious trouble, as it was by the merest chance the head of the firm failed to detect him giving a glass of brandy to an old bum who came regularly every morning and worried the life out of him for a drop of something. I was sorry for Tom, as he was constantly in disgrace over his good-heartedness in this respect. I advised him to give the bum a dose of Jamaica rum, 33 overproof, and say something while he was swallowing it so that he would gulp it down quick before he found out how strong it was. "It will be a case of kill or cure," said I. "Begorra," said Tom, "I'll do it though it kill the ould soak." Next morning the bum came as usual and Tom handed him a tumblerful of the rum. Just as he had the glass to his lips Tom shouted, "Drink it quick, here's the boss!" Mr. Bum gulped it down and sank to the ground gasping for breath. He began to get black in the face, and Tom got into a fearful state, thinking it was a clear case of "kill." We loosened the bum's collar and poured a liberal quantity of water down his throat and he gradually recovered. But he never bothered Tom again.

One day while business was dull Tom took into his head to clean out some of the odds and ends that had accumulated in the corners of the bond for years back. Along in the afternoon he came into the office and told me that the locker wanted to see me. When I got to the bond I saw an old case half filled with straw and the other half contained five bottles of sauterne. It was the remnant of a consignment that had been placed in the bond eleven years before and had been stowed away in a corner and lost to sight through an accumulation of rubbish. Connoisseurs can appreciate the enjoyment we derived from that old wine. We polished off two of the bottles and each took one home. It was a rare treat.

The head salesman was constantly complaining that his sample boxes of cigars got empty too soon to be pleasant, and he determined to put an end to it. He happened to mention the matter to the captain of a German brig, who had recently arrived with a cargo of tea from China. The captain told him he had a few cigars with fire crackers in them and if he placed them on the top of one of the sample boxes of his best brands he might discover the thief This was done, and we all awaited developments. One of the most frequent visitors to the warehouse was an old friend of the head of the firm—a close-fisted Scotchman. Well, he called as usual that day and went into the sample room. He didn't call again for several days, and then his long silky moustache was gone and his lips looked as if they had been roasted. Nothing was said, but the salesman knew he had discovered the pilferer of his sample cigars, and that he would have no cause for complaint again.

A dispute had arisen as to the responsibility for a quarter cask of Irish whiskey which had one its staves broken and a good deal of the liquor had leaked out. The railway people had given a clear receipt for it, but it was apparent that the damage could not have been done during the brief transit on the railway. The quarter cask lay in the freight shed for a couple of days till an amicable settlement was arrived at, and then it was found that there was very little whiskey left in it. It turned out that the men in the freight sheds took relays of sucking the whiskey through long straws, and when any of them felt tipsy they slept the effects off on top of some bales of wool where no one would look for them. There were eleven men in the freight sheds, and in two days they had drunk between four and five gallons. The foreman and three others were discharged. One of them, an old sailor, told me he was drunk five times in the two days and he had never put in such a high old time in his life.

The firm got a consignment of Chinese notions from Hong-Kong, and among them were some cases of native liquor. The Hong-Kong firm had instructed a well-informed Chinaman in our locality to give all the aid he could in explaining the quality of the goods. I happened to be in the freight sheds while the custom house officer was examining the liquor, and he quietly slipped a pint bottle into my hand. I asked the Chinaman what the name of was, and he said "Shum-fou," at least it sounded like that to me. When I got to the warehouse Tom, and I and the locker finished the bottle and the effect was startling. We felt as if we were walking in the air and our heads seemed to swell out as large as a balloon. The desire to climb up something was terrific but fortunately for us there was nothing handy for us to practise upon. Then we got as merry as possible and laughed and danced like a trio of lunatics. This wore off and a feeling of hopeless despair took possession of us. Tom at this juncture suggested a glass of brandy, and after partaking of it we felt better. All this passed in less than an hour. I don't know what "Shum-fou" is, but I'll swear there was opium in it. None of us cared to taste it again.

SEMPER PARATUS.

STOP THIEF!

We entreat our daily contemporaries to keep themselves on their guard, if they do not wish to make themselves unwittingly accomplices in a species of theft which to them as to us is particularly odious.

Here is the matter in question. We find in L'Etendard of Monday last, under the title of "Les organes de publicite," an excellent article on the disadvantages which result to commercial houses from doing business through an advertising agency. But our confrere gives credit for this article to Le Moniteur du Commerce. Now, it is an exact translation from an article which appeared some time ago in the Chicago Journal of Commerce, and which our confrere THE CANADIAN GROCER, of Toronto, reproduced, rightfully giving credit, in its magnificent fall number.

We have already on several occasions, caught the Moniteur in the act of reproducing (without giving credit, be it well understood) from our own articles. Nearly every week we find again in it reprints of articles from the CANADIAN GROCER and other special journals, and credit is never given for these reproductions. It happens on the contrary quite often that daily contemporaries, unaware of the piracy of the Moniteur, reproduce in their turn these articles, giving in good faith credit to this latter, and sometimes even adding complimentary remarks as to the cleverness of its editorial.

The Moniteur, thanks to this means of little honesty, succeeds in making itself a reputation as a well-edited journal with those who do not read anything else. A Montreal merchant said the other day to one of our subscribers, "I readily admit that Le Prix Courant is better informed and gives the most exact prices, as its title indicates, but Le Moniteur du Commerce has some excellent editorial articles."

We are not ambitious for a reputation acquired by such means; our readers find in our columns reprints of the best articles we find in our exchanges, but we never claim any other merit than that of translation and choice, and we give to the confrere copied the credit that is due him. This way of doing, the only honest one, gives the Moniteur a temporary advantage, but as we believe firmly in the proverb, "Honesty is the best policy," we hope the commercial public will soon be undeceived.

In the meantime we beg our daily confreres who hold to literary honesty, to look twice before copying the good articles of the Moniteur, for ten to one that these articles are only unmarked reprints. — Le Prix Courant.

NOTES TAKEN ON THE ROAD.

Oshawa has a number of prosperous grocers, and I find Mr. G.N. Bloomfield among them. He always welcomes THE GROCER representative.

Mr. M. E. May, Oshawa, is having a genuine old-fashioned house-cleaning, and with paper and paint and some alterations, he will have a very pleasant and attractive store.

Messrs. Young & Co., Bowmanville, have shipped quite largely of fruits of all kinds this season, and although prices have varied and as a rule been low, they did fairly well by the fruit trade.

Mr. J. W. Moore has bought out the grocery stock of W. R. Kidd, Peterborough. Mr. Moore has been interested for a number of years in the inspection as well as manufacture of cheese at Lakefield, nine miles out from Peterborough. He was inspector for the Imperial Produce Co. for a time.

Grain has been moving freely in Port Hope the past week or two, and the trade is showing more life in consequence. Mr. Mitchell remarked that things were quiet and peaceful. What a blessing if grocerymen in some other towns could say it as truthfully. Peacefulness, born of not coveting your neighbor's trade, is a blessing to any community.

A farmer who had just deposited the proceeds of his grain crop in the bank at Oshawa is reported as saying to a grocery man whom he owed, "I have a little money in the bank, but don't like to draw it out just yet." What should be done by the grocer in that case? I will answer that question by asking another: If you saw a tramp going out of your door with the money from your till, would you collar him or let him go? A part of that money in the bank is yours, and it is adding insult to injury for a man to tell you that you have some money in the bank but you can't have it. That man does not look on business as a commercial man looks on it. He is very apt to feel that the man whom he owes should be satisfied with the bare knowledge that the money is on hand in a firm grip. A little commercial business principle might be taught him that would do him a valuable service for the future.

L. J. Dickie, Oshawa, has returned to his old grocery stand. He sold out two years ago to a party who was not a success in the business, but one has only to step inside now to see that the master hand is there again. Mr. Dickie sells for cash; even a loaf of bread on hand he considers a better asset than the price of it on his book. The clean, bright store and tasty arrangement of shelf goods, etc., bespeak the presence of lovely woman on the premises.

Messrs. Conger Bros., Belleville, placed in their show window a terra cotta figure of a school boy sitting by the wayside with his school bag slung over his shoulders, and, flute in hand, he seemed to be intently listening to the vibrations of his music in the distance. The knee breeches, the rusty boots, the open collar and flannel shirt, give the dress of the genuine Hibernian, but the features are the true type of innocent childhood regardless of nationality. It was quite a "draw" for Saturday.

Farmers around Bowmanville are marketing their grain quite freely, and it is being shipped by lake and rail direct to Europe, via Montreal. One or two vessel loads of barley are going across to the States. Mr. J. McMurtrie is a large buyer at this point, and he reports a promptness and willingness among the farmers to settle old accounts as fast as deliveries are made, which makes it very pleasant for him, as he has a large country patronage for groceries, dry goods, etc.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Mr. H. L. Pullen, St. Thomas, writes: I see by THE CANADIAN GROCER of October 15th, page 4, that Sunny South tobacco is made by the Empire Tobacco Co., Montreal. Now, I bought Sunny South tobacco from McAlpine Tobacco Co., Toronto. I suppose it was made by them.

Yours truly,
H. L. PUTTEN.

Mr. W. Carmichael, Collingwood, writes: Mr. Urlin is in error. Sunny South is made by McAlpine, Toronto. The Empire's brand, same size, is something good. This is a seller.

A. G.—Being a subscriber I take the liberty of asking you to give me some quotations for genuine apple-cider. Who manufactures it? ANSWER—Not much business has been done yet; but in 20 gallon lots 20c. per. gallon appears to be about the value, and 21 to 22c. for smaller quantities. If any of our subscribers have some to offer we will be pleased to put them in communication with our enquirer who is in the province of Quebec.

FLOUR MILLER.—Would you kindly procure for me at your earliest convenience the address of a few large barrel manufacturers in Ontario? ANSWER—We have looked over our exchanges, but fail to find any advertised. The only firms we know of are Decew & Co., Essex Centre; Sutherland, Innes & Co., Chatham, and the London and Petrolia Barrel Co., London.

DIAMOND CRYSTAL SALT

It is free from impurities. It is unequalled for sweetness, purity and flavor. It is made by an entirely new and expensive process, which is the principal reason why other manufacturers cannot compete with it for quality. For the table DIAMOND CRYSTAL has no equal. Its freeness from hardening makes it the best for table use. For the Dairy, DIAMOND CRYSTAL has no equal. Its remarkable antiseptic qualities make it the best for Dairy use. For table use, packed in barrels containing 115-2½s—100-3s—60-5s—40-7s and 30-10 lb. bags. For Dairy use, packed in barrels containing 20-14 lb. bags, also 28 and 56 lb. Sacks. On account of the combination entered into by the Canadian Salt Manufacturers, we are enabled to import this high-class manufacture, and are selling at prices as low as ordinary kinds.

In almost all the United States returns of exports to Canada there appear entries of shipments of oleomargarine. For the last seven months the amount so appearing is about seventy-five thousand pounds as compared with about thirty-three thousand last year. The importation of oleomargarine into Canada is prohibited by law, but it can pass through in bond, and the shipments from the United States are not for consumption in Canada at all, but are simply in transit for Newfoundland, where large quantities of the stuff are used.

An order-in-council has been passed fixing the close season for fresh-water herring and ciscoes in Ontario from October 15 to November 30 each year, during which time no one shall fish for, catch, kill, buy, sell or possess any such fish, the order not to come into force until next year.

A retail grocers' association has been formed in Stratford for mutual protection, not for the purpose of regulating prices. The officers are:—Messrs. H.T. Baker, President; John Hislop, Secretary Treasurer ; E. K. Barnsdale, E. Walsh and J. T. Doak, Executive Committee.

Mr. D. Marshall who has been employed in the wolesale grocery of Geo. Robertson & Son., Kingston, left the other day to accept a position with the firm of Warren Bros., and Boomer, of Toronto. With his removal the Kingston lacrosse team loses the services of a hard working and enthusiastic secretary.

One of the executive of the Ottawa Clerks' Union says that the agitation has been somewhat retarded by the strike at the Chaudiere in which part of the city they have been canvassing for subscriptions to the early closing list. The clerks have now the signatures of the necessary three-fourths of the merchants in each line except furniture, in which two are holding back.

The suit of A. Watts & Co., Brantford, against the purchasers of the Buffalo Electric Soap works, to recover a portion of the sale under the agreement which was disputed by the purchasers, was tried at Warren, Pennsylvania, last week, and a verdict in full was awarded to A. Watts & Co., with costs of the suit, which has been going on since 1883.

According to word sent from Utrecht, the Hollanders are making artificial almonds in large quantities from paste composed of glucose. They are shaped and colored to nature, and steeped in nitro-benzole to give the necessary odor. Hundreds of bushels have been sold to unscrupulous dealers, who mix them with the genuine article. The same people are at work on a varnished coffee bean.

At a meeting of the Y. M. C. A., London, the other afternoon, the Hon G. W. Ross, Minister of Education of Ontario, said : "Thirty-five years ago, I served as a grocer's apprentice in this city taking down shutters as early as 7 o'clock in the morning, putting them up again at hours varying from 9 to 10 at night, and carrying parcels to supply the wants—very pressing wants I sometimes thought—of the citizens for their dinner table requirements." [Laughter.]

Messrs. Gibson & Gibson, of 35 Wellington street east, this city, have been appointed selling agents for the Gwaltney & Bunkley Peanut Co'y, of Smithfield and Norfolk, Va.

Thomas Flannigan's general store in Chatham was entered by burglars the other night, who stole a quantity of prints and some bottled goods. The clerk had cautiously hidden the receipts of the day, leaving nothing in the cash drawer.

Mr. Henry Gillard, father of W. H. Gillard wholesale grocer, Hamilton, died on the evening of the 13th inst. at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. G. H. Moore, Burlington. Deceased, who was 80 years of age, had lived a retired life for a good many years. Death was the result of natural decay. W. H. Gillard was in London, attending the Wholesale Grocers' Guild meeting, when the news of his father's death reached him.

Mr. R. S. Gallagher has called a meeting of his creditors. The wholesale and retail fruit business he has carried on for fourteen years on King and Colborne streets met with no reverses during that time and appeared to be on a prosperous footing. The late long dull spell, however, has at last reached the breaking strain and the meeting referred to has been called. It is to be hoped that Mr. Gallagher can obtain a satisfactory settlement.

Yeoman & Co., the yeast, baking powder, and washing compound manufacturers, have disposed of their business to John M. Lowes & Son, who will continue the same in their new factory 26 to 94 Adelaide street east. Yeoman & Co., were the successors of Churchill & Co., the original manufacturers of The Breadmakers' Yeast, they also adding White Star Baking Powder and Housekeepers Quick Washing Compound to their lines. The new firm will still manufacture the three articles as in the past.

LONDON RETAIL GROCERS' ASSOCIATION.

The regular meeting of the Retail Grocers' Association of London was held in Sherwood hall on Oct. the 14th, with all the officers present and a fair representation of the members.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

After the regular routine of business was got through, the delegates to the convention in Toronto were called on to give an account of themselves.

The president, Mr. W. H. Ferguson, said the delegates were well received by the members of the Toronto Association, and that he was much pleased with the meeting and was satisfied that great good would come from it. The delegates from the various associations were very enthusiastic and entered into the discussion freely and with good feeling, and the result of the discussion was that a number of questions was suggested to be sent to the various associations throughout the country to obtain the views of the members of each association, delegates to be appointed to meet at some future date and some plan arranged whereby a more united action may be taken on all important trade questions. He said that the secretary promised to send them a copy of the questions before they left the city, so that he could bring them up at this meeting, but he did not receive them. He had not charged his mind with the questions sufficiently to be able to give all of them, as they were quite numerous. He then called on Mr. C. J. Wall, who was also a delegate. Mr. Wall said that he thought the president had gone pretty well over the ground, but he would give the members a few of the questions proposed to be sent to the different associations, from memory. He was sorry they did not receive the copy as promised, but no doubt it would come to hand in time for discussion at our next meeting. The question of peddling was one that appeared to cause as much trouble in other cities as in London, and was as much of a nuisance in Toronto as the merchants and citizens find it to be here. The question of wholesale firms selling goods at retail was another important one in the list. The Patrons of Husbandry was another. But as these questions would all come before this association at our next meeting in proper form he would not detain the members any longer, only to say that they were well entertained by the members of the Toronto Association, that the trip to Toronto had been a pleasant one, and that the meeting, he felt satisfied, would result in doing good to the trade throughout all Ontario.

The reports of the delegates were heartily received.

A communication was received from the local members of the Wholesale Guild inviting the officers and members of the Retail Association to meet the members of the Wholesale Guild at the Kennels on Thursday at 3 p.m., and it was moved and seconded that the invitation be received and that as many of the officers and members as can, attend the meet.

The meeting adjourned at 5.20 p.m.

SUGAR PACKAGES.

"What do I think of the proposal to make all sugar barrels of uniform capacity?" said a prominent retail grocer to a representative of the Merchants' Review, the other day, "I think it is excellent. With the introduction of a uniform sugar barrel would disappear several annoying features incidental to the handling of refined sugar by retail grocers, and certainly the trick of changing the figures on the barrels would cease. Several times I have had that same trick played on me, and a grocer can never be certain that he will not be imposed upon in that way while the present system of packing sugar lasts. As regards the notion of sugar in cardboard packages," said the dealer, "I believe it will take some time to popularize it. There are not a few dealers who are accustomed to give rather light weight, owing to the small margin on which sugar is sold, and in that way they have a chance to come out even or possibly get a small profit. If the packing were done at the refinery, the weight would be exact and these dealers would lose by the change. Yet there are, on the other hand, many grocers who are indifferent as to sugar profits and dislike the trouble of weighing out and packing the staple. To such dealers a small sugar package would doubtless be a boon, and the notion is at least worth a trial. I would, however, suggest that small bags, such as are used for salt, be employed instead of cartons of paper or cardboard—these would be cheaper and stand rougher handling than the cartons."—Merchants' Review.

GROCERIES.

The weather is still in the ascendant among market influences. It is very favorable for the tilling of the soil though adverse to trade. More grain has been sold this week, but the difference has not been felt among wholesale grocers' who find money scarce both for payments due and for current business. At this time of year the renewals that are occasionally necessary are not expected to be asked for, but the present season has its exceptions to this rule. All orders for goods are on the scale of the needs of the moment, which are evidently kept within narrow bounds. Sugar sells quietly, fruits are dull, cannned goods are in small request, tea is but moderately active. Some retail traders report a considerable amount of wheat selling in their district, but say the farmers are not coming down with the part of the proceeds that is due on their store accounts Stocks throughout the country are low, so that it will take a good deal of buying to replenish them for a lively trade when money does begin to move

CANNED GOODS.

The extent of the pack of tomatoes, and the proportion it will bear to the demand, are still enveloped in uncertainty. The opposite views that it will be excessive and that it will not are adhered to as tenaciously as ever, but among the majority of jobbers, who were undecided, there is a growing undercurrent of opinion that the pack may not be more than what is wanted to go round. The crop of peas was good but yet the pack seems to have been a short one, the limitations on the time in which it had to be put up circumscribing the canners as much as a shortage in raw material would. Whatever may be the volume of the pack, the course now followed by retailers is probably the wisest one ; they are not placing orders freely. Some packers claim to have everything sold that they can put up. The price now holding is $1.05 for equal quantities of peas, corn and tomatoes. An instance of a sale to a jobbing house of 700 cases of assorted vegetables at $1 is reported, though the brand is not the best. Two round lots of tomatoes alone sold at $1.05. The very best brands have been sold at $1.10, though efforts were made to get better quotations by canvassing the street. Peas alone are held at $1.10. All extra quality goods are firmly held and will be likely to be. There is little doing in salmon or in lobsters. Prices are steady at quotations.

"It was reported," says the New York Bulletin, "that about 10,000 crates of New York state gallon canned apples have recently been taken for export to Livepool at $2 per dozen delivered on steamer. We learn also of 1,000 crates prime evaporated apples at 5¾c. for the same market.

The B. C. Commercial Journal says ; The bark Wanlock, 745 tons, Capt. Cooper, arrived last week and she is chartered for salmon to Liverpool by Turner, Beeton & Co. Shipments are being hurried forward and there is little else to note. The Anglo British Columbia Packing Company Ltd., shipped a train load to Montreal on the 6th inst., consisting of 15 cars this season's pack. The SS. Mexico arrived at Vancouver on the 7th inst, with 6,000 cases of Alaska fish for shipment east over the C. P. R. The salmon is from the canneries at Point Ellis, Permit Harbor, Chilcat, Yes Bay, Labouchere Bay, Loring, Hunter's Bay and Nicholas Bay. 2,500 cases of salmon from R. Cunningham's cannery, Skeena River, arrived by the SS. Danube on the 10th for shipment to Australia via San Francisco. It is stated that the Alaska Salmon Packers' Association comprises the controlling interests in thirty-three canneries.

COFFEES.

The scarcity of good Rios is still a draw back to trade. The supply is said to be exhausted in the primary market. Common Rios to sell at 19 to 21c. are plentiful enough. Mochas and Javas are in liberal supply at steady prices. The Dutch Government sale of Java coffees at Amsterdam took place on Tuesday, 20th inst., with 29,000 bags, valued at 48 florins.

DRIED FRUIT.

Though stocks are in good condition, being now quite full and varied, buying does not proceed as actively as it might. Currants are ⅜c. less firm than they have been for several weeks, barrels quoting from 5¾c. upwards. There is still an abundance of old Valencia raisins purchasable at 4 to 5c., and even lower, 28lb. boxes selling in some cases at $1. New season's stock is easy at 6 to 6¾c. for off-stalk raisins. Selected layers are 7½ to 8c. There are four grades of Sultanas, of which the prices range from 8 to 13c. The stock of Malagas is still incomplete. The prices of those on hand are $1 to $3.10 for London layers, $3.25 to $3.50 fo3 Imperial cabinets, $4.25 to $4.40 for Connoisseur clusters, $4.50 to $4.75 for extra dessert, $4 to $4.10 for black baskets. Cable advices recently received announce an advance of 1s. to 2s. on Bosnia prunes. Eleme figs run at 11 to 12½c. for new, with nominal prices for certain grades of old that are offering.

The Revista Commercial, of Valencia, under date of 29th ult., advises a number of packers at Denia putting up rain-damaged raisins, together with sweepings, nicely topped off, and branded as layers. This fruit, the paper says, is intended for America, and pictures the surprise that will be manifested here when the goods are inspected upon arrival. The packers are credited with paying $2 per quintal for their stock.

NUTS.

A very easy demand is reported by all holders of stock. A better business is due by and by, when both stocks and demand will be in greater strength. Tarragona almonds are 15 to 16c. Cocoanuts are $6 per hundred.

RICE AND SPICES.

The trade in rice is falling off, as it always does at this time of year. Stocks are ample and prices steady. Among spices ginger is very firm at 25 to 27c., and nutmegs at 75c. to $1.20. All spices are in seasonably good demand.

SUGAR.

There was a moment in the week when the price of granulated appeared to be on the verge of an advance of ⅛c. Refiners sold ⅛c. higher in Montreal, but their example was not followed here, and before the end of the week the price wavered in sympathy with the New York market, which declined ¼c. on Saturday. It declined ⅛c. more on Tuesday. Abroad both cane and beet are higher, the fluctuations in the New York market being apparently independent of the ups and downs in the raw market. Yellows have received more benefit from the momentary improvement that took place on Friday last, and have been generally held at prices averaging about ⅛c. higher all round, though some are still obtainable at 3½c. There is more quoting in decimal fractions than there was, such forms of quotation as 3.60, etc., being heard more frequently than they used to be. The refiners stiffened on the prices of yellows on Friday, and have not been in a conceding mood since.

The report that the Woodside refinery would shut down shortly turns out to be wrong.

Willett & Gray, New York, in their weekly sugar statistical report, put the visible supply at 463,824 tons, against 337,640 tons a year ago. They say : "The market for raws has been strong throughout the week, and with the securing of pretty much all the available supplies, it is now a question of where the next absolute requirements of the refiners is to come from. Brazil and beet countries are very backward and Cuba stocks are disappearing very rapidly. Under these conditions a firm and improving market seems to be assured for some time. The crop of all Europe is not expected to much exceed last year's. Notwithstanding, a very general opinion prevails among buyers that a decline must come in granulated sugar to meet the parity of the foreign markets, and in consequence of this opinion the country are buying on a hand-to-mouth basis, yet the demand continues sufficient to take the production and thus far prevent the necessity of any reduction in price. Lower prices are made, however, for grades below hards, and sooner or later the demand should slacken more perceptibly."

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

The commonplace movement of the demand keeps stocks of syrup moving outward at the usual quiet rate, with no advance on last week's prices, which quote as low as 2½c. for the darkest grades. More activity in the molasses market is apparent, three carloads of West Indian being reported on the way from Montreal for delivery to purchasers in Toronto and other Ontario centres. The price is 38 to 40c. in puncheons, 40 to 42c. in barrels, and 42 to 44c. in half-barrels.

TEAS.

No new feature has got into the situation. Greens are exceptionally scarce, more particularly in the lower grades. There is no description of tea in which the stocks are heavy. The trade reports some holding off this week on the part of retailers, who do not buy even as freely as they did last week. Values are unusually good. Blacks are steady at from 15c. upwards and Japans from 16c. In lower grades,there seems to be a growing yearly indisposition to deal, and fewer Japans below 16c. will be brought into the country this year. Last year's imports of stock at lower prices than this showed a marked falling off from those of the year previous.

The four-masted schooner Olga arrived at Vancouver, B.C., on Monday, from Yokohama, with 1,066,500 pounds of tea. She reports that the ship Heola sailed from Kobe for Vancouver with a cargo of tea nine days before she did, and fears are entertained that the Hecla foundered in the terrific gale which raged on September 14.

Says the Minneapolis Commercial Bulletin: The largest bulk of tea ever en route to a Pacific coast port is now on its way to Vancouver, consigned to the C. P. R. for transmission overland. The tea now afloat on the Empress of China and the tea clippers Benjamin Sewell, Hecla and Olga amounts to over 13,000 tons, and is for Minneapolis. St. Paul and Chicago jobbers.

PETROLEUM.

Prices hold at the points at which they have been marked for months, Canadian refined being quoted at 15 to 16c. A good local demand exists.

The Petrolia Advertiser reports ; Petrolia crude $1.35 per bbl. Oil Springs crude $1.35 per bbl. The crude oil market has been very quiet for the past week in consequence of the low price of refined which has been ruling. The competition between local refiners has been so keen lately that refined oil which should bring from 13 to 14 cents a gallon has been sold as low as 12 cents, and we have even heard of offers having been made as low as 11¾ cents. In consequence of this state of affairs refiners have been holding off from purchasing crude until they have now nearly used up their last barrel of stock on hand, and some of them will either have to shut down or pay a dollar thirty-five for more crude at which price they will make a handsome loss in the manufacture of refined oil to be sold at the present rates The crude oil market is very firm, and although we are pumping more crude than ever we were before, yet the demand for refined oil has so increased that it takes all the crude oil which is pumped here daily to supply the needs of refiners for our own Canadian market.

DRUGS AND CHEMICALS.

A fairly free movement of certain staples, as alum, sulphur, borax, camphor, cream tartar, etc., seems to be going on now towards country stores. The week shows no fluctuations in prices.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

The butter market is in an exceptionally healthy state. All good stock finds immediate sale and makes its way readily into consumption. Prices are firm for the upper grades, some quoting as high as 18 to 20c., but there is not one tub in twenty-five that will stand the test necessary to bring these prices. The best that is in fairly general supply is worth from 16 to 18c., and that is scarce enough. Lower grades are comparatively plentiful, varieties of quality being available for all shades of value between 10 and 15c. As always happens abou this season increased supplies of dairy butter follow upon the closing of the cheese factories and the creameries. The raw material which was manufactured in the latter is of itself considerable, and will make a good deal of butter, which will come as creamery butter did not to any extent, upon the domestic market. While butter is firm and high, it must be remembered buyers are selecting, as they can get plenty of ordinary stock at the prices quoted for it.

Cheese is steady at 10 to 10½c., the under figure representing closely the price asked at the factories. There is little activity in the demand.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

BEANS—Good old hand-picked beans sell at $1.50 to $1.60. Growers who have choice old are firm for $1.40. New are not yet in free receipt.

DRIED APPLES—Quotations are 5 to 5½c. from wholesale hands here, with 4½c. and upward paid to holders outside. The market is not more settled than it was last week.

EVAPORATED APPLES—Change hands in occasional 50-box lots at 7 to 8c. Offerings are free.

EGGS—Are scarce and wanted at 16 to 17c. Along with a falling off in the supply, there is reported a considerable demand from other collecting points to make up shipments for export. Some business is said to have been done by Canadian exporters on the New York market. Limed are now in stock and quoting at 15c.

GAME—Wild ducks are coming in at 45 to 50c. a brace, partridges at 50c., venison at 6½c. for bucks in the carcase and 5 to 6c. for does.

HAY—Is in good supply and active demand, with no change from prices running last week for bales on track—that is, $11 to $11.50.

HIDES—Are weaker. Green may be expected soon to take a drop of from ¼ to ½c., as cured have shown no tendency towards recovery. Green are quoted at 5c. for cows and 5½c. for steers. A car of selected buff was sold on Tuesday at 5½c., and common grades went in round lots for a shade less.

HONEY—Is inactive and plentiful. Extracted sells at 9 to 10c. for low grades, and for inferior at prices as low as 7c. Sections are 12½ to 15c.

HOPS—Business in large lots is exceptional, and only desultory buying in lots of moderate size is reported. Prices are 13 to 15c. for new crop and good yearlings, but are nominal for older stock.

ONIONS.—Are quiet at $2 to $2.25 per barrel.

POULTRY—Receipts are increasing and the demand is gathering strength. Dressed turkeys are 10 to 11c. per lb., geese 6 to 7c. per lb., chickens 40 to 50c. per pair, domestic ducks 25 to 50c. per pair, according to size.

The Best Grocers Make a point of Keeping it always in Stock.

MARKETS—Continued.

POTATOES—Are firm for the time being. Cars are taken at 40 to 45c., and 50 to 60c. is quoted for out of store lots.

SEEDS—Alsike clover brings $5.50 to $6 for prime to choice, with a little higher figure for extra choice to finest samples for export. There is an improved inquiry and a few lots now offering.

SKINS—Are unchanged, at 75c. for sheep and 5 to 7c. for calf. The supply is fairly large.

WOOL—Is very dull; sellers find difficulty in getting more than 18c. Receipts are large. Dealers do not encourage sellers, as they have no expectations of any early improvement in the situation of the market.

DRESSED HOGS AND PROVISIONS.

The trade in provisions is as good as the limitations upon the resources of immediate supply will allow. All old stock is exhausted, and consumption is already busy upon the yet meagre products of the new pack.

BACON—What long clear can be supplied goes at 9c. Smoked backs and bellies are 11c. and selling well. Rolls are active at 9c.

HAMS—Of the new cure are all that the market now contains. They are selling as fast as they can be produced at 11 to 11½c.

LARD—Pure is easier, because more plentiful. Pails are 10½c., tubs 10c.

BARREL PORK—Mess is steady at $15, and Canadian short cut at $17. Ready sale for all new pack stock is reported.

DRESSED HOGS—The range of price is from 5½ to 6⅛c. Packers' weights have not been plentiful for some days, but at the moment receipts are larger. The strength of the market begins also to decline as the close of lake navigation approaches. Since no new products of hogs now arriving can be got ready in time for the last boats, packers are disposed to keep below 6¼c.

FISH.

An easy demand for fresh fish keeps up. Freezing in the meantime is going on. Stock does not arrive freely. All prices remain unchanged. Pickerel is 6c., pike 5c., whitefish and salmon trout 7 to 8c., lake herring $1.75 to $2.50, haddock is 6c., British Columbia salmon is 16c. Of pickled and salt fish, Labrador herring is $5.50, shore herring $5. The catch of Labrador herring is said to be very short this year. Bloaters are $1 to $1.50.

FLOUR AND FEED.

A normal demand is reported for flour and feed. Prices are steady and unchanged. They are: $5.75 for Manitoba patent, $5.25 to $5.35 for Ontario patents, $4.50 for straight roller, $4.40 to $4.50 for extra, $2.25 to $4 for low grades, $5.25 to $5.40 for strong bakers'. Graham flour is $4.50, standard oatmeal $3.75, rolled oats $3.75, Kiln-dried corn meal is $3.75 to $4.00, rolled wheat $5, wheat bran $12, cracked corn $1.50 per cwt., mixed chop $20 to $25, split peas $4, pot barley $4.25, oats 30 to 31c.

FRUITS.

The varieties now arriving are less numerous than those of a week ago. Apples constitute the bulk of the receipts, and though plentiful they are steady in quotation and are stronger than they were last week. Snow apples are $1.50, other fall apples are $1.00. Enquiry is beginning to be heard from holders of winter stock, which quote in an experimental sort of way at $2.25. Pears are still quite plentiful at the old range of $2.50 to $4.50. Grapes quote at 2½ to 3c. for Concords, 2½ to 4c. for Rogers, and 3½ to 4c. for Niagaras. Quinces are unchanged and in liberal receipt at $3 25 per barrel, and 40 to 50c. a basket. Cranberries are $8 per barrel and $2.75 to $3.25 per box.

N. B.—The old STANDARD BRAND of HORSESHOE CANNED SALMON still takes the lead, and affords the greatest satisfaction to both dealer and consumer, and for uniform excellence in quality and weight has no equal.

GREEN FRUIT.

An easier demand for lemons is a consequence of cool weather. Maoris are firm at $9, and have the market almost entirely to themselves. There are a few Malaga lemons at $6.50 per half chest. Jamaica oranges are steady at $7.50 to $8. Floridas are in more acceptable condition and in more free receipt at $4 to $4.25. New Malaga grapes are just coming into stock at $6 per keg. Bananas are scarce st $1.25 to $1.75. Sweet potatoes at $3.50 to $4 for Jerseys and $2.75 to $3 for Baltimores.

SALT.

The week's business in salt has been satisfactory to the wholesalers, who report more sales in large lots than they made a week ago. The Toronto Salt Works sold 3 cars of coarse sacks at 70c., and 2 cars of barrels at $1.18 on Tuesday.

DRY GOODS.

The tone of trade is slightly better, more seasonable weather having a bracing influence upon it. There is nothing to be specially jubilant over even yet, however, as the activity in buying is but slightly better than it was a week ago, while the orders are of the hand to mouth description.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Oct. 23, 1891.

The grocery market during the week just past has been a quiet one for various reasons. In the first place a pending trade sale of teas, molasses, etc., kept buyers back on these lines, while in dried fruit they seem decidedly nervous about the future. This feeling seems strange in view of the light shipments of raisins, etc., to this side the Atlantic, which were fully 25 per cent. less to the end of September than for the same time last year, but buyers no doubt have in mind the very large offerings of all kinds of green fruits which have to be consumed and are remarkably cheap.

SUGAR, SYRUP, ETC.

Advices from all primary markets continue strong, and sharp advances are reported in cane as well as beet sugars, particularly the latter. The changes, however, have had little effect on spot prices, although refiners say if the tone continues as strong they will have to make figures a little higher. Granulated is quoted here at 4½c. at the refinery, and yellows 3½ to 4¼c., with a fairly good trade doing.

Syrups are receiving more attention and are held about ⅛c. higher, at 2⅞ to 3⅜c. Choice Barbadoes molasses is steady at 38c., notwithstanding sales at less recently by auction. Antigua has sold at 30½c. and Porto Rico 32c.

TEAS.

There is a fairly active demand for teas, but the trade sale interfered with trade somewhat. At the sale ideas were very low and quite half the quantity was withdrawn. For all that the market is steady.

COFFEE AND SPICES.

The coffee markets generally have a better feeling but as the local market has been but slightly effected either by the rise or fall, there is no change to note on this market. Very little stock is offering here, and we still quote 19 to 19½c. Spices are steady, pepper moving 9¼ to 9 1-2, and aloes the same.

RICE.

The rice market has been quiet during the week, with a fair jobbing trade doing, however. Mill prices are as follows:—Patna $4.50 to $5, Japan $4.25 to $4.50, Standard $3.90 and off grades $3.50 in car lots.

DRIED FRUIT.

The market is pretty much the same as it was a week ago and there is the same absence of demand complained of. Jobbers who at this season of the year usually stock up in anticipation of holiday trading, seem afraid to do so this fall and business in consequence is not brisk. It seems hard to account for this spirit in view of the light shipments of dried fruit to this side of the Atlantic. A letter from a leading firm in in Spain states that up to the end of September, the date of the letter, the shipments of raisins to America altogether were 25 per cent. less than the shipments to the same date last season, yet no one seems at all anxious. Buyers are taking very sparingly and transactions amounting to 500 boxes are rare. Some round lots of prime stock have been moved at 5⅜c., with second brands ⅛ to ¼c. less, and values have an easy tendency as low offers continue to be made from London, which to a certain extent interferes with the market. With the close of navigation and higher freights however, this factor will be removed. Currants also are slightly easier, and some round lots of Provincials have been moved at 5⅜ to 5⅝c. in barrels, with proportionate advances for jobbing lots.

GREEN FRUIT.

The market for both lemons and oranges show no particular change, business being of an ordinary jobbing character. Malaga lemons have been moved at $9. to $10 per case and Sorento oranges $3.50 to $4.50 per box. Other kinds are the same.

CANNED GOODS.

Canned goods continue very quiet. Tomatoes are offering freely in round lots at 95c., but jobbers are holding off in anticipation of lower prices owing to the unprecedented pack in this province. With large quantities of fresh green stock offering fruits are neglected, and the market generally is quite flat.

FISH.

The fish market is not active, but prices rule firm under light supplies. Herring are strong and higher at $5.25 to $6 per barrel, and green cod is quite scarce and firm. No. 1 has advanced to $5.50 to $5.75, No. 2 in proportion. Dry cod is steady, and the same can be said of salmon, red sea trout, etc.

APPLES.

The local market does not improve, but advices of sales of stock in Liverpool show very fair figures compared with a year ago. In fact they are quite as good as last year's opening whatever change the future will show. This will be known as soon as the heavy shipments during the present and previous week will be on the English market shortly and afford a reliable test of its consumptive abilities. During the week the shipments from this port aggregated 43,238 barrels, 28,064 to Liverpool, 10,569 to Glasgow, 4,605 to London. Returns on first shipments of fall apples just to hand state that they netted about $2.50 to $2.25 a barrel, and locally $1.75 to $2.00 is the idea for winter varieties, and $1.50 for fall discriptions while snows run from $1.00 up.

HOPS.

There is no change in hops, and buyers are only booking in a hand to mouth way. About 15c. would move as much stock as anyone wants, but buyers do not seem disposed to operate ahead, so that values are more or less nominal.

PROVISIONS.

Pork has been fairly active during the week but the demand for smoked meats and lard has fallen off. Values rule unchanged. We quote:—Canadian short cut, per brl. $17 to $17.25; mess pork, western, per brl. $14.50 to $14.75; short cut, western, per brl. $17.25 to $17.50; hams, city cured, per lb. 10 1-2 to 11 1-2; hams, canvassed, per lb. 00 to 00; lard Canadian, in pails, 0.08¾ to 9c; bacon, per lb. 9c. to 10c; lard com. refined, per lb. 7¾ to 8c.

EGGS.

The egg market has maintained a steady level throughout the week, and there is no change to note in our prices as compared with a week ago. Demand has been good, and within the past few days has picked up somewhat. Prices are the same, 14 to 14½c. for round lots and 15c. for single packages.

BUTTER.

There is nothing to complan of about the market and holders have been pretty well cleared up here. The export demand is maintained while high values rule across the line so that it would seem as though we were going to have a strong range of values right through the winter. A certain quality will be required for home consumption and with a good shipping demand for all kinds and stock well sold up in first hands a change in the direction of lower prices seems hardly possible. Late made creamery has been selling for export as high as 23 1-2 and there is a call for Township dairy as well at 18½c.

CHEESE.

This product drags along quietly, with no change since our last and business unimportant. It is a stand-off between the English buyer and the Canadian holder. At present the latter does not seem inclined to give way, while the former is taking only what he absolutely wants. This makes a quiet market and it is hard to predict as regards the future, but it is likely that a quiet sort of trade will rule until the opening of December, as November is always a dull month in the export cheese trade. Finest is held nominally at 10c. and over here.

GRAIN.

There is no change in grain with very little doing in wheat, business being principally conferred to coarse grains such as peas and oats which are moving slowly at quotations. The stocks in store compared with a week ago show an increase of 49,459 wheat, 4,100 corn, 78,012 peas, 47,374 oats, 40,863 barley, and 41,735 rye. Compared with a year ago there is an increase of 231,094 wheat, 240'792 peas, 142,264 oats, 81,633 barley, 74,729 rye, and a decrease of 28,365 corn. We quote: No. 1 hard Manitoba, $o No. 2 do. $1.05 to $1.07; No. 3 do., 97c; No. 2 Northern, $1.04; peas, 72c. per 66 pounds in store, 73c. afloat; oats, 31c. per 34 pounds; corn, 68c. to 69c. duty paid; feed barley, 48c; good malting do. 55c. to 57c.

FLOUR.

The market has been quiet during the week with little change, but within the past few days the call for local wants has improved somewhat, as buyers want to have a certain proportion of old wheat stock on hand before new wheat stock is on the market. Values, however, are the same. The stock in store shows a decrease of 3,608 brls. compared to a year ago. Patent spring $5.00 to $5.30; Patent winter $5.00 to $5.25; straight roller $4.75 to $4.85; Extra $4.40 to $4.50; Superfine $3.95 to $4.25; City strong bakers' $5.00 to $5.10; Strong bakers' $4.75 to $5.

ST. JOHN, N. B., MARKETS.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Oct. 21, 1891.

While there has been a good trade the past week we hear complaints about the difficulty in collecting money which seems to be very scarce.

SUGAR—A slight advance has been reported in refined sugar and Yellows are in good demand, the last sales reported are, Yellows 3½ to 3¾c., Granulated 4½ to 4⅝c.

FLOUR—A fair demand with dealers well supplied, prices not much changed, though lower prices seem very probable.

MEAL—Lower prices this week and a steady demand with a preference for American ground.

OATMEAL—Is steady with a good demand.

FISH—Smoked herring are arriving in large quantities and prices some easier, the catch this season is larger than for years. Dry fish still keep scarce and higher prices will be the rule. Pollock are quoted at $2.00 to $2.15. Cod, medium, $3.80 to $4.00; large, $4.75 to $5.00.

BUTTER—The market is very poorly supplied and what is offering is only of fair quality, prices range from 17 to 19c.

EGGS—Are very scarce and firmer in price, 12 to 13½c.

POTATOES—Are selling readily at $1.15 to $1.20 per bbl., and as large quantities are being shipped it keeps an active demand here.

OATS—Are selling at 37 to 39c.

The neglect to look after minute details in the factory is a source of great loss to many producers.

The trader who pays his way must sell at a profit, and cannot afford to cut below others in the same line.

THE ROYAL DAUBER.

The accompanying cut shows "The Royal Dauber" which is manufactured in Troy, N. Y., by Messrs. Peabody and Parks, and is on sale in Canada by Messrs. Chas. Bœckh & Sons, Toronto. The dauber is an entirely new thing in blacking brushes, consisting solely of tinned malleable iron and pure bristles. It also has a scraper for removing mud from the crevices of the shoes, and is indestructible, because the only materials used in its manufacture are tin coated iron and bristles, fastened to the handle and held in one solid mass by compression in a grip of iron, and fastened with an iron rivet. Merchants should see this dauber. It is said to be a dandy.

A REVOLUTION IN SASH LOCKS.

Among builders and architects there has been felt for a comsiderable time, the great necessity of a thoroughly good and simple sash lock, and the Automatic Sash Lock Co., Toronto, have at last succeeded in perfecting a lock, with which, in simplicity, durability and safety, none can compare. Numerous unsuccessful attempts have been made to manufacture a lock which would overcome the necessity of a house parade every night, to see that windows were locked, but this Company have succeeded in making a lock that renders it an impossibility for windows to be closed and not locked. It also draws the sash tightly together, and prevents the most shaky windows from rattling. This lock may be obtained from all the jobbing houses, or from the Company's sole agents, Messrs. Craig, MacArthur & Co., Scott and Front Sts., Toronto.

In order to maintain retail prices of sugar the Minneapolis retail grocers' association requested the jobbers of its city not to sell to retailers who cut sugar. The jobbers signed an agreement to that effect, but recently it was violated by one of the wholesalers, in spite of protests by the association. The retailers are also having trouble with the commission merchants, some of whom persist in selling to consumers. -Merchants' Review.

SEVENTEEN POUNDS FOR A DOLLAR.

BRANTFORD, Oct. 17, '91.

DEAR EDITOR,—From THE GROCER I infer that 20 lbs. granulated sugar has all season been the ruling price, in most of the neighboring towns and cities, when the wholesale price was 5c. I am surprised at the lack of wisdom of such grocers, and feel proud to learn that we, in Brantford, can teach them a lesson in the sugar business, insomuch as the general price here has since July 1st been 17 lbs., which price was conceded by the members of our Association, and has been well maintained to date by the leading grocers, though possibly more pounds have been the rule in one end of our town where they usually cut very deep. I hope the dealers in other towns may learn something, in the line of sugar, from the wiseacres of Brantford.

Yours truly,

A 17 POUNDER.

[Twenty pounds for a dollar has not been a common concession, since the time previous to the first advance after the removal of the duty. The danger that it might become somewhat general since prices got down to the same basis again is what THE GROCER wished to guard against.—ED.]

BUSINESS DEVELOPMENTS.

If some of our forefathers who lived only a hundred years ago, says the National Grocer, were able to come and spend a short time upon this terrestrial sphere they would vividly recognize that during those one hundred years the world had not been at a standstill. They would realize that what was the voyage of a lifetime could now almost be measured by hours. They would realize the fact much more forcibly than we do that the world's progress was more rapid and considerably more certain than we are willing to admit that it is. It is this gradual and onward march of progress that makes itself felt in science, in business, and almost every sphere of life, excepting perhaps theology and law.

Let us see. Is it not in the memory of many of our readers when the grocery trade was by no means what it is to-day? We well remember the time when there was no such thing as granulated sugar or cut loaf sugar; yes, when there was scarcely such a thing as refined sugar. We had to accept from the cane growers an abortion which used to be termed in trade parlance White Barbadoes, but which was a solid cake weighing, more or less, 200 pounds, and the best way to get into it was to drop it out of a three-storey window and then place is upon a tray and get a good steel chisel and heavy mallet in order to break it in sufficiently small lumps to place it in the sugar mill. Then there was the old fashioned sugar loaf, which varied from 20 to 50 pounds, and the industrious grocer's boy had to cut this with an ordinary chopper into conveniently small lumps for the housewife. We could go on repeating this story almost indefinitely and as a kind of variation record the time when the grocer boy would stand over a small mill grinding pepper. One great advantage of the latter manipulation would be an absolute impossibility to get to sleep over the operation. But all these things are past and gone. The grocer of to-day has his granulated sugar neatly delivered in barrels and his loaf sugar evenly cut to deliver out to his customer, and the pepper, if he so desires, neatly packed in two-ounce packages ready to hand to his patron. There was a time when the sugar mite was a bane to the grocer's boy, but alas even this is a thing of the past, and yet the trade complains how hard its lot is.

Who says that the world is not progresing and that the grocery trade is at a standstill? We can all mourn at our lot, but are there not some who are worse off than ourselves? We must confess that there is not much inspiration to be obtained from the dilapidated grocery store which burns an oil lamp and has a conspicuous landmark a ne'er-do-well appearance. But what about the modern grocery, with its bright fittings, its clerks and its brilliant electric lights? There is some inspiration in this, because it is an illustration of the development of business. The time of the old tallow dip is gone no more to return and in its place has come a new order of things, which has brought forth something that can be cherished. The customer at the modern store would despise even the choicest that was given in the old time dilapidated store which in most cases only exists in memory.

Do you intend to live up to the times? If so you must take cognizance of every improvement which is calculated to increase the efficiency of your establishment and add to its economy and attractiveness.

The world does not stand still as you do.

The Winnipeg Board of Trade has passed the following resolution: "That this board while disclaiming any right to interfere with the matter of the amalgamation of the Northwest Commercial Travellers' Association with the Commercial Travellers' Association of Canada, desires to express its opinion that no action should be taken which would tend to weaken the unity of Northwestern trade, which the mercantile element of this province has sacrificed so much to build up and cement, and in which sacrifice the Northwest Commercial Travellers' Association has borne its share.

For some days past promenaders have been attracted by yellow posters on the boardings around town announcing accounts for sale by the Canadian Commercial agency, on December 16. This in itself is not what attracts the curious; it is the list of names under the heading. There can be seen a list of thirty-two names of persons, more or less prominent, who are alleged to owe amounts from $2 to $50 to grocers, tailors, shoemakers and jewelers. The name is given, where the person is employed, his private address and the class of goods he is said to owe for as well as the amount. But the name of the firm to which the money is said to be owing is not given. At the bottom of the bill is an offer of a reward of $10 for the names of persons defacing or destroying the bills. On another part it says that these accounts will be sold by public auction on the date mentioned, unless previously settled. These bills are posted in all parts of the city, but the largest number are on the boards at the corner of Ontario and St. Lawrence streets, where they attracted a great deal of attention yesterday.—Montreal Gazette.

A customer secured is a promise of greater salary in time.

CERTIFICATES OF STRENGTH AND PURITY.

OFFICE OF THE PUBLIC ANALYST,

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Co., Montreal:

GENTLEMEN,—I have personally taken samples from a large stock of your Granulated Sugar, "REDPATH" brand, and carefully tested them by the Polariscope, and I find these samples to be as near to absolute purity as can be obtained by any process of Sugar-Refining.

The test by the Polariscope showed in yesterday s yield 99·90 per cent. of Pure Cane Sugar, which may be considered commercially as ABSOLUTELY PURE SUGAR.

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Company:

GENTLEMEN,—I have taken and tested a sample of your "EXTRA GRANULATED" Sugar, and find that it yielded 99·88 per cent. of Pure Sugar It is practically as pure and good a Sugar as can be manufactured.

Yours truly,

It is well-known

That successful Doctors read all the latest medical books and papers and go abroad occasionally to study. Successful lawyers read legal publications to learn the latest legal decisions and points constantly cropping up. Teachers, clergymen, druggists, architects, all read the publication issued in the interests of their profession. They must do so to keep up with the times.

The same applies to grocers and general merchants. They must not only read the best papers published in their interests but must also watch the advertisements closely. There they learn the rise and fall in prices; latest trade news and methods of buying, handling and selling goods, so that they may make the greatest profit. A doctor reads much that he already knows, so does a lawyer. So does a number of any of the other professions. So will a merchant. It is often the issue of the paper he misses that is worth dollars to him. His best and safest policy, therefore, is to subscribe for his trade paper.

The only exclusively grocery and general store paper is THE CANADIAN GROCER issued weekly, subscription price $2 00 per year.

SPECIAL TO OUR READERS.

As the design of THE CANADIAN GROCER is to benefit mutually all interested in the business, we would request all parties ordering goods or making purchases of any description from houses advertising with us to mention in their letter that such advertisement was noticed in THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Slow but apparently sure, is the progress of trade towards that state of activity which everybody has looked forward to for the past two months. Traders who have a ledger full of accounts due them cannot but be impatient, while the wheat lies stored in the granaries of the farmers. But our farmers are waiting for the price to go up, while the tremendous exports from the United States to Europe are bringing the prices down. The receipts abroad are very considerably in excess of present requirements, so that the English and Continental markets are accordingly dull. The great rush of deliveries was made upon the strength of rumors that the crops of Russia, Germany and France would be very short. While the shortage may be no less than estimated, it is certain that it has not been given time to tell on prices the way it was expected to tell on them. The German crop is stated in an official report to be 18 per cent. below the average of the past few years. The estimated deficit in France, based on government statistics, also show a big deficit in the yield. Russia has up to the present been a perplexing factor in the situation, the large receipts from that country helping to bear the European market and to upset calculations. The recent interference of the Russian government to prohibit exports of corn, oats and wheat has had a reassuring effect, and restored confidence has been reflected in Liverpool quotations. The returns showing shortage in the German wheat crop are followed by reports that rye flour mixed with cornmeal will be the raw material of the bread used in the army. While this shows the wheat crop to be short, it also betokens a falling off in the consumption of wheat flour. High prices or prospective high prices have often the effect of bringing forward a substitute that will affect the market.

* * * *

Easy prices may be temporary, and the weight of opinion is on that side of the question. The United States crop, like our own, has been very large. First, that fact, next the tempting prospects which a big upward movement in prices about the first of September conjured up, and lastly the repeated rumors of European scarcity led to a sudden exportation movement from the United States, at a time when all the vigor there is in the European crops was being exerted. The pressure of hard times was forcing the farmers of England, France, Germany, Russia and the other wheat growing countries over the sea to market their grain. At this unseasonable moment the United States fairly inundated the storehouses of Europe with supplies, sending forward more than twice the quantity of wheat it had shipped by this time last year. This could not fail to have a depressing effect upon prices even in a year of greater scarcity. Buyers have got a lot of wheat at easier prices as a consequence of this precipitate movement.

* * * *

It is to be hoped that the waiting game being played by the majority of our farmers will be the best one. They may not be waiting so much on account of reasonable expectations as on account of habit. It is their usual custom to be backward in selling, and they as often lose as gain by it. At present their course seems to have the sanction of common sense. Of course, there is still an immense amount of wheat yet to ship from the United States, and that will affect the future market as the portion already exported has affected the current market. But the crop grown in European countries will not be so much in the way, and the home supply being reduced, the home demand will be calculable in advances if the supply be not generously forced from this side as it has been for some time. The market may be turned to the advantage of the sellers on this continent if they hold judiciously, in the same way as it was turned to the advantage of buyers in Europe because growers did not hold judiciously.

* * * *

Though prices are almost certain to be good, even in the dim light of the present situation, there is no doubt that if they were not, there ought to be a lot of money moving this fall and winter, as the farmer has more bushels to sell than ever he had, and even with low prices he is not likely to get less per bushel than he sold for last year. Better times are at hand. If the farmer ever were well deserving of trust he ought to be now. Country traders ought to realize this, if they can afford to let him get a little more on account, for there are ten chances to one that if he waits to buy until after he gets his fall money, he will go to some town or city dealer with the money and leave his old friend the country merchant just so much the less money. The sales of wheat so far have mostly been made under pressure to realize. A comparison between the condition of the farmer in this country, and that of the farmer in the United States is suggested by the comparison of the quantities of wheat that has moved from first hands already. It would seem to favor the conclusion that the United States agricultural population is in more straitened circumstances than the Canadian, otherwise they would have held on longer to their wheat. Mortgages are numerous enough here, and interest as well as rent is heavy enough, but it seems these have not forced the farmer to sell to any large extent while prices are low.

MEN OF THE TIMES.

MR. G. W. GANONG.

The fruit that does so quickly waste
Thou comfitest in sweets to make it last.
—COWLEY.

Many people who are reasonably open to conviction, and who are prepared to admit that a rose would smell as sweet if called by any other name, will dispute the statement that a bon-bon or a cream chocolate will give equal delight to the palate if it bore any other mark than the letters "G. B." These two consonants appeal in this connection less to the hearing than to the taste, and though they may not be the sweetest-sounding in the alphabet, they are voted by a large body of candy epicures to be the sweetest-tasting. These letters are the initials of Ganong Bros., the well-known confectionery manufacturers in St. Stephen, N.B. The brand G. B. is a certificate of excellence, which in every case is confirmed by the goods that bear it. This is the only way whereby it is possible to make a brand significant of quality; it will mean good, indifferent or bad to people, according as the wares bearing it prove themselves good, indifferent or bad. When the test of time has brought it into mental association with one or other of these attributes in the public or commercial regard, it will mean as much if quoted in an invoice or an advertisement as if attached to the goods.

MR. G. W. GANONG.

Mr. G. W. Ganong is the senior partner in the firm of Ganong Bros. The other member is Mr. E. B. Kierstead. The style is the survival of a time when the composition of the firm accorded with the firm-name. Mr. Ganong is a native of Springfield, in King's County, New Brunswick, where he was born in the year 1851. There he also received his education. At the age of 17 he became a school teacher. Four years afterwards he abandoned this calling and went into produce and commission trading. His next step, taken three years later, was into the manufacture of confectionery. This was in the year 1874. He started on a modest scale, employing but one man, and limited his output to hard candy goods, doing at the same time a fair-sized jobbing business. He was getting along very well when his progress was suddenly and disastrously checked by a fire, in which he lost about all that he had made. This misfortune befel him in the same year as the city of St. John was devastated, by a fire which has now become historical. Two years later Mr. Ganong and his brother James H., a sketch of whom appeared in an earlier part of this series, went into partnership in St. Stephen, for the manufacture of confectionery, the firm name being that under which the business goes on to-day. The two brothers continued together until 1885, when James H. left to start the St. Croix Soap Company's business. Mr. G. W. now carried on the business alone for some time. In 1887 his trade had outgrown his premises, and he bought from St. Stephen Bank the site of his firm's present manufactory. Here he constructed a fine large building 100 feet in depth, and had got it nicely into running order when he ran up against another reverse from his old enemy the fire fiend. The new factory was burnt to the ground. In 1889 he built on the same spot the factory in which his firm does business now. In the same year Mr. Kierstead came in

The present premises of the firm are ample in space, and constructed with an eye to protection from the scourge of fire, which has twice touched with disaster the fortunes of the founder of the house. The factory covers an area of 200 x 52 square feet and is three storeys high, with a spacious basement under it. Throughout its entire height the building is divided into three sections by fire-walls. The basement is used for storage and chocolate making. On the first floor the retail store and offices take up a full section, the stock and shipping department require another, and the third is the boiler and engine room. On the second floor, one section is given up to help and dressing room, another to packing and hard candy making, and the other one to cocoanut and pan work. On the third floor handmade creams are produced in one section, the second section is the room for lozenges, moulded goods, and marsh-mallow goods, the third section is occupied by a starch room and the manufacture of gum and grain work. An annex building for paper and wooden boxes completes the establishment. This fine factory is heated by steam, lighted by gas and traversed from basement to top storey by steam elevators. The works need to be large, the warehouse space commodious and the staff of employes numerous to maintain the supply of the firm's choice confectionery, now in request all over Canada. The processes through which the raw material goes to become the finished product are complex, scientific and interesting, but cannot be compressed into the space allotted to a sketch. One or two things may be noticed. Cooling is done not only by means of marble slabs but also by cold water. An interesting thing is a patent marker for chocolate goods and bon bons, to impress upon them with a rubber plate the letters G. B. Cream goods are moulded not only in starch but also in rubber, by a process which goes by the name of the Coleman Patent Rubber Mould, which the firm control in the Maritime Provinces. They make a specialty of high class creams and chocolates, in the manufacture of which, as their reputation shows, they excel.

The force that is behind this business of huge volume and wide distribution is strong in the character and ability of its principal. Mr. Ganong showed himself a man who could buffet with adversity and not come out second best in the end. The spirit of the majority of men in the same circumstances would have collapsed after the first fire, and few would not have knocked under to the second. But Mr. Ganong was made of more enduring stuff, and his position today among the manufacturers of the country is no more than is due to a man of so much pluck. He is an active and enlightened supporter of every movement that makes for the good of his town.

COLLECTION LAWS AND CREDIT.

Our collection laws are imperfect. Where they are most needed they are of least service. In this province the class of debtors most refractory from the collector's standpoint have really been made so by the law. Of course this class of debtors, in the very nature of their character and their circumstances, would be hard to recover a debt from, but law, in undertaking to make them responsible has really made them more dangerous to the trader. If there were no garnishee law for the trader to have recourse to, all the chances would be against this class of customers obtaining credit. They would be thrown on their own merits, which means that they would not be accepted as credit customers. The easy problem of keeping their earnings out of the way of garnishee they are almost forced to solve by their necessities. Very few of them can afford to lie out of their wages long enough for the balance in the hands of employers to amount to the minimum garnishable by a creditor. And where they could afford to do so, they are usually wily enough in knowledge of the law and dishonest enough to get the money out of harm's way. Thus the trader is tempted by the seeming security of the law to trust people whom he would not otherwise trust. The law fails to make them eligible debtors in the majority of cases, and the trader loses what is owing to him. An order from the court is as often impotent as not with this class of people, whose movements cannot be watched and checked by the only man concerned in keeping them in sight.

There ought to be some means of making dead beats responsible to their creditors. The law needs amending in this respect. When imprisonment was a penalty for indebtedness, there was a good deal of hardship in the carrying out of the law, that made it most desirable for this mode of punishing debtors to be abolished. From the standpoint of sympathy with the unfortunate but worthy debtor, it is well off our statute books, where and from that point of view it must be looked upon as a disgrace to the times to which it was continued. But unless the laws to which a man may have recourse for the recovery of money from worthless debtors can be made more effective for that purpose, it would be better that all of them should follow that for the imprisonment of debtors and be blotted out from among our enactments. If they were. there would be a remarkable curtailment of credit, and business would be on a much sounder basis. Credit would have a basis only in property, and would be the stronger for the removal from under it of the collecting laws that have been devised for getting money of people who have no stake of any sort in the community.

THE POSITION OF SUGAR.

The conditions necessary to be taken into account to anticipate the movements of the sugar market during the next few weeks are not yet clearly defined. Prices may not vary from the points they now rest at, or they may. The indefinite factor is the beet crop, which is yet a matter of estimate, and the statistician who is looked to as an authority, M. Licht, has been calling in former estimates lately, and in his most recent conjecture leaves himself a considerable range of latitude. The latest estimate of the European crops shows that there ought to be 400,000 tons of surplus for export. This news comes on the heels of liberal receipts of Brazilian cane, which came on the New York market at easier prices on account of the recent political disturbances in South America, which disturbances enhanced the necessity for the sellers to realize on their sugar as early as possible. Supplies of Java to the same market have also been liberal. Despite the signs of easier prices, however, the price of granulated went up 1-16c. in New York on Monday.

In the New York market prices are unsettled still, but the weakness that characterized the situation throughout last week is passing away. There demoralization was rife among the refiners on the 22d inst., when prices got down to 4c. and made that date notable as the one on which the heaviest sales of sugar were made that have ever been effected there in a single day's business. The cutting was begun by the Spreckels Refinery in Philadelphia. Though outside of the Trust, there is little doubt that this refiner co-operates with the Trust. He inaugurates a cut when refined begins to accumulate, and furnishes a pretext for the Trust refiners to lower prices to protect themselves, when their, as well as his, real object is to bring down the price of raw. Brazilian receipts were just beginning to arrive when the warfare began, and this coincidence harmonizes with others that have been observed in other cutting spells. The cutting is also at times a piece of strategy on the part of a majority of stockholders in the Trust whose object is to force down temporarily the price of shares, scare timid holders and then buy. Spreckels' refinery comes in handy for that object of the Trust as well, which is a policy of concentration on the part of wily operators. A cut in such circumstances is a sign of strength rather than weakness, as it shows the stock is evidently desirable property in the eyes of the manipulators of the cut.

The movements of the New York market are thus frequently due to speculative intrigue ; hence our market does not accompany them in all their aberrations. Even every movement that is the outcome of legitimate business on that market has not its counterpart here, though the disturbance in the relation between the supply and demand must finally affect the markets of the world in some degree. A little shading in the United States means a big total in a country where the distribution is so large. It is therefore worth shading for, even if it means the addition of the troublesome fraction 1-16c. Here a change is not made in response to every influence, but is usually put off till the sum of the movements warrant a change of ⅛c.

A peculiarity of consumption this fall is that it has been strong in grades that were expected to be the most neglected. It was anticipated that the demand would be almost restricted to granulated and low grade yellows, whereas it has taken a strong set in the line of good bright yellows. The sale of low grade raws has also fallen off, but that is less due to the bent of the demand towards bright sugars, than to the low prices at which dark refined has been obtainable.

Prices at the Canadian refineries are at the moment firm. The state of the market in New York led to expectations of weakness here, and offers slightly under current rates were made but were declined. An attitude of aloofness on the part of buyers has developed no signs of giving way, and the recovery on the other side of the line has given fresh strength to the situation. Along with this and to the same end operated a report of a very great shortage in the European beet crop that was said to have come from M. Lecht. This though subsequently denied had a bracing effect for the time.

WELL WORDED APPROVAL.

OTTERVILLE, Oct. 20, 1891.

THE J. B. MCLEAN, PUBLISHING CO.

DEAR SIRS,—Please find enclosed payment in full for CANADIAN GROCER and for HARDWARE for one year from Feb. 1st 1891 to Feb. 1st, 1892. I am well pleased with both papers, and I consider them the best published in your city. I find your market quotations very reliable, your weekly review of the same is very instructive, and the pointers you give on trade, store management, human nature, etc., are indeed useful for merchants that are young in the business, and the old traders can glean some knowledge as well. Hoping there is a bright future in store for you.

Yours truly,

CHAS. BURKHOLDER.

P.S.—What will you furnish THE GROCER, HARDWARE, and DRY GOODS REVIEW at for one year ? Please send me a specimen copy of THE DRY GOODS REVIEW, and oblige.

A TYPOGRAPHICAL ERROR.

SARNIA, 21st Oct., 1891.

To the Editor CANADIAN GROCER.

DEAR SIR,—Re tobacco Price List in CANADIAN GROCER, we find you quote Lily 53c. Is this correct ? As we were advised some time ago by the manufacturer of an advance of 2c., making it 55c., we think you should have it the same.

J. KENNY & CO.

[We are obliged to Messrs. Kenny & Co. for drawing our attention to this error. The figure 3 was set up by mistake for 5, and escaped our attention.—ED.]

A WORK ON THE GROCERY TRADE.

VICTORIA, Oct. 20, 1891.

Editor CANADIAN GROCER :

DEAR SIR,—Would you kindly advise me where I could procure the best work relating to the grocery trade? I saw in your paper a piece stating that every good grocer should know his business thoroughly ; hence the question. GROCER.

[The source from which a grocer must draw the most thorough knowledge is not a trade text-book, but a good training, frequent contact with other minds in the same trade, and close attention to the current history of the trade. All these influences are desirable, but where all are impossible, one or two of them must be at work in a successful business career. A training is got usually in youth in the service of other grocers, contact with members of the same trade is obtainable through organization, and the current history of the trade is to be read in the journal specially devoted to that trade.—EDITOR.]

SELLING TO CONSUMERS.

TORONTO, ONT., Oct. 23, 1891.

EDITOR CANADIAN GROCER,

DEAR SIR,—In your editorial, of to-day, you state that "there are some wholesale grocers who adhere both to the letter and the spirit of the rule to sell only to retailers." I am very glad to hear it, for I know to my sorrow that there are others who adhere neither to the letter nor spirit of it. I have had several accounts taken from me by the wholesale trade of this city. No later than last week I was informed by the steward of an educational institution, that if he were buying from a retailer he would give me the preference, but that he purchased his goods from Messrs. ————————, a large (and I ought to say) very respectable Front st. firm. The account would be from $75 to $100 per month. A very fair one for a retailer, but one can scarcely imagine a large wholesale firm breaking faith with the retail trade for it.

No wholesale grocer should sell to any but those in the trade. Large hotels and large government institutions are exempt, because they purchase in larger quantities than the average retailer, and could import their own goods if necessary.

But the wholesale merchants have no more right to sell ordinary institutions and boarding houses than to private families, and those doing so should not receive the support of the retail trade.

Yours truly,

WM. MARA.

CULLED COMPLIMENTS.

The October number of THE CANADIAN GROCER, which should be taken by every merchant, contains many superior articles. Extracts therefrom will appear in The Warder.—Lindsay Warder.

The Fall number of THE CANADIAN GROCER is out. Its 70 pages of advertising and reading matter are well printed, and the articles are replete with information valuable to the grocery trade.—World.

A special edition of THE CANADIAN GROCER has been issued, handsomely printed and illustrated. Among the engravings, are several cuts of western commercial establishments.—Winnipeg Commercial.

Magnificent Fall numbers of both THE CANADIAN GROCER and St. Joseph Journal of Commerce have been received. Both publications surpass any of their previous efforts, and that is saying a great deal.—Denver Commercial Tribune.

The Fall issue of THE CANADIAN GROCER proved to be very interesting last week, and we wish to congratulate our friend McLean upon its handsome appearance. It contained 70 pages, printed on heavy paper, elegantly illustrated and ably edited.—Chicago Grocer.

THE GROCER, of this city, issued, a week or two ago, one of the neatest specials it has yet sent out. A large addition to its advertising columns helped, no doubt, to pay for the expenditure that must have been involved in so fine an exhibition of printer's art.—Canadian Shoe and Leather Journal

The Fall number of THE CANADIAN GROCER is a very pretty and very interesting publication. It is replete with illustrations of great artistic merit, interesting articles on a variety of subjects, and special reports of considerable value relating to the trade of the past year. The type and paper, too, are of a superior class.—Canadian Trade Review.

We offer our congratulations to Messrs. J. B. McLean & Co., publishers of THE CANADIAN GROCER, upon the handsome appearance of the Fall number of that valued exchange. It is a 70 page issue, is printed on heavy super paper, elegantly illustrated and ably edited. In every respect it is a credit to the publishers.—N. Y. Merchants' Review.

The Fall number of THE CANADIAN GROCER, both from a literary and artistic viewpoint, is of unusual excellence. The last few years have witnessed rapid advances in the constitution of the trade press generally, and a glance at our northern friend is sufficient to show that it has enjoyed a full participation in the common improvement.—Grocery World.

The Fall number of THE CANADIAN GROCER, which we have just received, is a veritable jewel; cuts, printing, paper, everything in it is artistic; it is needless to say that the editorial part leaves nothing to be desired ; our friend Mr. McLean is not the man to let himself be distanced by anybody. From another point of view, that of the advertisements, it is also a grand success.—Le Prix Courant.

THE CANADIAN GROCER has just issued its Fall number, consisting of about 70 pages of intensely interesting matter to the grocers, canners, produce and provision dealers and general storekeepers. The number is an exceptionally good one, is beautifully illustrated, some of it in colors, and reflects the highest credit on its publishers, the J. B. McLean Publishing Co. Published weekly at $2 a year.—Delhi Reporter.

The Fall number of THE CANADIAN GROCER now out is a very artistically gotten up number, reflecting much credit on the proprietors. THE GROCER has already established a good name among the trade, and its enterprise in putting out this special number will add to its popularity. This issue contains many pretty illustrations and some well selected reading matter.—The Mail.

The Fall number of THE CANADIAN GROCER is an issue of 70 pages, bound in a new, illustrated cover. It is printed on calendered paper and contains many interesting cuts, some illustrative of the interior retail stores. We also have a picture of the British Columbia sugar refinery at Vancouver, B. C. The number contains several pertinent and timely practical articles. In its entire make up the issue is characteristic of the push and enterprise of the proprietor and editors.—American Grocer.

The Fall number of THE CANADIAN GROCER; just issued, is a work of art, as well as being a review of the events, movements and tendencies which have chased each other rapidly across the horizon of trade during the past year. It comprises reports of all the news bearing upon trade questions, articles upon the causes of recent failures, stockkeeping, bookkeeping and like subjects all of which are pregnant with interest for merchant and trader. It contains articles contributed by gentlemen high up in trade circles throughout Canada, which will be found to be well worth reading, as advancing the latest thoughts and solutions of problems which for centuries have been disturbing commerce.—The Empire.

We were not aware that it was possible for any one journal to practically include all the members of a trade in its circulation until we read such a statement in print.—Toronto Merchant.

NOTES TAKEN ON THE ROAD.

Mr. H. N. Shaw, Ottawa, thinks he has the only coffee mill run by electricity in the Dominion. The cost is about $40 per year.

Mr. J. S. Baxter, Smith's Falls, holds his own in volume of trade with the best of them, and speaks very favorably of the prospects for the good live business men of the town.

The firm of Fitzpatrick & Harris dissolved partnership last June, since which time Mr. Geo. Fitzpatrick has been sole proprietor. He says his trade is steadily increasing and is well satisfied with the past year's business.

S. B. and J. A. Kennedy, 238 and 240 Rideau street, Ottawa, are one of the successful retail grocery firms of that city. They are young men, ever ready, obliging and courteous to all, even if it be a canvasser or agent.

In dressing windows grocers usually make some special feature that will attract attention, and I noticed one while in Ottawa that took the cake. It was a black figure in the window of Mr. E. B. Brown, 103 Sparks street, turning a coffee mill.

It took J. M. Dowdall, Ottawa, three out of four years to learn that there is no money to be made in the grocery trade by giving long credits. Now he trades for cash both ways, saves all cash discounts, buys close, and can compete with any one that sells goods at a profit and pays 100 cents on the dollar.

A. S. Wickware, Smith's Falls, has confectionery, bakers' goods, oyster and ice cream parlors in connection with his grocery business. He has a connection with the water mains of the town which drive his ice cream freezers and save him an immense amouut of labor. Mr. Wickware is a pusher, and allows no grass to grow under his feet.

The town of Smith's Falls is steadily growing. Year after year shows steady improvements in the streets, and modern appliances for the health, comfort and pleasure of its citizens. Several fine large brick and stone buildings have gone up on the main street the past year. The block in which is located the grocery business of Mr. J. Murray has been raised an additional storey, making as fine a block as is in town.

Messrs. Washburn & Co., Smith's Falls, are leading merchants and carry a very large stock of dry goods and groceries, the two departments being entirely separate, except a passage between the two. Mr. Washburn attends to all the different details of the business in person. Mr. D. B. Keith is his salesman in the grocery department, and is thoroughly posted in all matters connected with the grocery business.

P. Baskerville & Bros., wholesale grocers, 43, 45 and 58 George street, Ottawa, had a destructive fire in their premises on the 6th of the present month, cleaning out the entire storehouse part of the establishment. Notwithstanding the great loss and inconvenience, they have kept pace with their trade and expect to have a roof on a fine new storehouse structure, 167 x 33, before winter sets in. This new addition will give them many advantages over the old premises in receiving and shipping goods.

Messrs. Percival & Craig, Smith's Falls, have within the four walls of their store everything that could be desired by the purchasing community in and around that thriving town. Their stock includes cloths and suitings good enough for an Astor or a Vanderbilt, dry goods and notions, groceries and grocers' specialties that load down two entire flats and basement. Once inside, the most exacting are satisfied with the varieties of goods and attendance of clerks and proprietors.

BRITAIN'S SUPPLY OF EGGS.

According to the statistics of the Board of Trade, we are getting more and more indebted to the foreigner for our supplies of food. Our egg bill alone is a most formidable document, and seems to be growing, slowly but surely, year by year. In 1871 we imported eggs to the value of £1,263,612 ; in 1881 our annual bill for foreign eggs had grown to £2,322,390, or about exactly doubled, and in 1889 it amounted to no less than £3,127,590, the number of eggs imported into the United Kingdom in that year being 1,131,900,360, or 30 per head of the population. Foreign eggs are now three times as numerous as in 1861-65, and more than twice as plentiful as in 1866-70, when 14 were brought to our shores annually for each person, against 30 per head in each of the last two years.

To this branch of the British commissariat Germany and France contribute most largely, and about equally, Belgium and Denmark coming next. From Russia we had nearly 75,000,000 eggs last year. Holland, Portugal and the Channel islands each sent us between two and three million, and we draw smaller quantities from Spain, Sweden, Egypt, Morocco, Malta, Italy, Turkey and Norway. Australia even has begun to send us eggs, which must be at least six weeks old before they can be put on the British market. Until the last year or two, however, the quantity from Australia has been inconsiderable.

LINES TO THE NATIONAL RAT CATCHING STOCK CO., LTD.

When times are dull,
We all do look
For ways of making money,
But the "ways and means,"
Of commission men,
Are really very funny.

A prominent Merchanr on the street.
Found business very slow,
So thought he of a brilliant scheme,
To make things brisker grow.

Jay Gould, Depew, and other men,
Are clamoring loud for shares,
And should things keep on as they are,
Will all be millionaires.

This simple but effective plan,
Was worked with a piece of twine,
To catch the festive prowling rat,
Who happened to be in "line."

The catch so far is beyond compare,
And the rush for shares is great,
So all who want to take some up,
Must hurry or they'll be too late.

THE APPLE-BARREL.

"What ho, there, Mister Grocer !
Come listen unto me,
I want a barrel of apples,
And want them quickly. See ?"

And as he spoke he pointed
At one which open stood :
"I reckon this is the right one,"
Said he—"they're large and good.

"So head this barrel up, sir,"
He said, the while his eyes
Upon the top ones rested,
Which were about this size :—
O O O O O O O.

A sudden thought that moment
Occurred unto the man,
And he winked his nether optic,
At his formulated plan.

"A word with you, I prithee,"
He said, "my grocer friend :—
If not too much, I'd ask you,
To unhead the other end."

The grocerman with sorrow,
Quite realized his fix,
And also saw t'was useless,
To indulge in any kicks.

So he turned the barrel bravely,
And plied his little adze,
Although he muttered something,
About "such beastly cads."

And when the barrel's bottom
Came out, what met their eyes?
A lot of "measley" apples,
About this sort and size :—
o o o o o o o o o.

"There are geniuses in trade, as well as in war, or the state, or letters; and the reason why this or that man is fortunate is not to be told. It lies in the man."—EMERSON.

DIAMOND CRYSTAL SALT

It is free from impurities. It is unequalled for sweetness, purity and flavor. It is made by an entirely new and expensive process, which is the principal reason why other manufacturers cannot compete with it for quality. For the table DIAMOND CRYSTAL has no equal. Its freeness from hardening makes it the best for table use. For the Dairy, DIAMOND CRYSTAL has no equal. Its remarkable antiseptic qualities make it the best for Dairy use. For table use, packed in barrels containing 115-2½s—100-3s—60-5s—40-7s and 30-10 lb. bags. For Dairy use, packed in barrels containing 20-14 lb. bags, also 28 and 56 lb. Sacks. On account of the combination entered into by the Canadian Salt Manufacturers, we are enabled to import this high-class manufacture, and are selling at prices as low as ordinary kinds.

Send us a trial order and be convinced of the correctness of the above statements.

CHAT BY THE WAY.

Russell Sage, the manifold millionaire, was a clerk. He learned frugality in his brother's grocery store at Troy.

Messrs. McCallum Bros., Vankleek Hill, Ont., are opening a grocery in the McCallum block, on John street.

Mr. Hemenway, grocer of Kemptville, has disposed of his business there to Mr. Patterson, and has removed to Detroit, Mich.

Mr. George Maling's grocery, Halifax, was entered some nights ago by robbers who took away about $30 worth of property.

On the 21st inst, the steamer Halifax took from the N.S. refinery 1,000 barrels of sugar for Boston. She will take a like number this week.

Mr. W. Buchanan, late of the Ottawa Street Railway Company, has left Ottawa for Winnipeg, where he intends going into the grocery business.

Tomato canning is finished for this year in the Demorestville Canning Factory. The pack this year has been large. They will pack a few thousand cases of apples.

The sorghum factory of J. W. Grece, Dresden, is now in full operation. The cane is very rich in saccharine matter, as the latter part of the season was most favorable.

Among the disappointments of the week, was our absence when Mr. G. Hector Clemes, representing THE CANADIAN GROCER and other trade publications called.—American Grocer.

The merchants of Walkerton have been complaining the last few days of being bothered with bees. There seems to be a scarcity of honey in the hives this fall, and the bees skirmish around the stores after sugar.

The potato crop of Prince Edward Island is greatly affected by rot owing to wet weather. Half the crop is still in the ground. Prices are lower, potatoes ruling at 18 and 20 cents a bushel, and oats 30 cents a bushel.

Mr. C. W. Keeling, merchant of Cargill, Ont., has bought out the stock of Mr. John McNamara, of Eden Grove consisting of dry goods, groceries, &c.. which he intends selling off from Mr. McNamara's store at the Grove.

The other night the grocery store of Fred Woods, Chatham, was entered by burglars who carried off a few dollars' worth of plunder. The same gang visited W. Sharpe's grocery in that city, but did not succeed in getting a hold of more than a few cents of money.

The value of a genuine frost-proof ink is recognized by everybody who has to buy or use ink in this country, when the temperature begins to frisk round the part of the thermometer that stretches away below zero. Parents have to buy ink several times every winter for the use of their children at school, whereas 5 cents paid for one bottle of Dalley's Frost Proof would liquidate the whole bill for the term. The same outlay, comparing great things with small, would be equally satisfactory to office men. See advt. on another page.

Mr. Pedler, our sometime merchant, took his departure last week without notifying his friends, some of whom would be glad to see him. His methods of doing business ever since his advent to Gravenhurst have not been of that character which would be likely to gain the confidence of the many, and some of those whose confidence he did secure are not the better of it.—Gravenhurst Banner.

Grocers and general traders might as well share in the aggregate benefit that comes to those who handle the toilet papers manufactured by the E. B. Eddy Co. It is by taking on such lines that the trader makes money nowadays. These papers are got up in packages and rolls, the rolls either perforated or plain. The raw stock is the purest and choicest. The profit is ample and the goods are ready sellers.

A Moncton merchant opened a half-chest supposed to contain tea, but found it filled with a white powdered substance and a pair of Chinese sandals. Mr. W. Frank Hatheway, the St. John importer, was written concerning the matter, and he in turn wrote to his agents in China. A reply was received from them a couple of days ago. They say that the coolies carrying the tea from up country frequently remove the tea from the boxes and place in its stead a quantity of sweet potatoes chopped fine.

On Saturday morning the stipendiary magistrate of Charlottetown P. E. I., says the Examiner, issued a summons to a leading wholesale merchant, calling on him to show the cause why he has not made the return to the city clerk of the quantity of kerosene he has stored in the city, as imperatively required by the city by-law. The summons is for the purpose of compelling a return by everyone having kerosene on his premises : this the fire department must know to guard against being overtaken by the same fate as was witnessed in Halifax a couple of weeks ago.

Mr. W. G. McLauchlan, of James McLauchlan & Sons, biscuit and confectionery manufacturers, Owen Sound, was on the 21st inst. married to Miss Jennie Brown,at the residence of her father, Mr. James Brown, Poulette street. The bride was the recipient of a large number of very fine presents. Rev. John Somerville, M. A., performed the ceremony, and the happy couple left in the afternoon for Toronto, Montreal and other points. Mr. McLauchlan was presented by the employes of the firm with a beautiful ebonized clock, accompanied by an address.

Work on the oil storehouse which was being erected near the C.P.R. station in Peterborough, Ont., has been stopped. The complaints of residents in the vicinity caused the law to be ferretted out, and an order-in-council passed in 1889 has been found which makes it illegal to store oil within 100 yards of any other building. The company claim that there was another order-in-council passed rescinding the one mentioned. If the enactments of the order-in-council of 1889 are good and are enforced, it is said it will affect several places now used for the storage of more than two barrels of petroleum.

TORONTO MARKETS.

TORONTO, Oct. 29, 1891.

GROCERIES.

More animated movement is reported and is observable in the wholesale houses, though satisfaction is far from general. Large ideas have become seated, and will not be dislodged even though the trade being done is of considerably more volume than that of a year ago. While preparations for a strong demand have been made, and while stocks of new season goods are arriving every day, the shortage in the buying interest calculated upon has disappointment rather than loss of confidence. The fact that everybody with goods to sell still believes in the prospects, whose realization has so far been deferred. is reflected in the general steadiness of prices. Cutting is not commonly resorted to. Where declines have taken place they are the effect of later shipments, whose arrival fixes rather than disturbs the normal state of quotations. The weather has lately taken a turn in favor of trade. The low temperature of Tuesday was followed by quite a hopeful feeling among the wholesalers. There is a big demand on this market for general groceries from the North-West, where there has been more selling done by the farmers than here.

CANNED GOODS.

Frost has brought to a close the operations of the tomato canners by cutting off their supplies of raw material. This has been followed by some improvement in the demand, the future having nothing to bring forth in the way of increased supplies to determine any one to hold off. Prices have also taken a stronger tone as a consequence of this and of the inability of canners in some cases to take any more orders. Not merely do they decline more business, but in one or two instances they ask buyers whose orders were booked long ago to accept goods made by other canners. Those who have not oversold are being fallen back upon to keep out those who have. All this relates to first class brands. Some jobbers hold the best of these gooods at $1.10 in small lots and will sell nothing below $1.05. In the latter quotation nearly all agree. Increased consumption, and a bare beginning and limitations upon the time of the packers,are expected to offset the large yield of raw material, which came too hurriedly upon the market to be made full use of by the canners. As a sign of a growing feeling $1.10 was asked and is yet held out for in response to an inquiry for a 500 case lot of choice brand tomatoes. A very large round lot was sold about a week ago for $1, but probably the same lot, which was made up of miscellaneous qualities, would bring more now. Peas are quite firm at $1.10. The corn pack is to all appearances a full one. The price is $1.05, at which also round assorted lots of vegetables are selling. Pumpkins are stiffer and quote at 90c. to $1. Quite a large business, contrary to expectations, has been done in jams and jellies in glass tin and wood. This year the sales of glass goods are larger than were those of a year ago up to the same time. Salmon is steady from $1.40 for talls to $1.70 for flats. Lobsters are quiet. Clover leaf are $2.95, and Crown quote at $2.25 to $2.35 in tall tins and $2.75 to $3 in flats. Fine quality sardines are reported to be getting into small compass outside. On account of heavy sales in low-priced goods an advance in choice French and Portguese sardines is looked for.

There were inquiries in this market from Halifax for canned lobster for export to Europe. Evidently the shortage in the Province pack is beginning to tell.

COFFEES.

The present weather stimulates the demand somewhat, and coffee sells better than it did last week. Choice Rios are hard to get to sell at 23 to 24c., but grades from 19 to 21c. are in full stock. Javas and Mochas receive more attention because of the scarcity of high grade Rios. Rios in the primary market are almost imperceptible, but are surely gaining strength. Holders both at Rio and Santos have been forced to sell until lately, but now they are showing a little more tenacity.

DRIED FRUIT.

The demand is much better than it was. It still fails to furnish the power necessary for the business that has been in prospect for the past several weeks. Trade in fruits is even behind its average activity at this season. New arrivals have brought down the price of currants, not because an oversupply is foreseen, but because a very large proportion of the stock coming in is inferior. Some very poor currants have found their way here, and are quoted as low as 5¾c. Others are quoted to arrive at 5¾ to 5⅞c. Enormous supplies of currants and raisins, both rain-damaged, have lately been shipped both to this market and New York. This is expected to bring down prices probably farther, at all events more generally here. Good currants cannot be got under 6c. All dried fruit is low-priced and is likely to remain so. Valencia raisins are quiet, at 6 to 6½c. for new crop off-stalk and 4 to 5c. for old goods. Malaga stocks are light yet, and there have been no changes in price. New Bosnia prunes have not yet been received, and are cabled somewhat higher in Trieste. The Eleme figs in stock are the finest that have come to this market for years. Ten-pound boxes quote at 12c. for new. Some old are offering at very low prices.

NUTS.

Inquiry has almost dropped off, and buyers are now awaiting the arrival of new stocks and place orders for only small quantities at present. The new nuts will begin to arrive in a short time, filberts first, almonds next, and then walnuts. Cocanuts are firm at $6 per 100.

Says the N.Y. Daily Commercial Bulletin: Word comes from Beracoa, Cuba, to the effect that the crop of cocoanuts there is very short, and that the outlook for future crops is extremely dubious. Last year the locality named turned out about 22,000,000 nuts, but it is claimed that not over 5,000,000 nuts were gathered this season, and that nearly the entire quantity will be required to supply the Cuban oil works. This great falling off is attributed to the ravages of some variety of insect that practically kills the trees, first covering the leaves with lime-like spots, subsequently causing them to fall, and so imparing the vitality of the trees, that they not only fail to produce well-developed nuts, but become lifeless as though stricken by blight of unusual destroying force. At the rate of destruction that has been going on this year, it is asserted, Baracoa will cease to be a cocoanut producer during the next twelve months. The local supply of nuts from that section is now practically nil, only one cargo having arrived during the past thirty days. The supply of other varieties is only fair, and the quantity, as far as can be learned, is hardly up to the average for the season. As natural under such conditions prices are slowly but steadily advancing.

Dadelszel cables from Bordeaux that the quality of the new crop Marbots is poor, but that quality of the Kahors is good. Shipments will take place first week in November.

RICE AND SPICES.

Though the demand for rice has lapsed from the high state of activity seasonable and currant in summer, it is still quite strong, a considerable outward movement being reported at firm prices. Spices are in request at steady to firm prices.

SUGAR.

Just now there is but a fair amount of buying. Two circumstances appear to hold the demand in check; they are, first delayed movement in grain and, second, a notion that prices may further favor buyers. As sugar is sold on the shortest time now conceded to retailers, the latter endeavor to get cash, its equivalent or what approximates to cash, that is early payment for sugar. Hence the want of money in the country tells more on the sugar trade than probably upon any other. With the view that easier prices are in store for the buyer who waits for them, it is difficult either to differ or agree. It can be scarcely more than a hope, as it is not founded on knowledge. Just now our own refiners are, compared with a week ago, unwontedly firm. Advances have been made by buyers, who have so far been unable to do any business at offers very little lower than quotations. The New York market advanced 1-16c. on Monday, but what significance that advance may have, except that refiners have just bought a lot of raw, it is unsafe to say. At present local prices are 4⅞c. for granulated, in lots of at least 15 barrels, and 5c. in smaller lots. Yellows quote from 3½ to 4½c., and raws 3⅜c. all the way up to 4½c., the latter price for hard Demerara sugars. M. Licht's latest report shows still an increase over last year's beet crop, but a smaller one than was first estimated.

The long expected estimate of beet root crop by M. Licht has at last been received, and places the figures for all Europe at 3,730,000 tons, against 3,675,000 tons last year. This is a much smaller increase of prospective yield than calculated upon, and has already stimulated the European markets with a reflection expected here.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Syrups are in quite active demand. Low prices continue to rule, and to them is due the increase in business. Nearly all grades of both bright and dark are to be had. Molasses is easier and quiet. Trinidad in puncheons quotes at 35 to 36c., in barrels 38 to 40c., and in half-barrels 40 to 42c. Porto Rico is unchanged. New Orleans is easier at 45 to 50c. for the best grades, and for lower grades 32c. in barrels and 35c. in half-barrels.

TEAS.

Amendment in the tea trade is general and considerable. A satisfactory trade is engaging the attention of jobbers, who can give better tea for the money than they ever could before. A better supply of Young Hysons is a feature of the week's business. Offers from New York are liberal and on a basis that there is little fault found with. Some purchases have been made of low-priced grades, which are the lines this market is lacking in. Green is now to be had as low as 17c. Japans continue to be in strong favor at prices in the neighborhood of 20c., with business going on in blacks at about the same point in the scale of quotation. The local demand for Indian teas is improving, especially for those teas having flavor as well as strength. Fine make is not so much looked for as formerly, quality in cup being the first consideration. The increase which took place in the home consumption of dry tea last year appeared clearly traceable to the greater weight of dry leaf necessary to supply the expanding consumption of liquid tea. This expansion in the liquid consumption had been imperceptibly progressing for many years. It did not, however, cause much increase in the use of dry tea so long as the weaker China tea was being displaced by the stronger teas of India and Ceylon. In 1890 the displacement of China tea was very slight; therefore a greater weight of Indian and Ceylon tea became necessary. During the last nine months the displacement of China tea has again been comparatively small, and therefore a further increase in the weight of dry tea was necessary—a condition which must continue so long as any increase takes place in the quantity of liquid tea used. In Ceylon tea the low prices current for some months past are doubtless answerable for increased use, and it now seems probable that Indian tea will, from a similar cause, be forced more extensively into consumption. With good demand sales passed steadily at last week's rates, all useful liquoring kinds being actively competed for. There is not much change in the general aspect of the market. Common teas still predominate largely, and are rather slow of sale, although prices continue low. There is no appreciable difference in quotations for inferior grades as compared with last week's prices. Fine and finest sorts sell well, and in most cases very full rates are being paid for all teas with quality. Ceylons under 7d. are rather easier, but fine invoices are eagerly competed for, and show an advance upon recent prices. Speaking generally, the quality of the Ceylons throughout the week has been poor.

NOTES.

Our Prices Current show some changes in the quotations for canned meats, all in the way of reduction.

New citron, lemon and orange peel have arrived. The prices are higher by 20 per cent. than they were a year ago, and have gone up outside since the receipt of stock here.

Messrs. T. Kinnear & Co., wholesale grocers, have bought the premises one door to the east of their old stand. Their number on Front St. east now is 49 instead of 47. Their new warehouse will be a handsome and very convenient one when the improvements now in progress are completed. Finely appointed, well-lighted offices and sample rooms, separated by plate glass and cherry partitions will give a very bright appearance to the front part. The building is 181 x 36 square feet, and four storeys high. The greater space it affords is what Messrs. Kinnear & Co. are after.

The Breadmaker's Yeast Co. have placed upon the market a 2c. package of their well known Yeast which promises to be a good seller, as it fills a long felt want in furnishing an imperishable yeast at a popular price.

Messrs. Steel, Hayter & Co., growers and importers of Indian teas, have just received a large consignment of fine Darjeelings, having the true hill flavor for which these teas are renowned.

The quotations of Young & Smylie'e licorice goods, which appear in Prices Current, are from a list on which we are advised, that there have been some changes. The changes have not been specified in our advice, but will appear in the Prices Current of our next issue.

An advance in Ceylon in the price of chocolate has caused an upward movement in some of the prices in John P. Mott's list, notably in Ceylon, which now quotes at 40c. instead of 38c. as heretofore. Gilt edge sweet chocolate liquors have also gone up 2c.; with vanilla the price is now 32c., without, 30c.

PETROLEUM.

A tranquil business, with no tendency towards movement one way or the other in prices, is reported. The volume of the business now doing growes steadily with the advance of the season.

The Petrolia Advertiser reports : Petrolia crude $1.34½ per bbl. Oil Springs crude $1.35 per bbl. In consequence of several new wells having been struck in Sarnia and Moore Townships the price of Petrolia Crude has weakened this week half a cent a barrel, which was chiefly caused by the striking of a well in the township of Sarnia by Messrs. R. & J. Jackson of this town. This territory is very spotted, and the first well these gentlemen put down upon the Jackson farm turned out to be a dry hole, but they have struck a good deposit in their second well, as after striking the oil-bearing rock at a depth of 460 feet the fluid rose in the hole 250 feet and a considerable supply of oil and gas manifested itself, and the well started off pumping at the rate of 50 barrels a day. The drillers have removed the rig from it to another location and the proprietors are putting on a rig of their own to pump the oil with, which is at present shut down while the change is being made.

The production of Oil Springs is falling off in consequence of a cessation of drilling there, most of the drillers having removed their tools to Petrolia. On this account, the demand of Oil Springs oil is continued as before, and we have not, therefore, noticed any particular change in the price of that commodity.

We quote refined oil at 11¾ to 12 cents. Some of the refiners, we hear, are trying to sell their oil at even lower figures than these, but we haven't got on to any particular sales yet, as soon as we do, however, we will let our readers have the full benefit of it.

DRUGS AND CHEMICALS.

Sales are not reported either large or numerous. The state of the market is about as usual at this season, particularly when healthy, bracing weather is the rule, as it is now. There have been no changes in prices.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

A pretty fair delivery of butter is reported. The prices have stimulated offerings, but all holders are firm in their ideas of the value of their stock, so that prices have not been depressed by freer receipts. Good dairy tub brings prices whose range opens at 17c., with the possibility of closing at 20c. for very choice stock, a few small parcels having changed hands at that figure. Buying is free, though some dealers feel that prices have got on too high a plane and retard business. But it seems certain that receipts are coming forward as freely as production will warrant. The supply of butter is limited now almost to stuff of the current make, as June, July, August and September butter have for the most part found their exit before this. Creamery butter has not drifted this way to any extent during the year, and even now there are no strong inducements for sellers, as export prices are as good and will move more stock. Tubs quote at 23 to 24c., with 26c. and even more occasionally paid for rolls. Some large rolls of dairy butter have made their appearance since the fall in the temperature. They sell readily at 16 to 18c.

Cheese is not in especial demand, but the price retains its strength, notwithstanding that the Liverpool market is rather dull. Makers clearly hold out for a brighter future and prices here are unchanged at 10½c. for full creams.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

BEANS—The market is beginning to receive more varied supplies, accessions from the new crop. Common farm offerings are to be obtained as low as $1, but $1.60 holds firmly for bright hand-picked. A demand is developing that may for a time offset the tendency of receipts to affect prices.

DRIED APPLES—Sundried are offered and taken quite freely, lots bringing 4½c. The selling price ruling is 4¾ to 5 1-4c.

EVAPORATED APPLES — The supposed large output of the factories has a depressing influence upon buying. Sellers are plentiful at 7c., but they cannot work up much interest on the other side of the market Out of stock prices are 7½ to 8c.

EGGS—The rate of receipt is about as it was a week ago, the demand being maintained at present prices quite as strongly as the supply. Good candled stock is 17c., with a tendency towards 18c. Limed are 15c.

MARKETS—Continued.

GAME.—Receipts come rather faster than they go, particularly in partridges, which quote at 50c. per brace. Ducks are quoted according to size at from 30 to 40c. per brace. Venison is 6c. in the carcase and 10c. in saddles.

HAY—Stock goes through buyers' hands more rapidly, the supply being well kept up and a fairly strong demand continuous. The price is from $11 to $11.50.

HIDES—Prices are still tottering but not yet down. The controversy between the ¼c. and the ½c. views as to reduction has not ended, and prices continue to yield sellers the advantage of what may be clipped off, as the market is no stronger than ever. The price of green is 5c. for cows, with 5½c. doubtful for steers, or weights not under 60 lbs. Buffs, choice, in carloads, move at 5½c.

HONEY—No material improvement is to be noted, and there ought to be now, as fruits are beginning to relinquish their place as competitors. The price is 7 to 10c. for clear and 12½ to 15c. for sections.

HOPS—There is more inquiry and more selling. Old are out of the question and supposed to be almost out of stock. If they were more plentiful, the low prices of new would throw the old into neglect. The market for new is irregular, the price running from 13 to 16c. Holders are not free sellers at these figures.

ONIONS—Prices are $2 and $2.25 per barrel. Stock sells, but it is very plentiful and offered liberally.

POULTRY—All that comes disappears by the end of the week, though accumulation begins usually as early as Wednesday, consumption being strongest evidently on Sunday. Chickens sell at 35 to 50c. a pair, ducks at 50 to 70c. a pair, geese at 6½ to 7c. a pound, turkeys at 11c. a pound. Chickens are most in request.

POTATOES—The better state of the market that has been the leading feature of reports for the past three weeks shows signs of exhaustion. Prices for actual sales quote at 40c. for cars, though offers rule at 45c. Out of store lots are 50c. a bag.

SEEDS—Very little alsike has yet been seen on this market. The price remains $5.50 to $6 for prime to choice, with $6.50 for extra, but offerings have been meagre, and the market opens unusually late..

SKINS — Sheepskins are quiet and unchanged. The number bought since the price got to its present quotation does not show the increase expected in receipts. They are 75c. Calfskins are 5 to 7c.

WOOL—The dulness is apparantly chronic. Stock has been held long for higher prices, but 18c. is still weak.

DRESSED HOGS AND PROVISIONS.

What now puts limits on the provision trade is not the supply but the demand. Curing has not been long enough in progress to get the stuff on the market as rapidly as it is wanted. Prices are easier, as they always are when packers begin fall operations. Hogs arrive fairly freely.

BACON—Long clear is 8½ to 8¾c., for new, strong in demand and steady in quotation. Smoked backs and bellies are active at 10½ to 11c.

HAMS—Are in steady request at 11 to 12½c. for new cure.

LARD—Canadian pure is 10½c. in tubs and 10¾c. in pails. Compound is 8½ to 8¾c.

BARREL PORK—Mess is $14 to $14.50, and short cut is $16.50 to $17. All is taken as soon as prepared.

DRESSED HOGS—The colder weather has increased receipts, which have lately been liberal. The upward movement in the price of grains used in feeding tends to cause more urgent offerings as well. Easier prices have been the consequence of better supplies, and quotations now range from 5½ to 6c., with a weak feeling as to the upper figure which may decline to 5⅞ or 5¾c.

FISH AND OYSTERS.

The demand for fish is of small volume. Prices are steady at last week's points. The close season for white fish and salmon trout opens on Monday. The oyster trade is opening up to sell quite actively at $1.25 to $1.30 per gallon. This year stock is plentiful and good.

FLOUR AND FEED.

A fairly good demand is reported. Prices are unchanged in all but oats and oatmeals, which have advanced. They are :—$5.75 for Manitoba patent, $5.25 to $5.35 for Ontario patents, $4.50 for straight roller, $4.40 to $4.50 for extra, $2.25 to $4 for low grades, $5.25 to $5.40 for strong bakers'. Graham flour is $4.50, standard oatmeal $4.25, rolled oats $4.25, Kiln-dried corn meal is $3.75 to $4.00, rolled wheat $5, wheat bran $12, cracked corn $1.50 per cwt., mixed chop $20 to $25, split peas $4, pot barley $4.25, oats 30 to 34c.

FRUITS.

Apples are $1.50 to $2 per barrel, the price being higher and stronger. The demand is quite active. Pears are quiet at 30 to 40c. per basket. Grapes are 1¾ to 2 1-2c. per lb. Cranberries are $8.50 to $9 per barrel and $3 to $3.25 per crate.

GREEN FRUIT.

Maori lemons are firm at $9, Malaga at $6.50 per half-chest. Jamaica oranges still quote at $7.50 to $8, Floridas at $4 to $4.25. New Malaga grapes are $5 to $5.50 per keg. Bananas range from $1.25 to $2. Sweet potatoes are selling at $3.25 to $3.50 for Jerseys and $2.75 to $3 for Baltimores. The trade in green fruit is quieter as the effect of cold weather.

SALT.

A very good demand is kept up. Prices steady and unchanged. They are, in car lots, $1.25 for dairy, $1.18 for barrels, and 70c. for coarse sacks. Several cars have moved this week.

DRY GOODS.

The cooler weather has raised hopes a few degrees higher. Present business is also slightly better, but there must be a big stretch yet for actual business to overtake prospects that are now some months old.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL Oct. 29, 1891.

The week shows a noticeable increase in the volume of business over last in most lines of groceries, for jobbers report an improvement in the movement countryward, while the business from first hands also is somewhat better than it was. In fact money will soon commence to circulate from consumers, and business is bound to be better. No particular change has been developed in any line during the week. Sugars have a firmer tone owing to the stiffness in New York, but there is no change in price. Teas are dull, while coffees show a stronger tendency, with supplies small and buyers in a much better humor than formerly. Dried fruit is firm, and there is an absence of the disposition toward concession shown by importers until recently. The fact is prices have advanced 2s. and 6d at Denia, while the supplies here are small. This has made importers more cautious. Demand for fruit has been better also. Canned goods rule easy, and in produce and provisions there are no important changes. Butter is fairly active and very strong, cheese dull, provisions steady and flour and grain without particular feature.

SUGAR.

The raw sugar market made a sudden jump to activity in New York, on Saturday, when the refiners went on the market and cleared up the entire stock. This naturally is a strong feature, but beyond imparting a somewhat firmer tone to the spot market, it has not induced any change in prices. Jobbers report a fair volume of trade, with buyers more agreeable in this respect than a week ago, and of course business from first hands naturally shows improvement in a proportionate ratio. Granulated is quoted steady at 4½c. and yellows 3½ to 4¼c. from first hands.

Syrups are moving out a good deal better also at 2 7-8 to 3 3-8c., with indications of further improvement. Molasses comes in for attention in a jobbing way, but no large transactions are reported. Choice Barbadoes are quoted at 38c., Antigua at 30½ to 31c., and Porto Rico 32 to 32 1-2c.

CANADIAN BEET ROOT SUGAR.

The first samples of white sugar from Canadian beets are now being placed on this market by W. T. Costigan & Co., the agents of the Fordham refinery, and is meeting a fair reception at 4¾ to 4½c. for jobbing lots, round quantities would be shaded. The projectors of the industry hope to make it profitable to the farmers of this section, and it is said the return was $5 the ton to the farmer, and the output averages 15 to 20 tons to the acre. If these estimates are correct there should be some money for the farmers in the crop, provided the sugar meets the reception that is expected. The sample at present shown is certainly a fine one, if it is a fair criterion.

TEAS.

The tea market is quiet, buyers being well stocked up for some weeks to come. Offerings, however, are not large. Blacks are very dull and the English market has continued its downward course.

COFFEE AND SPICES.

Coffee shows a firmer tendency and buyers are showing more disposition to operate. This has led to some fair business in good Rios at 18 to 19½c. from first hands There is no stock of Jamaicas here, but offers for shipment at 16½ to 18c. are being made. Spices are quiet. Pepper steady at 9½ to 10c., and cloves same.

RICE.

There is a good fair movement in rice at steady prices, while prospects point to a strong market in the course of a month. We quote: Patna, $4.50 to $5; Japan, $4.25 to $4.50; standard $3.90, and off grades $3.50 in car lots.

DRIED FRUIT.

There is but little actual change in the spot position of dried fruit, but the market has a firm tendency for various reasons. In the first place cables received to-day from Denia quote an advance of 2s. 6d., which is bound to have immediate influence with importers in their present temper. Then, too, without any very apparent reason, values from first hands have been fully 1-2c. below the ruling equivalent in New York, so that prices are if anything a little firmer. Jobbers report a somewhat improved demand from the country, and with new supplies so small importers are disposed toward caution. They are operating with care, therefore, but there has been a considerable quantity of Valencias moved from first hands since our last report. Firsts brought 5¼ to 5⅜c. and seconds 5 to 5 1-8c. for round lots. Jobbing prices of course are proportionately higher, and we quote firsts 5 1-2 to 5 3-4c. and seconds 5 1-4 to 5 3-8c. Currants are fully 1-4c. better on the week, owing to an advance at primary markets, and values here are very firm. In fact there is very little stock to be had at the inside figure, 5½, and 5 5-8 to 5¾c. is now the ruling idea for good provincials. The Dracona, the last direct fruit steamer for this port, is due at the end of the week. She has no currants and only a limited quantity of Valencia raisins.

GREEN FRUIT.

There is only a small business on jobbing account done in green fruit, not sufficient to induce any change. Prices rule at $3.50 to $4.50 for Sorrento oranges, and $4.50 to $6 for lemons per box.

CANNED GOODS.

The local demand for canned goods continues very slow. Packers are offering tomatoes freely at inside figures, in fact all vegetables except peas are a free offering.

APPLES.

Locally there is a steady market for apples with no change in price. In this respect the demand is equal to the supply, and car lots of good winter stock move at $2.10 with small quantities $2.50. Fall varieties are almost finished. The shipments continue heavy. This week the Liverpoool market will show how it can absorb the recent heavy shipments. Cables received to-day indicate a somewhat easier feeling, but nothing extraordinary considering the large offerings. The quotations were Kings 17s. to 27s. other reds 13s. to 20s. greenings 13s. to 16s. damaged stock 4s. to 5s. less.

SPANISH ONIONS.

The crop of domestic onions is both large and fine, but there is other stock wanted for all that. This led to a very satisfactory sale of a cargo lot of 70,000 crates of Spanish onions ex Avlona, which all found buyers at 75 to 80c. a crate, These prices are very satisfactory for buyers were anxious, as shippers this year are small.

FISH.

There is a good demand for fish but supplies continue so limited as to make prices in some instances prohibitive. This is the case with Labrador herring, receipts of which are exceptionally light while prices are so stiff as to interfere with the demand.

HOPS.

This product is purely nominal in the absence of business, and 15c. may be quoted as a fair idea for strictly fine stock. A couple of consignments of Bavarian are expected next week, but nothing about them can be given definitely.

PROVISIONS.

There is a good demand for pork, and locally prices are steady under small supplies, although there has been a break in the west. Smoked meats move fairly well at former rates. Canadian short cut, per brl. $17 to $17.25; mess pork, western, per brl. $14.00 to $14.50; short cut, western, per brl. $17.25 to $17.50; hams, city cured, per lb. 10 1-2 to 11 1-2; hams, canvassed, per lb. 00 to 00; lard Canadian, in pails, 0.08¾ to 9c; bacon, per lb. 9c. to 10c; lard com. refined, per lb. 7¾ to 8c.

EGGS.

Since our last, there has been nothing particular to note, except that prices have worked somewhat firmer. This is due to the greater scarcity of strictly fresh stock, for owing to present complaints about stale eggs, country buying has been stopped and dealers here are commencing on their limed goods, which are offering at 16 to 17c. per dozen. Run of stock moves quietly at 15 to 16c.

BUTTER.

The butter market rules steady, and although high prices have somewhat checked the movement there is a fair volume of business doing. Finest creamery runs from 23½ to 24c., and Townships dairy 18 to 19c.

CHEESE.

There is no change from the dullness noted a week ago, and prices for shipment are purely nominal. In fact with the usual November dullness the market will likely drag along quietly with no change until the opening of December. For finest 10c. is the nominal idea.

GRAIN.

There is no change in grain and little doing in wheat. Oats and peas are in demand and held firm at quotations and there is a small movement in barley. The stocks in store compared with those of a week ago show a decrease of 39,459 wheat, 4,250 corn, 52,889 peas, and an increase of 12,037 oats, 48,982 barley, and 20,446 rye. Compared with a year ago there is an increase of 259,099 wheat, 191,033 peas, 142,828 oats, 133,713 barley, 86,513 rye, and a decrease of 24,451 corn. We quote: No. 1 hard Manitoba, $0; No. 2 do. $1.05 to $1.07; No. 3 do., 97c; No. 2 Northern, $1.04; peas, 73 1-2c. per 66 pounds in store, 74 1-2c. afloat; oats, 32 1-2 to 33c. per 34 pounds; corn, 68c. to 69c. duty paid; feed barley, 48c; good malting do. 57 to 59c.

FLOUR.

The demand for flour continues rather slow, buyers still holding off, but prices remain steady and without change. The stock in store shows an increase of 6,091 barrels compared with a week ago, and 8,007 barrels compared with a year ago. Patent spring $5.00 to $5.30; Patent winter $5.00 to $5.25; straight roller $4.75 to $4.85; Extra $4.40 to $4.50; Superfine $3.95 to $4.25; City strong bakers' $5.00 to $5.10; Strong bakers' $4.75 to $5.

HALIFAX MARKET QUOTATIONS.

(Wholesale Selling Rates.)

HALIFAX, Oct. 28, 1891.

BREADSTUFFS.—Oatmeal and cornmeal are steady, oatmeal has probably touched bottom, cornmeal may go lower later on. We make no changes in qnotations but concessions on prices are obtainable.

Manitoba highest grade patents, $5.75 to 6.00; High grade patents, $5.20 to 5.30; Good 90 per cent Patents, $5.05 to 5.10; Straight grade, $4.90 to 5.00; Good seconds,

$4.40 to 4.60 ; Graham flour, $4.90 to 5.15 ; Oatmeal, $4.30 to 4.40; Kiln dried corn meal, $3.25 to 3.40 ; Rolled wheat, $5.55 ; Wheat bran per ton, $18.50 to 19.50; Middlings, $23 to $23 50 ; Shorts, $21.50 to $22.50. ; Cracked corn, per ton, $35.00 ; Moulee, $24 ; Split Peas $4.00 to $4.10; White beans per bushel, $1.50 to 1.55 ; Pot Barley per bbl, $3.90 to $4.10 ; Canadian oats 38c. to 40c. ; P. E. I. Oats 36c. to 37c. ; Hay per ton, $12 to 13.

SUGAR AND MOLASSES.—There is no particular change, the market being on the quiet side. Advices from sugar producing countries continue strong and sharp, advances are reported in cane as well as beet sugars, but particularly in the latter. The refiners claim that they will be compelled to advance prices if unrefined sugars continue strong as at present. A fairly good trade is progressing just now. Molasses is quiet but very firm, but there is very little actually doing in it.

Cut loaf, 5½c.; Granulated, 4⅝ to 4¾.; Circle A, 4½c.; White extra C, 4¼c.; Standard, 3⅝c. to 3¾c; Extra yellow C, 3½c ; Yellow C, 3½c. to 3⅝c.

MOLASSES.—Barbados, 40c. ; Demerara, 35 to 38c. ; Diamond N. 48c. ; Porto Rico, 37 to 38c. ; Trinidad, 34 to 35c. ; Antigua, 34 to 35.

FISH.—There is nothing new to note regarding the local fish situation, which remains dull and featureless.

ST. JOHN, N. B., MARKETS.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Oct. 28, 1891.

There is nothing specially new in the grocery line and prices are very little changed. Flour is reported a shade easier, while sugar is decidely firm.

FLOUR—The market has not changed much, a good jobbing trade is being done, though buyers still are holding off evidently under the impression that bottom has not been touched yet. The last sales reported were made at lowest prices this fall. We quote Manitoba $5.85 to $6, High grade family $5.25 to $5.30, Medium patents $4.90 to $5.

MEAL—There is very little doing in either oatmeal or cornmeal, with prices unchanged. Cornmeal $3.20 to $3.30, oatmeal $4.40 to $4.65.

SUGAR—While a fair jobbing trade has been done prices are very firm. Granulated 4½ to 4⅝c., yellow 3½ to 3⅞c.

FRUIT—Apples are coming in very freely and in good condition. While prices are not as large as usually obtained, the greater quantity gathered will more than make up for the lower prices. No. 1 Gravenstein $1.90 to $2.25, No. 2 are selling at $1.50 to $1.70.

POTATOES—The recent advance in potatoes has brought several large lots in, but they were quickly bought at ruling prices, $1.15 to $1.20.

EGGS—Are in good demand, with only a limited quantity offering, the price is unchanged, 13 to 13½c.

BUTTER—The market is unchanged, any good lots offering are readily picked up, the price is steady, 17 to 19c.

CHEESE—Not much doing, prices steady, 10 to 10½c.

FISH—Our market has been well supplied with all kinds of dry and pickled fish, several vessels having arrived from the south shore with large cargoes, though the catch is reported less than usual. Cod, large, sold at $4.65 to $4.75 ex-vessel; medium, $3.80 to $4; pollock, $2 to $2.10; pickled herring, bay, $2.85 for barrels, $1.65 for half-barrels; Shelburn, $4.40 to $4.50; Canso, $6 to $6.10.

WHOLESALE GROCERS AS RETAILERS' CUSTOMERS.

It is due to another firm of wholesale grocers in this city to say of it that its principals buy all the groceries consumed in their households from retailers, and have always been in the habit of doing so. In the leader of last issue credit for starting out to follow this rule as a departure was given to another house, and the unostentatious way in which the former had been doing the same thing for a long time escaped notice, or it should have been referred to in the same connection.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

GENUINE APPLE CIDER.

The following answers have been received to a query as to cost and where genuine apple cider can be got :—

J. R. Shields & Co., Toronto, write offering genuine pure apple cider at 6c. f.o.b. Belleville, the buyer to supply barrels, as usual, or pay cost of same, which is $2 for a large sized one.

Collier & Wallace, Picton, "Think we can supply him with all he wants."

John Bassett, Port Hope, "We can get from five gallons to a car load."

A Straight Tip.

Have you ordered your supply of LICORICE for the Fall and Winter trade? If not, then multiply your business this year in this article by ordering YOUNG & SMYLIE'S goods and you will discover that the best Licorice gives the best satisfaction and will cost no more. All of this is of immense importance to buyer, seller and consumer, and a stock of Y. & S. Stick Licorice with Acme Licorice Pellets will prove a blessing all around. Try it and gather the same experience that is profiting your competitor and neighbor.

Cleveland's Baking Powder yields best profit to the grocer, and is of such a superior quality that a customer gained is always retained.

The Great Strength-Giver.

OFFICE OF THE PUBLIC ANALYST,

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Co., Montreal:

GENTLEMEN,—I have personally taken samples from a large stock of your Granulated Sugar, "REDPATH" brand, and carefully tested them by the Polariscope, and I find these samples to be as near to absolute purity as can be obtained by any process of Sugar-Refining.

The test by the Polariscope showed in yesterday s yield 99·90 per cent. of Pure Cane Sugar, which may be considered commercially as ABSOLUTELY PURE SUGAR.

It is well-known

That successful Doctors read all the latest medical books and papers and go abroad occasionally to study. Successful lawyers read legal publications to learn the latest legal decisions and points constantly cropping up. Teachers, clergymen, druggists, architects, all read the publication issued in the interests of their profession. They must do so to keep up with the times.

The same applies to grocers and general merchants. They must not only read the best papers published in their interests but must also watch the advertisements closely. There they learn the rise and fall in prices; latest trade news and methods of buying, handling and selling goods, so that they may make the greatest profit. A doctor reads much that he already knows, so does a lawyer. So does a number of any of the other professions. So will a merchant. It is often the issue of the paper he misses that is worth dollars to him. His best and safest policy, therefore, is to subscribe for his trade paper.

The only exclusively grocery and general store paper is THE CANADIAN GROCER issued weekly, subscription price $2.00 per year.

SPECIAL TO OUR READERS.

As the design of THE CANADIAN GROCER is to benefit mutually all interested in the business, we would request all parties ordering goods or making purchases of any description from houses advertising with us to mention in their letter that such advertisement was noticed in THE CANADIAN GROCER.

What with the prevalence of keen competition, the pettiness of people's tempers, and the shortcomings of salesmen, the trader is often put to his wit's end to solve the problem how to retain his hold on a body of desirable custom that may have drifted to his shop. For a moment, as it were, he may find himself surrounded by a group of substantial families whose trade is large and perfectly safe, but just when he is beginning to felicitate himself upon this acquisition, the visits of this or that particular one of the solid customers begin to fall off. Such defections must always be, even if grocers were perfect mortals: that is, the fault is not always on the grocer's side, and therefore not always within his power of correction. But where he is able to control circumstances that cause such withdrawals, he should be vigilant and prompt to do it. The whim, crankiness, or taste of a customer must not be taken against the grain if it is possible to humor it, but not always is it possible. In the case of reasonable people who look for a pretty close correspondence between what they want and what they get, the fault is usually the dealer's if their custom silently steals away.

* * * *

When it goes it most commonly does steal away. The trader is given little warning. Ten chances to one he never hears any complaint about faulty delivery, unsatisfactory value, bad stock or any other defect on the part of him or his. The majority of people do not like to wrangle. If they get stale eggs morning after morning, strong butter every time they buy, tea below the standard of what used to be sent, they will probably stand it awhile, the wife or housekeeper may repine a little about it to a neighbor, who will at once dilate on the excellence of some other grocer's tea, service, etc., and the result will be that trade is transferred from the dealer complained of by one customer to the dealer who is lauded by another. Thus custom migrates, and the medium on which the best of it shifts is opinion more or less publicly uttered. It would certainly be more satisfactory to the well-meaning members of the trade, if their patrons were generally given to grumbling more. If customers would let their dissatisfaction be heard at the counter oftener, there would probably be more attached trade than there is to-day, and every live grocer would hail with approval the general adoption of such a practice. Those traders who make it a point to use well every body who deals with them, ought to display in their stores and on their wagons the notice that all customers dissatisfied with the way orders are filled or delivered will oblige by making complaint.

* * * *

This would enable the trader to get at and amend the causes of loss of custom. He will by this means also be able to study his best customers, and once their peculiarities are known to their grocer, there will be small danger of their custom leaving him, provided of course that he puts his knowledge to use in their behalf. It is an easy enough matter to become intimate with the nature of the grocery wants in each household worth making a study of. It seems difficult, but if there were a hundred such customers to look after, a man with a progressive purpose in him would soon know all their shopping eccentricities. A mailing clerk will learn in a few weeks just in what one of a few hundred compartments any particular letter should be placed, that knowledge involving several particulars as to branch of railway, time of next mail train, etc., relative to the post offices named in the addresses. The task a grocer sets himself, when he aims to become acquainted thoroughly with the idiosyncracies of each family in the range of his best custom is a much easier one than the mail clerk's.

* * * *

The value of a complaint must be estimated according to its source and according to the views of the trader to whom it is made. There are some people who will complain upon the least grounds, or upon no grounds at all. Then there are traders who take a complaint as an insult. The latter are to be pitied, as the less disposed they are to stand fault-finding the less adapted they are for trade, and the chances are numerous against their success. Just complaints are the escape valves of adverse opinion that may grow so strong as to damage or wreck a business, if it finds no vent or satisfaction in grumbling. The man who grumbles with cause puts the dealer on his guard, who can thus lay in the goods that suit, correct his delivery-wagon driver, or in any other way rectify evils that may ensue in loss if not checked. Live merchants are uneasy when nobody complains. They are conscious that in everything human there are faults, but they aim to have no faults in their way of doing business except such as they cannot help. Hence, they lay hold of every murmur for their own improvement, and have misgivings that some trade is slipping from their grasp if there is no imperfection pointed out. They wisely encourage customers to speak out, and prefer criticism to withdrawal of trade.

Men of the Times.

MR. GEORGE C. TAYLOR.

He forewarns his care
With rules to push his fortune or to bear.
—DRYDEN.

In the long roll of successful business men that this country can boast, nothing is more striking than the increasing number entitled to rank in it before they have reached middle life. There seems to be more men who attain an assured position before their prime is passed than there used to be. Changed ideas underlie this feature of the last half of the present century; young men undertake with boldness the tasks that only tried experience was supposed in earlier times to be equal to; the will of the declining generation acts less as a fetter to the advancing one. The consequence is that ability, with a chance to unfold earlier, accomplishes its mission earlier, and there is in business more adaptation to modern wants, less old-fogyism, as it were, than there used to be. This is an improvement. Though young men are brought to the front, incapable ones are not promoted any faster than their intrinsic merits entitle them to be, while able men are not held back by a false sentiment that only those seasoned to the toil are fit for the responsibility.

MR. GEORGE C. TAYLOR.

Mr. George C. Taylor is one of the youngest men in a prominent commercial position to-day. He is head of the well-known firm, Taylor, Scott & Co., manufacturers of woodenware, Toronto. He is a Canadian, a native of the Eastern Townships, born and brought up in Sherbrooke. The greater part of his life has, however, so far been spent in Ontario. His firm was founded in 1885. It does a vast domestic business extending from Halifax to Vancouver, and an export trade of very large proportions with the United Kingdom and other parts of the Empire. Seven travellers have all they can do to keep the firm in half-yearly touch with the immense volume of the Canadian trade whose stocks of woodenware, baskets, brushes, grocers' sundries, etc., are bought from Taylor, Scott & Co. The firm's office is a commodious and well-appointed one at 120 Bay street, under the same roof as its warehouse. Its factories are at 108 Bay street and from No. 1 to No. 9, inclusive, Pearl street. The broom factory is under the management of Mr. Hennessey, one of the most experienced and practical broom-makers in Canada. The foreman of the washboard factory has equal prominence in his specialty, having for several years been manager of one of the largest washboard establishments in the United States. Both the firm's factories are equipped with the latest improved machinery, such as steam sewing machines, etc.

The products of Taylor, Scott & Co.'s factories are familiar both in name and quality to our readers. Their brooms command wide sale. The manufacture of them is conducted with the utmost care, and the material selected with equal exactness. The broom corn is bought directly from the growers, a man being sent every year to buy in the fields. A specialty is made of very fine quality goods. In this country there is the very best class of demand for brooms, and it is due to our manufacturers that this is a fact. In Chicago, which is the shipping point for the bulk of the broom corn, the majority of the brooms made would not sell here at all. A most valuable patent in connection with broom making belongs to the firm; it is a brown bag. It is put on a broom to keep it in place, to keep it clean, to prevent the corn from bleaching when exposed to the weather. It is wrapped, ready for delivery, when it reaches the grocer. The firm's success in broom making is due to the quality and attractiveness of its manufacture. Shapely handles, smooth, bright finish, lithographed labels, co-operated with substantial worth to make Taylor, Scott & Co.'s brooms sell.

The firm owns the patent for the Northern Queen washboard, and the Improved Globe washboard. These boards have found their way into countless laundries throughout the country. They are exported in very large orders to England, Scotland and Ireland, as the firm's various brands of brooms are. The zinc in the manufacture of the boards is imported direct from Belgium, and the lumber is selected in the forests. Many other lines of woodenware, such as butter bowls, ladles, baskets, brushes, etc., are shipped from their factory to all parts of the country, the demand having been enormously stimulated in late years by low prices and good quality. Woodenware is now as cheap in this country as it is anywhere in the United States.

Push, principle and sagacity are the elements into which the secret of Mr. Taylor's success analyzes. His own personal exertions must count for much. His experience is also a big factor in his success. He went through all the grades of service, from office boy to head traveller, in the wholesale grocery trade. For seven years he was on the road. This, he considers, contributed more to his business education than any other portion of his training. The knowledge he acquired on the road enables him to understand the wants of country merchants more than he otherwise could. He holds firmly to the opinion that if you see a man and scan his store, you know something about him; whereas, if your communication with him is impersonal you know nothing about him. This belief causes him to put much store on travellers, whose business he deems it to be, not simply to sell goods, but to sell goods to deserving customers, requiring of travellers the judgment to select customers as well as the tact to make sales. Hence, all the firm's travellers are trained in the warehouse, not picked up. Their aptitude for the work must show itself before they are given a commission for the road, and when they start out they know something about the stock they have to sell. Mr. Taylor lays little stress on connections, without qualifications. The connection is all right if the man is. Nor does he believe in luck. In his view, man, to be successful of himself, must be sufficiently able and sufficiently in earnest to push his purpose to completion.

ATTRACTIVE CANNED GOODS LABELS.

The next thing to a good name is a good appearance. It is doubtful, indeed, if the majority of people give second place to appearance. At all events, it is very frequently made to do service in default of a good name, and often with success. The part that attractive labels play in trade is an important one. Manufacturers recognise this to a very great extent, and usually mark their packages with wrappers that appeal strongly to one's sense of beauty. The demand for any given class of goods may have its fundamental basis on another sense entirely, yet the sight is sought to be captivated, as it is well known to be an important selecting influence. The relation between the taste and the sight is close and made the most of. Hence, manufacturers of edibles put up in packages rarely neglect to dress up the exterior with a captivating label. Our canners go in for handsome labels, and the development of labels in this country has made quite satisfactory progress in the main, though there is still room for improvement. Some very appetising designs are embodied in labels now in use, while others are defective in this quality. The canner should take a leaf out of the variety show manager's book. The latter advertises by means of pictures that are suggestive in a certain way; they are objectionable, to be sure, but they suggest feelings that are the basis on which such concerns are maintained. The canner ought to aim to have pictorial labels as seductive to the appetite, labels that suggest a longing to eat of the contents of the package. The goods will seem tempting, esculent, toothsome, mouth-watering, if labels are made the most of. Thus will they promote business, and the grocer as well as the canner will appreciate that effect of art in labels.

In another way will they minister to trade: The packages bearing such taking wrappers will differ with different classes of contents and with different brands. The goods of one manufacturer, the peaches, tomatoes, peas, corn, etc., will bear different labels, and constitute a varied series of themselves, and the assorted goods of two or three canners will give a rich source of diversity, which the grocer can turn to account in making his store attractive. Canned goods, well labelled, are beautiful shelf goods, as the material is sufficiently diverse to engage a tasteful stock-keeper's study after varied effect. Not only in shelf array, but also in an ornamental pile, as a centre piece to the space between counters, or as a background at the end of the store, do the canned goods packages offer a resource of very considerable possibilities to the stock-dresser.

There are, as was said above, some attractive labels now on Canadian goods but there are others that fail to interest the eye for a moment. Colors are badly assorted, a staring, naked void in green or yellow yawns round a picture of this vegetable or that, the background is unrelieved, life is lacking, the design is not striking. These are faults illustrated in some labels now used. They have conventionalized forms upon them instead of natural ones. The full, rich rotundity of life is not aimed at, voluptuousness of effect seems to be absent from the intention, and it ought not to be. Such labels look melancholy and sombre and out of date. Exposure to flies a few days would complete the look of desolation that hangs over them. If they were bright and got up in a style calculated to impress the epicure, there would be an increase in sales that would soon justify the improvement. But quality ought always to be behind attractiveness of appearance.

PROFIT IN QUICK PAYMENTS.

The question "Are quick payments profitable?" can only be answered in one way. They certainly are, both to the buyer and to the seller. For the buyer a saving of interest, at a high rate easy to be calculated, and for the seller a prompt settlement of the account. This cancels the risk, besides giving him ready money to use in his business. The interesting part of the question is, however, not whether such payments are profitable, but why we do not find more firms taking advantage of them. This opens up nearly the whole of the very large subject of general credits, if not of the conduct of business. At the present time, I will undertake to discuss only that part of the subject which concerns the reason why discounts are not more often taken, rather than what is to be gained by so doing.

This, as hinted above, carries with it the discussion of methods of business. Lack of capital is, perhaps, more often assigned as a reason for inability to discount one's purchases than anything else, and this, to the man who sees no way of increasing his capital, appears an insuperable difficulty. Those persons, however, who have had the pleasure of seeing a large business grow under their hands from very small beginnings, have learned that there are other ways to practically increase capital without actually having ready cash put in from outside sources. This is, perhaps, the portion of the subject which will prove, if not the most interesting, certainly the most valuable to the ordinary retail merchant. Good collecting—the calling in of funds which have for a long time been locked up in outstanding accounts, perhaps some of them being due from what the merchant is in the habit of considering the best class of trade, and which he fears to make much of an effort to collect from, owing to the danger of incurring ill-will and perhaps losing patronage—good collecting, I repeat, is essential. He should remember that there is no money made on the sale until the account is paid, and that over it stands an interest charge which slowly but surely eats up the profit. Often in this best class of accounts are found those which for one reason or another drop into the lower class, and a fair proportion of them are never paid at all. The nearer the seller who has not an unlimited cash capital can arrange to do a strictly cash business himself, the more possible it will be for him to do his buying for cash.

Another method of increasing the ready capital at one's command is by turning old stock into cash. There are few stores, if any, in which goods do not accumulate which are not easy to sell. Changes of styles, broken assortment, to say nothing of actual mistakes in buying, all contribute to this end. A certain amount of stock must necessarily be carried, but no matter how carefully this part of the business is looked after, there are accumulated goods which originally cost money, but which it is hard to again turn into it. Every dollar of such stock that is sold furnishes the merchant with a dollar with which to buy goods which can be turned in a short time, thus giving him the cash with which to discount new purchases. Another cell in which is locked up many a good dollar is that of too large a stock. In these days when most of the business is done by travelling salesmen, who are selected in the main simply for their ability to sell the most goods, it is not always easy to confine one's purchases within the limit originally dictated by the best judgment. Added to this is the demand which every storekeeper has often had from people coming in every day and asking for an article which he has not on his shelves. It is easy at such times to think that if the wished-for article were only in his store an easy sale and sure profit might have been made. Everyone of our most successful business men have, however, learned that there are some sales which it is more profitable to lose than to make, very largely because the profit on an occasional transaction is more than compensated for by the interest on the stock of goods which he would be compelled to carry, and from which he would sell only at rare intervals.

These are only a few of the many methods of increasing an active capital which will suggest themselves to the mind of a man who gives the matter careful thought. The reward which comes to the merchant who conducts his business on a cash basis is so ample that it should stimulate an intelligent effort on the part of those who have heretofore thought it impossible to accomplish.—Ex.

INSOLVENCY.

"Continual dropping wears away the stone." The moral in this prompts us to return to the old subject of the Canadian insolvency laws. Of course, the name is a misnomer, for we have no such thing as "Canadian Insolvency Laws," but insolvency matters are in a "mix and muddle" state, so discreditable to the Dominion and its Government, and so productive of distrust in the minds of foreign merchants, that no excuse is necessary for bringing the matter before our readers again and again, until, by our very importunity, a solution is reached. Recent business troubles among us have drawn special attention to the matter in England, and trade journals there are very outspoken indeed, and we fear very much that the impression is general that Canadian laws favor Canadian creditors at the expense of foreign creditors. We desire for the sake of Canadian credit in England to state emphatically that this is not the case. The laws make no distinction betweed "Home" and "Foreign" creditors, but the foreign creditors have of course the disadvantages attaching to non-residence and long dating The Canadian creditor, on the spot is naturally able to detect signs of weakness, and shorter dating sometiines brings him out safe and sound, while foreign firms, giving longer dating, suffer. Apart from these considerations, which will work their own cure, all creditors stand alike, and we press this strongly because of our views published in England, which are, we believe, entirely erroneous. None the less, we still have to face the fact that the state of the law in Canada is bad, and the question forces itself into greater prominence every day. In what direction shall these laws be amended? This question is not easy to answer, but that is no reason why it should be shirked. At the very outset of the consideration of the matter we are met by the difficulty that opinions are as numerous and as various as the parties by whom they are expressed. Merchants, bankers, accountants—all admit the evil, but scarcely any two agree as to the remedy. There is, however a unanimous desire that there should be an assimilation of laws, and, as far as possible, a uniformity of proceedure throughout the Dominion. It is well known that a Toronto lawyer, no matter how great his ability or how large his experience in winding up insolvent estates in Ontario, may come to Montreal and be utterly at sea—helpless as a child—if he attempts to handle a Montreal estate; and while no doubt Montreal lawyers are well able to discharge all duties devolving upon them, it seems on the face of it absurd that a lawyer in one Province should be as ignorant as a layman in another. Of course, it is useless to point out diseases without at least suggesting remedies, and with a view to an ultimate cure we may point out the chief evils to be removed. We have already denied the truth of statements to the effect that foreign creditors are discriminated against, but it cannot be disputed that undue preferences can be and are constantly being given to one creditor at the expense of all the rest. What business man has not suffered severe loss from a chattel mortgage in Ontario, or a bill of sale in the Lower Provinces? What Ontario lawyer is there who cannot devise for his client a lien still more dangerous than a chattel mortgage, because its registration is not necessary? What have we seen recently of open accounts transferred even to banks? And if banks take security, will not every merchant try to shield himself at the expense of his less lucky fellow creditors? Being in a position, then, to judge of the effects of preferences of the kinds mentioned, we urge with all possible emphasis, that we should have immediately such a uniformity of law as will render everything that is unjust in these matters impossible. We believe that the Province of Quebec may properly claim that her laws in commercial matters are, in many respects, nearer to what is fair and square all round than those of any other province. Chattel mortages, bills of sale and assignments of accounts are here illegal and liable to speedy detection and punishment. The laws governing the distrubition of assets, too (though perhaps savoring of red tape), seem so framed that a speedy and equitable distribution is certain if the curator is competent and the inspectors painstakings. If these statements are correct, Quebec laws may be taken as a foundation and the laws of provinces brought into harmony. We leave the matter for the present, but shall be glad to open our columns to any suggestions that may tend to bring about a better state of affairs.—The Shareholder,

A GUILD MEETING.

A very important conference was in sesion all day, yesterday, in one of the parlors of the Windsor. It was composed of delegates from the Toronto Wholesale Grocers' guild, appointed to meet a similar body from the Montreal guild to discuss matters appertaining to the trade. The Toronto delegates were Messrs, William Ince, ex-president of the Toronto Board of Trade; Hugh Blain, vice-president of that body; W. W. Gillard, of Hamilton; Geo. Meritt, of London, and Geo. Watt of Brantford. The meeting was presided over by Mr. Hebert, president of the Montreal guild. The press were not admitted, but one of the members told the Gazette that the sugar question took up a large portion of the meeting. The terms of membership in the Guild and what should qualify an applicant also came up for consideration. The delegates drew up a circular embodying their conclusions, which will be sent to all the local guilds throughout Canada for their approval.—Montreal Gazette (30th ult.)

AS TO CHEAP MATCHES.

The following letter has been sent by the Eddy company to all their agents: "It seems advisable that the trade and all jobbers in and users of matches should know that in addition to Eddy's 'No. 1 Telegraph' match and Eddy's 'Telephone' match, this company has four or five other grades and brands of French matches for sale. The makers of and agents for other brands may as well understand fully that all these brands of French matches are sold by this company and its agents solely in order to steady the trade, and to meet any competition offered by any other party with any other brand or grade or make of other matches. Our 'No. 1 Telegraph' match has been the standard match in Canada for nearly half a century. It has no equal anywhere, as a box contains the most of the best matches for the least money. When a portion of the trade asked for a lower priced article, we began to supply them with our 'Telephone' match some 15 years ago. The 'Telephone' is superior to any other sulphur match in America, except our 'No. 1 Telegraphs.' Sometimes, however, there is a call for an inferior, cheap, uncertain grade of matches; so to answer such a call we supply a Lower Province match to meet any and all competition that presents itself. This company and its agents throughout Canada are headquarters for all the grades of matches asked for. It is important that dealers in, and users of, matches should fully understand this and get our quotations, so as not to be deceived; for, although we do nct cut prices, we always try to protect our customers. We never have been, and we never will be, undersold in matches in Canada. We have now a full line in stock, comprising: 'No. 1 Telegraphs,' put up in handsomely printed ¼ gross woodboard caddies, making the handsomest shell packages in Canada, packed in 10-gross cases, weighing only 60 lbs., while all other makes weigh from 25 to 30 lbs. heavier per case; also 'Telephones,' in our usual strongly made tongued and grooved box; also the Lower Province French brands, such as 'Stars,' 'Dominions,' 'Carnivals,' 'Electric Light,' etc., etc. We quote the lowest prices, the most liberal discounts and the most favorable terms, and can, and will, give in the future, as we have in the past, the most prompt delivery and the most satisfactory service throughout. See our prices and advertisement in THE CANADIAN GROCER.

THE ARTICLE OF GLUCOSE.

How is glucose produced commercially? asks and answers the New England Grocer. The process of making it will be best understood by following the corn from which it is made from the time it enters the factory until it runs out of the spigot, a clear, odorless liquid. The shell-corn is first soaked for several days in water to soften the hull and prepare it for the cracking process. The softened corn is conveyed by elevators to one of the highest stories of the factory, and shovelled into large hoppers, from which it passes into mills that merely crack the grains without reducing them at once to a fine meal. The cracked grain is then conducted to a large tank filled with rinsing water. The hulls of the corn float at the top of the water, the germs sink to the bottom, and the portions of the grain, becoming gradually reduced to flour by friction, are held in solution in the water. By an ingenious process both the hulls and the germs are removed, and the flour part now held in solution contains nothing but starch and glucose.

This liquid is then made to flow over a series of tables, representing several acres in area, and the difference in the specific gravity of the two substances causes the gluten and the starch to separate without the use of chemicals. The gluten is of a golden yellow color, and the starch snow white. By the time the gluten has been completely eliminated, the starch assumes a plastic form, and is collected from the separating tables by wheel-barrowfuls and taken to a drying room where it is prepared as the starch of commerce or is placed in a chemical apparatus to be converted into glucose.

The conversion is effected by submitting the starch to the action of a minute percentage of dilute sulphuric acid, which, without becoming a constituent part of the compound, produces by its presence merely a miraculous change. This change from starch to glucose is a gradual process, and has four or five well-defined stages. On the addition of the acid the first change results in the production of what is known to chemists as dextrine. If at this stage the acid is neutralized by the addition of lime water, the process is choked, and dextrine is the permanent product. If the process is allowed to go on, the acid, however, works a second change, and maltose is the result. Here, also, the process can, if necessary, be interrupted by neutralizing the acid by means of lime water, and for some processes in the art of brewing this is sometimes done. The third and important stage in the chemical change wrought by the action results in the production of glucose, and just here is where the greatest skill of the chemist is required. The product must show by tests that it responds to the chemical formula, C_6, H_{12}, O_6. By comparing the formula with that of starch, which is O_6, H_{10}, O_5—that is, 6 parts of carbon to 10 of hydrogen and 5 of oxygen—it will be seen that the sulphuric acid has not added to the starch, but has taken up two parts of hydrogen, and the only gain in the starch is one part of oxygen.

The lime water introduced to neutralize the acid forms, with it, a product called gypsum—sulphate of time—which can be removed from glucose without leaving any appreciable trace. The fourth stage in the chemical process results in crystalizing the liquid and then the product is called grape sugar. There is a fifth stage, in which caramel or burnt sugar, could be produced were it of any commercial value. The gypsum, or sulphate of lime, formed by the neutralizaing lime water and sulphuric acid, sinks by gravitation to the bottom of the vessel, and the supernatant taccharine liquid is drawn off from the top. This is almost pure chemical glucose, but it is still subject to a filtering process through bone black, and refined in the same way as cane sugar is refined. The bone black has anything but the appearance of a puryfying agent, but possesses the peculiar property of attracting to itself all coloring matter. The glucose, passing through a labyrnhtine system of filtering is drawn off through spigots in the lower part of the building, and is ready to be shipped away in barrels. To give the glucose the appearance of cane syrup as well as to impart some of the characteristic taste, a small amount of that syrup is added to suit the fancy of the buyers. To make grape sugar the glucose is dried in rapidly revolving vessels from which much of the moisture escapes by virtue of the centrifugal force. Neither the glucose nor the grape sugar is used for domestic purposes, although either one is about two-thirds as sweet as the sweetest cane sugar. Glucose is largely used by makers of cheap candies; but chiefly for fermenting purposes, and of late years has become valuable to the brewer in making beer and pale ales. It is also largely used in mixtures with cane syrups and molasses, and is esteemed by those who are best capable of forming an opinion on the subject as being more wholesome than the cane product, which is, at least, only a side product or residue in the manufacture of sugar.

CASH VS. CREDIT.

No one will deny that it would be a good thing for the retail merchant and beneficial to the consumer if the cash system were in general use. Columns of space in the mercantile trade papers are given to the subject, which may eventually do some good in the direction of the object sought to be attained by inducing the dealers to change their methods of doing business.

Thirty or more years ago there were spasmodic efforts to do something in the way of bringing more "cash" and less "credit" to the retailer's till, but as there were no papers devoted to the merchant's interests and no organization among them, nothing could be done to break up the universal system of "charging" for nearly every sale made.

It would be only repeating an old story over and over again to say that any and every retail dealer will tell you that he is in favor of the cash system; that he would like to see it generally adopted, but—and then he will tell you why he can not make the change. His reasons are simply and uniformly to the effect that he would lose trade; that if he did not "trust," his neighbor in the same line would, and thus draw his customers away. And therein, it seems to us, lies the great secret (if it is a secret) of the failure to do business on a "cash down" basis, i, e., want of unanimity and desire on the part of one to sell more goods than his neighbor.

Those who sell the articles of daily consumption by every family know when they give the head of the household one of those universal "pass books" that, in nine cases out of ten, a great many more sales will be made than if the cash accompanied every purchase. The tendency to buy what may be desired but not absolutely necessary, when the article need not be paid for at the time of purchase, is almost universal among people of moderate means, and this frailty of human nature is too frequently taken advantage of by the dealer to increase his sales. There are others who are too good-natured to say "no" even to persons whom they are morally certain will not or can not pay their bills in a reasonable time, if ever, but take the risk hoping that all will come out right in the end.

As a rule, the mechanic and laboring man of the present day, could pay cash for everything he needs at the time of purchase. Of course, there are occasional exceptions, such as cases of misfortune, sickness, etc., but this could be provided for by mutual understanding. He receives pay for his work every week, or two weeks, but the unfortunate credit system usually absorbs his earnings, if he pays at the end of the week for what has already been consumed, and he must again be "trusted" for future supplies. Frequently the temptation to "stave off" part or the whole of his bill at the grocery, butcher shop, etc., is irresistible—in order that he may have a little change in his pocket—and it is not a great while until the debt is too formidable for his means. And so it goes.

A partial remedy for the evils referred to lies in the use of what is known as "coupon books," and we advise those of our mercantile readers who really desire to get out of the credit rut, but do not find it feasible to adopt the cash in hand system abruptly, to examine the merits (and demerits if there be any) of the coupon book method of doing business.

It appears to us, however, that without thorough organization very little can, or rather will, be done to make the cash system absolute and universal. This, we repeat, appears to us the only way by which the desired end can be accomplished, and the sooner it is done the better for all concerned, both seller and buyer.—Grocer and Trade Index.

DIAMOND CRYSTAL SALT

It is free from impurities. It is unequalled for sweetness, purity and flavor. It is made by an entirely new and expensive process, which is the principal reason why other manufacturers cannot compete with it for quality. For the table DIAMOND CRYSTAL has no equal. Its freeness from hardening makes it the best for table use. For the Dairy, DIAMOND CRYSTAL has no equal. Its remarkable antiseptic qualities make it the best for Dairy use. For table use, packed in barrels containing 115-2½s—100-3s—60-5s—40-7s and 30-10 lb. bags. For Dairy use, packed in barrels containing 20-14 lb. bags, also 28 and 56 lb. Sacks. On account of the combination entered into by the Canadian Salt Manufacturers, we are enabled to import this high-class manufacture, and are selling at prices as low as ordinary kinds.

Send us a trial order and be convinced of the correctness of the above statements.

While returning late Saturday evening from the labor of a busy day J. Mallabar, grocer, of Brandon, was accosted by two men who sought, with the assistance of a pistol, to make him disgorge the cash of Saturday's sales. Frightened by the outcries of Mallabar the robbers, after a sharp struggle, decamped without any boodle.

The E. B. The grocery and dwelling belonging to Messrs. M. Carignan & Co., Cote St. Paul, Montreal together with the adjoining house, were totally destroyed by fire on the evening of the 28th ult. Despite the efforts of the several firemen, however, damage to the extent of about $6,000 was done. The store, the stock in which was almost totally destroyed by water, was partially insured.

Liff Rollston, the 12 year old son of Robert W. Rollston, who keeps a grocery store at 330 Burwell Street, London, met with an unfortunate accident the other evening. He was running, chased by a companion, on Wellington street, and on the corner of Dundas street collided with an old gentleman named Ashton. The shock knocked the lad down, and he fell on his left arm, breaking both bones.

The fine stock and store of Messrs. W. A. McClean & Co., the well-known grocers and provision dealers, Owen Sound, was damaged by fire on Sunday last. The fire originated in a men's furnishing store next door and extended to Messrs. McClean & Co.'s premises, where it did some damage, but not so much as the firemen who opened their water-batteries on the stock and certainly quenched the fire, but also soaked a great deal of stock to its damage. Trade is at a standstill in the store till the insurance inspector shall have noted the extent of the harm done.

TORONTO MARKETS.

TORONTO, Nov. 5, 1891.

GROCERIES.

Bright hopes are still cherished though dull times are still experienced. Closely related to the slackness of trade is the shortage in grain receipts upon this market and at all buying points. Throughout our circulation week deliveries have been rather meagre. The stagnation in the grocery trade cannot well be assigned to any other cause, as the season is now on when buying is usually active. If there were worse weather there would probably be more business, but as farmers have a rare opportunity to get ploughing done they will not hurry even their threshing, much less their marketing. They can thresh in foul weather, or when the land is frozen up so that they cannot plough. The demand from Manitoba and the North-West remains an exception to the general dulness. As lake navigation approaches its close, the prospects of the higher railway freights urges traders in that part of the country to lay in their orders for early delivery. A few flakes of snow would impart new life to mercantile hopes these days.

CANNED GOODS.

The trade in canned goods languishes along with that in other lines, though a stronger tone continues to pervade quotations on vegetables. Deliveries in the meantime are being looked after, a very considerable business having been booked for forwarding now. Jobbers are receiving slender supplies of tamatoes, notwithstanding the mass of evidence that a large pack was expected. In two instances where canners had signed for the delivery of 2,000 cases, they advise that it is impossible to furnish more than 400. There is no doubt that the reports rife a few weeks ago to the effect that there would be a superfluity of tomatoes, had the result of thwarting tendencies that were alleged to be pointing that way. Canners were restrained by these rumors from putting up stock to the extent of their full capacity, as they had a misgiving that everybody else was preparing very large supplies. The frost as well nipped in the bud prospects of an unusually big pack. Prices of assorted round lots of peas, corn and tomatoes are uniform with all jobbers at $1.05, but quoted separately tomatoes in some cases are held higher. All other lines are quiet and unchanged.

COFFEES.

New Rio coffees will be in stock shortly. The crop is quite large and delivery has been a matter of pressure with the growers, who have been adversely affected by political troubles. Hence, prices rule on the easy side. Spot stock quotes at 19 to 21c. for ordinary and up to 24c. for choice, with a marked shortage in the supply of the latter. Java coffees are steady and unchanged, as are also Mocha and other varieties.

DRIED FRUIT.

Valencia raisins of the last crop continue to quote variously, but the difference in price between two dealers usually corresponds to a difference in quality, and not to a difference in holders' ideas as to what good stock is worth. Off-stalk of the new crop offers as low as 5½c., and as high as 6½c., with the bulk of sales made at 6c. There are grades to meet to all these prices. Old Valencias tend to weaken the new, as the former are still plentiful at 4 and 5c. Selected Valencias are 7½ to 7¾c., and layers are 7¾ to 8c. In Malaga fruit there is a momentary scarcity. Supplies are on the way to and will shortly be to hand. London layers are going to be fully a dollar cheaper than they were at this time last year, but the higher grades of Malaga fruit are as dear as ever. Currants are steady at 5¾ to 6½c. Prunes are quiet and unchanged at 5½ to 6½c. in cases. The new crop prunes are growing higher priced, which is contrary to the tendency of their opening. Small prunes are scarce, and this is assigned as the reason for stiffer values. Eleme figs are steady at prices ranging from 12½ to 16c. Late shipments are on the way. Twelve ounce boxes are 8½c. Seven crowned figs are 17c. New Persian dates ex S.S. Renown, from Bassora, are to be put up at auction on the New York market to-day.

NUTS.

The nut trade is quiet yet. New goods are arriving and are cheaper. New Taragona almonds are in, to sell at 13½ to 15c,, and new Valencia shelled almonds at 29 to 35c., according to quality. Other receipts are looked for to arrive at an early date.

RICE AND SPICES.

A small business in rice is kept up by country orders, the bulk of the trade being in medium grades. Spices are unaltered, rather quiet, and disposed towards stiffer quotations in some lines.

SUGAR.

A further shrinkage in the demand is to be chronicled. Friday and Saturday of last week were very good days for the refiners, as jobbers moved a considerable quantity of suguar against the advance in railway freights which took effect on Monday. Their action betokens confidence on their part in the strength of present prices, as it would pay them to wait and bring in supplies at the higher freight, if a sag in prices should take piace in a short time. The general position of the sugar market favors the inference that prices will be steady. Raw is stronger on account of the big discount that M. Licht in his last utterance has made upon his first estimate of the beet crop. Cane has stiffened perceptibly, and holders are not forcing sales in New York. Prices here are unchanged at 4⅞ to 5c. for granulated, 3½ to 4½c. for yellow, and 3.40 to 4½ for raws. The Farnham granulated sugars, the product of Canadian beet, are now listed at 4½c. for 15 barrels and over, and 4⅝c. for smaller lots.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

The trade in either line does not tax the wholesalers. A very tranquil movement is all there is to note. Syrups are in liberal supply at easy prices, ranging from 2½c. A very choice sugar syrup is in stock at 3½c. Molasses is listless, the livelier trade in table grades having come to a halt.

The St. Lawrence Starch Co. are showing a very fine line of corn syrups which will be sold wholesale at about 3¾c.

TEAS.

The jobbers are now pretty well supplied with all descriptions of stock, new teas having come in quite freely recently. Young Hysons of low grade are more plentiful and sell at from 17c. upwards. Japans can be had at almost any price for rough makes, but sales run in lines valued at from 16 to 20c. Congous are having a good run, the bottom price lines in request being 16c. Fine tippy Ceylon Pekoes are getting into smaller compass and are held firmer than a couple of weeks ago. London advices say the late arrivals there show much better quality.

The Produce Markets' Review says:—"There was a diminution in the quantities of Indian tea offered this week, and owing to a well-sustained enquiry, prices for most grades are firm, while the finest descriptions in some cases show an advance. The moderate prices and good value to be obtained from 1s. downwards are exemplified by the largely increasing consumption, and as there is no immediate prospect that these grades will rise in value, a further important expansion in the demand is probable. At any rate, the comparative value of Indian teas is favourable in this direction, and as there will probably be a falling off in the supply of the Ceylon growths a little later on, a greater impetus will be given to the use of the former. At a recent meeting the tea brokers agreed to endeavour to regulate the quantity to be offered at the public sales. To make this effectual it will be necessary to allow a reasonable time for sampling and valuing the teas, for it is frequently the case at present that the samples are not ready at the warehouses until the afternoon prior to the sale. If importers would adopt the principle of not issuing the catalogues until the teas are actually ready for sampling it would greatly facilitate business, and save much loss of time and labor. At the public sales 32,250 packages were brought forward, including a good assortment of most kinds. The bidding was active and a firm tendency was manifest for all good descriptions, while the downward movement for undesirable sorts continues. Ceylon teas have only been sparingly offered, but as the attention of buyers generally has been more or less monopolized by Indian teas, there has been no corresponding rise in values; indeed, although good to fine teas have maintained late prices, the lower kinds have sold at easier rates. The quality of the teas brought forward, although not quite so good as of late, is fairly satisfactory, a point to be specially borne in mind now that the fine China Monings and Ningchows, with which teas Ceylons chiefly compete, are selling at prices hitherto unheard of."

PETROLEUM.

A steady movement of stock at old prices constitutes the main force of the trade that is going on. The volume of business is up to that which is average in the fall trade usually, but otherwise does not call for comment.

The Petrolia Advertisers report : Petrolia crude $1.34¼ per bbl. Oil Springs crude $1.35 per bbl. The market is very quiet and very firm, with exceedingly few transactions taking place that is worthy of note.

There have been several new developments in the producing line the past week, particularly we might mention that mother earth being induced by the sights and oleageneous wishes of the fair ladies of Petrolia has smiled on them so far as to give the "Ladies Syndicate" a gusher in the Township of Moore. Mr. T. Sanson we are sorry to say has met with a severe loss in the same locality by the burning down of his rig, it was a complete clean out, and to make the matter more agravating the Titchborne boys within a few feet had just completed the well for Mr. S. F. Griffiths. Mr. James Loughead, Jackson Bros. and a dozen others are finishing wells and adding to our production every week, but with few exceptions the well in the North West do not continue spouters very long, the enormous pressure of gas peculiar to this territory has a trick of deceiving many an excited would be oil king, as soon as the oil bearing rock is reached all the oil in the immediate vicinity of a new hole is rushed to the same by the gas pressure and unless supported by good oil bearing rock the production soon falls down. Refiners appeare to have settled down to the belief that prices for crude oil all along the line have been run up to the highest point that existing conditions justify, and that their is nothing to lose by following a conservative course for the present. The big fight in refined oil still continues and fractions and freights are brought into play like blackthorns at a Donnybrook fair. The Imperial Oil Co'y and the Premier Oil Co'y are the two principal contesttants for supremacy on the market. A party informed us yesterday that refined oil could purchased in London in bulk for 11 7-16 f. o. b. there. This is a fair sample of the fraction line of business. The small fry have to stand by and look on and in doing so its our humble opinion that their profits will show up larger at the end of the season.

DRUGS AND CHEMICALS.

The present week's business does not show any variation from the quiet movement that has all along been the most notable feature of the fall trade. Prices have remained at the points quoted for some time.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

Freer supplies of butter are telling upon prices, which are from one to two cents easier than they were a week ago. Cool weather enabled makers to hold stock, and the same operations on the farms that check the delivery of grain were hindering the marketing of butter to a considerable extent. High prices have caused, however, freer offerings, which in turn have re-acted on values. Choice dairy is now obtainable at 17 to 18½ or 19c., though fewer parcels have been able to bring that. A 25-tub lot of selections sold on Monday from commission hands at 17c., but this is not quite a representative transaction, better prices holding for high-grade stock even in larger lots. The receipts are mostly of good quality, the weather favoring condition. Though more liberal offerings are the rule, there are no indications of any depression being near, as the supply of stock is mostly kept up by current making, no accumulation being reported from any quarter. Very good prices are to be had for medium grade butter, the best of which sells at 17c. Creamery is high and firm, but not selling here. Tubs are worth 23c., and a cent or two more for very choice stock.

Cheese does not waver in any respect from the position it has occupied for some time. The trade is rather light, but as makers are firm, basing their attitude on sanguine views of the export outlook, the price here continues to be 10½c. for full-cream stock.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

BEANS—New crop beans come forward slowly, holders being tenacious for better prices, those ruling now being $1.30 to $1.40. Re-selling is done on a basis of $1.50 to $1.60. The demand has not opened out to its usual late fall capacity yet.

DRIED APPLES—Buyers are wary and are repressing their wants in the expectation that prices may shade off to their views, which are represented in offers of 4c. outside, or 1-2c. below prices asked by holders. Stock sells from the hands of local holders at 5 to 5½c. Trade is dull.

EVAPORATED APPLES—Offerings are as numerous as ever, but the disposition to stock up makes slow headway. Purchases are made of car lots at 6½c., and sales from stock at 7 to 8c. There is little doing.

EGGS—Though not exactly scarce, they find ready sale upon delivery at 17c. for fresh stock. Consumption is more active and production is more limited than a few weeks ago.

GAME—Partridges bring 40 to 50c., and ducks 30 to 50c. per brace, according to size and condition. Venison is worth 5c. in the caicase and 7 to 9c. in the haunch. Cooler weather disposes dealers to take stock more freely.

HAY—All is bought that is offered, as holders come to the prices of buyers, whose quotations range yet at $11 to $11.50.

HIDES—Green have taken the drop that seemed inevitable more than a fortnight ago. The range is 4¾c. for weights under 60 lbs., and 5¼c. for heavier hides. The Chicago market has weakened a quarter since the decline here, and this is almost certain to inaugurate another drop here. Cured are unsteady at 5⅜ to 5½c.

HONEY—Little development takes place from week to week in the honey market, the absence of buyers being a chronic complaint. Clear is 7 to 10c., sections are 12½ to 15c

HOPS—Delayed demand still holds the market in suspense. Some transactions have taken place at the prices quoted, out these prices represent buyers' attitude rather than sellers', and the former are yet rather indifferent. They quote 13 to 15c.

ONIONS—The price is easier, $2 being the highest obtainable for barrels. A somewhat slow demand is experienced.

POULTRY—Favorable weather has given an impulse to shipping from country points to this market, and there is a glut of stock some days. Chickens are quoted at 30 to 50c., according to weight, ducks at 40 to 50c., turkeys at 7½ to 10c. per lb., and geese at 4½ to 6c. A lot of 300 lbs. of dressed turkeys was sold at 8c. on Monday. A lot of poor poultry is arriving.

POTATOES—Hold their own despite the signs of lower prices. There has not been a large amount of business done in cars, but for what has been, the basis is 45c. Out of store lots are 50 to 55c.

SEEDS—Scarcely any alsike has been marketed. The price holds yet at the quotations given a week ago, that is, $5.50 to $6 for prime to choice, and $6.50 for extra selected for export. Threshing has not yet been done in the country, and growers seem to depend on a later market to get the long prices of last fall ; wherein they will be disappointed, unless a freak of chance shall entirely change the situation.

SKINS—With the first of the month 5c. more was added to the price of sheepskins, bringing them to 80c. Calfskins are rather scarce at 5 to 7c.

STRAW—The supply is fairly good at $6 to $6.50.

WOOL—Is perhaps imperceptibly improved, as some offerings have been taken at 19c. Buyers are not eager for business at 18c. for average quality.

DRESSED HOGS AND PROVISIONS.

There has lately been an extraordinary delivery of small hogs that cannot be taken care of by the packers. They are suitable only for butchers whose capacity for putting them into consumption is too limited to maintain a market for such large and continuous receipts. The stiffer values of grains used in feeding have caused this over-supply of half-grown hogs. The owners prefer to market the grain henceforth, and therefore slaughter the hogs prematurely. Values for these small hogs run as low as $4.50, and even at that price sales are on a full market hard to effect. Packers' weights are worth $5.50. This class includes hogs of 125 lbs. and upwards.

BACON—Long clear is more plentiful, an easing off of the demand along with increased supplies tending to put the balance of trade on the side of buyers. The price is 8½c. Smoked bellies and backs are 10½ to 11c. Rolls are 8¾ to 9c.

HAMS—New smoked hams are in free demand at 11 to 12c.

LARD—Pure is 10c. in tubs and 10½c. in pails. Compound is easier at 8¼ to 8½c.

BARREL PORK—Is fairly active at $14 to $14.50 for heavy mess and $16.50 to $17 for short cut.

FISH AND OYSTERS.

The supply of white fish and salmon trout has ceased, the close season beginning on the first of the month. Stocks of frozen are not supposed to be large as receipts during the open season were rather backward. The price is still quoted at 7 to 8c. Other descriptions of fish sell at values quoted in Prices Current. The demand is easy. Oysters go out freely at $1 25 to $1.30 per gallon.

FLOUR AND FEED.

The volume of the week's business comes up to that commonly realized in the trade of this season. Prices are as here follow :—$5.75 for Manitoba patent, $5.25 to $5 35 for Ontario patents, $4.50 for straight roller, $4.40 to $4.50 for extra, $2.25 to $4 for low grades, $5.25 to $5.40 for strong bakers'. Graham flour is $4.50, standard oatmeal $4 to 4.30, rolled oats $4 to 4.30, Kiln-dried corn meal is $3.75 to $4 00, rolled wheat $4.50 to 4.75 ; wheat bran $12, cracked corn $1.50 per cwt., mixed chop $20 to $25, split peas $4, pot barley $4.25, oats 34c.

FRUITS.

Apples are higher on account of the preponderance of winter-keeping fruit that is now on the market. The range is $1.50 to $2.50. Pears are becoming scarce at 30 to 40c. per basket. Grapes are also getting into small volume at 1¾ to 3c. per lb. Cranberries are unchanged at $8.50 to $9 per barrel, and $3 to $3.25 per crate.

GREEN FRUIT.

Better supplies are easing prices both in oranges and lemons. The attention given to either by traders is onlymoderate. Maori lemons are $8.50 to $9, Malagas $8 to $8.50 per chest and $4 to $5.50 per box. Jamaica oranges are steady at $7.50, and Floridas at $3.75 to $4.25. In Malaga grapes there is no change. They quote at $5 to $5.50 per keg. Bananas are scarce at $1.25 to $2 per bunch. Sweet potatoes quote at $2.75 to $3.50 for Jerseys and $2.75 to $3 for Baltimore.

SALT.

Business is chiefly confined to deliveries of contracts made some time ago with packers. In other directions the movement of trade is slow, calling for not more than two or three carloads a week. Prices are unchanged.

DRY GOODS.

The same general dullness characterizes this trade as the grocery trade. There has been some improvement since last week, as seasonable weather has braced up the demand a bit, but until freezing up takes place or snow falls or grain prices go up, the substantial basis of the trade will change but little.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Nov. 5, 1891.

The grocery market has exhibited a fair degree of activity during the past week, principally in dried fruit, but jobbers generally report encouraging prospects in most lines. These active symptoms are due to the advance of the season, and the fact that the movement of supplies toward their final destination is commencing in earnest. No particular line shows any radical change, and values generally, as will be seen by the appended reviews are steady.

SUGAR, SYRUP, ETC.

All the raw sugar markets are reported firm, but there is little doing on spot as refiners are pretty well supplied. There is a small cargo in the river, but nothing can be said about it definitely yet. In refined, business is rather quiet and prices rule at 3½ to 4¼c. for yellows, with granulated 3½ to 4¼c. Syrup is moving slowly at prices ranging from 2 to 2⅜c., and there is a fair jobbing trade in molasses at 37 to 38c. according to quantity.

TEAS.

The tea market is quiet, and dealers are not taking more than they require for immediate wants, as they are apparently well supplied.

RICE.

The rice market is very quiet at the moment, and prices are unchanged. We quote: Patna, $4.50 to $5 ; Japan, $4.25 to $4.50 ; Standard, $3.90, and off grades, $3.50 in car lots.

COFFEES AND SPICES.

All advices on coffee from outside markets show a firmer tendency, and although prices here are not altered, they have a stronger tendency. Rio has been moved for wholesale lots during the week at 18½ to 19c., but it is likely to be higher, and the same can be said of Jamaica. Spices were quiet during the week, pepper and cloves 9½ to 10c.

DRIED FRUIT.

The week has witnessed more activity in dried fruit, more especially from first hands, and this is a good indication that jobbers are feeling the want of fresh supplies. There has been a good call for Valencia raisins since our last, and fully 7,000 boxes must have been moved out of first hands during the past few days, on a steady basis of 5 to 5⅜, which is only possible in the case of a round lot, stocks in first hands are therefore brought into narrow compass by these transactions, and holders are more independent in their views. In fact to job out the goods the basis is steady at 5½ to 5¾ for firsts and 5¼ to 5⅜ for seconds. Valencia layers have also furnished a fair business during the week, at 6 to 6½ for round lots, a large quantity being moved and the feeling on them is distinctly firmer. Currants are in good demand business in a wholesale way has been done at 5 1-2 to 5 3-4 with a proprtionate advance for jobbing business. The tendency is upwards in sympathy with leading markets, and strong advices from primary sources.

CANNED GOODS.

The canned goods market does not show any improvement. Reports indicate that there is a large stock of lobsters in first hands, and that they are anxious to sell, but trade moves very slowly indeed. In fact a lot of 700 cases was offered Monday at a very low figure, with no takers. Tomatoes are firmer owing to rumors that the pack in the West is smaller, but stocks here continue large. Business has been done at 97 1-2 to $1. Some 2,500 cases of new blueberries have been placed on this market at about 90c., but packers in the east are now offering as low as 80c., and wholesale jobbers here are known to have sold as low as 75c. and expect still lower prices, owing to the large supplies in first hands. Peas are scarce and jobbers' stocks are small. Very little is doing in corn, and a difference of 15c. is reported in prices from first hands, the market being unsettled owing to the fact that dealers don't know definitely how the future will develop. Fruits are generally dull and sick.

GREEN FRUIT.

There is no particular change in green fruit which moves along quietly in a jobbing way with prices steady. Jamaica oranges in barrels move at $7 to $8 and Florida stock is now on the market at $3.75 to $4. Lemons are unchanged at $4.50 to $6 per box.

FISH.

The fish market generally is firm under light supplies while demand is fair. The first shipment of B. C. salmon in barrels were placed on the market during the week at $12 spot, a fair price. There were quite a few arrivals of Labrador stock also by the recent steamers, but the supply was readily picked up at quotations, 14 to 16c. according to grade. Advices regarding the regular fall trout sales at St. John, N. F., state that all the offerings were bought up on American account at $6.75 to $7. Attempts have been made to place some of the purchases on the market, but the figure prohibited the idea of business. A fair business is doing in lake trout at $4 the half barrel. Herring are firm and scarce, high prices checking the demand.

APPLES.

The apple market continues fairly steady, and although cable advices do not quote at outside figures so high at Liverpool, the difference there is not so great considering the large shipments which must have depressed the market, at present there is a good demand from shippers which leads to a good business in car lots at $2 to $2.10 the bulk of the business at the inside figure. Recent cables quote a range in Liverpool of 13 to 21s. as follows. Kings 20 to 21s. Ribstone 18s. Baldwin's 16s. and Greenings 13s. 6d. The shipments for last week were heavy the largest yet this fall 24,660 bls to Liverpool, 13,626 to Glasgow, and 10,283 to London, a total of 48,569. From Boston the shipments to the same three ports were 11,106.

DRIED AND EVAPORATED APPLES.

There is nothing doing in dried stock yet as none is offering. Evaporated rules at 8 to 9c.

HOPS.

The hop market does not show any change. Some odd trading in a small way has transpired, but the terms are kept quiet. However, we think 15c. a fair nominal quotation. The lot of Bavarian referred to last week, will be here this week, and 35c. is the price asked for them.

PROVISIONS.

The provision trade is quiet, but the market holds steady under a fair jobbing demand. We quote:—Canadian short cut, per brl. $17 to $17.25; mess pork, western, per brl. $14.00 to $14.50; short cut, western, per brl. $17.25 to $17.50; hams, city cured, per lb. 10 1-2 to 11 1-2; hams, canvassed, per lb. 00 to 00; lard Canadian, in pails, 0.08¾ to 9c; bacon, per lb. 9c. to 10c; lard com. refined, per lb. 7¾ to 8c.

EGGS.

There is a good steady demand for eggs at unchanged prices. Limed eggs sell at 15 1-2 to 16c. and held stock 15 to 16c.

BUTTER.

The butter market remains firm, with sufficient reasons evident for buyers to keep independent. Late-made creamery furnishes business at 24c. for export and 25c. has been made for selected parcels on local account. High prices have also been made in Townships dairy, and on the whole the market is firm. Finest creamery, 23 1-2 to 24c.; finest Townships, 17 to 19c.; Western dairy, 16 to 17c.

CHEESE.

The market has commenced to show a little more life recently, and there are more shippers who speak of a possibility of business now, than formerly, although they still complain of limits. It is noticeable, though, that business is doing in grades under finest at about 9¾c., and it is to be presumed that some are picking up the best they can get and sending it forward. For strictly finest there is no reliable basis to quote, as we do not know of any business in it. Some business over the cable in October stock at 48s.9d. is reported, but it was for pasty October which had been offered to a Bristol house. Of course everyone heard of it and cabled to their correspondents on this side that their neighbors were offering below them. The fact is, no finest could be moved here at present under ten cents, and our quotations of that price is a purely nominal one. The cable to-day advanced to 50s, but it will have to climb a little more yet before holders of finest can operate on a paying basis. Finest September and October 10c; finest French and eastern 9¾ to 9⅞c; medium 9 to 9 2-1; cable 50s.

GRAIN.

There is no change in the grain trade; business being confined to oats and peas, which continue to move out fairly well at quotations. The stocks in store compared with those of a week ago show a decrease of 2,216 wheat, 50 corn, 95,638 oats, 16,401 barley, and an increase of 101,610 peas, and 12,603 rye. Compared with a year ago there is an increase of 246,496 wheat, 255,264 peas, 53,123 oats, 115,351 barley, 92,035 rye, and a decrease of 11,534 corn. We quote: No. 1 hard Manitoba, $0; No. 2 do. $1.05 to $1.07; No. 3 do., 97c; No. 2 Northern, $1.04; peas, 76 to 77c. per 66 pounds in store, 77 to 78c. afloat; oats, 34c. per 34 pounds in store; corn, 68c. to 69c. duty paid; feed barley, 48 to 50c.; good malting do., 60 to 62c.

FLOUR.

The flour market is quiet, with only a moderate enquiry reported for local account. The stock in store shows a decrease of 9,775 barrels compared with a week ago, and an increase of 2,839 barrels compared with a year ago. Patent spring, old wheat, $0.00 to $5.40; Patent spring, new wheat, $5.00 to $5.30; Patent winter, $5 to $525; straight roller $4.75 to $4.80; Extra $4.40 to $4.50; Superfine $3.95 to $4.25; City strong bakers' old wheat, $0.00 to $5.10; City strong bakers, new wheat, $0.00 to $5.00; Strong bakers' $4.75 to $5.

HALIFAX MARKET QUOTATIONS.

(Wholesale Selling Rates.)

HALIFAX, Nov. 4, 1891.

BREADSTUFFS—There is nothing new to be said in connection with this trade, except that there is a demand for flour at the reduced values. Cornmeal and oatmeal will remain firm, at least for some time, with probabilities that oatmeal will not go lower this crop year. Whilst we make no change in quotations, yet sales are made below our quoted prices, in some lines at least.

Manitoba highest grade patents, $5.75 to 6.00; High grade patents, $5.20 to 5.30; Good 90 per cent Patents, $5.05 to 5.01; Straight grade, $4.90 to 5.00; Good seconds, $4.40 to 4.60; Graham flour, $4.90 to 5.15; Oatmeal, $4.30 to 4.40; Kiln dried corn meal, $3.25 to 3.40; Rolled wheat, $5.55; Wheat bran per ton, $18.50 to 19.50; Middlings, $23 to $23 50; Shorts, $22.00 to $22.50.; Cracked corn, per ton, $00.00; Moulee, $24; Split Peas $4.00 to $4.10; White beans per bushel, $1.50 to 1.55; Pot Barley per bbl, $3.90 to $4.00; Canadian oats, choice quality new, 38c. to 40c.; Hay per ton, $12 to 13.

SUGAR AND MOLASSES.—The movement in sugar during the past week has been only fair. The raw sugar markets are quoted firm, but there is no advance in refined, owing, no doubt, to the curtailed demand. Molasses is receiving some attention in a jobbing way, but no large transactions are reported.

Cut loaf, 5½c.; Granulated, 4 ½ to 4⅝.; Circle A, 4½c.; White extra C, 4¼c.; Standard, 3½c. to 3⅝c; Yellow C, 3¼c.

MOLASSES.—Barbados, 36c.; Demerara, 35 to 38c.; Diamond N. 48c.; Porto Rico, 34 to 35c.; Trinidad, 32½ to 33c.; Antigua, 33 to 34.

FISH—There is absolutely nothing new to note regarding the position of the local fish market Receipts are very small indeed, but as there is no demand, prices do not advance.

ST. JOHN, N. B., MARKETS.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Nov. 2, 1891.

There has been a considerable increase in business the past week. Wholesalers and jobbers are looking forward to a good fall trade. Money continues scarce, and unless it gets more plentiful trade will not expand as much as was expected.

FLOUR—Has been in better demand the past week. During the next two or three weeks it should increase still more. The prices are not much changed, though holders of large stocks are more inclined to give concessions than a week ago. Manitoba patent, $5.75 to $5.90; high grade, $5.25 to $5.35; medium patents, $4.90 to $5.10.

MEAL—The price of cornmeal is gradually getting down. The quantity moving is not large and the lower prices should start it some. Quotations are $3.05 to $3.15.

OATMEAL—Has advanced the past few days about 25c. per barrel, though the general opinion is it will soon be got at the old prices or lower, as the oat crop is reported the largest for years.

SUGAR—Sugars are reported firmer at the refineries, yet wholesalers are offering better grades at lower prices than for several weeks. Granulated 4½ to 4⅝c.; yellows 3.40 to 3¾c.

SYRUPS—Are easier and the market is pretty well supplied with both golden and maple, which are offered in both cans and kegs.

BUTTER—Is in good demand for choice stock, of which very little is offering, is quoted at 17 to 19c.

EGGS — Very few offering with prices firmer.

POTATOES—Are still being shipped in large quantities and keeps prices steady; $1.15 to $1.80 as to quality are the ruling prices.

NOTE.—S.S. Saymouth Castle arrived yesterday, from Bermuda. Her inward cargo was light. She is expected to sail again on Wednesday with a full cargoe of potatoes, fish, butter, etc.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

A Reader writes: Would you be so kind as to give us the address of some good agents of Toronto, who handle bankrupt stocks of groceries and soaps, pipes and tobaccos. We buy all our groceries from wholesale houses in Winnipeg, but their are often chances in large cities like Toronto from bankrugt sales, and we do a fair Indian trade.

We could not now do without our weekly visitor THE GROCER. Your fall number was splendid.

Ans—The periodical trade sales furnish the best opportunities for such bargains as our correspondent asks about. Perhaps further information can be furnished by readers.—ED.

SOME REFLEXIVE QUESTIONS.

Does the condition of the public highways effect your trade, and in what way?

By adopting which principle, cash or credit, will a merchant do the most business and find himself better off at the end of the year?

If you have been an advertiser, what system has proved the most profitable?

Do you find cheap or high railroad fares the greatest advantage to your business?

Does cutting prices in competition bring you a desirable trade or, is their anything gained by it in the end?

Are you bothered with loungers about your store; and if so, what means do you take to break it up?

Do lady clerks aid in bringing certain customers that you would otherwise lose?

Do you find it difficult to secure efficient help in the way of clerks? What do you think constitutes good help?

Do you visit the wholesalers and jobbers often; or, can you do as well by patronizing drummers and agents?

Do you find much information in trade journals and do you subscribe for many.—Country Merchants and Storekeepers' Guide.

WHEN TO STOP ADVERTISING.

An English trade journal once requested a number of its largest advertisers to give their opinion concerning the best time to stop advertising, and the following replies were received: "When you have convinced everybody whose life will touch yours that you have better goods and lower prices than they can ever get anywhere else." "When you perceive it to be the rule that men who never advertise are outstripping their neighbors in the same line of business." "When men stop making fortunes right in your very sight solely through the discreet use of this mighty agent." "When you can forget the words of the shrewdest and most successful business men concerning the main cause of their prosperty." "When every man has become so thoroughly a creature in habit that he will certainly buy this year where he bought last year." "When younger and fresher houses in your line cease starting up and using the newspapers in telling the people how much better they can do for them than you can." "When you would rather have your own way and fail, then take advice and win." "When nobody else thinks 'it pays to advertise.'"

It is an easy matter to adulterate licorice so as to sell it at almost any price, but consumers soon become disgusted at the dirty, gritty stuff, so that it does not pay the retailer to handle it. To be on the safe side sell the licorice of Young & Smylie, and you will never have complaint from the buyers. The reputation of the goods are A1, and their quality is always kept up to the standard.

Two steamers and two schooners arrived at Halifax from Newfoundland ports on Friday, bringing 15,000 quintals of codfish. These fish were admitted into Canada duty free, and in one day aggregated more than Newfoundland's exports to the United States in one year. The effect is to decrease prices in Halifax. Thus, while Canada admits these products duty free, the Newfoundland Government refuses the decencies of civilization to Canadian fishermen in Newfoundland waters. Two steamer loads of over 10,000 quintals of these imports were to Hon. A. G. Jones.

The early-closing business seems to be gradually playing out. This seems too bad, as winter is about setting in, when the volume of business done after seven in the evening is not likely to pay for the extra gas consumed, while at the same time inducing people to form the bad habit of deferring purchases (which could as readily be made in the daytime) until after tea. The by-law may have some harsh features, but, on the whole, it is a good thing for the clerks and storekeepers, and a conference of all interested would perhaps lead to the suggestion of amendments beneficial to all.—Port Hope Times.

The note struck by the Deseronto Tribune in the following paragraph will find responsive chords in the experience of the majority of general merchants and grocers just now. It says:—Business men in town complain of the great difficulty which they experience in collecting debts, both large and small. They are too frequently only paid in promises. They say there is a lamentable want of honor in keeping a promise to fulfil obligations. "I will pay you next week sure," has become a stale story on which no reliance is placed. There are silly people who get angry when in the ordinary course of business they are presented with a statement of their accounts. They flare up and threaten to take away their custom. The town has more than its share of dead-beats. The machinery of the law is slow and unsatisfactory in collecting lawful debts as far as Deseronto is concerned. The limits of forbearance are about reached.

BEET SUGAR IN AMERICA.

All the factories are now in the height of sugar making, and the results are proving very satisfactory. The season was much more favorable for the beet roots than last year, and with the bounty of 2c. per lb. the business is so highly remunerative that a considerable "boom" in beet sugar raising is in sight for another year. New factories are apparently about to be built in several States. The production of this season is estimated at 13,000 tons, and it may be doubled next year. Sorghum sugar is also being more successfully produced this season, and although the present amount is small, and scarcely beyond the experimental state, it has increasing possibilities under the stimulus of 2c. per lb. bounty. The sorghum sugar produced at Medicine Lodge is being refined in Brooklyn by the American Sugar Refining Co. before going into consumption. A few years should show rapid progress in sugar production in the United States, as all the interests connected with the business are wide awake, and much encouraged by this season's apparent success. The Treasury Department at Washington pays the bounties promptly in cash. Owing to the short crop of cane sugar in Louisiana the draft upon the Treasury for bounties this year will be much less than the applications indicated.

Mr. E. B. Eddy, of the Eddy Mfg. Co., Hull, accompanied by the mechanical superintendent of this big concern, Mr. Milton, passed through the city, last week, on their way to New York, where they intend to purchase.

Young & Smylie of Brooklyn, N. Y., are the most widely known licorice manufacturers in the United States. The purity and excellence of their licorice is universally conceded, and wherever licorice is found bearing the stamp of Young & Smylie it is sure evidence of its purity. Grocers and general merchants are finding that licorice is desirable to carry in stock ; and while the volume of sales is less than candy, still it is certainly on the increase, and every merchant should embrace in his order a supply of Young & Smylie's toothsome product.

To the Grocers and Confectioners of Canada.

Although only in business since March our success has been such thro' your kindness that we feel we cannot let this opportunity pass without thanking you for your many favors to us the short time we have been running. We assure you it was no easy task to persuade many persons that our goods and prices were right and you no doubt did not always find it an easy task to get your customers to try a new brand such as ours. We have labored hard and spent considerable money to make our Biscuits and Confectionery what they now are—the very best. We assure you nothing will be left undone to keep them perfect so long as we are in the field. We truly try to please you all, and assure you that our aim will be to manufacture from the highest grades of the many articles used in our business. We wish it were possible to make the personal acquaintance of you all, but just now it is not possible for us to visit you all but extend to you a hearty invitation to call upon us when in Toronto. No one will be importuned to buy. We will let our goods, prices and style of doing business win your favors. Again thanking you for your support, we remain,

Yours truly,

The Toronto Biscuit and Confectionery Co.,
7 Front St., E.

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Co., Montreal:

GENTLEMEN,—I have personally taken samples from a large stock of your Granulated Sugar, "REDPATH" brand, and carefully tested them by the Polariscope, and I find these samples to be as near to absolute purity as can be obtained by any process of Sugar-Refining.

The test by the Polariscope showed in yesterday's yield 99·90 per cent. of Pure Cane Sugar, which may be considered commercially as ABSOLUTELY PURE SUGAR.

It is well-known

That successful Doctors read all the latest medical books and papers and go abroad occasionally to study. Successful lawyers read legal publications to learn the latest legal decisions and points constantly cropping up. Teachers, clergymen, druggists, architects, all read the publication issued in the interests of their profession. They must do so to keep up with the times.

The same applies to grocers and general merchants. They must not only read the best papers published in their interests but must also watch the advertisements closely. There they learn the rise and fall in prices; latest trade news and methods of buying, handling and selling goods, so that they may make the greatest profit. A doctor reads much that he already knows, so does a lawyer. So does a number of any of the other professions. So will a merchant. It is often the issue of the paper he misses that is worth dollars to him. His best and safest policy, therefore, is to subscribe for his trade paper.

The only exclusively grocery and general store paper is THE CANADIAN GROCER issued weekly, subscription price $2.00 per year.

SPECIAL TO OUR READERS.

As the design of THE CANADIAN GROCER is to benefit mutually all interested in the business, we would request all parties ordering goods or making purchases of any description from houses advertising with us to mention in their letter that such advertisement was noticed in THE CANADIAN GROCER.

"Wholesale" writes: At meetings of creditors of insolvent grocers in Toronto for some years past, the writer has asked the insolvent to show a statement of his own drawings from the store for his family use. In no case has the insolvent been able to produce such an account. The answer has been, "we never keep an account of own drawings for family use." What is THE GROCER'S opinion upon this subject? Should there not be some steps taken to compel store keepers, who buy on credit to show where the goods have gone when they become insolvent?

* * * *

The answer to this question should be found in the trader's books. As a consumer, drawing supplies from his store, he should put himself on the same footing as his credit customers hold in his book-keeping, that is, everything that moves from his store to his household ought to be charged, in the same way as if the goods went unpaid for to any other household. So far as the store is concerned, the transfer from a man's stock to his table is a sale, not a gift. It is the same with everything disposed of in a gratuitous way, as charitable offerings, etc. The Household account should be very strictly kept. As with goods, so with money. Every cent taken from the store revenue for personal or household expenditure should be credited to Cash, with some term in the entry to show unmistakably that such item is not for the running of the business. The object to be aimed at is a distinct separation of household and store finances. Confusion between the two is to be avoided, in the interests, not of the household, but of the business.

* * * *

The question is one to which creditors are entitled to a clear answer from every insolvent. They have a right to know whether the household has been an unnecessarily heavy drain upon the business. If an answer could be got at in every instance of failure, an important relation between the trader's domestic and commercial economy might be discovered. Very rarely can a trader say to what extent his family has made drafts upon his stock and business; hence, there is no cause of failure so indefinite in the statistics of commercial failure as this one. It may be a very considerable or a very minor cause; there is no basis upon which to found an estimate of the extent of its effect, for the reason that book-keeping seldom takes cognizance of it. If the question could always be answered, therefore, not only would individual cases of reply be satisfactory to creditors, but the collection of replies would furnish useful data as to what percentage of profits could be honestly spared for household outlay. The indulgence of expensive habits has no more right to be covered up than the making away with fraudulent intent of any part of the assets upon which a man's proprietary rights have morally and perhaps legally lapsed.

* * * *

Nobody can say what proportion of the Canadian trade keeps strict account of the stock and proceeds of the store that go out through the channel of household consumption. There may be many traders who follow the practice. One thing is certain: all that do so maintain their solvency, for among those who so far have failed, none have been able to point to such accounts. That fact alone may throw a good deal of light upon the cause of insolvency in all these cases, as if a sharp eye had been kept upon private expenses there might have been sufficient curtailment of outlay to have prevented failure. The grocer's stock is a sort of magazine of supplies. The family can draw upon it for a great part of the living necessaries, and are apt to draw just as hard in dull times as in brisk times. If the stock were hardware, or a similar line, it would not suffer the same inroads and family expenses would be likely to be kept down, at least in dull times. But nothing tends more to ingraft frugal habits than the practice of book-keeping in household economy. That not only shows a record of expenses but also checks extravagance. Anything that enables a man to see a department of expense growing unreasonably fast is of itself a means to correct that ill speed. It is what we are blind to that does the most mischief, and no trader should keep himself blind to the movement from stock or till to personal or family luxury. To remain blind is like shunning to take stock.

* * * *

To prevent his identity as a buyer from his own stock merging into his identity as the seller of that stock, a trader must keep personal accounts distinct from the accounts of his business, and must see that both are conscientiously looked after. It is simply living in a fool's paradise to wear fine raiment and fare sumptuously every day without any clear idea about the cost of such indulgence, or any assurance that it is not eating the vitals out of the business that is expected to be kept going If a costly mode of living can be afforded, a man should not be afraid to see the daily, weekly or monthly figures which show what the rate of consumption is. If his income warrants it he can keep up the standard of living, if his income from the business does not warrant it, he can lower the standard. Personal accounts in such a case are a sort of warning barometer.

FLOUR AND CREDIT.

A decidedly backward step was taken when certain Ontario millers undertook this fall to force business a little by a return to the credit system. Of the evils of that system, unanimously abandoned by flour manufacturers nine years ago, no other industry had become so completely purged as had theirs. The experience of a period of strictly cash trade has been satisfactory, not only in itself, but also by comparison with the past. Prior to the year 1882, the millers had had a surfeit of the sort of benefits to be derived from selling flour on time. It was their very general and familiar acquaintance with the heavy losses which were the chief harvest of that mode of doing business which led them to renounce it. Everybody in the milling trade felt the enfeebling effects of credit-giving in an unusual degree, in the very last year that the practice was rife. The loss from the eastern trade alone, that in the Maritime Provinces and the Eastern States, was immense. The spirit of failure seemed to be abroad among dealers, and its effects struck nearly all the leading millers of this Province. The result was to precipitate union for the adoption and maintenance of an exclusively cash basis.

Many large dealers in flour ten years ago were enabled to continue in business simply because they were carried by the millers, and were floated upon a capital that represented a part of their indebtedness. A shipment of one or more carloads of flour would be bought on sixty days. The dealer, in need of money, would aim to sell at once if possible and realize cash, not being particular to get as much as he gave, if a concession would accelerate his obtaining the money in view. Before the time of maturity he might operate in some other field of speculation and win or lose, but he generally came short with his payments to the miller. Credit trade in no other manufactured product lends itself so conveniently to designs of this description, as flour is the most staple article in commerce. People must have it, and its conversion into money through sale in small parcels and accommodating prices is a simple matter at anytime. A western miller, towards the close of the credit-epoch, got suspicious that an eastern customer who owed him near $10,000 was trading on no other resource but simply the money yielded by the flour for which he owed; he was taxed with this, and frankly owned up that he possessed nothing in the wide world but what he had come by through the generous credit of the miller. He failed a short time after, paying 10c. in the dollar. It was when smitten with the effects of a series of such failures that our millers shook the dust of the credit system off their feet.

When the departure to cash trading was made, the co-operation of the banks was secured. It was felt that absolute credit would be impracticable without this. A draft at sight upon a man in Halifax would sometimes be presented three weeks before the receipt of the shipment for which it was drawn. To meet this the banks all consented to add 30 days' interest at whatever rate was agreed upon, and to give off that a rebate for as many days less than thirty as were not taken up in transit.

Just now, however, there is a large amount of business done on time, some millers giving 30 days, others 60. They are mostly outside of Toronto, and are shipping in carloads to this city and wherever else they can place an order. Travellers from cash mills find business slow, as they are confronted with as low quotations on time. Thus the downward step is taken at the outset in the rejection of a margin to cover credit. Prices as a consequence rule low, for the cash millers declare their preference for cutting over crediting. The result must be that all millers will get on the same basis, that of time or that of credit, before very long. Flour can stand a credit business about as poorly as any article of consumption. It is the product of raw material for which every cent of its value is paid in hard cash at the moment of sale. Since all grain starts out on a basis of cash, the trade in the products of it should be carried through on that basis. The grain-dealer probably does not average more than one per cent. on the money he has invested. About the same rate, plus the expense of manufacture, would cover the miller's usual margin. There is little room in this for losses consequent on credit dealings. The grocery trade cannot welcome the introduction of the time element in the millers' quotations, as where time is obtained time will be given, and one more source of doubtful and bad debts will be added to those that already beset the retailer. It is to be hoped in the interests of all parties concerned that the millers of the country will all shift back to the moorings of a strictly cash trade. They have a record of a credit business that ought to be rich enough in unsatisfactory experiences to convert any believer in the time-theory to the sounder views that have prevailed for some years now.

Mr. G. T. Florey, grocer, Amherstburg, has leased the Lakeview Corner Store in that place, having found his late premises on Murray street inadequate to his increasing trade. His new premises extend to the wharf, thus enabling him during the summer to attend to the marine trade of which he has an exceptionally large share.

TORONTO RETAIL GROCERS' ASSOCIATION.

The Toronto Retail Grocers' Association met for November on Monday night in Richmond Hall. President Barron occupied the chair. The following other members were on hand: Messrs. Gibson, Thackray, Mara, White, Lindsey, Binnie, Calhoun, Westren, Clarke, Sinclair, Sykes, Booth, McCulloch, Mulqueen, Williamson, Butcher, Noble, Tolchard, Donald, Mills, Roberts.

Shortly after nine o'clock the meeting was opened. The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

Mr. Mara moved, seconded by Mr. Clarke, that Messrs. Jones and Westren be auditors for the current year.—Carried.

NOMINATIONS OF OFFICERS.

The following nominations were made: For President, J. G. Gibson and John Butcher.

For Vice-President, Mr. Butcher and Mr. Clarke.

For Secretary, Mr. Thackray.

For Treasurer, Mr. Williamson, Mr. Westren and Mr. Binnie.

For Directors, four of whom are to be elected, Messrs. Mills, Booth, White, Binnie, Mara.

NOTICE OF MOTION.

Mr. Mara gave notice that he would move at next meeting that the regular meetings be quarterly instead of monthly during the coming Association year.

THE CONVENTION.

Mr. Clarke asked if any communication from the meeting of association delegates held here last month had been sent on to this body.

The secretary said none had been received.

Mr. Mills further explained that the Executive Committee have in hand the list of questions drafted for circulation by the delegates, but were not ready to send the lists out yet, as the expense of printing them was not determined, the question of where the responsibility for that expense should be placed being unsettled. Then the form the circular should take was not decided, the introduction to the questions being a delicate matter on account of the association not wishing to identify itself too prominently with the issue of these circulars. Justice to all parties, and effectiveness as well, required that the questions should appear to emanate from a wider body of trade-opinion. A meeting of the executive should, he admitted, have been held earlier. The executive was directed by the delegates to have the questions printed before circulating to any association.

It was requested that the questions be read, even though the executive was not in order in reporting yet. The chairman directed the secretary to read the list, though remarking that as everybody had read the list in THE GROCER, there was little necessity for reading them now.

The questions were read by the secretary. They appeared in THE GROCER of the 16th of October.

When they were read, Mr. White drew attention to the fact that the secretary should at once have sent these circulars to every association, including Toronto, as his commission to do so was in the minutes of the meeting at which the questions were formulated. Hence, Mr. Thackray was not called upon to wait for action as to printing or anything else, that might be in consideration by the executive, but should proceed, not as the secretary of the association nor the secretary of the executive, but as the secretary of the convention of delegates.

Mr. Mills admitted that the minutes did bear out Mr. White's view, but explained that at that time the question of expense had not been considered.

The Executive was asked to hasten the preparation and circulation of the questions.

THE COLLECTION DEPARTMENT.

Mr. Booth enquired if it was intended to continue the collection department.

Mr. Gibson said he had heard some dissatisfaction expressed with the work done by this department and thought it ought to be looked into.

Mr. Mara said the Association was responsible for debts collected and for the efficiency of the department.

About this view there was some difference of opinion.

Mr. Mills agreed with Mr. Mara, and moved, seconded by Mr. Thackray, that the Executive look into the working of the collection department at an early date. Carried.

The Secretary turned up the minutes of the meeting at which the plan of the collection department had been adopted, and showed that the Association was responsible.

SHORT MEASURE.

Mr. Noble submitted the question : Should not the jobbers of oysters be required to sell by Imperial measure, instead of by wine measure, the standard on which packages were filled in the United States, and under which they were sold to retailers here ? The law, he added required retailers to give Imperial measure.

Mr. Clark thought that fair measure could be exacted, not only in the case of oysters but also in that of fruit, notably cranberries. He moved, seconded by Mr. Booth, that the Secretary be instructed to write to the Inland Revenue Department to ask that the law be enforced in the sale of oysters from wholesale hands, and that the cranberry and other fruit trade be also carried on in accordance with the law.—Carried.

Mr. Clarke felt that fruit and vegetables ought to be sold by weight. He had found it to be the rule for 3 gollon pails to turn out nine quarts in the case of oysters, and so-called 32-quart boxes held just 26 quarts of cranberries. It was time this was remedied. Spanish onions as well were never up to the weight.

Mr. Westren said that all packages of imported goods, no matter by what foreign standard of volume they were filled, were passed by the Customs officials as containing a certain number of Imperial gallons, quarts, etc. The oyster packages were in all duty charges entered as containing, not 3 gallons, but 2½ gallons.

Mr. Clarke thought that the jobbers of oysters and fruit should be advised by the association that none of their goods would be taken in that did not bear the marks showing the weight of their contents. This did not take the form of a motion.

Mr. White mentioned an instance to show that jobbers' salesmen do not leave themselves liable for prosecution for breaking any clause of the Weights and Measures Act. The salesman says:—"You know as well as I that this pail does not hold as many Imperial gallons as the number of gallons represented, the latter being wine gallons. But it is a pail of oysters nevertheless, and as a pail I sell it for so much. Recollect, I am not quoting now by the gallon."

Mr. Mara said if any person would make to Mr. Stratton, of the Inland Revenue Department, a definite complaint of a package alleged to contain 3 gallons which contained less than that, there is no doubt such a case would be looked into and punished.

Mr. Noble had received five barrels of sweet potatoes, in the bottom of each of which was half a bushel of straw.

THE PIC NIC PROCEEDS.

Mr. Clarke moved, seconded by Mr. Mara, that the net balance of the pic-nic receipts, $228.81, be put in the Trust Fund. Carried. The money was then transferred from the treasurer of the pic-nic committee, Mr. Mills, to the treasurer of the committee of Trustees, Mr. Barron.

The meeting then adjourned.

THE GROCER'S CLERK.

What might be termed the clerical department of the Retail Grocers' Association of this city has been in successful operation for a number of years. Members of the association when in need of a competent clerk make application to the secretary who generally has the names of several would-be grocers' listed, together with the required recommendations or references. Good character is of course the first consideration. If the aspirant for grocerial honors has had experience in the business so much the better, if not capability and aptitude play an important part in finding for him the employment which he seeks. Some grocers may want a boy to learn the business, while others may want a clerk who is thoroughly conversant with the ins and outs of the trade.

Members have found by experience that the association employment bureau is invaluable, and we venture to say that any movement relative to eliminating it from the conformation of their organization would meet with the most strenuous opposition. Not only does the grocer avoid the expense and trouble of advertising by utilizing the facilities offered by the bureau, but all uncertainty as to the status of his new employee is removed, as none but those with an unblemished record are deemed eligible for positions that may be vacant.

There appears to exist in the grocery business, to as great an extent as in any other, difficulties in the way of securing efficient and reliable help that are perpetually harassing the grocer. Just why this is so has been the theme of many an elaborate discussion, but like the questions involved in other innumerable issues it has remained unanswered. By some the grocer has been held accountable, others moralise and point out the impossibility of drawing supplies from a source that is contaminated by the evils of a degenerate age—the rising generation. The first view of the matter is in some instances undoubtedly correct, as there are employers who look upon their subordinates as pieces of mechanism, more or less ingenious, that must be in motion twelve or fourteen hours a day, with as little lubrication in the shape of wages as possible. Their efforts are never rewarded by a nod of approval or word of commendation, and it follows in logical sequence that one day the clerk walks out of the door for the last time while the grocer inserts another ad. in the "want" columns of the local papers. The fact is that with proper treatment many a clerk, who has been summarily dismissed because of incapacity and inefficiency, would have practically demonstrated his worth if his employer had manifested a more generous spirit in his attitude toward him. A contemporary, discussing this subject, says "many people who are really intelligent and active appear stupid at the outset, and if they fall into the wrong hands, woe is them !" This statement is emphasised by the words of a lady who had had charge of many clerks. Speaking of a certain clerk, she said : "I thought when that girl came to me that I could never put up with her, she seemed so slow and stupid, but during the three weeks that I was trying to make up my mind about her, she would once in a while do something that gave me an idea that she had a brain concealed somewhere about her person. Whether it was in her head or not, I could not tell. I set myself to work to find out about her. I first discovered that she was timid and nervous. That defect I helped her to overcome. Next I discovered her to to be slightly hard of hearing on one side. I talked to her on the other. Now she is the best clerk in the place." Manifest more than a selfish interest in their wellfare and benificent results will undoubtedly follow.

Notwithstanding the position taken by the pessimist that in this era there is a lamentable deficiency in the material from which good clerks may be obtained, the fact remains that the transgressions which lead to a disseverance of the business relations are not confined to the wage earners alone. One man's methods are rarely if ever in accordance with another's, but mutual concessions go far toward smoothing the way and maintaining pacific relations.—Grocery World N. Y.

TWO HOURS ON A DELIVERY WAGON.

While walking up Cherry street the other day, I met a grocer's delivery clerk, with whom I was acquainted, who invited me to take a ride with him. Having a little leisure time at my disposal, and being assured by the rascally clerk that we would be back in a few minutes, I accepted the invitation and climbed up on the seat.

"There's a mare that knows her business," said the clerk, as he hit her a crack with the whip that sent my feet skyward and my head into a basket of potatoes. After I had regained my equilibrium and pushed the dents out of my hat, I told the scoundrel that I had every reason to believe that the mare did know her business a confounded sight better than her fool of a driver knew his, and that if he would have the kindness to cause the mare and the vehicle to come to a standstill, I would disembark and wend my way back on foot.

"You bet that old mare knows her biz," observed the lad. "She'd start right from the store without any lines and make the round trip without missing a house or making a wrong turn ; and (throwing the lines over the dash-board) she'll make a turn the shortest possible way, if she has to skin a telegraph or jump a gutter to do it."

"Gewillikens, boy ! What——"

I was interrupted in my remark by the pit of my stomach coming into violent contact with the bullet head of the grocer's dunce. The front wheel on the drivers side struck the curb and slewed around, and the hind wheel ran over the corner and nipped the bark off a maple tree. The driver was used to it and braced himself accordingly, which saved me from being the unwilling cause of holding a coroner's inquest on the corner lot. When I got my breath again, I reminded the grocery slinger that a cabbage head which had tumbled out has been run over and cut in two, and that it would show more respect if he would stop and gather up the remains. But whoever heard of a grocers clerk showing respect for anything ! He said the old mare knew her business and that he had to make the trip before 12 o'clock and could'nt stop for sickness or death.

At a house on a little back street down in Oakdale Park we made our first stop. A peck of peaches and a half dozen eggs were fished out, and, after the dust was blown off the top, it was discovered that five of the eggs had collapsed, and, mingling their contents with the dust of the earth, had imparted to the peaches a sort of daubiness that was not pleasant to look upon. We turned around, ran over the wheelbarrow and started on the home stretch. We had driven a mile and a half with that peck of peaches and six eggs, and delivered them within a few rods of two grocery stores. I supposed that our customer was either on bad terms with her two neighbor grocers, or else she was a mother-in-law to the distant grocer, and I asked my light-headed companion to explain matters. He said that lady had formerly lived near their store ; that "once a customer always a customer" was a law among grocers, and, consequently, a groceryman followed his customers all over the city, and while soliciting orders from them, they often succeeded in picking up new customers in strange territory. I asked the commercial teamster if he could work in subtraction and simple division. Giving the mare a cut with the whip, which upset a basket of potatoes and gave me a kink in the back, he said he had no time to fool away with any such things, and wanted to know why I asked the question. I said I was going to ask him to figure out how long it would take a grocer with fifty customers like the Oakdale Park patron to get rid of a capital of $1,500 ; but as he didn't know how to figure and was young in the business, and as I did not wish to discourage him, I told him not to feel badly, as it was quite evident that he could figure as well as his employer.

Our next stop was at a house somewhere on Thomas street. This time it was a peck of potatoes, a bar of soap and a gallon jug of kerosene oil. I waited fully ten minutes for my captor to pop his head out of that back door, and when he did pop I saw at once that something was the matter with him. He was covered with black spots of rage and soot, and bore marks of of having had a terrific tussel with some object which shed its complexion easily. He sprang to his seat and gave vent to his wrath by dealing that innocent mare a brutal blow with the whip, which put two more kinks in my back But he wasn't mad after all—he only looked made. He said the "old gal" asked him to help her move the cook stove, and he had been on the street long enough to know better than refuse. He said that in the spring and fall, during house-cleaning time, he was frequently asked to help move stoves cupboards etc.; take up and shake carpets, split kindling wood, and help lift the boiler on and off the stove. He had never been asked to entertain the baby while its parent called on a neighbor but he said he was subject to just such things all the time.

At a fashionable place on Henry street the road clerk really got mad. It was a market basket full of small packages, among which had been a sack of eggs. When the basket was lifted from the wagon, a golden stream of yellow colored albumen was exuding from the bottom. Before the clerk discovered it, he had succeeded in ornamenting himself with yellow daubs and stripes of liquid egg. Dropping the basket suddenly on the cobble stones, he pulled out his handkerchief and commenced to rub and swear—that is, if he had not been a grocery delivery clerk he certainly would have used profanity. The more he rubbed, the more highly ornamental his pantaloons became and the more he swore, and the more I laughed. It had come to my turn to enjoy the fun, and I made the best of my opportunity. He tried to clean off the parcels, but the more he tried the worse they looked. He said he wouldn't care so much if it had happened anywhere else, but right there—but I will spare this young man's feelings from any further description of his peculiar predicament, although he showed no disposition to spare my feelings when he had a chance to do so.

The next stop was away up on North College avenue, where we left what remained of a bushel of potatoes. At a house within gunshot of three or four East Bridge street grocery stores the mare halted, and the egg-bedaubed, soot-besmeared and dust-covered clerk jumped out, but the ten pounds of beans had broken out of their paper house and danced all over the bottom of the wagon until they had become so weighted with an accumulation of egg and dust, that they had completely lost their identity, and could not be delivered.

Our next call was at a house on Union street, where a half bushel of potatoes and a peck of apples had been anxiously looked for since 11:30 a. m. (it was then 12:15 p. m.) but not having arrived in time for dinner, the lady of the house was in a proper frame of mind to bite off the heads of all the grocery delivery clerks in the city. May my head be bitten off seventeen times rather than receive one such curtain lecture as that unfortunate clerk received on that occasion ? When we turned the next corner, the lady was still shaking her fists, and reminding the clerk of his utter worthlessness. I was truly repentant by this time and fully forgave my unlucky young friend for the injuries I had suffered at his hands.

When I reached home my wife took me out into the back yard and swept off the dust. She asked me if I had been tied behind some wagon and dragged all the way home. I told her never to speak unkindly to a grocer's delivery boy, or ask him to rock the cradle or carry in the night wood ; and never, under any circumstances, to buy a yeast cake or a lamp wick, and order it delivered and go right home and scold the hired girl and abuse the children because her goods had not arrived in advance of her. I assured her that her reputation would not suffer if she even carried a half pound of tea home, and that it was always safer to carry a half dozen eggs than to order them sent by wagon. I was so impressed with the delivery clerk's troubles and misfortunes that I advised my wife to occasionally kiss him for his mother. —Zeno, in Michigan Tradesman.

LOOK AFTER THE STOCK.

Unless due consideration is given to the condition of a retail stock the very finest selling and buying talents will be rendered of little value to their fortunate possessor. How does it avail a dealer to be able to buy down to the lowest notch, and in the quantities most suitable for the needs of his business, if his stock is kept in such bad order that he can never tell just how many of certain kinds of goods he has on hand, or whether the shelves of the store do not contain articles that should have been disposed of long ago and have grown shop-worn and unsalable. At the recent sale of the stock of a bankrupt grocer in a near-by town, it was discovered that several brands of grocers' specialties had remained on the retailer's shelves from the time of purchase, fifteen years ago, up to the day of the auction. These goods were of an ephemeral nature, had attained but a temporary popularity, and finally had disappeared from the market, their very names having been forgotten. Several hundred dollars' worth of these goods were in the bankrupt grocer's possession on the day of the closing-out sale. Many dealers may consider this an exceptional case, and agree that the failure of the dealer was due to the neglect of one of the elementary principles of store-keeping, but it appeared that the bankruptcy was caused solely by speculation in stocks, and that the business had always prospered until too heavy drafts had been made upon it to meet losses on the speculative ventures of the owner A merchant who retains in stock for fifteen years goods that are gradually but steadily deteriorating in value, may be successful in amassing a competence, but it is obvious that he would be better off without the drain through the loss of interest on the capital invested in slow-moving, or rather, stationary goods. We would recommend other merchants who, upon reading this, may feel like criticising the bankrupt above alluded to, to take a look around their own stores and first make sure that their upper shelves contain no stock hidden and forgotten, before condemning a fellow-merchant for similar neglect.

Equally negligent is the care of the stock in a store owned by a prosperous retailer in a neighboring city, judging by the experience of the writer a few days ago. Being asked for a can of a certain brand of prepared soups, a clerk in this establishment informed the inquirer that the proprietor had never handled the goods. Surprised at the reply, the intending customer pointed to a pile of the goods near the door, which he had seen in entering, and asked the clerk what label the goods bore, which was that of the brand wanted. The clerk looked confused for a moment and then apologized for his mistake, saying that there were so many kinds of canned goods in the stock it was difficult if not impossible to remember them all. It is not an uncommon experience of customers of retail grocery stores, upon asking for a certain brand or article, to receive the reply: "Well, I believe we have the goods, but don't remember just where we keep 'em," and after waiting several minutes to be told that the goods will be delivered later, a promise which may be kept or may not, its fulfilment depending upon whether the goods have ever been in stock, or allowed to be sold out before replenishment. It is principally owing to the fact that brands have multiplied so greatly of late years that many retailers' stocks get into such bad shape and, as it were, beyond their control. In past years when one or two brands of soap, starch, chocolate, etc., were all that was deemed necessary in a reasonably well-stocked store, it required but little attention in order to keep the stock well assorted and in good condition, but with the increase of the number of brands of late years the difficulties attending the care of the stock have increased enormously, while the importance of the work has kept pace with the difficulties. It is evident that in the cases such as we have mentioned a stock book is a crying need—a volume in which the quantity of goods purchased should be entered. At frequent intervals the stock must be looked over and the quantities of goods remaining compared with the entries in the book. This constant overhauling of the goods is necessary to ensure cleanliness, as well as to freshen the appearance of the interior of the store, the more often the goods are rearranged on the shelves and the windows the better the impression produced upon customers. It is as though new goods had been received when the stock is thus rearranged, and while performing this task the comparison with the stock book is easily made.—Merchants' Review.

DISCOUNT YOUR BILLS.

This is regarded by many of our most successful retailers a principal element of success. In fact, they lay stress upon the practice, as inculcating economy in store and living expenses. Regarding such a policy as imperative, they live economically and work long hours, keeping at it early and late. Their claim is that the extra discounts which prompt cash payments secure are in themselves a good profit. If a merchant doing $60,000 or $70,000 per annum can save 2½ per cent. by such a course, their is a clear gain of $1,500, which in ten years would amount to about $20,000. Is not that a capital in itself?

The man doing a retail trade of $30,000 per annum, and saving 2½ per cent. on purchases, gains about $750, or adds to capital in ten years, as the result of a wise policy in buying, about $10,000. The amount saved by the believer in discounts often amounts to more than the yearly addition to capital of those who buy on credit. It only requires a few years of what we might term probationary work to make such a man independent, so that he no longer practices an enforced economy, being able to endulge fancies and enjoy things which previously were set aside in obedience to determination to save all discounts.—American Grocer.

CHOOSING A BUSINESS.

The question of choosing a business is a serious one. As a rule, a young man should adopt the calling for which he has a preference. If he has no particular choice, it would be well for him to try different occupations, until he finds one that suits him. I do not council changing about to gratify a spirit of uneasiness, for once a young man is installed in the business that he is suited to, he ought to stock to it, writes Russel Sage to the New York Herald. I have known young men who entered employments reluctantly, and after a trial became fond of them. A young man must be determined to succeed. After all, there is one great lever, and that is will power. Without it very few men succeed.

It depends on the circumstances whether failures betray incapacity in a man. If a failure is due to a cause not general, then it may be attributed to a lack of foresight and understanding. A shrewd merchant will not stock up with unsalable things; a shrewd farmer will not plant his ground to raise unsalable crops. Both the merchant and the farmer must find out what is salable and act accordingly. There are exigencies, to be sure, like contagions, disasters, combinations, strikes and boycotts, that cannot be foreseen. The prudent man of business has prepared himself to stand losses from such causes, and when the troubles have passed the fact of his having weathered them makes his financial position in the community stronger than ever. The present condition of the coal trade well illustrates the uncertainty of things. The mild, open winter could not be foreseen, and has caused great dullness and loss in the trade. Then there is the march of improvement. This is an age of competition, and it requires energy and perception to meet it. It used to take 90 days to find out the condition of the tea crop in Japan or the coffee crop in Brazil. Now an inquiry can be sent and an answer secured in a single day.

The young man should start out in the world by the time he is 21. If he is qualified to begin life at an earlier age he should do it. I began as a clerk when I was 12. At 18 I was in business for myself, and I have kept my sign up ever since. I should say that the average boy could take a clerkship at the age of 16 or 18. A wrong start may not mean a permanent failure. Many of the most successful men have started wrong and afterward righted themselves. There are many instances where men educated for the pulpit have gone to the bar and been conspicuous successes. Then, again, men educated for the bar have gone to the pulpit and achieved success.

DIAMOND CRYSTAL SALT

It is free from impurities. It is unequalled for sweetness, purity and flavor. It is made by an entirely new and expensive process, which is the principal reason why other manufacturers cannot compete with it for quality. For the table DIAMOND CRYSTAL has no equal. Its freeness from hardening makes it the best for table use. For the Dairy, DIAMOND CRYSTAL has no equal. Its remarkable antiseptic qualities make it the best for Dairy use. For table use, packed in barrels containing 115-2½s—100-3s—60-5s—40-7s and 30-10 lb. bags. For Dairy use, packed in barrels containing 20-14 lb. bags, also 28 and 56 lb. Sacks. On account of the combination entered into by the Canadian Salt Manufacturers, we are enabled to import this high-class manufacture, and are selling at prices as low as ordinary kinds.

GROCERIES.

The output of the warehouses during the seven days under market review has been unsatisfactorily small. Heavy groceries have been quite neglected. In sundries the movement has never, of course, been at a standstill, but it has been on the weak side throughout the whole period. The want of money is beginning to be noticed in payments quite as perceptibly as in sales. Renewals are heard of more frequently, which is unusual at this season. The conservative buying of retailers has therefore been justified, as if stocks had been heavily reinforced at the beginning of the bright outlook there would have been some heavy engagements now maturing, and renewal would have been less easily obtainable. Wholesalers are not so loath to carry accounts as they would be if a dimmer prospect lay ahead. Grain has been selling, not very freely, but sufficiently to realise money for the urgent wants of the farmers. The nature of these wants is pretty well indicated by reports from trust and loan companies, who report rather prompt payment of interest and instalments maturing this fall.

CANNED GOODS.

The index to the canned tomato situation has apparantly settled down from that wavering movement which perplexed intending buyers for several weeks after ripening began to be general. Every day the conviction is growing stronger that every case of tomatoes put up this year will be salable stock at a paying price. The inter-buying among packers is not so prominent a feature of this week's trade, for the reason that nearly all the canners are on the one side of the market; they seem ready to take lots at fair prices. Shortage in delivery is still complained of, and canners say they can do no better. Tomatoes alone in fair-sized lots are quoted at $1.10, but in assorted lots, corn, peas, and tomatoes quote at $1.05. A report of a sale of assorted goods at 97½c., was followed up and disclosed the fact that the assortment did not include a case of tomatoes and that the corn and peas in it were not of high-class brands. On Saturday a 1000-case lot of tomatoes was sold at $1.05. Corn is probably the easiest at the moment of the three lines of vegetables, but is rarely quoted below $1. Peas are firm at $1.05 to $1.10. Movement in other lines of canned goods is slow. Salmon is quiet at from $1.35 upwards, and lobsters are also inactive and unchanged.

COFFEES.

The ups and downs in the coffee market are usually both so small and transient that their effect on quotations is never felt, the prices quoted always denoting quite accurately the average resultant of changes one way and the other. Trade is quiet and prices are steady at 19 to 24c. for Rios. Good Rios are wanted.

A report from London says: "The market for coffee on the spot is assuming a more healthy tone, and prices for all descriptions over the value of 90s. are 1s. to 2s. better, whilst even middling sorts show a slight improvement. Business, however, is very restricted, and sales are made with difficulty. It will be some time before the effects of the recent disorganization can fully pass away."

DRIED FRUIT.

Though the stock of raisins on this market has rarely been so good or cheap, there is little eagerness shown by retailers to get a hold of supplies. Prices do not harden under this neglect. They quote a shade easier on most lines. Very good Valencia off stalks of this season's growth can be bought at 5¾c. From that to 6½c. is the range for new fruit, while old still abounds at 4 to 5c. The price of Sultanas runs from 9 to 13c., according to quality, from grades being in stock, All Malagas went down upon receipt of second shipments. London layers sell at $2.40 to $2.65, loose muscatels at $2.30 to $2.40, Imperial cabinets at $2.90 to $3, connoisseur clusters at $3.75 to $3.80, extra dessert clusters at $4.50 to $4.75, quarter flats at $1.25 to $1.30, black baskets at $3.80 to $4, blue baskets at $4.50 to $4.60, fine Dehesas at $5.40 to $5.50, Currants stand the dull spell very well, an active demand not being necessary to keep prices stable, the extent of the stock alone so far having that effect. Old figs are as low as 5c., though new are firm and choice at 15 to 16c. for 20 lb. boxes of Elemes. Prunes have not yet come to hand, but the expectation of higher prices is general, an advance of ¼c. having taken place recently. A sufficient stock of old is here yet and selling at 5½ to 6½c. in cases. New Persian dates will soon be on the way. Quotations to New York are made on a basis of 4½c. ex express steamship or 4c. to arrive.

NUTS.

New walnuts are being shipped, but not all the stock is yet afloat. The Grenoble crop is reported good. A considerable remnant of the old stock had been held in the primary market right up to the time when new was coming in. This old has recently been consigned to the United States market. The extent of it and the big prospects of the new crop have dissuaded buyers here from placing orders so far, and easy prices are expected to rule. Some of the old stock has already been sold here as new. It would all have been worked off as new if this year's crop had been short. The prices of almonds, shelled and soft-shelled, have eased slightly under large receipts. Amended quotations are in Prices Current.

Eby, Blain & Co. have received new Tarragona soft-shelled almonds, and Canary, Valencia and Jordan shelled almonds.

RICE AND SPICES.

The season's demand for rice has now quite subsided after running off a pretty big volume of stock. Orders still come in for small parcels. Common grades run from 3 7-8 to 4c., with fine Japan at 5 to 5½c. Spices are featureless, with the exception that domestic pickling gives a little life to the demand for cloves, etc., but at unchanged prices.

SUGAR.

Sugar orders contribute little to the power which runs trade these days. Both granulated and yellow have been exceptionally dull throughout the week. The spell of inactivity which holds all trade in tranquility has perhaps its strongest influence in the sugar market, where buyers are expected to be to the fore even if other lines are slow of sale. What makes the depression the more strongly felt is comparison with the unparalleled summer trade. Granulated quotes still at 4⅞ to 5c., with yellow at 3½ to 4½c. The basis of the sugar market appears to be quite steady as raw is unchanged from the improved position noted last week.

Willet & Gray, New York, in their weekly sugar statistical, say:—Raws—Without any special influences working on the market it has remained quiet and steady to strong during the week. Some purchases of beet-root sugar have been reported at 13s. 9d. per cwt. cost and freight. At the close there are no sellers at quotations owing to the firmness and advance to-day in European markets. Refined—Philadelphia refiners have continued to undersell New York refiners all through the week, notwithstanding that New York has reduced prices 1-16c. per lb. for granulated. All the business now is on a hand-to-mouth basis, and it is very encouraging to note the large increase in October over last year—say 48,544 tons increased meltings for the month. The Louisiana crop being smaller than last year, and there existing no necessity for pushing it to market as was done last year, it is fair to expect a continued showing of increased consumption of refined during November. Only one combined refinery is now working in Brooklyn, but that is running at its very fullest capacity.

SYRUP AND MOLASSES.

All sweets share with sugar in the quietude that is the most notable feature of that market. Molasses has not been a good selling article this week though at the close of last week there was a very good call for the better grades of West Indian and New Orleans. No change in prices to be noted. Syrups are quiet aud rather easy at quotations.

TEAS.

The movement outward of teas has lagged this week, and not much business with retailers is recorded. Japans are dull, a reaction having set in as a consequence of news of the safe arrival of the Hecla, the reported loss of whose mammoth cargo rather sharpened up business for a spell. Blacks are having the best of it at the moment, though there is little to boast of in the business done in them. Grades at about 20c. are the most in favor. Young Hysons are more plentiful and quieter.

There has been more activity in the demand for Indian teas this week, which is probably due to the hardening tendency of the home market.

The Produce Markets' Review says:—"The increased imports of Indian tea continue to supply the market liberally, the quantity offered at the public sales being upwards of 43,500 packages. Notwithstanding this heavy weight of tea, the demand was equal to it, and the market closes strong, with an advance in some cases on the prices of the preceding week. The better quality of the teas generally accounts for the increasing activity in the demand. The growths which command most attention are those from the Assam districts, as these teas are, on the whole, superior to those of several seasons past, which is borne out by the comparatively high prices that have been paid. The quality of the Darjeeling teas is fairly satisfactory, but falls considerably short of the earlier arrivals, while those from the Syhlet and Dooars gardens, with few exceptions, continue to be inferior to the imports of the previous season. It is satisfactory to learn that strong representations have been made to those interested in the manufacture of the latter growths of the undesirability of continuing the newly-adopted method of preparing the leaf, which, it is hoped, will have the desired effect. At the public sales 43,876 packages were brought forward, and only 4,200 were withdrawn. The above quantity comprised a good selection of all grades, and from the quantity sold it will be seen the demand was well sustained. At the public sales very steady prices have been obtained for nearly all descriptions of Ceylon tea. There has been a good assortment of tea of fair quality, all of which has sold well. Fine to finest Brokens were actively competed for, and in several cases 1s. 8d. to 1s. 9d. was realized for fine descriptions. Fine Pekoes were in specially good demand and sold at rather better prices, while the lower grades of Souchongs kept fully up to last week's rates. Of the 14,976 packages offered at auction, 1,620 were withdrawn. In Javas, 808 packages were offered at sale, all of which sold at steady prices.

PETROLEUM.

Shipping is quite active, but with the increased volume of business there has been no increase or other modification in price, the quotations noted for weeks holding good still.

The Petrolia Advertiser reports: Petrolia Crude $1.24 per bl., Oil Springs Crude $1.35. We quote crude oil this week at one dollar and thirty-four cents; but within the last two days a weaker feeling has manifested itself in consequence of the refiners having concluded to work off their present stock on hand before loading up with more crude. The demand for refined oil still continues at 11½c., f.o.b. here for car lots, which is exceedingly low for the magnificent brands that are now being turned out by our refiners.

DRUGS AND CHEMICALS.

A light week's business has been transacted. The usual mild demand in healthy weather is kept up, but with no exciting circumstances to disturb prices.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

The outside prices of last week are now nearly impossible to realize. The freer delivery of butter which has begun to be notable in last week's trade showed no slackening throughout this and supplies have come forward at a satisfactory rate of arrival. There is an increasing proportion of seconds in the stock received by consignment, the country merchant evidently finding some other mode of outlet for choice butter. Dealers from other collecting centres are said to be giving inducements for the shipping of choice to their hands, and as they buy out and out, they have the preference. A few packages of very fine butter have sold at 19c., but this price is exceptional, 18c. being scarcely attainable any longer. The ruling price for good butter is 17c. Grade at about 16c. are in the most liberal receipt. Stock as low as 13c. also arrives quite freely, though not particularly desired. Large rolls are more numerous this fine weather at 17 to 18c. Creamery tub runs up to 25c., with tubs as high as 28c.

Cheese is not in any new phase. The price is 10½c. for good full creams.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

BEANS—There is no zest to the demand yet, though usually at this season it is lively. It is now beginning to open up. This market has taken a very considerable quantity of stock from farmers within easy reach. Cars of prime hand-picked are sold at $1.35. Re-selling is at $1.50 to $1.55.

DRIED APPLES—A sale of a lot at 4c. here is reported, though 4¼c. is the quotation which represents the bulk of the business done. The stock jobs out at 4 3-4 and 5c.

EVAPORATED APPLES—Are 6c. outside and 6 1-4c. here in cars for ordinary and 6 1-2 to 6 5-8c. respectively for choice. The business has been limited.

EGGS—Are firm at 18c. for fresh stock, which is scarcer this week, and 14 to 15c. for limed.

GAME—Receipts continue to be fully up to requirements, which are moderated somewhat by freer supplies of poultry. Partridges are 40 to 50c. and ducks 30 to 50c. per brace. Venison is 5c. in the carcase and 7 to 9c. in the haunch.

HAY—Buying is quite free at $1.50 for choice timothy.

HIDES—Have weakened down another quarter, quoting at 4½c. for No. 1 green cows' and 5c. for No. 1 green steers'. Cars of buffs are dull at 5¼c.

HONEY—Slow movement in the honey market continues to be experienced. The stock is ample at 7 to 10c. for strained and 12½ to 15c. for sections.

HOPS—Are firmer and higher at 15 to 16c, though the space between buyers and sellers is not narrowing fast. There is more confidence, however, in the attitude of holders.

ONIONS—The price has eased under freer supplies to $1.75 and $2.25, the outside figure standing for very choice stock.

POULTRY—Large shipments of turkeys have been forwarded to catch the Thanksgiving demand, and prices have kept at 8 to 10c. Fowl are 30 to 50c. a pair, ducks 35 to 60c., and geese 5 to 7c. a pound.

POTATOES—Steadiness is the most marked feature of the situation. Cars are held at 40 to 45c., and out of store lots are 50 to 60c. There is neither a glut nor a dearth of stock.

SEEDS—The situation develops slowly delivery being still very backward. Scarcely any stock has yet been seen. Alsike quotes at $5.50 to $6 for prime to choice and $6.50 for extra.

SKINS—Sheepskins are taken readily at 80c. Fair supplies come forward. Calfskins are quiet at 6 to 7c.

Compare the quality with any other.

MARKETS—Continued.

STRAW—The market is moderately well stocked at $6 to $6.50.

WOOL—No improvement is to be reported. Prices are 18 to 19c. for fleeces.

DRESSED HOGS AND PROVISIONS.

A diminution in the receipts of hogs has been attended by an expansion in prices. The falling-off in the proportion of light weights has also been beneficial. Stock has not gone begging, and instead of packers turning over light weights to butchers the latter have been called on to supply any spare heavy weights to packers. Prices hold firmly at $5.25 to $5.50, with $5.62 1-2 paid in one or two instances to get raw material to continue cutting. All products have been in fairly good request.

BACON—Long clear is more plentiful and easier at 8 1-4 to 8 1-2c. Smoked backs and bellies are 10 1-2 to 11c. Rolls are 8¾ to 9c.

HAMS—Are a shade easier, quoting now 11 to 11 1-2c. for new smoked.

LARD—Is unchanged, at 10 to 10 1-2c. for pure and 8 1-4 to 8 1-2c for compound.

BARREL PORK—Mess is $14 and short cut $16.

FISH AND OYSTERS.

The weather is unfavorable for trade in fresh fish, and the supply of haddock and cod is small, but will be abundant in a couple of weeks. Portland haddies are scarce and the price has risen to 8 1-2c. There has been a good demand for herring and the supply is short. In other kinds the demand is easy. Oysters are moving freely and steadily at $1.25 to $1.30.

FLOUR AND FEED.

The prices of flour and feed have been stationary since last report. A reasonably good run on stock has been experienced. Prices are as here follow:—$5.75 for Manitoba patent, $5.25 to $5 35 for Ontario patents, $4.50 for straight roller, $4.40 to $4.50 for extra, $2.25 to $4 for low grades, $5.25 to $5.40 for strong bakers'. Graham flour is $4.50, standard oatmeal $4 to 4.30, rolled oats $4 to 4.30, Kiln-dried corn meal is $3.75 to $4.00, rolled wheat $4.50 to 4.75; wheat bran $12, cracked corn $1.50 per cwt., mixed chop $20 to $25, split peas $4, pot barley $4.25, oats 35 to 37c.

FRUITS.

Apples are moving quite freely both to and from jobbers' hands. The price range is $1.50 to $2.50, the latter for hard stock. The easy prices help the demand. Cranberries quote at $8.25 to $9 per barrel for dark Cape Cods, and from 25 to 50c. lower for light stock.

Clemes Bros. sold a 1,000-barrel lot of apples the other day for shipment over the border. The fruit was select, red apples preponderating.

GREEN FRUIT.

Jamaica oranges are easier at $7 to $7.50 and find free sale. Floridas are coming forward quite freely at $3.25 to $4. They are quite ripe and merchantable now. In lemons, Maoria's are about done, but Malagas are plentiful at $4.50 to $5. Messinas are just begining to arrive but are not yet quoted. Malaga grapes range from $4.75 to $5 for normal weights but for heavy weights the price runs up to $6.50. Sweet potatoes are $2.50 to $3 for Jerseys. Baltimores are now hard to get, the little stock on the spot quoting at $2 to $2.50. Bananas are scarce. As they are required to be shipped green to arrive here in condition, there is little buying, it being impossible without banana-rooms to bring the stock to a mature state. They are $1 to $1.75.

SALT.

Trade is brisk, in a small way, but wholesale buyers are few. About 2,000 packages of Liverpool coarse has been received, and this ends the shipment for a while. The following are the prices: Coarse, car lots, f.o.b. 70c.; small do 85 to 90c.; Dairy, car lots, f.o.b. $1.25; small do, $1.50.; quarter-sacks, 45 to 50c.; Common five, car lots, 85c.; small do 95 to $1; Rock salt per ton $15.

DRY GOODS.

A little increase in actual business in winter lines is the only modification there is to note. Wholesalers still find fault with the demand, which commonly gets to very good proportions about this time. The season is not so advanced as it is wont to be at this date, and this accounts to a large extent for the backwardness of trade.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Nov. 12, 1891.

The markets during the past week have been fairly active, but the volume of business has not been quite so large as it was, but there is a fair trade doing in an urban way in groceries, which makes up quite a jobbing business. To the country, however, the movement is smaller than it was, and jobbers are not taking as freely from first hands as they did. Aside from the comparative quietness, however, there is no change, and in most lines firmness is shown, while stocks in no particular are heavy. The export movement in produce continues, cheese, butter, eggs and apples all sharing equally, while the values are satisfactory, so that the farmer can hardly complain of scarcity of money, especially when his crops in every other respect are most satisfactory. He appears to be holding on a little to long though, and perhaps it would be just as well to realize now as wait for higher prices that might fail to materialize.

SUGAR, ETC.

The sugar market continues steady, with a quiet business doing and prices show no change. Yellows are being quoted at 3½ to 4c., and granulated at 4½c.

Syrups are selling fairly well at at 2⅜ to 2½c., and there is a fair jobbing demand for Barbadoes molasses at 36 to 37c.

TEAS.

Teas are very quiet, in fact the trade may be said to be at a standstill. Some brokers predict a strong enquiry for blacks before the close of navigation, but the indications do not point to any marked improvement.

COFFEES AND SPICES.

All advices on coffee are firm and there is no change in the feeling noted last week. Rios move fairly well at 18½ to 19c., and Jamaicas at the same. Spices steady, with business in cloves and pepper on lb. basis of 9½ to 10c.

RICE.

There is a good movement in rice, the business on Western account being particularly good, with a very fair demand from the Eastern provinces. We quote: Patna $4.50 to $5, Japan $4.25 to $4.50, standard $3.90, and off grades $3.50 in car lots.

DRIED FRUIT.

The activity noted in our last in dried fruit has to a certain extent been continued, and there is a fair business to note both in Valencia raisins and currants. Valencia raisins have moved in round lots at 5⅜c., and stocks in first hands are further reduced, while currants met a fair enquiry at 5½ to 5¾c. On the whole the market is a sound, strong one.

GREEN FRUIT.

There is no change in green fruit, which rules firm and unchanged, Jamaica oranges selling at $7 to $8 and Floridas $3.75 to $4. Lemons are unchanged, at $4.50 to $6 per box.

FISH.

The firm feeling in fish is maintained under small supplies. B. C. salmon in barrels have been moving at 12c. and Labrador stock is unchanged. Lake trout have been moved at $4 and herring are firm, and in fact the same can be said of all other descriptions.

APPLES.

The apple market has maintained a shady feeling and the first heavy shipments to Liverpool seem to have meet a very fair market for the feeling here is unchanged and business transpires on the old basis at $2 to $2.10 in car lots for greenings and red stock respectively.

HOPS.

The hop market does not show any change and there has been no business to note.

PROVISIONS.

There is a good trade doing in pork at lower prices. The stocks of old short cut have been about all moved, and the new pack offering is selling 25c. lower at $16.75 to $17. Western mess is also lower in sympathy with the Chicago market, but nothing but old pork is being dealt in packers holding the new pack for $3 advance over old pack. Lard and smoked meats are in fair demand. We quote:—Canadian short cut, per brl. $16.75 to $17; mess pork, western, per brl. $13.75 to $14.25; short cut, western, per brl. $16.75 to $17.00; hams, city cured, per lb. 10 1-2 to 11 1-2; hams, canvassed, per lb. 00 to 00; lard Canadian, in pails, 0.08¾ to 9c; bacon, per lb. 9c. to 10c; lard com. refined, per lb. 7¾ to 8c.

EGGS.

There is a fairly good demand for eggs. The local demand is very satisfactory, and some small shipments were sent across the water last week. There is also some inquiry for well kept eggs from the United States. The range for kept and limed eggs is 15 to 16c.

GAME.

The demand for partridge is slow, the supply being too large for the requirements of the trade. Firsts are quoted at 40c. to 45c. per brace, and seconds 20 to 25c. Venison is not coming in very freely, and sells readily at 13c. to 14c, for saddles and 7 to 8c. for carcases. Hares are quoted at 20 to 25c. per brace.

ASHES.

The demand for ashes is fairly good, and sufficient to absorb all offerings. First pots are quoted at $4.60 to $4.75, seconds at $3.90 to $4, and pearls at $6.25.

BUTTER.

The butter market rules firm, although the demand on export account is not brisk. Late made creamery commands steady prices, and 24c. and over has been made. Choice Townships dairy is not plentiful, and prices are made, 20c. being spoken of. Finest creamery, 23½ to 24c. ; Finest Townships, 17 to 19c.; Western dairy, 16 to 17c.

CHEESE.

The move in cheese continues and, in addition to business already noted, we hear that lots of finest Townships have been moved at 10c., and it is now undoubted that finest Western stock could not be moved under that figure. In fact we advance our quotation slightly in this respect. Finest September and October, 10 to 10¼c.; finest French and Eastern, 9¾ to 9⅞c.; medium, 9 to 9½c.; cable, 50s.

GRAIN.

The grain market continues firm, with a good enquiry reported for coarse grains. The stocks in store compared with those of a week ago show a decrease of 79,270 wheat, 217,992 corn, 27,702 oats, 21,567 rye, and an increase of 25,579 barley ; compared with a year ago there is an increase of 180,618 wheat, 61,082 peas, 18,591 oats, 106,280 barley, 64,011 rye, and a decrease of 10,734 corn. We quote : No. 1 hard Manitoba, $0; No. 2 do. $1.05 to $1.07 ; No. 3 do., 97c; No. 2 Northern, $1.04; peas, 78 to 79c. per 66 pounds in store, 77 to 78c. afloat; oats, 35c. per 34 pounds in store, 36c afloat ; corn, 68c. to 69c. duty paid ; feed barley, 48 to 50c. ; good malting do., 60 to 62c.

FLOUR.

There is a fair local demand reported for flour at steady prices. The stocks in store show a decrease of 15,177 barrels compared with a year ago. Patent spring, old wheat, $5.40; Patent spring, new wheat, $5.00 to $5.30; Patent winter, $5 to $5.28; straight roller $4.75 to $4.80 ; Extra $4.40 to $4.50 ; Superfine $3.95 to $4.00; City strong bakers' old wheat, $5.00 to $0.00 ; City strong bakers, new wheat, $5.00 to $0.00; Strong bakers' $4.75 to $5. to 5.50.

There is not much doing in oatmeal, but holders are firmer in their views. Standard, per bag, $2.10 to $2.20; granulated, $2.10 to $2.20; rolled, $2.10 to $2.20.

FEED.

The feed market is quiet but steady, bran and shorts being scarce. We quote:—Bran, $13 to $14; shorts, $15 to $16; middlings, $17 to $18; mouilie, $24 to $25.

HALIFAX MARKET QUOTATIONS.

(Wholesale Selling Rates.)

HALIFAX, Nov. 11, 1891.

BREADSTUFFS.—The flour market remains much the same as it was last week. Cornmeal is firm. Oatmeal is higher. Oats are also firm.

Manitoba highest grade patents, $5.75 to 6.00 ; High grade patents, $5.10 to 5.20 ; Good 90 per cent Patents, $4.95 to 5.05 ; Straight grade, $4.80 to 4.90; Good seconds, $4.40 to 4.60 ; Graham flour, $4.90 to 5.15 ; Oatmeal, $4.35 to 4.45; Kiln dried corn meal, $3.25 to 3.40 ; Rolled wheat, $5.55 ; Wheat bran per ton, $18.50 to 19.50; Middlings, $23 to $23 50 ; Shorts, $21.50 to $22.50.; Cracked corn, per ton, $35.00 ; Moulee, $24 ; Split Peas $4.00 to $4.10; White beans per bushel, $1.50 to 1.55 ; Pot Barley per bbl, $3.90 to $4.00 ; Canadian oats, choice quality new, 41c. to 43c. ; Hay per ton, $12 to 13.

SUGAR AND MOLASSES.—The raw sugar market is still reported firm. The estimate of the beet root supply is smaller than anticipated and the foreign cane product is backward. There is nothing new locally regarding refined sugars, In molasses there is only a small trade in jobbing doing.

Cut loaf, 5½c. ; Granulated, 4½c. ; Circle A, 4⅜c.; White extra C, 4¼c.; Standard, 3½c. to 3⅝c ; Yellow C, 3¼c.

MOLASSES.—Barbados, 36c. ; Demerara, 35 to 38c. ; Diamond N. 48c. ; Porto Rico, 34 to 35c. ; Trinidad, 32½ to 33c.; Antigua, 33 to 34.

BARGAIN COUNTERS.

The bargain counter is one of the principal features of all dry goods stores of any pretensions to magnitude, and is gradually being introduced in the smaller establishments. Probably in time no general storekeeper in the country will be without this feature of enterprising modern store-keeping, because when conducted properly it never fails to act as a powerful magnet with female customers. Not only can the bargain counter be made profitable in itself, but it also is of great assistance in disposing of goods that never reach it. The first use that is generally made of the bargain counter is to work off damaged or shopworn goods, or goods that have been kept in stock until they have become antique in style. The dealer having been successful in quickly moving such goods in this manner, is led to try the virtues of the bargain counter in order to dispose of a portion of an excessive stock of a certain line of goods that may be new in style and in fair demand, but which do not move out rapidly enough. From this is but a step to the use of the counter as an attraction for buyers to get them into the store and in the mood for purchasing, when they may be more easily induced to buy of goods that have not been reduced in price, for it must be understood in the first place that "bargain counter" means a place for bargains otherwise goods that have been marked down in price. Considerable skill is usually required to run a bargain counter to the best advantage in localities where competition is brisk, and rival dealers are enterprising and ingenious, and proper attention must be paid to its management, but practice makes perfect, and any trouble to which the dealer may be put will be well rewarded by the results.

All kinds of goods may be placed upon the bargain counter, according to circumstances, such as notions and articles which are supplied by city wholesalers expressly for that purpose, slow-selling goods, damaged goods, and articles which have been bought at especially low rates in large quantities, in fact everything that requires to be disposed of promptly. But when these are not available, articles that are sufficiently attractive to draw customers to the store should be used, or a variety may be offered, the best results usually following when the offerings are numerous and varied.

The dealer having decided to try the virtues of a bargain counter and selected the articles to be placed upon it, the question of location should receive careful consideration. The counter being intended principally as an advertisement, should be given a conspicuous place in the store, not hidden away where it would be difficult for intending customers to find it, but as near as possible to the entrance of the store, and the more room the better. A well managed and advertised bargain counter ought to draw a good many people, in well populated towns and cities, and unless they can be accommodated with sufficient space to move about in and examine the goods, the chances are that they will not visit the store a second time. A recent writer upon this subject says: "When properly and liberally used the bargain counter exerts a subtle and penetrating influence; it is a power that acts like a tonic, toning up and making vigorous the entire system. It tends to increase the number of customers, aisles thronged with ladies create a favorable impression, and convey the idea of the flourishing and prosperous condition of the business." It is obvious, therefore, that the position and space to be accorded the counter are questions of importance. The more the counter is advertised in the local newspapers the better the prospects of its success as an attraction for the public, hence the description of the goods to be offered, as well as their prices, should be announced in the papers at regular intervals. It is not necessary to deceive the public in regard to the merits of the goods offered. Let them be genuine bargains, and the announcement that the prices have been reduced will be sufficient to attract buyers, without resorting to misrepresentation. If damaged goods are to be sold, the depreciation in value must not be concealed, otherwise considerable loss of trade may ensue. Square dealing is essential in the management of the bargain counter as in any other department of a business.—Merchant's Review.

DO YOU DO ALL FOR YOUR BUSINESS?

Some men who have been in business for a very long time get into a certain groove and they never try or make an effort to get out of it. These are generally those of a class who believe that their business is not only satisfactory, but that it cannot be very much improved upon. There is, however, another class who are to some extent in the same condition, or rather frame of mind, but they belong to the ne'er-do-weels. Both of the above would under ordinary circumstances resent any advice given to them, and at the same time consider it a gross piece of interference with their own private affairs, but in doing so they unquestionably stand in their own light and must be conceded to be their own worst enemy. Egotism and impotence have many things in common, and our observation has led us to regard both as an enemy to success.

It is the bright man who is willing and able at all times to take advantage of any suggestion that may be made to him, who by far nowadays stands the best chance of success. It is very unfortunate for people to get an idea into their heads that their business is perfect and that it cannot well be improved upon. We have seen many a business man which if it was pushed to its legitimate ends would really have extraordinary scope, but it has been dwarfed by neglect as well as by the idea that it could not well be improved. Some men, when their business is not just what they would desire, sit down and mope over it, and, Micawber-like, wait to see what will turn up. This is all very well as far as it goes, but it is not the way to get out of a hole or to make the most of your business. It is the man who is capable of spitting on his hands in the hour of adversity and makes a resolution to do certain things who will ultimately succeed. It is idle to suppose that a business cannot be improved. Indeed, it would be impossible to find a business in any part of the world which could not by improved management be bettered in some way or other. It is astonishing when you really view the situation to find how many there are in business who are perfectly satisfied with their lot, and who do not, year in and year out, make any strenuous efforts to bring about any desirable improvement. It may appear strange to many of our readers that a man who owns a business should not show any disposition to improve it. But we could point to scores of stores in this city, and for that matter to many in other parts of the country, where improvement is never thought of and where the same old jog-trot methods of doing business have been in existence for a quarter of a century. They believe that their business has reached its perfection, while they are in some cases hardly able to meet their expenditures. Yet if these same men were to do all for their business that their business and their abilities could command, it would make a very different showing and would tell a very different story indeed.

Have you done all for your business that you possibly can? Have you seriously thought how it can be improved upon? The misfortune is that the bulk of the merchants do not seriously think in this line. They set out for themselves with a certain goal to reach, and when they have got there their ambition ceases. We have seen in many cases where the father has left a business to the son and the son has never made the least effort to improve upon what has been left to him. He has simply gone along in the old rut and been perfectly satisfied with a kind of mechanical conduct of the business. There is something about this method of transacting business that appears to be very attractive to the average merchant. He says the same thing, does the same thing, in the same way from the beginning to the end. There is no sparkling genius that brings itself out, but everything is allowed to go on just the same "as the old man left it." This is unquestionably a gigantic mistake. Indeed, it may be said in some cases to be nothing short of a criminal neglect.

We must repeat the query which heads this article—Do you do all for your business? Is there not some little detail which you neglect? Or is there not something that a little attention to would certainly develop the business in more ways than one? The fact is that even the very best merchant who believes in his innermost soul that he does not neglect any portion of his business really has his weak points. It is well for those who know that they have weak points and can guard against them. If your business is worth doing at all, it is unquestionably worth doing well, and it is just as easy, nay in the long run far better, to do it well than to do it badly. There is much more satisfaction in it, there is less trouble, there is greater profit, and there is infinitely more comfort.—National Grocer.

President Barron of the Retail Grocers' Association had a very sharp spell of illness last week.

It is reported that Robertson & Son, wholesale grocers, Kingston, have withdrawn from the Guild.

James Brick, of Kingston, has left for Montreal, where he has accepted a position with a wholesale grocery firm.

Sloan & Crowther will move into the building recently vacated by Eby, Blain & Co., cornor Front and Scott streets.

Mr. Wm. McGill, has bought out Mr. Moderwell, St. Catherines. Mr. McGill will take charge of the store this week.

Messrs. Whitely & Edwards, of Goderich, have shipped to London, Eng., 6,000 barrels of apples. Mr. Whitely will also take the voyage.

The owners of the Jacobs sugar factory, one of the oldest establishments of the kind in Prussia, have made application for an extension of credit.

Mr. George Walker has purchased the grocery business of Mr. Robert Berry, Main street, Deseronto, Ont., and has already entered upon possession.

Mr. W. C. Foster, who has been bookkeeper with Hitchcock Mosher, Cockburn Island, has purchased an interest in the firm of Glanville Bros., Thessalonw.

James Medland, who for the past year or so ran a store for Laing & Co., at Cornwall, Ont., left for Smith's Falls, to conduct a store in the interest of that firm.

Mr. Boomer, of Warren Bros. & Boomer, has been laid up for the past two weeks. He is now on the mend and is expected to be down to business in a day or two.

At the last meeting of the Halifax Grocers' Association the question of early closing was considered, and a campaign in behalf of that movement has been begun.

Mr. A. J. Denny, late of the City Mills, has opened a flour and feed store, at 656 Dundas street east, London, to be known as the "White Cloud" flour and feed store.

Mr. T. J. Foster, Richard's Landing, has been here making his winter purchases for shipment before the close of navigation. He paid a visit to the Board of Trade.

Mr. C. E. Armstrong has opened out in the store on the corner of Buell and George streets, Brockville, Ont., with a new and fresh stock of everything usually found in a well appoined grocery.

Messrs. Robert Vickery and J. O. Clark, of Boston; F. C. Park and A. S. Ewing, of Montreal, and Alexander Jardine, of Toronto, are applying for incorporation as the Clark Coffee Company. The capital stock is to be $50,000.

J. R. Hambridge shipped 100 cases of eggs to Liverpool from Aylmer the other day.

The tea and coffee stock, amounting to $910, of the Jackson Tea Company, was sold to J. W. Broderick, of London, for 53 1-2 cents on the dollar, by W. Y. Brunton, on Friday.

Peanuts have been grown at Bullock's Corners, Ont., this year by W. J. Morden, and sold at the Hamilton market. The appearance and taste are the same as the tropical fruit.

Two of Montreal's most genial wholesale grocers, Mr. C P. Hebert, of Hudon, Hebert & Cie., President Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild, and Mr. L. E. Geoffrion, of Chaput, Fils & Cie., were in the city Tuesday last.

For the past two years the seed trade has ben cutting prices to competition until, with one or two exceptions, all the firms lost money. A recent meeting resulted in an agreement and a uniform price, so that all firms will sell at an equal footing.

The Toronto Biscuit and Confectionery Co., this week shipped large orders to British Columbia and Halifax, N. S. This is certainly doing business from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean. Toronto maintains its reputation of being the distributing centre for Canada.

Mr. Wm. Richardson shipped, this week, two car loads of eggs, from Walkerton, their destination being to the old country. A car contains 12,000 dozen. The egg season is practically over now and Mr. Richardson is about to take, or has already taken his rigs off the road.

The West Oxford cheese factory has undertaken to manufacture an enormous cheese in 1892, to weigh 15,000 pounds (7 1-2 tons) for the World's Fair at Chicago; 225,000 pounds of milk will be required to produce the curd in the manufacture of this cheese, and will require the milk from 11,250 average cows for two milkings.

The other morning a watchman near Bonner's fruit store, 790 Dorchester street, Montreal, saw a man coming out of the store with something in his hands. Instead of stopping he ran away, at the same time dropping when called a pair of scales on the sidewalk. On going to the store and lighting up the watchman found that the door had been wrenched open, and the stock was in the worst mixed up condition possible, nuts, peaches, grapes, oranges and all kinds of fruits had been taken from baskets, bags and boxes and dumped one on top of the other, the whole being topped with some of the choicest candy in stock.

The Hamilton Retail Grocers' Association have been discussing an early closing hour, but without arriving yet at the adoption of one. The following members were appointed to canvass the retail grocers and report: James Main, Richard Roe, W. J. McFadden, Richard Raycroft, A. Hayes, E. Winnifrith, C. Holt, E. McCoy, John Ronar, John Eustice, A. Ballantine, D. Sullivan, C. Bremner, D. Carroll, J. Horning, W. B. Ballantine, James H. Bolligan, G. Hunt, D. Henry, W. Dodman, O. H. Morris, Geo. Smith, J. Duff, H. McAllister, M. Marlatt, J. Kavanagh, C. H. Peebles, J. O. Carpenter and T. Hazel. They will also try and bring as many into the association as possible. The following motion was also passed: —That the association request all the wholesale houses in the city to discontinue the practice of selling to consumers.

The leading representative of the molasses industry in New York is the house of Messrs. N. W. Taussig & Co., located at Nos. 379, 381 and 383 Washington Street, with a sales office at No. 124 Front Street. This reliable and responsible house was established in 1886, by. Messrs. Wm. Taussig & Sons, in Jersey City, and was removed to that city in 1871. The present firm, consisting of Messrs. N. W. and Felix Taussig, sons of Wm. Taussig succeeded in 1884, and have built up an immense and influencial trade throughout the entire United Sates. The building occupied is a substantial five-story structure, 80 x 60 feet in dimensions, and unsurpassed facilities are possessed for conducting all operations under the most favorable auspices and upon the largest scale. The firm turn out when busy seven hundred barrels of molasses per day. Their supplies come from New Orleans and from Porto Rico, Trinidad, Cuba, Barbadoes, Antigua and some of the smaller islands in the West Indies, and the utmost pains and care exercised in the selection and grading of the same. The firm carry a stock for supplying the wholesale grocery trade in Boston, Baltimore, Chicago, Portland and Bangor, Me., and the exigencies of the business require the services of forty men. The largest orders are filled with promptness and care, and inducements are constantly offered to the trade as regards both reliability of goods and the liberality of terms and prices which challenge comparison and defy successful competition. The Messrs. Taussig are natives of District of Columbia, residents of Jersey City, and young men of large business experience, thorough enterprise and sterling personal worth, who are worthy of every confidence and the largest measure of success. Mr. Felix Taussig was in town a few days ago.

A HANDY CATALOGUE.

The new Catalogue of The Copp, Clark Co., Limited, is a well-filled volume of information of the description that is needed to facilitate trade between that house and its army of customers. The convenient arrangement of its matter and the fulness of its entries show that one of the objects aimed at in its compilation was to make the book of service to the retailer. Nothing could come closer to the elimination of distance between wholesaler and retailer than the Catalogue does. A detailed index at the back enables the intending buyer to make ready reference to whatever his stock wants suggest the purchase of. He can then come to town with a certain amount of information noted as a basis of business. The Catalogue, being an exhaustive one, is of course too lengthy for reference to be made even to its general heads. There is an almost endless variety of blank book and stationery lines, classified, described and priced. Office supplies take up another big tract of space with like notes and abundant illustration. School findings are exemplified in manifold forms, and a large mass of miscellaneous matter closes the book. All retailers should be supplied with a copy, as it possesses the sort of information to fore-arm the buyer with.

THE GREATEST WINDOW attractions ever issued for the Holiday season. An original creation, introducing a number of new and novel designs for window displays and store decorating, adapted to any line of business, with illustrations and diagrams. Price, post paid 75c. Send for a copy to Restore goods to their proper places as soon after using as possible.

Goods conveniently located save time, money and temper in showing.

A feather duster disperses but does not remove the dust from the store.

A reputation for truthfulness is indispensable to permanent and satisfying success.

The neglect to look after minute details in the factory is a source of great loss to many producers.

One thing in particular should be impressed upon clerks—the necessity of careful attention to small customers.

Competition is keen and active, and the only way to meet it successfully is to buy from the best houses, and at lowest prices.

"There are geniuses in trade, as well as in war, or the state, or letters; and the reason why this or that man is fortunate is not to be told. It lies in the man."—EMERSON.

To the Grocers and Confectioners of Canada.

Although only in business since March our success has been such thro' your kindness that we feel we cannot let this opportunity pass without thanking you for your many favors to us the short time we have been running. We assure you it was no easy task to persuade many persons that our goods and prices were right and you no doubt did not always find it an easy task to get your customers to try a new brand such as ours. We have labored hard and spent considerable money to make our Biscuits and Confectionery what they now are—the very best. We assure you nothing will be left undone to keep them perfect so long as we are in the field. We truly try to please you all, and assure you that our aim will be to manufacture from the highest grades of the many articles used in our business. We wish it were possible to make the personal acquaintance of you all, but just now it is not possible for us to visit you all but extend to you a hearty invitation to call upon us when in Toronto. No one will be importuned to buy. We will let our goods, prices and style of doing business win your favors. Again thanking you for your support, we remain,

Yours truly,

The Toronto Biscuit and Confectionery Co.,
7 Front St., E.

CERTIFICATES OF STRENGTH AND PURITY.

OFFICE OF THE PUBLIC ANALYST,

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Co., Montreal:

GENTLEMEN,—I have personally taken samples from a large stock of your Granulated Sugar, "REDPATH" brand, and carefully tested them by the Polariscope, and I find these samples to be as near to absolute purity as can be obtained by any process of Sugar-Refining.

The test by the Polariscope showed in yesterday s yield 99·90 per cent. of Pure Cane Sugar, which may be considered commercially as ABSOLUTELY PURE SUGAR.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Company:

GENTLEMEN,—I have taken and tested a sample of your "EXTRA GRANULATED" Sugar, and find that it yielded 99·88 per cent. of Pure Sugar It is practically as pure and good a Sugar as can be manufactured.

Yours truly,

G. P. GIRDWOOD.

It is well-known

That successful Doctors read all the latest medical books and papers and go abroad occasionally to study. Successful lawyers read legal publications to learn the latest legal decisions and points constantly cropping up. Teachers, clergymen, druggists, architects, all read the publication issued in the interests of their profession. They must do so to keep up with the times.

The same applies to grocers and general merchants. They must not only read the best papers published in their interests but must also watch the advertisements closely. There they learn the rise and fall in prices; latest trade news and methods of buying, handling and selling goods, so that they may make the greatest profit. A doctor reads much that he already knows, so does a lawyer. So does a number of any of the other professions. So will a merchant. It is often the issue of the paper he misses that is worth dollars to him. His best and safest policy, therefore, is to subscribe for his trade paper.

The only exclusively grocery and general store paper is THE CANADIAN GROCER issued weekly, subscription price $2.00 per year.

SPECIAL TO OUR READERS.

As the design of THE CANADIAN GROCER is to benefit mutually all interested in the business, we would request all parties ordering goods or making purchases of any description from houses advertising with us to mention in their letter that such advertisement was noticed in THE CANADIAN GROCER.

From the body of the Canadian grocery trade, for the time being at all events, the spirit of speculative buying appears to be all but completely exorcised. Dealers are rarely beguiled by the temptation of easy prices to buy far in excess of present requirements or in advance of the present demand, even though prices may be pluming their wings for a bold upward flight. The traders have not the money for effecting these master-strokes of speculation. The calls upon them for payment of the invoices necessary to keep current business going are too urgent and close together. Their business is on a legitimate footing, and unless the profits accumulate sufficiently to make a fund for speculative investment, that mode of making money must be left alone. The capital of creditors will no longer be risked, as the terms allowed by wholesale grocers debar retailers from engaging any of it in such ventures.

* * * *

The disposition of the trade appears to second the tendency of the terms. Buying, even for current wants, is quite timid, small parcels are the rules and the chances in favor of paying a lot of small freight bills instead of one large one, representing the delivery of as much stock at a lower aggregate of carriage cost, are risked. The uncertainty of fluctuations is probably as much in favor of holding off as of stocking up, and thus speculative considerations of a negative sort may be at work among the causes of the caution. Also the amount of retail capital yet locked up in book-debts enforces limited buying. Until there is pressure or encouragement for the farmer to sell, the tendency of the pressure on the retailer will be to buy very carefully. The ease with which additions may be made to stock in these days of abundant railway facilities co-operates with the other agencies to make the retailer's purchases frequent rather than large. Few are so remotely situated as to be unable to lay in any needed supplies at three days' notice. Without the carrying facilities we have today, the establishment of the present terms by the wholesale grocery trade must have been an impossibility. Hence available freight accommodation is but an indirect cause of less speculation its direct effect being rather in the determining of the terms than in checking buying in advance of needs. Where a man had to get, in one shipment, all the goods he needed for six months ahead, he could not be expected to furnish payment one or three months after purchase.

* * * *

As a result of this virtual suppression of speculative buying, the failures in the grocery trade have this year represented a smaller aggregate in amount, though probably the number of failures have not been fewer than the average. But they have been the sort of failures that were expected. The majority who succumbed this year were traders whose capital or experience were inadequate to sustain the business against the severe conditions imposed by the wholesalers on the one hand, and the difficulties of collecting on the other. Those were the sort expected to follow the setting up of rigid terms, and their failure, though regrettable on their own account, is beneficial to the trade, which undoubtedly was overcrowded. The sum of losses is rarely swollen by the large forfeit of a trader who has staked his solvency upon the issue of some striking move of speculative investment. That cause is gradually disappearing from among the reasons for assignments. Consequently, continuance in business is due now to capital, management, or commercial hardihood.

* * * *

This is no sterile change. It must be productive of effects of the utmost value to the trade. The most important outcome of it must be the attendant necessity of getting a profit on goods sold, to compensate the trader for the decline of venturesome buying, and the restriction of credit allowed to his customers. Already there seems to be less cutting than there used to be, while credit is here and there being limited, if not to shorter time, at all events to particular classes of goods and to selected customers. This is not general, but it is occasional, which of itself is hopeful. General merchants are reported to be getting more and more into the habit of insisting upon cash for all groceries, or for such groceries as they are themselves held to short and strict terms of payment for.

* * * *

During the current year a conservative course was demanded by the scarcity of money in the country. The latter portion of the year has been especially dull, and the big sugar purchases of midsummer made later drafts upon the finances of the trade that in some cases were hard to meet. With country traders much of the sugar was exchanged for butter, for which the market remained inactive for some time after the payment for sugar was due to the wholesale trade. For the past month, however, good butter has been profitable stock, and even if carried from August was salable at from two to four cents above the prices paid for it. Throughout the fall the trade have bought sparingly, and are biding the period of suspense between harvesting and marketing with assuring tenacity.

MEN OF THE TIMES.

HORATIO W. NELSON.

"Sir, there is but one Horatio Nelson in the world."

—Southey's Life of Nelson.

Though Canada abounds in material wealth and all the conditions requisite for national prosperity, it has not yet reached an age to compare with the old world in examples of commercial stability. Across the water are to be found old mercantile houses whose name has been kept before the public by several generations of the same family. These old concerns are held in veneration by their juniors, though such a sentiment seems hardly in keeping sometimes with the years of the reigning chief. In this country the instances of families whose current is kept running for two or three generations in the same commercial channel are necessarily few, and the extent of the past covered by them is necessarily limited. But Canadians feel a pride in every such example we have of strength and continuity of growth from our own soil. They are one of the indications of the vitality and substance of our resources. They are a good sign for a young country.

A house which has enlisted in its ownership and management two generations of the same family is that of H. A. Nelson & Sons. The senior partner of the Toronto branch of this house is Mr. Horatio W. Nelson, whose name stands at the head of this sketch. Mr. Nelson is a Canadian. He was born in Montreal in the year 1846. In that city also he received his education and the business training he has since made so good use of. He was to the manner born, it may be said, as six years before his birth, his father, the late Mr. H. A. Nelson—whose name appears in the style of the firm—associated with Mr. Isaac Butters, founded the Montreal branch of the present business. The original partners traded for several years on McGill street under the firm name Nelson & Butters. Then they bought the property on St. Peter street, where they built warehouses. A few years afterwards, Mr. Butters' health failing, he sold out to Mr. A. S. Wood. The style of the firm then changed to Nelson & Wood. That style became further modified to Nelson, Wood & Co., upon the admission to the firm in 1868 of Messrs. Horatio W. and A. D. Nelson, sons of the senior partner. In 1873 Mr. Wood sold out his interest to his associate partners. Upon his retirement the house took in Messrs. C. H. and F. E. Nelson, and adopted the style of H. A. Nelson & Sons. The last change in the composition of the firm took place in December, 1884, when Mr. H. A. Nelson, the senior partner, died The business was then taken over by his four sons—the remaining partners—and continued both at Montreal and Toronto under its present style.

The Toronto branch was opened on York street in 1868 by Mr. Horatio W. Nelson, who in that year at the age of 22 was admitted into partnership. He has been identified with the western house since its establishment. His colleague here is Mr. C. H. Nelson, who joined the firm in 1873. The Montreal branch is in charge of Messrs. A. D. and F. E. Nelson. Both branches of the business have made remarkable headway in their present hands. While the history of the Toronto house has been one of continuous advance, it has not been at the expense of the parent establishment, whose trade has grown at an equal rate of progress. The Toronto branch is one of the few instances of the successful growth of an offshoot of a Montreal house in this city. Many branch stores from the eastern city have been planted here, but only a small proportion of them outlived their youth. At the outset the firm's brooms and whisks were made in Montreal. In 1871 a factory was opened in this city, and in 1881 the manufacture of brooms, etc., was discontinued in Montreal. Since the latter date all the huge stock handled by the two houses has been made here. Their rate of output is 160 to 175 brooms and whisks per day. These figures require no comment. They show that a larger business is done in this line of production than was believed to be done by any single concern. The other well-known departments, embracing lines of woodenware, full stocks of fancy goods, sporting goods, toys, etc., find an equally large outlet in the trade demand that is tributary to H. A. Nelson & Sons' business.

The magnificent western business is an addition for which the chief credit is due to Mr. Horatio W. Nelson. The scope of that business is the measure of his work, and it is a flattering tribute to his energy and ability. The large and choice trade connections in Manitoba, the Territories and British Columbia are the rich acquisition of Mr. Nelson's foresight and push. He made one of the earliest trips over that ground himself. His efforts of course were well seconded by his very capable coadjutor Mr. C. H. Nelson, and had behind them the weight of a prestige that honorable dealing had secured for his house. The record of a good past is the best key for the unlocking of a good future, and his house had a respected name, which made the opening up of new fields, if not easier, at all events surer. It is a certainty, however, that no amount of prestige will make up for lack of force in the individual.

Mr. Nelson has so far turned a deaf ear to the temptations of political and municipal opportunity. Though favored by repeated requests to come out into public life, he has not seen fit to do so. The claims of business have had the preference with him up to the present, and he has had the satisfaction of seeing his business expand as the result of his concentrated attention to it. One of his canons of business is promptness. No letter remains unanswered, no order remains unexecuted beyond the time that prompt attention requires for the forwarding of goods or information. This is a more important cause of success than many imagine. Its opposite is certainly one of the most fertile causes of decline in business. He believes in employing as travellers men who possess ability for their work, who are of gentlemanly and steady habits. As a rule he considers he has been happy in his selections. He is a judicious advertiser. His theory is that the trader is the man to make the impression upon. He consequently addresses his advertisements through mediums that reach the trader, and finds that the latter works up the demand among consumers better than advertisements to consumers do.

MEASURES OF CAPACITY AND WEIGHT.

The indeterminateness and confusion of certain terms of measure were discussed at the last meeting of the Toronto Association, in connection with complaints of shortage in the quantity of some bulk goods, notably oysters and cranberries. It was shown that the unit of measure named "gallon" in the United States, and according to which packages received here were filled, is our wine-gallon. The only gallon recognized in this country is the Imperial gallon, and whatever is expressed in gallons and offered for sale must be in terms of that gallon. Fine and confiscation are the penalties where the measure falls short of what it is represented to be. The Imperial gallon must, according to the Weights and Measures Act, contain 277.274 cubic inches, whereas the wine gallon contains but 231 cubic inches. The relation between the two measures is about exactly this: 5 Imperial gallons are equal to 6 wine gallons. Although there is ample punishment prescribed for people who sell by any lower standard than that of Imperial measure, the law is comparatively seldom called into requisition. Grocers may buy according to wine measure, but they are as a rule careful to sell by Imperial measure, dividing the total cost by the figure which represents the actual number of Imperial gallon found in the package, and making that quotient the basis of cost per gallon. If they are charged for 12 gallons of oysters at $1.35, the total cost will be $16.20. But this 12 gallons they know will make but 10 Imperial gallons, which are the kind they must give customers. The cost per Imperial gallon is therefore one-tenth of $16.20, or $1.62, and that, plus the retailer's profit, must be the selling-price per gallon.

A movement is on foot in England for the adoption of a scientific system of measure. This movement is supported by an association, and the system recommended is the metric system, one of the few things that have survived that mania of reform which struck France with so terrible force about a hundred years ago. The metric system is now in use in many parts of the world, and on this side of the Atlantic it is established in the countries of South America in all measures of space, value and weight. Its simplicity is its chief recommendation, and is the one which promises to make the system universal. It is a decimal system, that is, each unit made use of is ten times or one-tenth of some other. It is beautifully simple, measures of length, area, volume, capacity, weight being easily evolved from any given dimensions. The adherents of this movement truly argue in behalf of its adoption that the saving of a boy's or girl's time and labor at school would be enormous, and would allow of more attention to the new subjects of study that are crowding on the school course; that it will promote international trade, as many foreign shippers do not care to export their wares to a country whose system of weights and measures is arbitrary. There is no doubt that a universal standard of measure is about as necessary as a universal language. Office labor would be saved and consequently the expense of handling goods would be reduced, if all countries agreed upon one standard. The little problem given above, in illustration of what is done to get at the price of oysters, is typical of what is done on a large scale and in diverse applications by importers of all lines that are received in quantities expressed in foreign units of weights and measure.

CANADIAN BEET ROOT GRANULATED SUGAR.

The product of our Canadian beet root in the form of granulated sugar, has not been long enough on the market, nor is it produced in sufficient quantity, for its prospects to be very clear yet. The experiment so far points to a distinctly favorable issue, but the test is of course incomplete. Nobody can say how successfully the new sugar can cope with cane-granulated in securing the demand for preserving, because the former has come on the market after all the fruits have been put up. A vegetable flavor has been laid to the charge of the beet sugar, which it is said will detract from its usefulness in some applications, but particularly in fruit canning. That remains to be proved. Its color is dull, and that tells against it. The dulness is not so apparent, if the sugar is not placed by the side of the cane-granulated. Its saccharine strength is nearly equal to that of cane-granulated, showing by polariscope test 99.3 to 99.5 degrees of sweetness. It has no discoloring effect upon tea.

Whatever its future may be, it is at present meeting a demand that cannot be filled by the Farnham refinery. The delivery has so far been limited to a car-load or two to each of the wholesalers. All report ready sale for it and some are several hundred barrels oversold. Its intrinsic worth has, as was said before, not yet been broadly tested, and even to the extent to which it has been, it is hard to say to what degree satisfaction with the result acts as a stimulant to the demand. The trade want a granulated sugar of which they can retail 20 lbs. for a dollar, and their eagerness to get that is likely to dwarf any other considerations at the outset which may weigh for or against buying. The fact that the beet sugar can be retailed with profit at the rate of 20 lbs. for a dollar will count in its favor much more than an offsetting inferiority to cane sugar would count against it. The advantage of being obtainable at a popular price is a great selling point on its side, but that some circumstance clouds the judgment in any attempt to compare the sugars, and to say how closely difference in price corresponds to difference in quality. Difference in selling effect is sometimes independent to a certain extent of this correspondence.

The sugar has obtained a strong foot-hold in having got into the good graces of the retailers, who have considerable control over the demand. What pleases them will be pushed hard before it is allowed to fail in pleasing their customers, and the price is apt to get the new sugar strong trade support. Of course if there is not strength in the claims of the sugar's inherent quality, the attractiveness of price will be counteracted by decline in popular interest. At present the output of the refinery is limited and the bulk of the sugar made finds its way to consumers through the Montreal market.

BUSINESS AND RELIGION.

The familiarity of Chicago merchants with the habits of Toronto business men and the products of Toronto industries, is travestied but not seriously meant to be, in the little story told below by the Chicago Post. The writer seems inaccurate in his geography, as he apparently thinks we are situated near the sea, and credits us with putting up lobster and mackerel. It seems though that the goods are satisfactory, if the manufacturer is a little sanctimonious. The Post says:

"There is a packer in Toronto, Ont., who mixes business and religion in a curious way, something after the style of one Colonel Elliott Shepard. This packer, whose goods occasionally pass through the Chicago Custom House, puts up lobsters, mackerel and blueberries in tin cans. Every invoice of his that reaches the custom house is embellished with scriptural quotations. For instance:

'Lay up for yourself treasures in heaven.'

'Full complement of perfect clams and lobsters.'

'What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul!'

'Finest color and flavor, with freedom from acid.'

'The Lord, our country, and the good in man is the neighbor to be loved.'

'Uniform packing in each tin.'

'Up in Canada,' said a Chicago merchant who was importing some of these goods the other day, 'a can of lobsters can hardly be sold unless it is labeled 'God is love' or has the golden rule printed on the outside in black letters. Otherwise the purchaser thinks he is being cheated. There is one thing to be said of the scriptural lobster, mackerel and blueberries put up by the men in Toronto, they are always good and reliable.'

WINDOW DRESSING NOTES.

The window of a grocery store is often taken as an index of the establishment. Is it carefully dressed? If so, carefulness may be taken as a quality of the proprietor. Does it contain clean fresh goods? If so, purchasers will be assured that they are receiving clean fresh articles.

One of the favorite lines of goods for window dressing is canned fruits and vegetables. They are bright and attractive, while they are capable of being arranged in a variety of ways. In a square window, cans can be piled up to form a semi-circular wall, this of course being high in the centre and gradually tapering down where the wall touches the extremities of the window. The space between the circular wall and the window can then be covered with anything desired, such as bottles laid on their sides, and also arranged in a semi-circle. The walls may be of any thickness.

Small heaps of different kinds of nuts make a nice front for a grocery window. For larger windows larger heaps will be required. The piles may be somewhat cone-shaped, the point of the cone being made of candies.

Some grocers exhibit teas and sugars in their windows. This should be avoided, because customers will not be satisfied that such samples, after long exposure will not be mixed with fresher goods. Then, if such samples are thrown away, it entails considerable loss, which is unnecessary.

TRADE SALES.

The bankrupt stock of A. Hay & Co., of Wallaceburg, valued at over $6,000, was sold to Mr. Delmage of Wallaceburg at 63 cents on the dollar.

The salvage stock, of J. J. Shragg, general merchant, Winnipeg, amounting to a considerable amount, was sold the other day by the assignee, S. A. D. Bertrand, to A. Chevrier.

WHY SOME GROCERS SUCCEED.

We have known, says the National Grocer, a good many successful grocers in our time. Some of them have made a record of one even successful business career. The moment they commenced their business up to the time they quit it, their life was marked by an evenness which led one to believe that their business was one of chance more than of individual exertion or special adaptation to the work. They were regarded as men who had what is vulgarly termed a "soft snap." But all this is a mistake. These men owe their success not to chance or any specially favorable circumstances, but to some one special feature which has made their business so much better than their competitors', so that they have succeeded in procuring patronage where others have failed. We do not wish to deny that there are circumstances over which the merchant has little control that operate either favorably or otherwise. Still, more depends upon the individual than upon the circumstances.

No hard-and-fast line can be laid down which will really assure complete success. One merchant succeeds through adopting a certain course, while another succeeds from an entirely different standpoint. Contradictory as this may appear, it is nevertheless true. The other day we heard a strong argument in favor of a certain grocery store upon the ground that you always depend upon obtaining good butter and fresh vegetables. As an argument against dealing there another lady said that the coffee sold was not as good as could be obtained at another store. The answer given was that no store was perfect, but that where you got good coffee you could not always obtain good butter and fresh vegetables. It is very strange when you come to investigate what really has made business a success. One succeeds because of courtesy, another succeeds from a specialty like butter, tea, coffee or fresh vegetables, and another succeeds because he is a careful buyer, a prompt payer and an economical manager of his business. Success does not come from rule of thumb in business, but more from the ability of a merchant to take advantage of the opportunities which are presented to him.

It has been truly said that their is no royal road to success. The field is so wide, the opportunities so varied and the essential elements of success so different that the surprise is so many fail. It is not, as a rule the man of genius who succeeds in business, but the man who has the ability to quietly and surely go on plodding to success. No business is built up in a day, nor a week, nor a year, but is gradually developed from a firm and solid foundation. When a merchant is dealing out at the commencement of his career small portions of his wares to unappreciative patrons he little thinks by doing these small things well, that he is building wisely and is laying the foundation for his future success Men sometimes get rich almost unconsciously. They start out to make small fortunes, and before they know where they are they are worth a million. It may seem strange to many of our readers that this is so, but we could recall to our mind half a dozen men to-day who are worth a million who at their first commencement would have thought themselves quite rich with a thousand a year income. At the same time we must confess that we know many who started in life with the intention of becoming millionaires but who at the present time are down on their uppers. There is no truer democracy in the world than is to be found in everyday business. This does not apply to this country only but is to be found the world over. There is constantly some one from the lower ranks of life gradually climbing the ladder of success, and at times there is a lowly citizen who bursts forth like a periodical star in the dark firmament—the wonder and the talk of the day. That success is within the reach of all is certain, but that all cannot succeed is equally true. It depends more on the individual than aught else. Will you make that success? The answer rests entirely with you.—The National Grocer.

A SALESMAN'S DECALOGUE.

In a recent address on "Procrastinating and Puttering," Professor Wells, of Ohio, gave what he terms his decalogue of work, his ten commandments of labor. They are: Do not procrastinate. Do not putter. Take your own pace. Read work's parables. Remember the promises. Be ambitious. Be easy. Be intelligent. Be orderly. Be upright.

The first commandment of labor is, he says—Do not procrastinate. There was once a Yankee farmer whose acres were covered with bowlders, and very much needed stone fences. "I'll build 'em," said the Yankee, "to-morrow or next day, I guess." But after many to-morrows and next days a good fairy took him in hand. Wherever he walked, she threw bowlders before him. He lifted them out of the way. She sent immense stones in front of his plow. He got a crowbar, and rolled them into the next furrow. She piled them on his wheelbarrow. In surprise he threw them off. At last she sent him a dream,—a dream of a stone fence, broad, square, neat and strong, and far-reaching about his farm. "This is the fence," she cried in his ears, "the fence you might have made with the strength you used in throwing stones out of your way."

Do you ever think of this, that it takes a certain amount of energy to reject tasks when they press upon you for the doing, that the worry over an unaccomplished duty is a burden it takes strength to bear? Do you realize that procrastination requires power, and often a power that, when summed up, would do the deed? Oh, how we cheat ourselves! How we hammer away on cold iron! How we set the mill to grinding after the water has passed, so that we must laboriously turn the mill-wheel ourselves!

The waste of strength is not the worst of it. "By the street of 'By and By' one arrives at the house of 'Never.'" That's the worst of it. Putting off means leaving off. Going to do is going undone, ten cases out of nine.

The second commandment about labor is. Do not putter. This is the second in the order of time, but the first of all in the order of importance. For a worker's prime virtue is vim. Yet there are thousands of workmen, so-called, whose practice, if not whose lips, read the text in this way. "Whatsoever thy hands find to do, dilly-dally with all thy might." Drive your business, or your business will drive you. Go at your work in a straightforward, sensible way. Hold firm reins. Don't jerk and twitch and flap and fuss. Don't putter. For if you do, worry and vexation and disappointment and impatience and wasted time and strength and reputation will harness your soul to the tasks you should have ridden upon, and you will be driven unmercifully by the very powers you were made to drive.

There is a beautiful word, which every one who aspires to the high title of "worker" must manage in some way to get into the vocabulary of his life. That word is "alert." What a picture flashes into our minds when we say it? "Alert,"—bright eyes, quickly moving as the Greeks loved to see them; body in nice equipoise ready for prompt obedience; motions delicate, exact, and swift; speech clear-cut, quiet, and steady. That word "alert" is the poetical form of the American adjective, "business-like," the opposite of "puttering."

A straight line, your geometrics tell you, is the shortest path between two points. The same definition fits the word "alert," the word "business like." It means taking the shortest and easiest way to your goal.

THE MAN MAKES THE BUSINESS.

We cannot sympathize with the grocer who feels ashamed of his business, or who continually complains of it to others as being excessively laborious or unremunerative, although occasionally a successful and otherwise level-headed dealer may be guilty of such weakness. One's business, both in point of profitableness and in the esteem in which it is held by the public, is chiefly what one makes it. If it yields a small return for the capital and labor sunk, let the merchant submit his own conduct, his capabilities and character to an examination before condemning an avocation that must in the very nature of things depend almost entirely upon the man instead of upon circumstances. If the business is regarded with contempt by outsiders, it may be worth the while of those engaged in it to ask themselves whether the fact is not due to their lack of self respect, as evidenced by an indulgence in practices which sap the moral character of the individual, among which are over-charging, short weights and measures and fradulent adulteration.

The dealers whose dissatisfaction with the profits of their business takes the shape of consistant complaints, of course assist to create the disfavor in which it may be held by outsiders. Looking upon their trade with contempt themselves, it is natural that others should take the cue from those familiar with it and act accordingly. One way in which many retailers evince a certain contempt for the business which has given them wealth and reputation is in training their sons to any other business than their own. One reason for this is no doubt a feeling that the boy should be protected from the trials of his parent, and that his path in life should be made smoother. But at bottom there is the other feeling, which the dealer perhaps may be unconscious of but which still exists, viz.: That the business isn't good enough for the boy. Consequently instead of being bred to situitable career, the dealer's son is given a college education and a profession in which he finds it difficult to make his salt. The business that is good enough for the father ought to be good enough for the son, and the business that enables a man to earn an honest livelihood and gain the respect of his neighbors and customers, is fit for any man to engage in, however luxurious his early training or high his pride of birth, and such a business we consider the grocer's to be.—Merchants' Review.

A good many Toronto merchants and business men are left with unpaid bills owing to the recent departure of George Anderson, a former assignee here, and now living in Minneapolis, Minn.

The fish shipment from St. John, N.B., to points west this season are about three times as large as last year or the year before. Nine thousand boxes of finnan haddies recently passed through for Quebec and the west from Digby.

The proprietors of a large canning factory in Welland have, it is reported, says the Hamilton Spectator, decided to move their business to Hamilton owing to the scarcity of labor in the latter place during the canning season.

The other morning Mr. Alex. Carmichael, clerk in Arch. Campbell's store, Lindsay, while standing upon a step-ladder, hanging out some goods upon the hooks above the door, slipped, and his hand became impaled upon the sharp spike.

A representative of the firm of Lipton & Son, Chicago, shipped from Ingersoll the other day the five mammoth cheeses ordered from James Ireland, of the west Oxford cheese factory. Four of them weigh 5,500 lbs each, one destined for Glasgow and three for Liverpool, the other one of 2,500 lbs., being for Gibraltar. The representative of Lipton & Son after inspecting the cheese was so well pleased with the make and quality that he made Mr. Ireland a handsome present.

Nearly all the apples turned out by the various evaporating establishments in Prince Edward county this year have already been purchased for the English market. The demand for canned apples is also very large for the same market.

Mr. John Rogers has purchased the stock of D. McLean in the Kerr Block, Petrolia, Ont., at a rate on the dollar, and will give his customers the benefit of the discount. The stock in question consists of new clean goods in the grocery and provision trade.

The Chamber of Commerce and 75 business men of Duluth spent Thanksgiving Day in Winnipeg. They were entertained by members of the Winnipeg City Council and the Board of Trade. A public reception was given the visitors in the opera house.

A dog last week chased a rat into a drawer containing several boxes of matches in a grocery on the corner of Delisle and Dominion streets, Montreal. In the scrimmage the matches set fire to the store and did damage to the extent of over a hundred dollars before the firemen extinguished the flames.

A London, Ont., merchant received a registered letter the other day from Montreal containing $100 on a debt of $135 contracted at Cornwall in 1868. This is the third amount he has similarly received during the past month which he considered as lost. He has in his mind others whom he would be glad to say were just as honest.

Mr. J. Pretty, New Westminister, B.C., is about to build a salmon-curing and ice-storing house on the south side of Lulu Island. It is the intention of this gentleman to go into the fresh fish storing business, and he will put in a large refrigerator for the purpose of freezing the fish before they are shipped. The concern will be run on a lage scale.

Ten new brick stores with plate glass fronts, some entirely new and some rebuilt, have been erected and occupied in Brussels, Ont., this summer. Its numerous factories, all prosperous, the salt well, flax mills, woollen mill, grist mills, cabinet factory, carriage factories, fire engine works—indeed, every institution in the town—is doing well.

Messrs. John W. Snow and Howard Anderson have become members of the firm of Syda and Cousins, the well-known wholesale fish dealers, of Digby N. S. For the present the business will be conducted under the old name. Mr. John H. Syda, has gone to Montreal on business connected with the firm's branch in that city and will remain four or five months.

During October, D. Cantelon, of Clinton, shipped from Watford 3,284 barrels of apples; Ilderton, 1,968; Komoka, 541; Kippen, 435; Hensall, 509; Goderich, 3,147; Brucefield, 2,213; Clinton, 3,123; Blyth, 1,162—a total of 16,382 barrels. The apples were sent to the following places:—Liverpool, 9,572 barrels; Glasgow, 2,248; Manitoba, 4,572.

Marcil Lachapelle, foreman of the St. Lawrence Sugar Refinery, died suddenly the other night. At half past ten o'clock he was seen to enter a yard in the rear of No. 8, Berri street, and to fall to the ground. When assistance came he was speechless. The Notre Dame Hospital ambulance was called up, but when it reached the yard Mr. Lachapelle was dead.

In passing Doty's basket factory at Oakville, Ont., the attention of a representative of THE GROCER was arrested by the stacks of baskets that were being pushed forward on trucks from the shipping door. Upon venturing some comment on this evidence of brisk business, he received the reply that the secret of it was advertising in THE GROCER.

Shipping is fairly brisk at all Prince Edward island ports. Oats and potatoes, the two staples, are of good quality and a large crop. Many cargoes of oats are being shipped to Great Britain, where they are in demand at high prices and will bring a large sum of money back to the island, while local starch factories are consuming enormous quantities of inferior potatoes.

The Ingersoll Board of Trade has chosen the following officers:—President, Mr. Stephen Noxon; First Vice-Pres., Dr McKay, M. P. P.; Second Vice-Pres, Mr. H. Richardson; Secretary, Mr. W. H. About 160 of the employes of D. S. Perrin & Co., London, recently assembled in the shipping room of the establishment and presented their foreman, Thomas W. Watson, with a gold watch and chain. Mr. Watson has been an employe for four years, and is highly esteemed by his fellow-workmen.

A model of neatness is what the grocery store of Mr. Barron, of Yonge St., may be called. Taking advantage of the holiday last week, he has had his store renovated and decorated. Much artistic taste has been displayed in the ceiling and cornice decorations; the colors harmonize, are bright and pleasing, and add much to the general appearance of the store. Mr. Barron now possesses as pretty a grocery store as can be found in Toronto.

A St. John despatch says: The Abbie S. Hart, which arrived on Saturday, at this port, is the first Montreal sugar ship of the season. Last year the Canadian Pacific began the work of forwarding raw sugar to Montreal from here. This fall the company improved the Carletonbranch, increased its terminal facilities, and made arrangements to handle a large number of cargoes. The first ship brings over 2,000 tons. The work of landing this sugar makes a valuable winter industry for the west side of the harbor.

Complaints, says the Vancouver World, continue to be made by dealers as to the slovenly manner in which the fruit growers of that district continue to pack and ship their fruit. In many instances the boxes fall to pieces before they reach this city. These fruit ranchers complain that whilst they are paid so much per lb. for the fruit before it is put in the boxes, which are generally supposed to contain 50 lbs., whilst in reality they only contain from 36 to 40 lbs, the dealers are asking and receiving the same price as if they were the full sized regulation box of 50l bs. If this is so it should be rectified at once.

LONDON RETAIL GROCERS' ASSOCIATION.

The regular monthly meeting of the Retail Grocers' Association of London was held on Nov. 11th. The meeting opened at 2:45 p.m.

The minutes of last meeting were confirmed as read.

The regular order of business was gone through as quickly as possible, and the delegates' trade questions published in THE CANADIAN GROCER were taken up for discussion.

The report from the committee on amendment of constitution and by-laws was received and adopted, with the suggested amendment that the evening would be a better time for meeting than 2:30 in the afternoon, and the secretary was requested to see if the hall could be secured for evening meetings and report to the committee.

Mr. W. H. Ferguson, the chairman of the picnic committee, reported that the auditors had audited the accounts and reported a balance on hand of $99.

The report was adopted.

The thanks of the chairman were extended to the members who assisted in making the picnic a success.

A communucation from the London Soap Co., was read and the Secretary requested to answer it.

Three new names were added to the list of members and a very interesting meeting closed at 5.30 p. m.

Under the head of new business, the questions drafted at the convention of delegates of the Retail Grocers' Association, held in Toronto on Oct. 12, were taken up and the following answers were prepared, to be forwarded to the secretary of the convention:—

ON THE WHOLESALE GUILD.

No. 1. This association is opposed to the Guild's time terms.

No. 2. This association is not in favor of the Guild's sliding scale on the prices of starches, sugars, etc.

No. 3. We would favor the terms proposed by the delegates for sugars and syrups —viz., 45 days, with 1½ per cent. discount for cash in 15 days; all other goods, 3 months, with 3 per cent. discount for cash in 15 days.

SELLING TO CONSUMERS BY WHOLESALE MEN.

No. 1. We not are aware that local wholesalers sell to consumers.

No. 2. We have reasons for believing that they do supply charitable institutions, but are not aware that they are selling to hotels.

No. 3. As a means of stopping wholesalers selling to consumers, we would suggest to refrain from buying from them.

No. 4. Some of our wholesale houses did sell to consumers, but at the request of the Retail Grocers' Association agreed to discontinue doing so, and we do not know that they have broken faith with us.

GIVING CREDIT TO IRRESPONSIBLE TRADERS.

No. 1. We would be in favor of withdrawing our custom from a wholesale house which gives credit to irresponsible traders.

No. 2. As to the disposal of bankrupts and bankrupt stocks, we would suggest that no settlement be granted to any person or persons where there is any appearance of dishonesty, and that the Association should handle bankrupt stocks.

SUPPLY STORES.

No. 1. There is one supply store, The Empire Tea Co., in the city, and several stores in the neighboring townships that supply the Patrons of Husbandry or Industry.

No. 1. To suppress supply stores, we would approve boycotting.

PEDDLING.

No. 1. Local peddling is being carried on very extensively and payment of fees is very largely evaded.

No. 2. We appealed to the grocers and store keepers of this county to assist us in abating the peddling nuisance and received no response.

No. 3. We would recommend application to the Government as a further step for the solution of the peddling question.

No. 4. The license fee is practically evaded, as the Government does not grant municipalities the proper power to impose fees and collect them.

Compare the quality with any other.

TORONTO MARKETS.

TORONTO, Nov. 19, 1891.

GROCERIES.

Trade would need to be excellent to be pronounced good by the wholesalers. Their standard this year is a severe one. It is the high line marked two months ago by their anticipations, and as business does not come near that they vote it low. Comparison with the average of former autumns is the fair test of the state of current business; it would show that there is nothing exceptionally backward about the trade of the present season, that in fact it is quite up to the usual fall trade. But though there is discontent with the pace of business there is still confidence in the future, and hopes for the most part remain unblighted. The weather continues to be rather an adverse factor, though the week opened with a broken spell. The signs of freezing up are viewed with hopeful feelings. Sugar is slightly firmer and in better request. Dried fruits are moving more freely, canned goods are more active, and teas are selling. Money is also reported to be more plentiful, but payments are still backward.

CANNED GOODS.

Buyers have been more numerous. This is an effect of a more settled market and of holding off for advantages. The week's trade has helped to stiffen the situation, as there are no rumors of any exchange of assorted vegetables at less than $1.05. Peas and tomatoes are clearly firmer, and corn is a shade easier, though concessions on the latter are usually confined to brands below the finest. Selling appears to be easier than buying, in large lots of tomatoes, the canners being reported sold out of the best brands. Tomatoes of selected brands alone would be hard to buy at $1.05; those who hold them are tenacious for $1.10. Peas are in a similar position. There is no movement in fruits, nor are there any inquiries. Salmon jobs out steadily from $1.35 upwards. Lobster is selling from $1.10 up.

Says the B. C. Commercial Journal: The Alaska packers' combination seems to have most of the elements of stability about it. We understand that the entire pack has been placed in the hands of trustees, and no member can withdraw salmon unless he pays for it on the basis of $4 per case for Red Alaska. This would seem to be an effectual means of maintaining the price. Arrivals of Alaska fish at San Francisco continue large, but are only slightly in excess of previous years. Up to the 30th October, the arrivals were 579,797 cases. For the same period in 1890, they were 563,901 cases, and in 1889, 575,579 cases.

COFFEES.

The sales of coffee have been appreciably larger, probably because stocks are fuller. A 200-bag lot of Rio changed hands on Monday on a basis of 16½ to 17c. The price in retailers, lots is 18c. upwards. Java is in stock at from 27c., and Mocha at 28 to 30c. The roasters have been buying more freely the past few days.

Cable advices report the result of the Government sale of coffees at Batavia covering 25,000 peculs Malang at 54.18 florins. This compares with same quantity on October 8th at 43.87 florins, and shows an advance equal to 3½c. per pound.

DRIED FRUIT.

An improvement in the demand for dried fruit has been a feature of the week's trade. Purchases have not only been more numerous but they have also been larger, giving some token of the interest that is looked for against the holiday trade. Valencia raisins are offered at 6c. for good brands on the spot, and 5½c. to arrive. The week's sales have been quite large. The second shipments of Malaga raisins have been in stock all this week and under the easier prices noted in last week's Prices Current they are meeting a good demand. Currants are active and firm at 5½ to 6½c. in barrels. There is as much diversity in the quality of currants this year as in Valencia raisins, which causes a wide range in quotations. New Malaga figs in 56 lb. bags are in stock and selling at 5 to 5½c. A few lots of dates from New York ex s. s. Renown have arrived and are pronounced very choice. They are quoted at 7½c.

NUTS.

Stocks are fairly replenished in almonds which are moving towards the retailers fairly freely at quotations indicated in Prices Current. Inquiry is active in advance of future business which is expected to be strong when walnut supplies are forward. Tarragona almonds are easier from 13½c. upwards.

RICE AND SPICES.

A few small orders constitute the draft upon stocks of rice at the present. Prices are steady and unchanged. The spice market is dull, with the firmness of nutmeg the leading feature. At the second English mustard sale of the season held at Wisbech, the prices obtained a week before were fully maintained. It is stated that large quantities of mustard remain unthrashed, owing to the unfavorable weather; and this fact, coupled with the smaller growth of the present season, made the market a smaller one than usual. Good bright samples changed hands readily, but inferior seed was hard to sell even at prices greatly in favor of the buyer.

SUGAR.

Firmer prices outside exercise a beneficial influence upon this market, where quotations have hardened the past few days. The undertone of strength has not been without its improving effect upon orders, which have increased, but not largely, since last week. The better tone which M. Licht's estimate of the beet crop imparted to the market has resulted in an advance of about £1 per ton in England, and the improvement is reflected in New York, where granulated advanced 1-16c. on Monday. Here dulness is in the ascendant at the moment, but once the trade that has long been looked for gets started, there can be little in the way of an advance, if present tendencies are not arrested. Granulated is steady at 4⅞ to 5c., yellows at 3½ to 4½c., and raws at 3½c. upwards.

The New York Commercial Bulletin says: —Recent letters from Jamaica to a commission house in this city say that there have been abundant rains, and that the prospects of the coming crop are good. It is expected that the output of sugar from Jamaica will be much larger than usual, and planters are looking forward to a season of increased prosperity.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

The week's trade has been a very quiet one in both classes of sweets, and has been attended by no changes in price. New Orleans and West Indian molasses are about equally inactive, buyers for both being very backward.

TEAS.

Local stocks have been increased by late shipments of Japans, in which a considerable proportion of low grades are included. Japans range from 16½c. upwards. New receipts of Congous as well are about due. Blacks are to be had as low as 14½c. Young Hysons at easier prices are wanted, very little tea as low as 17c. being in stock. Inquiry for medium grades of Japans is getting better, but actual trade is on the slow side in all teas. Brokers have placed more stock with jobbers this week than they did for some time previous.

Messrs. Lloyd & Carter, in their monthly report, say: During the past month the increased imports of Darjeeling tea have supplied buyers liberally, and there has been a strong, active demand at the low quotations ruling. The quality has been fairly satisfactory, though there are not many extra fine parcels offering, and all such give excellent averages. Inferior grades of Darjeeling have further declined in sympathy with the lower prices from all districts, and in view of increased shipments from Calcutta and Ceylon they are hardly likely to show improvement for some little while. It is probable that the present low prices will increase the consumption considerably, but one cannot expect much confidence among dealers while we have such pressure of supplies. The best teas have been from Margaret's Hope, Poobong, Selimbong, Seeyok, Kalej, L M B M K in cross, Goomtee, and Hopetown.

MARKET NOTES.

Mr. H. C. Boomer, of Warren Bros. & Boomer, who has been ill for some time, is convalescent, and will probably be at business next week.

Mr. T. O. Leonard, of the Oswego Starch Co., who was here last week, says that in the Eastern States trade is quite as dull as it is here, but in the west business is more active.

In this week's Prices Current an advance in brooms is marked. Relative to this Messrs. Chas. Boeckh & Sons say:—The advance has been caused by a shortage in the crop, and American manufacturers have made an advance of 50c. per dozen. We have received advices showing that best grades are now held at $150 per ton, an advance of nearly 100 per cent. in less than one month, and holders are not anxious to sell even at the advanced figures. Knowing that your valuable paper is carefully read by all live grocers, we think you will be doing them good service by making the above facts known to them. Those requiring stock should order promptly, as all manufacturers are behind in their orders, and there is no doubt whatever that a further advance will take place.

D. Ritchie & Co., of the Dominion Cut Tobacco Cigarette and Snuff Works, Montreal, have added two new brands of cigarettes, The Holder and Hyde Park, which appear in this week's Prices Current.

Wright & Copp have received a large consignment of assorted jams put up by J. Robertson, Paisley, Scotland, and Manchester, England. They are put up in 1 and 2 lb. jars, and consist of plum, gooseberry, currant, strawberry and raspberry.

The Chicago Bulletin says: A convention of broom manufacturers is now being held in this city. It is well attended, and broom makers besides attending this conference have taken advantage of their visit by buying up considerable corn. It is claimed that so far this week over 30 cars have been sold, and gossip has it that about 1,000 tons are wanted. The market for broom corn has worked into a very strong position. The country has been so thoroughly scoured that only a small portion of the crop remains in first hands, and of the stock laid in at this point a considerable portion has been taken. Prices have advanced in nearly all quarters, and holders generally have had their views considerably stiffened. From the present outlook it appears as if every part of the new crop will be needed. A general improvement in prices is quoted. The crop has been so nearly sold that it is now possible to compute with some degree of accuracy the extent of this year's crop, and latest estimates place the aggregate yield as about 23,000 tons, against 30,000 tons last year, and last year it was considerably below the average. Stock of broom corn in the growing sections of Illinois is said to have been reduced to less than 1,000 tons. Missouri and Ohio crops are said to have been about all sold. The crop in the West is also pretty well picked up,

PETROLEUM.

Business is active but prices are stationary at points of quotation that have been reported for months. No new feature comes up for notice.

The Petrolia Advertiser reports: Petrolia crude $1.30 per bbl.; Oil Spring crude $1.30 per bbl. The prices of crude oil on the exchange and private sales during the past week have not demonstrated any special features of interest, business for the most part having been dull, and the drop about 5 cents in the oleagenous has proved our oft repeated advice not to rush the drill and increase the production, thereby playing into the hands of the manufacturers. The course of the crude oil market now appears to be more affected by the hifalutin and absurd reports received from day to day, showing up in almost every case big wells. The refined oil market is about the same as that recorded in our last, but if crude comes down to a dollar, which it will do if this fanatical process is continued, the producers will have no one to blame for it but themselves.

Surprise Soap

Is unequalled by any other Soap in the ordinary ways of washing, either by soaking or boiling the clothes, or both. But the best results are obtained by following the directions according to the new "Surprise way." All we ask is to give it a fair trial (without boiling or scalding) and see if SURPRISE SOAP does not make every piece like new, taking out streaks, stains, and all of the yellowish look that other soaps are sure to give when garments get a little old.

DRUGS AND CHEMICALS.

Nothing new is to be reported in the drug trade, which pursues a tranquil course just now. All seasonable lines are selling fairly well, with the usual call for goods kept in general stocks.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

Freer receipts are telling on the prices of butter. Local dealers have been able to collect a little stock beyond the immediate needs of consumers, and with this momentary independence of the supply they are not offering so good prices. On the part of the sellers there is more liberal offering, the supply being recruited from milk which throughout the summer and early fall went to the cheese factories. This easier state of the market is more perceptible in the better grades, as the supply of common butter has not increased, and is now rather short. More could find sale if it were available. The best dairy tub rarely gets above 17c., and the range for good extends from 15c. up to that figure. Below that, all the way to 11c. prices are variable for seconds. There have been more liberal offerings of large rolls since the weather cooled. They go at about the same price as good tub. Creamery rolls and tubs are not coming this way, but are quoted at 26 and 24c. respectively.

Cheese had firmed up very notably at the end of last week, but took an easier tone at the beginning of this. The trade is quiet, at 10½c. for full creams.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

BEANS—Quotations for car lots are $1.30 and $1.35. The movement in a large way has been stronger to make up shipments north-westward. Out of store prices are $1.50 to $1.60.

DRIED APPLES—Negotiations are always pending but proceed slowly towards business as there is a feeling that stock is plentiful. Prices outside in round lots are 4 to 4¼c.; on spot 4½ to 5c.

EVAPORATED APPLES—Do not sell freely. Offers are more plentiful than bids. The price outside is 6 to 6⅞c.; on spot they are 7¼ to 8c.

EGGS—The price is firm at 18c. for candled, which are behindhand in meeting the call for them. Limed are 15c.

GAME—Is fairly plentiful but in better demand with more seasonable weather. Partridges are 30 to 40c. a brace, wild ducks are scarce at 30 to 50c. a brace, and venison is somewhat easy at 4 to 5c. in the carcass and 8 to 9c. in the haunch.

HAY—The price is firmer and higher, ranging at $11.50 to $12.25 for choice timothy on track. All is wanted that comes to hand.

HIDES—No. 1 green, cows', are 4 1-2c., and steers' are 5c. Cured are 5 to 5¼c. The hide market is dull.

MARKETS—Continued.

HONEY—The market is rather inactive, but the situation shows signs of improving. Good extracted is worth 10c., and sections are 13 to 16c.

HOPS—The market has undergone marked improvement. Prices now offered are 18 to 23c. for new crop stock. Sellers have higher ideas and ask 21 to 25c. The market has advanced in England and Europe.

ONIONS—A good demand exists and is maintaining a strong movement of stock at $1.90 to $2.25 per barrel according to quality. A considerable amount of shipping is now being done.

POULTRY—Chickens are 40 to 60c. a pair, ducks 60 to 75c. a pair, geese are 6½ to 7c. per lb., turkeys are 10 to 11c. per lb. These quotations are firm in correspondence with the backwardness of the supply.

POTATOES—Are easy, cars standing on offer at 40c., but buyers are not forthcoming. Out of store prices are 50 to 55c.

SEEDS—The weather has been against trade, inasmuch as it has not favored threshing, that being put off as long as outside farm work can be done. Hence deliveries are light. Alsike is unchanged at $5.50 to $6 for prime to choice, and $6.50 for extra export samples.

SKINS—Sheepskins made their usual half-monthly advance of 5c. on Monday, which brings them to 85c. Calfskins are 5 to 7c.

STRAW—Is steady at $6 to $6.50.

WOOL—The first transaction involving the export sale of fancy wool of this season's clip took place on Monday, when a lot of 75,000 lbs. of choice fleece was sold at 19½c. There were several tons offered at the same price, but the United States market is dull. Trade lots are 18 to 19c.

DRESSED HOGS AND PROVISIONS.

The advance in the price of feed has been followed by lighter feeding, and hogs below the weights suitable for packers are still numerous, though less so than they were a week ago. There has been rather a light supply of packers' weights, which sell at from $5.25 to $5.75, with $5.62 1-2 a usual figure. There is some unsettlement in the market, which is felt on every day supplies are heavy, buyers then being slow to take hold.

BACON—Is easier, at 8 to 8 1-4c. for long clear. Smoked backs are 10 1-2 to 11c., and bellies are 10 1-2 to 12c. Rolls are 8¼ to 9c.

HAMS—Are quieter and lower, at 11 to 11 1-2c.

LARD—Is easier at 9 1-2 to 10c. for Canadian pure and compound 8 1-2 to 9c.

BARREL PORK.—Mess pork is quiet at $14 and short cut at $16.

FISH AND OYSTERS.

Fresh fish, especially lake herring, are scarce, and will be so until colder weather sets in. The trade has not been much larger than last week, though haddock and cod are moving at firm prices. The oyster trade is exceedingly good, with prices at the same mark—namely, $1.25 to $1.30. Finnan haddies are scarce and the price keeps firm at 7½ to 8½c.

FLOUR AND FEED.

The usual volume of demand is experienced, with little effect on prices in anything but rolled oats, corn-meal and wheat-bran, all of which are a little firmer and somewhat higher. Prices are as here follow :—$5.75 for Manitoba patent, $5.25 to $5.35 for Ontario patents, $4.50 for straight roller, $4.40 to $4.50 for extra, $2.25 to $4 for low grades, $5.25 to $5.40 for strong bakers'. Graham flour is $4.50, standard oatmeal $4 to 4.30, rolled oats $4.20 to 4.20, Kiln-dried corn meal is $3.80 to $4 00, rolled wheat $4.50 to $4.75 ; wheat bran $12.50, cracked corn $1.50 per cwt., mixed chop $20 to $25, split peas $4, pot barley $4.25, oats 35 to 37c.

FRUITS.

Apples come forward and go out very freely at prices ranging from $1.50 to $2.50. There is more than the usual export and consumptive demand on account of the easy prices and the good quality which this year abounds. A good trade in cranberries is done at $8.25 to $9 per barrel for dark, and from 25 to 50c. less for light-colored Cape Cod fruit.

GREEN FRUIT.

Oranges are selling satisfactorily these days. Jamaicas are steady at $7 to $7.50. Floridas are now in prime condition for consumption, easier in price and in better demand at $3.25 to $3.75. Lots of 50 to 100 boxes would be sold at $3. Malaga lemons are in ample stock at $3.75 to $4.50 in boxes and $7.50 to $8 in chests. In the latter firm of package excellent value is given. Messinas are rather green yet and consequently in low demand at $5 to $6. Malaga grapes are steady at $4.75 to $5 for ordinary weights, and as high as $6.50 for heavy weights. Jersey sweet potatoes are $2.50 to $3, with a few Baltimores yet obtainable at $2 to $2.50. Bananas are scarce at $1.25 to $1.75. Pineapples are 12 to 18c.

SALT.

The wholesale trade has been brisker. Three cars of bbl salt at $1.15 ; 2 cars fine sacks at 85c.; 1 car dairy at $1.25 have moved this week. Prices are steady. Bbl salt car lots $1.15. Coarse, car lots, f.o.b. 70c. ; small do 85 to 90c. ; Dairy, car lots, f.o.b. $1.25 ; small do, $1.50. ; quartersacks, 45 to 50c ; Common fine, car lots, 85c. ; small do 95 to $1 ; Rock salt per ton $15.

DRY GOODS.

The backwardness of the weather is the primary cause in the backwardness of trade. If the weather were wintry, as it is usually expected to be at this season, there would be freer delivery of grain and more money circulating among the people. There would then be both the atmospheric and financial conditions necessary to make business in lines now carried by wholesale dry goods men. There is a little improvement this week.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL Nov. 19, 1891.

There has been no great volume of business doing during the week, but a fair trade has progressed. The feature of the week has been the stir in coffee, etc., the difficulties in Brazil inclining buyers to devote some attention to supplies, while stocks here are light. In Produce, also, the week has witnessed more stir in cheese, caused by the shortage across the line, and there has been considerable speculative business as an advance.

SUGAR, ETC.

The sugar market has been quiet locally, but within the past few days a stir in New York, has occured, and this has livened up our market somewhat. Quotations here are steady 3½ to 4¼c. for yellows, and 4½c. for granulated from refineries. The tendency is firmer though, and round lots of yellows have left first hands at 3½c., and raws also have been moved in a wholesale way at 3¼c.

Syrups are selling slowly at 2⅜ to 2½c., molasses quiet at 36 to 37.

TEAS.

The tea market is quiet and easy in tone. About 1,000 packages of Japan changed hands at 14 to 15½c. Blacks are dull, the only business being the sale of 1,500 packages Oolongs on New York account at 10c.

COFFEES AND SPICES.

The disturbance in Brazil has occassioned a change in the coffee market, for buyers are beginning to feel anxious about supplies in view of the small reserves they have to fall back on. This anxiety has pricipitated a sudden movement from the first, quite a round quantity of stock being moved during the week. Round lots of 100 bags Rio are moving at 18 to 18½c. and Jamaicas are the same. Of course these figures are for lots of the size mentioned, any thing smaller means 19c. Spices are unchanged from before.

RICE.

There is nothing new to say concerning rice, a fair distributive demand being noticed. We quote : Patna, $4.50 to $5; Japan, $4.25 to $4.50 ; standard, $3.90, and off grades $3.50 in car lots.

DRIED FRUIT.

The demand for dried fruit in a wholesale way has fallen off, as jobbers pretty well filled their wants during the active turn we have previously noted, consequently business is duller and prices rule firm and supplies in first hands are small. Valencia raisins rule unchanged, 5½c. for firsts and 5¼c. for seconds. Advices on currants from primary continue firm and holders here are stiff. They have a fair jobbing call at 5½ to 6c.

NUTS.

There is no particular change to mention, about the usual trade passing. New Grenoble walnuts rule at 14 to 15c. and French ditto 10c. Almonds of all sorts are unchanged, while filberts are steady at 9 to 10c., with pecans strong at 16 to 17c.

CANNED GOODS.

The canned goods market is quiet locally, the general features of the market being about the same as reported last week. Tomatoes are still offering freely, but prices are fairly steady in the expectation of orders from the West.

N. B.—The old STANDARD BRAND of HORSESHOE CANNED SALMON still takes the lead, and affords the greatest satisfaction to both dealer and consumer, and for uniform excellence in quality and weight has no equal.

GREEN FRUIT.

There is a fair jobbing demand for dried fruit, oranges selling quietly at $7 to $8 for Jamaicas in barrels and $3.25 to $3.50 for Floridas in boxes. Lemons are unchanged at $4.50 to $6. Almeria grapes are coming forward in fair quantities, but the demand is steady and prices are unchanged at $5 to $5.50.

APPLES.

The apple market maintains its steady feelng, and the heavy shipments to Liverpool seem to have been absorbed with sufficient celerity as to prevent any material change. This is gratifying to dealers on spot and values in a wholesale way are unchanged, business moving steadily along in car lots at $2 to $2.10. Recent sales quote a range of 13s. to 17s. at Liverpool.

FISH.

The market has been quiet, but the firm feeling is fully maintained and there is no change to note. Herring continue scarce, with holders stiff, and receipts of B. C. salmon and lake trout have been taken at steady prices with sufficient freedom to prevent any accumulation. Cod, etc., rule firm and unchanged.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market is quiet and dealers are holding pork steady at our quotations, but a local packer has issued a circular quoting heavy Canada short cut at $16. We quote as follows: Canadian short cut, per brl. $16.75 to $17; mess pork, western, per brl. $13.75 to $14.25 ; short cut, western, per brl. $16.75 to $17.00 ; hams, city cured, per lb. 10 1-2 to 11 1-2 ; hams, canvassed, per lb. 00 to 00 ; lard Canadian, in pails, 8⅞c. to 9c ; bacon, per lb. 9c. to 10c ; lard com. refined, per lb. 7¾ to 8c.

EGGS.

The egg market is steady under a fair local demand, at 15 to 16c. for held fresh and Montreal limed. Receipts continue light.

POULTRY, ETC.

Receipts of poultry and game are light and there is a good demand, with prices stiff. We quote:—Ducks and turkeys 8 to 9 1-2c., and chickens and geese 5 1-2 to 7c. per lb.; partridge, 40 to 45c. per brace.

BUTTER.

This market does not exhibit any alteration, and although the shipping demand is not so great holders show no anxiety about finest stock. In fact there is no great reason for any, for butter seems safe at a reasonable price. Late-made creamery is held for 24 to 24 1-2c., and finds sufficient buyers to warrant these figures, while Townships dairy is not plentiful, with prices firm at 18 to 20c. Choice western dairy has been moved at 16 to 17c. Late-made creamery, 24 to 24 1-2c.; fine creamery, 23 to 23 1-2c.; finest Townships, 19 to 20c.; finest Western, 16 to 17 1-2c.

CHEESE.

The cheese market rules active, and the turn that had its conception at the time the home demand set in across the line is continued. Business has already been noted at the advance, and further transactions are reported at 10½c., sufficient to justify the market being called brisk. It has to be noted, however, that the business is all confined to this side, and although the cable is advanced to 52s. the complaints about want of encouragement from across the water still continue. Be this as it may there are dealers who are taking their profit whoever is to carry the cheese, and in some cases it constitutes quite a neat little margin on the right side. Finest fall makes, 10¼ to 10½c. ; Fine stock, 10 to 10⅛c. ; Medium grades, 9¾ to 9⅞c. ; Cable, 51s.

GRAIN.

The movement here is largely if not entirely restricted to to the coarser grains, especially oats, which rule very firm. The stocks in store compared with those of a week ago show an increase of 96,436 wheat, 36,935 oats, 369 barley, and a decrease of 50 corn, 3,280 peas, 69,467 rye. Compared with a year ago there is an increase of 268,505 wheat, 60,674 peas, 91,590 oats, 146,273 barley, and a decreose of 9,323 corn. We quote as follows :—No. 1 hard Manitoba, $0; No. 2 do. $1.05 to $1.07 ; No. 3 do., 97c; No. 2 Northern, $1.04; peas, 79 to 80c. per 66 pounds in store, 77 to 78c. afloat; oats, 36c. per 34 pounds in store, 37c afloat ; corn, 68c. to 69c. duty paid ; feed barley, 48 to 50c. ; good malting do., 60 to 62c.

FLOUR.

There is a steady jobbing demand for flour and prices do not show any alteration. Straight rollers move at $4.85 and strong bakers' at $5 to $5.10, while there is a demand for patents' at steady prices. The stocks in store show an increase of 3,156 barrels compared with a week ago, and a decrease of 6,866 barrels compared with a year ago. Patent spring, old wheat, $5.40; Patent spring, new wheat, $5.00 to $5.30; Patent winter, $5 to $5.25; straight roller $4.75 to $4.85 ; Extra $4.40 to $4.50 ; Superfine $3.95 to $4.10; City strong bakers' $5.00 to $5.10; Strong bakers' $4.75 to $5.50.

ST. JOHN, N. B., MARKETS.

ST. JOHN, N. B., Nov. 18. 1891

The wholesale grocers have had a busy week, and even the holiday did not seem to make much difference, as quite a number were at their places of business filling orders. Money still continues hard to collect, which is having the effect of restricting trade somewhat.

FLOUR—The millers have advanced the price of flour about 10c. per bbl. on all grades, though it does not seem to make any difference in the quantity selling, which at this season of the year is usually large. Manitoba is quoted at $5.95 to $6,50 ; Ontario high grade $5.30 to $5.40 ; Medium Patents $5 to $5.15.

MEAL—There is nothing new to report about corn meal. The price is unchanged and likely to remain steady, $3.10 to $3.20 being the quotations.

OATMEAL—Is firmer and some holders are talking of still further advance; $5.75 to $5.80 is the ruling price on roller, with standard about 10c. lower.

BEANS—Have advanced a little in price, and reports received would favor the opinion of another upward movement shortly. The last quotations were $1.60 to $1.65 for hand-picked.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.—Butter is coming in more freely, though the quality is not up to the standard and is selling 16 to 19c. Eggs are very scarce and accordingly high; they readily sell for 20c. The shipment, of potatoes have fallen off somewhat which has caused an easier tone. In cheese there is only a fair demand, with prices unchanged.

FISH—Pickled herring have been unusually scarce this fall, and prices are higher than for several years. There has only been one small vessel with full cargo, and they are principally in half barrels.

COD—Are also scarce, and any that offers are readily picked up, $4.20 to $4.50 for mediums, $4.80 to $5 for large, pollock $2.20 to $2.30.

NOTES.

The first cargo of sugar from Iloilo this fall has arrived in ship Abbie S. Hart, which will be forwarded via I. C. Railway. Last season all was shipped via C. P. R.

The new price-book carried by the travellers of Eby, Blain & Co., is a model one. The mass of detailed information it contains is admirably arranged, while reference is made instant and certain by a system of indexing that is very ingenious and complete. For the conception and preparation of the work great credit is due to the author, Mr. W. H. Seyler.

"Put Money in thy Purse."

Othello, the Moor of Venice.

The words of the immortal Shakespeare have their application to the present time as well as to the days of the scheming Iago.

One way for the grocer to put money in his purse is to handle a popular labor-saver like GIBSON'S ICINA. It is put up Chocolate, Pink and White and is sold in 1 lb. and ½ lb. packets, 2 doz. in a case, assorted or any kind separate

Icina will ice a cake in three minutes without use of eggs. Order through your Wholesale Grocer, and if he does not keep it it will only cost you a cent to write direct to the sole proprietors,

CERTIFICATES OF STRENGTH AND PURITY.

OFFICE OF THE PUBLIC ANALYST,

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Co., Montreal:

GENTLEMEN,—I have personally taken samples from a large stock of your Granulated Sugar, "REDPATH" brand, and carefully tested them by the Polariscope, and I find these samples to be as near to absolute purity as can be obtained by any process of Sugar-Refining.

The test by the Polariscope showed in yesterday s yield 99·90 per cent. of Pure Cane Sugar, which may be considered commercially as ABSOLUTELY PURE SUGAR.

JOHN BAKER EDWARDS, P.L.D., D.C.L., F.C.S.,

Public Analyst for the District of Montreal, and Professor of Chemistry.

CHEMICAL LABORATORY, MEDICAL FACULTY, MCGILL UNIVERSITY.

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Company:

GENTLEMEN,—I have taken and tested a sample of your "EXTRA GRANULATED" Sugar, and find that it yielded 99·88 per cent. of Pure Sugar It is practically as pure and good a Sugar as can be manufactured.

Yours truly,

G. P. GIRDWOOD.

It is well-known

That successful Doctors read all the latest medical books and papers and go abroad occasionally to study. Successful lawyers read legal publications to learn the latest legal decisions and points constantly cropping up. Teachers, clergymen, druggists, architects, all read the publication issued in the interests of their profession. They must do so to keep up with the times.

The same applies to grocers and general merchants. They must not only read the best papers published in their interests but must also watch the advertisements closely. There they learn the rise and fall in prices; latest trade news and methods of buying, handling and selling goods, so that they may make the greatest profit. A doctor reads much that he already knows, so does a lawyer. So does a number of any of the other professions. So will a merchant. It is often the issue of the paper he misses that is worth dollars to him. His best and safest policy, therefore, is to subscribe for his trade paper.

The only exclusively grocery and general store paper is THE CANADIAN GROCER issued weekly, subscription price $2.00 per year.

Vol. V. TORONTO, NOVEMBER 27, 1891. No. 48

SPECIAL TO OUR READERS.

As the design of THE CANADIAN GROCER is to benefit mutually all interested in the business, we would request all parties ordering goods or making purchases of any description from houses advertising with us to mention in their letter that such advertisement was noticed in THE CANADIAN GROCER.

If a trader employs a sufficient number of capable shop-hands to do the mere mechanical and routine work of his business, ought he himself to do such work? Does he further the ends of his business by making frequent headlong sallies into the packing room, into the warehouse and into the midst of rough service generally, where, with sleeves rolled up, he lifts on heavy cases, tears packages open, and throws things around like a porter. Such a man is much like an impetuous but not well-disciplined foot-ball player, who cannot be brought to believe, when the ball is out of his sphere of action, that it is in somebody's else; he feels that the winning of the game depends upon his exertions, and he cannot be kept in the one place where his usefulness is appreciated and trusted. He spreads himself all over the field, and dissipates his energy to comparatively little purpose, though he may toil and sweat: "like to a harvest man that's tasked to mow or all or lose his hire." When the ball gets to his place the man relied on to take care of it is probably not there, and in default of his presence a goal may be scored by the team he is working against. So it is with the trader who makes a practice of leaving the post for whose keeping he is more particularly responsible.

* * * *

A man may feel that the contagion of his fervid energy will react beneficially upon the industry of his clerks and porters, but he ought also to remember that his own particular duties are entitled to as much of his spare ardor as he has in reserve. Picture a manager whose salary is $15 per day dancing round a big package of goods knocking the cover to pieces with an axe, then yanking out the contents and strewing them over the floor, while a $5-a-week clerk looks on nonchalantly, having long been accustomed to this officious assistance, and having therefore become case-hardened against the stimulating lesson of the example. The manager was really not doing his duty. Instead of being at his place busied with some of the executive problems or devising some of the financial schemes that relate to his proper work, he is really earning but $5 a week, though he draws $15 a day. The clerk could knock that box to pieces with less fuss and in quicker time, if he is employed in a concern whose affairs are properly administered, and the man who is responsible for their proper administration is taking the job out of the clerk's hands.

* * * *

The manager should be able to make his influence felt throughout all the grades of the staff without being under the necessity of taking a hand occasionally for example's sake in the rudimentary or detail work in which employes are engaged. The tone of his rule may be detected in the work of his subordinates, who can be infused with the right ideas and held answerable for the full discharge of their duties by the graded responsibility plan. The vigor of the chief will inform the whole staff if the head of each sub-division is sharply watched by the manager. Then the latter can confine himself to the work for which he is paid, and that work will be done all the better for the undivided attention it receives. There can be no doubt that trained, highly-valued powers are not well employed when the possessor of them is working at what the crudest mind can do as well as he.

* * * *

It is necessary of course that the manager or the head of a business should know all about the detail involved in competent service in any part of that business. Too much such knowledge no man in a leading position can possess. But he is supposed to have acquired it in his training. It is one of the qualifications which fit him for the direction of others. Under judicious management he rose through the different degrees of service till he reached the topmost one, and it is probably as much due to the fact that a disciplinarian was at the helm as to any other external influence. The command of detail, not the slavery of detail, is what is expected of the manager.

* * * *

Failure is sometimes the penalty of misplaced energy. In a big concern there are plenty of chances to give attention to other people's business instead of one's own, as there usually are several other people. The opportunities for neglecting one's own duties are correspondingly numerous, and a business will be apt to drift. A certain business man is in mind who was the proprietor of a large store, engaging many hands. This man was noted for his wonderful physical energy. He would go like a shot from one place to another, but often fruitlessly, frequently neglecting to take note of the fact that what he wanted was at hand. He spent his bodily powers prodigally, but he never made all the use of his head he should have done. In all that he tried it was the same way. In a certain athletic exercise he excelled in quickness, but he often was beaten by a weaker, less capable man, simply because the latter did more head-work. Those who have the control of a business ought to transmit their energy through their mental rather than their physical mechanism.

ONE CAUSE OF TRADE WITH CONSUMERS.

The following correspondence illustrates the nature of the sacrifices that have sometimes to be made by wholesalers to keep faith with their customers, ands point as well to the indifference or unthankfulness of some retailers, when consumers whose overtures are rejected by wholesalers, are put into connection with those retailers. In the particular transaction in question in the correspondence below, the offer of purchase was declined by the wholesale house, and referred to a certain retailer; the retailer was advised of the reference to him, and was further enlightened by copies of the declined order, and of the letter declining it, so that he knew the position of the matter thoroughly. This solicitude for his interests appears not to have been appreciated, as he made no reply to the wholesale house. The sale was therefore lost to the wholesale house, either as a direct or an indirect deal. Such experience must weigh against rather than for protecting the retailer, since it was not deemed worthy of gratitude by this particular retailer, and was the means of throwing trade away for the benefit of a rival wholesale house. The wholesalers whose strictness was unappreciated would be further disinclined to be so careful of the retailers' interests in future, by the consideration that other houses will sell to consumers no matter who does not. It would be unfortunate if a few examples of churlish treatment should be allowed to check the movement towards business in purely trade orders. One man may act as this particular dealer did, while 99 would show becoming appreciation. The conduct of this man ought not to be made a basis of generalizing as to the conduct of the whole trade, which as a body will support conscientious dealing by wholesalers. Still, such an instance is a hindrance to the attainment of purely wholesale-retail distribution. The letters follow in their proper order:

———, 9th Nov., 1891.

Messrs. ———.

DEAR SIRS,—Will you please send me at your earliest convenience twenty-five pounds Ram Lal's tea in lb. packages. The price, I think, is about 38 cents for the kind I require. Your early attention will oblige.

Very truly yours,

Steward, ——— Club

DEAR SIR,—We are favored with yours of the 29th inst., and for order please accept our thanks. However, we regret that we cannot execute the same, as we make it a rule to sell to retail trade only. However, Messrs. ——— keep the tea, and will no doubt be most happy to fill your order. But you are in error as to the price, as it cannot be sold under 50 cts.

We are, yours truly,

Messrs. ———,

[Retail Grocers.]

DEAR SIRS,—We herewith enclose letter from Mr. ———, Steward of the ——— Club of your city, inquiring for 25 lbs. R. I. tea. We have written him as per inclose, and trust you will be able to secure the order. We have not had any order from you for some time, and would like to know how this tea is selling in your city. Awaiting your reply, We are, yours truly,

Messrs. ———.

[Wholesale Grocers.]

GENTLEMEN,—I note your remarks re Ram Hal's tea, and thank you for reminding me that you would see my wants supplied, but I have secured a tea that suits us just as well at wholesale, namely, 38½ cents per lb., about your own price, We use too much to pay 50 cents per lb. for the same goods that I can buy at the above mentioned price. I remain, Very truly yours,

Steward, ——— Club.

The retail firm returned no answer to the third communication above, which was sent to them.

RUSTLING LEAVES OF THE FALL NUMBER.

Our able contemporary the American Grocer has more than a national or continental circulation, and might not inaptly name itself The Cosmopolitan Grocer. The generous notice which it was good enough to give our special number was read by one of its subscribers in Lausanne, Switzerland, who cut out the notice and pasted it on a corner of a letter, which Mr. Barrett, the editor of the American Grocer, kindly forwarded to us. We thank our contemporary for the good turn. The following is the letter:

LAUSANNE, Oct. 27th, 1891.

Editor American Grocer,

143 Chambers street, New York.

SIR,—We read in the American Grocer, of which we are subscribers, the enclosed article of the fall number of THE CANADIAN GROCER. We should very much like to see one of the copies of this paper, and beg to ask you to tell us if it is possible to get it, and how much we should have to send in American stamps for the value and postage of it. We are, sir, yours very thankfully,

MANUEL FRERES.

* * * *

Mr. A. C. Dowse, the clever and enterprising editor of the New England Grocer, returns to his chair from his arduous and successful labors as secretary of the Boston Food and Health Exposition, and takes a general survey of his fellows of the tradepress in a truly fraternal and magnanimous spirit. This look around' is suggested by the pile of exchanges that had accumulated while his pen was idle and he was busy with other matters. The following is his graceful reference to our special number:

"'With the feeling we have done our best to make it a credit to the season, we deliver this year's Fall Number into the hands of our readers. If it calls forth a little admiration from them, it will repay us for the outlay of time, money and special effort that has been made upon it.' This is the modest announcement made by the CANADIAN GROCER as it presents its readers with a model trade journal, brim to the full with able editorials and instructive trade news. It is a credit to Canada, a credit to the trade a credit to all who had to do with its issuance.

By the way, what does our contemporary think of the exclusion from the Canadian mails of the New England Grocer? Would it like our authorities to take similar action upon it. We should regret such a step and enter our protest. How is it with thee, brother?"

We regret that our contemporary should encounter any obstacle, in customs or postal rulings, to its free circulation in this country. There is nothing more exasperating to Canadians themselves than are some of the arbitrary and conflicting interpretations of clauses in our Tariff Act. An instance of capricious and tyrannical ruling in the case of salt is referred to in another part of this issue. The New England Grocer comes through the mails at this port without challenge, while at some other points it is classed as matter contemplated in Article 303 of the Tariff Act. It is unfortunate that so much is left to the petty despotism of officers who can discriminate no better than those at the latter ports do. There ought to be some means of securing uniformity of ruling, for it is ridiculous to see an article admissable through this port under one clause of the tariff and through that port under another. Clause 303 was framed to check the importation of fakir publications, but it seems there is nothing in the way of an absolute customs official using it against the circulation of reputable journals. It seems strange that each port should be a little independent realm, in which the will of the local collector is supreme. If there is any supremacy it should surely be in the Department, whose decisions ought at least to reconcile those of its representatives at the various ports. It is remarkable that a paper should be classed as a journal at this port and as a fakir publication at another.

* * * *

The Petrolia Advertiser honors the Fall Number with the following notice: The Fall Number of THE CANADIAN GROCER is interesting, artistic and useful, not only to the trade it represents, but to all business men. It abounds in pithy, breezy, ably written articles on subjects of considerable importance and interest to the grocer, and which may be found equally full of pointers to other trades. Its illustrations are neat and beautiful. Its advertisements are fresh and clearly set. Indeed it is one of the best, all round, that have found their way to our sanctum.

LONG-ROOM SERVICE.

The wholesale merchants of Toronto have long suffered great inconvenience and loss of time in getting goods through the customs, owing to the habit of customs brokers monopolizing the computation wickets. There have been several instances of one of these wickets being held for hours by a single agent. One broker is known to have invested a wicket from 9 a. m. till 4 p. m., blockading to every other person that particular medium of business with the office. A messenger kept him supplied with entries, and of course the computing clerk had nothing for it but to give him attention as long as he was there to receive it. This sort of thing went on too long, and if it had not been remedied there would be room for suspicion that the customs officers were abetting the brokers in a plan of obstruction, which would finally force the merchants to give over their customs business to the brokers. But reform has at last been vouchsafed. It has come in the form of a division of labor among the computing staff. To one clerk has been allotted the work of attending to brokers' entries, while the three other clerks look after the merchants' business. A desired improvement would be conceded if an addition were made to the staff, which is taxed to its utmost to attend to the entries that are now put through. The business at this port has increased immensely during the past few years, and the service that was adequate in 1885 is now unequal to the work. Two additional clerks at least ought to be put on the present computing staff.

EXPANDING DEMAND FOR CANNED TOMATOES.

This fall the demand for new canned tomatoes has made greater headway in moving stock into consumption than is usual before Christmas. The reason for the difference lies in the fact that in the past there has always been an unconsumed remnant of the old pack carried over into the fall, and this usually sold at prices which gave it the preference in the demand as long as the stock lasted, which commonly was throughout the autumn months. The new stock was as good as intact during a considerable part of this time, and its bulk weakened prices. Healthier conditions now prevail. Consumption began on the new goods as soon as they were ready, and they have consequently been getting into smaller proportions. A factor in the current strong consumption was also active in that of a year ago, which caused such a complete cleaning up of the pack. It is the increased popularity of canned tomatoes, which has been very notable in recent years. At the outset consumers were limited to towns and cities. Now they are nearly as numerous in the country. Progressive consumption is a condition that must be reckoned with in any attempt to estimate the capacity of the demand to absorb any year's pack.

THE RETAIL POTATO TRADE.

One local effect of the abundance of potatoes this year is a very marked decline in the sales of them by retail grocers. The latter, calculating upon easy prices as stimuli to consumption, have been free buyers, but have found selling to be laborious and scarcely profitable. The old difficulty in a greatly aggravated form—the competition of the growers and the soi-disant growers—meets them every day and from every quarter. The large crop makes holders more anxious than scrupulous, and after selling the grocers up to the full capacity in many cases of the prospective consumers' demand, they then lay siege to the latter, and sell to every householder they can induce to buy a peck. The prices are quoted often on a basis that makes their comparative cheapness alongside of those asked by the retailer a fallacy. The equivocal terms "bag," "small measure," etc., give the artful pedlar or the farmer a chance to maintain an apparently fair, stand-up competition with the grocer. The grocer is a responsible resident trader, whose measures are periodically inspected, and who is always to be found at the same place to answer any charges that may be made against him by purchasers; his measures are therefore legal and his prices are quoted for legal measures.

The growers are taking the swiftest way to destroy the stability of the market for potatoes. A grocer who has taken a carload from a farmer who immediately follows the delivery of it by another which he carts out to consumers, is not only unlikely to buy again from that farmer, but is apt to be very slow to buy a round lot from any farmer. To stock up the grocer first and then to quench the demand that the grocer's order was based upon is unprincipled, and cannot but make a potato market, as distinct from a pedlar's route, a precarious thing. If the grocers are driven from handling potatoes, both the growers and consumers will wish they had not been parties to the methods which brought about the change.

THE CALL OF DUTY.

The last fastnesses to which absolute power has retreated before the pursuit of public opinion appear to be the custom houses of this free and enlightened country. There the potent but entirely problematical will of the chief officers is seemingly a law unto itself, though there is a tariff in existence which is supposed to regulate it. The aberrations of appraisement, classification, interpretation and judgment that illustrate the need of reform in our customs service are numerous and ridiculous. One of the last reported relates to some salt entries that were passed in October, 1890. This salt was passed at that time at a certain rate of duty. Just the other day a notice was received by the importers that they were to amend the entries, it having been discovered that more duty was due than was levied and collected. The cost of the salt was made up on a basis including only the duty demanded at the time of entry, and the whole of it had been sold at prices in accordance with that calculation. But now the afterclap of the customs office comes and the receivers are required to pay extra duty, no matter though the increment of the afterthought absorb all the profit which the receivers adjusted their prices to get. In this particular instance the additional duty was not large, but it transgressed just as important a principle as if it had been great enough to sop up the whole selling-price. What security can business men have against such raids upon their prices after goods are sold and prices shortages cannot be redressed, if customs officials can so easily shift the responsibility of their own error from their shoulders to those of importers? It would be a means of obtaining better service in this department if personal responsibility for error were added to the dogmatic competence to say what error is. There would be less heard of past mistakes, if the perpetrators of the mistake were answerable for it. An importer may refuse to pay duty thus demanded after it is out of his power to indemnify himself for the customs officials' error, but it is at peril of having his bond closed on him and of incurring forfeiture of the right to enter more goods until the matter in dispute is settled. In so manifest a case of wrong done a legal appeal would surely issue in the righting of the wrong, but unless the amount is considerable, no importer would care to have his bonded warehouse closed during the time required to settle the matter by law.

WHAT GERMAN RETAILERS HAVE TO COMPETE AGAINST.

Retailers in Canada suffer occasionally from competition with manufacturers and jobbers who sell to consumers direct, but we are well off as compared with the trade in Germany. There manufacturers in most cases go direct to the consumer. Many of the larger ones have retail stores in all large business centres in which their goods are sold. They also do an extensive business by mail. The post office is under government control. Five kilo, or eleven pounds, will go at equal to 12c. to any part of Germany. For distances of less than 125 miles the price is only 6c. It is usual to see 10 lbs. of coffee, sugar, files, cutlery, etc., pass through the mails. The authorities carry parcels from warehouses and factories just as the express business is done here; they go about the street, and when a shipper wants to send a parcel he hangs out a card. For an additional charge of five cents and upwards they will collect c.o.d. parcels and pay over the money to the shippers. The post office also collects notes and drafts at the rate of about 1-10 of 1 per cent.

EASY CREDITS AND EASY SETTLEMENTS.

TRENTON, Nov. 18th, 1891.

Editor CANADIAN GROCER :

SIR,—Our Grocers' Association has seemingly failed in this town, for the present at any rate. We in Trenton seem to be very unfortunate in the grocery trade, there having been six or seven business troubles in that line during the last ten months.

It seems to me credit is too cheap for the good of trade in general. Why is it that people without any capital to speak of can run a fine grocery business, and our wholesale people will take 25 to 50 cents on the $ every once and awhile, and run them on to compete against people who have the capital, and who would pay them without loss for all they might buy?

I think the time has come when this settling at one-quarter or half the liabilities should be stopped and goods sold where security can be given. I would like to hear of some step being taken, and if you, Mr. Editor, can suggest something, in the name of the grocery trade do it, and let groceries be bought and sold at 100 cents on the $.

P.S.—I enclose $1 for 6 months' subscription to your valuable paper.

I am, yours truly,
WESLEY SAYLOR.

SELLING TO CONSUMERS.

A British Columbia firm writes the following interesting letter :—

We second the motion of H. G. Taylor, of Windsor, Ontario. We read THE GROCER from cover to cover. We also pencil-mark the many useful business items to employers and employes for our clerks to read. Your editorial on first page, Oct. 23, has struck a sensitive chord in our mechanism. We followed with interest the fight of the retail grocers and the Wholesale Guild. From our experience of the wholesale grocers in this city, "Guild" is very expressive and, we think, comprehends much in the east. Our sympathies were with the Retail Grocers' Association, and we followed their footsteps in ordering goods. The infringement of the wholesale grocer on the rights of the retailer is felt very severely in our city. With one exception, all have done a retail business. Last month another firm wheeled into line and placed in the front of their shop a card 4 by 6 feet, "Goods sold to the trade only." The Hudson's Bay Co. have also closed or are closing out their retail business. This reminds us of a conversation with one of the Guild who is sick or tired of retailing. In his opinion "there is no branch of trade loses so much in small amounts as does the retail grocery trade." He knows whereof he speaks. He has been there. When we have occasion to go to the jobber to stock up we meet a customer who is selecting a tub of butter, a box of tea, or a side of bacon. We are told at the counter, "Our bill is small this month ; we bought wholesale." One of the Guild, when taxed with selling goods to families, and sending his porter with a hand truck loaded with 50 lbs. of flour, 10 lbs. oatmeal, 10 lbs. cornmeal, 5 lbs. tea, 1 tin of coal oil, said: "I don't send my porter; I hire an express wagon." The manufacturers (and we have a few) sell direct to the consumer at the same price as to the trade. They do it and take offence when we will not carry their goods. They deny the accusation. "Our rule is not less than 1,000 lbs." That is right ; they book 1,000 lbs. and deliver 100 lbs. When told this is retailing, they say : "Oh, we do not always have 1,000 lbs. in stock." Funny, is it not? The Guild doing a retail business do not want the legitimate retailer to be on the same footing and buying goods as themselves. If we buy a carload of sugar or other merchandise, they immediately talk up a boycott on the manufacturer who sold to the retailer. They favor the tax of $200 per annum on the commercial traveler. When one of "the ubiquitous" calls upon one of the Guild he is met, first shot out of the box, "Do you sell the retail?" "Who is the retailer?" As to the rights of employers and friends to obtain goods at cost prices : A customer of ours is a 'friend' who bought a keg of sugar ⅛ of a cent less than we paid in a three-ton lot. 'Friend' had a neighbor who wanted a keg of sugar. Friend told neighbor. We lost the sale of two kegs of sugar. We presume this is the oft-told story, the musty chestnut. We fear you think it is Italian skies with us in the retail grocery business, as well as in climate. The retailers generally are getting tired of the oft-told "We buy wholesale." Even the corner grocery asks assistance and relief.

We intended at the outset only words of appreciation, but our theme became warmly interesting. Should you wish to use any of the within, please suppress our name.

IT BANGS BANAGHER.

Well, yes. Spooner is a great boy entirely. You know Spooner, of course. Everyone knows Copperine Spooner of Port Hope. He has struck a new line now and when Spooner gets started on a line he streaks along it till he reaches the end, though he breaks a leg in getting there. There are some men who go wriggling through the world with nothing more in their heads—fit to mention—than a receipt for making soft soap. Spooner is none of that kind. He is an everlasting pusher, and does it withal so genially that he will load a man up with his Copperine, non-frictional, bearing freezer, who does not know babbit metal from Yorkshire pudding. But what's this got to do with Phenyle. That's Spooner's new line. Phenyle. It is something that no family can do without. It is hopeless to expect domestic happiness without Phenyle. It is the most effective Disinfectant-Deodorizer and Germicide known to modern science. Most of us go plodding along putting in our time dodging the tax collector, and thinking ourselves mighty clever, though if we were to see it we could not tell a protoplasmic molecule from a jack rabbit. But sience tells us that everything and everywhere is just chuck full of molecules. Phenyle is to molecules and insect life, what Chicago whiskey is to humanity—certain death. Phenyle destroys all offensive odors. It will knock the odor of a pig pen cold, and make a tan yard smell as sweet as if it were called by any other name. It purifies cellar drains, cess pools, out-houses, stables, and has won testimonials from Mayors, Jailers, Stock-yarders, Presidents of Boards of Health, and all the great men of this great Continent, and is only 25c. a package. Health, happiness and sweetness, is everything. Twenty-five cents is nothing. Try a package of Spooner's Phenyle and be happy.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

WASTE.

What the wasteful servant is to the household, the careless clerk is to the merchant.

No clerk will wilfully waste his employer's wares, but unless watch is constantly kept many habits of carelessness will creep in.

To carelessly weigh out wares is the first step to waste in everything. To give a customer 8½ ounces of tea for a half-pound is more than justice to him, while it robs you of one pound of tea in every sixteen pounds. Think of it.

The introduction of the balance scales prevents this by making the weighings more accurate. Merchants should see to it that their scales work easily and weigh accurately. Breakage is another waste. Carelessness in handling crockery, eggs, etc., often amounts to considerable as regards the sum total of breakages in the year.

Another kind of waste is where fruit and like merchandise is left lying around, destroying or decreasing in value for want of care, by careless handling or unnecessary exposure. These small leakages are the places that need to be closed up tightly and kept closed, or the merchant's profits will be seriously lessened. The attention of clerks should be often drawn to these points, which though small, merit their closest attention.

Two hundred cases matches (The Independent Match Co.) were sold at London by auction last Friday, at the G. T. R. freight sheds, in five case lots, at $1.75 to $2 per case. Some of the London grocers struck it rich, and have matches as cheap as kindling wood.

The contract for supplying the U. S. army with baking powder has again been awarded the Cleveland Baking Powder Co. The fact that the Government requisition calls for baking powder "equal in quality to Cleveland's" is a high tribute to the great merit of the powder.

A Halifax dispatch says: The local mackerel catch has been very disappointing. The season is about over now. The catch is smaller than in former years. In fact there are virtually none, except a few dozens now and then.

The Chatham Planet says:—T. Steele, Ridgetown, shipped two carloads of beans last week. They were sold in New York and brought $2.15 per bushel. Shippers are handicapped at the present time, not being able to secure cars to ship their beans. Their warehouses are filled to the doors on account of this drawback.

In bidding a party of his guests good-bye, at Vernon, B. C., Lord Aberdeen said it was an open secret that he intended to erect a fruit-canning establishment and jam factory there shortly, and invited the farmers to begin the cultivation of small fruits at once, for which they would find a ready market.

Health seekers travel far to mountains, lakes, seas and springs, but of all the famous waters to thoroughly clense the body of health-destroying impurities, to make the joints supple and the muscles and frame firm, and cause one to feel fresh life trickling through the veins, give me St. Leon Mineral Water.—I. Bliss, Compton, P. Q.

The following resolution has been passed by the finance committee of the Hamilton City Council: "That the buildings that may be erected by T. Lawry & Son, on their property on Wentworth street, for manufacturing purposes, be exempt from taxes for a period of ten years from Jan. 1, 1892, and that water be supplied at cost during the same time; provided the buildings be used for that purpose."

Michie & Co., of Spadina Avenue, have adopted a novel advertising scheme. They have placed in their window, a large cheese, weighing about 800 lbs., and every person purchasing one pound of 50c. tea, has the privilege of recording his guess as to the weight of this mammoth cheese. The person who guesses the exact weight or who comes nearest to it receives a cash prize of $50. The cheese was manufactured by James Ireland, of West Oxford.

J. D. Roberts, general agent of the Pure Gold Manufacturing Co., leaves on Monday for the west and will go as far as San Francisco, on business for his company. A general meeting of the Dominion Millers' Association will be held in Toronto on Tuesday, December 8. A programme will be presented to the association, which will include reports from the Committee on Incorporation, Banking, Railway Rates and Bills of Lading. The meeting will be open for the transaction of any other business and the discussion of any subject outside the programme of general interest to millers.

The Fraser River Freezing Co., of Port Haney, B. C., of which Mr. M. M. Mowat is manager, put up 120,000 lbs. of salmon during the past season. Mr. Mowat has received a large number of orders from the east for the fish, and is only waiting for refrigerator cars, which have been promised by the C. P. R., to ship 50,000 lbs. to Detroit, New York and other eastern points. A single order for 100,000 lbs. has been received, but of course the company is not in a position to fill it.

Nominations for the Board of Management of the Commercial Travellers' Mutual Benefit Society for 1892 took place on Saturday. The following were elected by acclamation: President, Joseph Bonnick; vice-president, James Greenfield; treasurer, Warring Kennedy. Nine Toronto trustees have to be elected and ten were nominated, as follows: T. M. Bayne, T. Dunnett, J. Taylor, H. Goodman, H. Lamont, R. H. Crean, S. R. Wickett, W. B. Dack, J. A. Ross, J. G. Crawford. Two have to be elected for Hamilton and three were nominated, as follows: William Bremner, George A. Black, E. A. Dalley.

Van Houten & Zoon, the manufacturers of cocoa at Weesp, Holland, have set apart $100,000 with which to make a splendid exhibit at the Exposition in Chicago in 1893. They intend to erect a large building in the style of old Holland architecture of the fifteenth century and to put in it, besides an exhibit in their own line of business, paintings, views, bric-a-brac, etc., illustrative of the Netherlands and the life and characteristics of the Dutch people. They will have there a "cocoa school" where Dutch maidens, clad in picturesque native attire, will make delicious cocoa beverages according to the most approved methods, and will serve them to visitors.

The Halifax Board of Trade at its last meeting protested against the prevailing west-bound sugar rates on the Intercolonial railway, which discriminate against Halifax and in favor of St. John. This had resulted in destroying the once flourishing raw sugar trade of Halifax. The grain trade was stated to be larger than ever before in the history of the road, and large numbers of cars were going west empty, which might carry back sugar, providing fair rates were given that port. The discrimination against Halifax is 40 cents a ton on the Intercolonial between Halifax and Montreal.

John W. Cook, of Ingersoll, the representative in Western Ontario of the Warringtons, of London, Liverpool, Belleville and Montreal, recently made a "scoop" in the cheese trade, which proved an eye opener to all the other dealers, and has given him the name of the King Bee for the present. At Ingersoll, Listowell and Woodstock he captured 40,000 boxes at 10c. What the result of the deal will be is hard to determine. The price paid is speculative, and as there is an immense quantity of July, August and September cheese to be placed on the English market before the late cheese will have any show, the man who has least stock may be the best off.

For some weeks small advertisements have been inserted in the Empire and Hamilton Spectator calling attention to the "Industrial Protective Alliance, devoted to the interest of the merchant, the manufacturer and mechanic; head office, Stratford, Ont." These flashily worded advertisements usually ended with a "send stamp for reply." The Alliance consisted purely and simple of a Beacon compositor named W. H. Spears, who hit upon this scheme to swindle the unwary. He got several hundred letters, many of them enclosing stamps, and it is said he got from $50 to $100 from "members" who were imbecile enough to send him $1. Recently he learned that the game was up and left for Buffalo.

With the removal of the tariff on sugar and the offering of two cents per pound for all sugar produced in the United States, the Hawaiian Islands lost the advantage they had over producers in the United States, in Cuba, and in the Philippine Islands. Labor is dear in the islands. The natives are dying out, and the islands have to depend on the Chinese, Japanese, Portuguese and laborers from other countries. This year's crop of 140,000 tons was the largest ever raised in Hawaii, although the country ought to produce a good deal more than that. The advantage over other countries before the removal of the United States tariff and the offering of the bounty was about 2 cents a pound in favor of the islands. The planters had no duty to pay and in return the islands received importations from only the United States. While the people regard the United States Government as the one most friendly to them, they think faith was broken with them in taking away this advantage, and the object of King Kalakaua's visit to America was to intercede in behalf of the sugar interests, when death overtook him. The way matters are now, the large planters with improved machinery and labor-saving devices may make a little money, but the smaller planters will have to give up.

Last week D. W. Wilson, of Seaforth, shipped 14 carloads of eggs to Liverpool and Glasgow, while during the same week the Grand Trunk carried to the seaboard 23 carloads collected at various points on their system.

HASTE.

No truer words were ever uttered than those by the shepherd boy, David, when fleeing from King Saul, in his interview with Ahimelech, the High Priest, when asked why he had no sword or spear, the young lad replied: "I brought no weapon, because the King's business requires haste." The idea I want to emphasize is that every line of business, especially that in which the American Grocer's contingent are particularly interested, viz., the retail trade, requires great activity and drive, if success is to be eventually won. The methods of to-day are widely different from those of a decade ago. Competition had not entered so fiercely into the various branches of trade, and the merchant went along in comparatively the same rut as his ancestors. Food products of all kinds were sold in what now would be termed a very crude state. Ten years has completely metamorphosed the manner of preparing and placing on the market, essentially all of the food preparations of to-day. Twenty years ago a millionaire was looked upon as a veritable curiosity, while to-day they are numbered by the thousands. The same innate desire on the part of the man of wealth to hastily increase his fortune, and young in years to retire with a competency, while perfectly laudible if accomplished by honorable methods has so often been brought to a successful consummation by means which are repugnant to every lover of equality and justice, that in a majority of instances those who have made haste to be rich have not been altogether innocent. These examples which are multiplied year after year have had a tendency to create the extravagances in living which so often lead to damaging results. This is especially true, and almost universally among such as are given to speculation. The merchant often becomes dissatisfied with his lot and feels that he is not getting on as rapidly as he could wish in his business; when if he could only hold himself aloof from these influences, he would be perfectly happy and contented. I only allude to these matters to note the fact that this inordinate desire for gain has been a stimulus also in the right direction to the merchant, in that it has compelled his inventive genius to originate and prepare products for the table, so that men may eat as they run. The merchant of to-day who sells his codfish as originally dried, and measures his molasses in the old-fashioned gallon measure, is in the "sere and yellow leaf." He must be ahead of the wants of his trade; be the first to introduce the new prepared forms of food, and demonstrate that he is alive to the wants of his customers. The customer of to-day is exacting, and I think even too much so, but we must meet the condition of things as they are, and not as we would like to have them. But a few years ago it was thought a great thing to deliver the wares of the purchaser. But to-day the order must be solicited at the house and delivery made at once. We are living at a rapid rate and "wear out" is the motto we have to live by, and not "rust out." I imagine I hear some clerk who reads this article say—I have always been taught that "haste makes waste." So it does to the man or boy of but little brains or intelligence, but to the boy of this age who graduates from our public school system, it means activity, energy, push and progress. We used to learn our A B C's when we first went to school, now we teach our children to read and spell and the alphabet comes on without routine teaching. If proper haste is insisted upon by the merchant in his clerks, and exemplified before them by himself, it will be very soon demonstrated that more will be accomplished each day, and done in a better manner, than if the labor was performed perfunctorily. In what would I particularly urge haste with the retail merchant? First, haste in opening up and preparing the store for the day's business. Let it be known that your store can be counted upon to be ready for the early customer, who may have wants to be supplied before going to his daily toil. Exercise haste in supplying the wants of the customer, and show an appreciation of his or her presence, no matter how small the purchase may be. Especially when children come to the store, be very prompt in waiting upon them and exercise great care in filling their orders, always giving a bill of items that they may carry to their parents a record of the transaction. Always be prompt in the delivery of your goods, this, as a rule. I know occasions will arise when delay will be unavoidable, but let such cases be very exceptional. The customer will be won or lost to you in this particular in a greater degree than by any other factor about your store, unless it may be by the sale of inferior goods. Again, hasten to rectify any mistakes which may occur, and do not enter into controversy with your customer regarding it. Never make a visiting tour of your order taking; find out quickly what in needed at the house and then get out; always thanking the person giving the order to show appreciation of the same.

Acquire accuracy in figures and haste in computations. These qualifications in the merchant can be impressed on the clerk, and will result in making character for the help, and honest shekels for the proprietor. To make haste successfully, the spirit illustrated at the beginning of this article must be observed; not weighted down with outside affairs, entire and exclusive attention being given to the calling you have chosen. —A Store Crank in American Grocer.

GROCERIES.

The weather has corresponded more to agricultural than to immediate commercial needs, but has been the very best that could fall at the present time, when wells are becoming empty, streams low and wheat fields dry. Frost, from the trader's standpoint, would have been more directly beneficial, but freezing-up cannot be long behind the great rainfall we have had. At present roads are bad for country traffic, and commercial travellers do not make their rural connections the more easily because mud abounds. Still, orders are quite on a par in volume with those of a week ago. The mails bring in their daily quota of business which keeps the warehouse hands steadily employed. The trade in fruits, canned goods and sugar gains rather than loses by comparison with that of last week. Tea has had a duller time of it. The tone of prices is stronger in sugar and canned goods, and rather easier in dried fruits, teas and coffees. Payments continue rather slow.

CANNED GOODS.

Confidence in prices is indicated in increasing orders and is encouraged by the attitude of jobbers, who are evidently convinced that there is value in their goods to warrant holding if sales are not easily and instantly effected. Round lots of assorted vegetables are firm at $1.05. Corn is purchasable in separate large-sized lots at $1. Each week reveals further scarcity in the stock of peas while the demand widens. The price is $1.05 to $1.10. Inquiry from Montreal for a car gave further strength to the position of holders on Saturday, as it was significent of short supplies in that market. Tomatoes are unchanged at $1.05 to $1.10. Less is heard of a prodigious pack as the market drifts along and choice brands become cleaned out of first-hands. Resources are said to be more limited even in less desirable stock than was at first believed, and the rarity of any deals below prices holding for the best goods tends to confirm this view. In other lines of canned goods the market is featureless. Salmon is in easy demand at $1.35 upwards, and lobster at $1.10 upwards. All sardines are very firm, with a further upward slant observable in quotations for French and Portuguese goods.

COFFEES.

Coffee does not rise into very great importance in the week's trade, a very ordinary demand having fallen to its credit since last report. The market is well stocked with Rio at 18 to 20c., which prices are easy. Good value is quite generally obtainable at prices not above 20c. Fine grades of Rios are selling up to 23c., Javas at a basis of 27c., and Mochas from 28c. upward received their usual proportion of the orders for coffee. There has been some shifting among first hands of round lots of Rios at 17 to 18c., sales being made both out of stock and to arrive.

DRIED FRUIT.

There have been more purchasers this week than for some time, and a bigger volume of fruit has consequently found its way out of stock. Currants are quite firm at quotations in Prices Current and have been in active request. Shipments now on the way have already been sold by the local importers, who have effected several sales of round lots, for which the demand seems unusually large in some quarters. Prices are from 5½ to 6½c. in barrels. Valencia raisins have sold very well, but the preponderance of low grade stock drags down prices for choice goods, which jobbers vainly try to get 6¼ to 6½c. for. There is plenty of stock whose prices will sell it more readily than does the quality of reliable brands, which therefore have to be disposed of usually at a sacrifice. New crop Valencias are 5½ to 6c. Malaga raisins are more interesting to buyers this week than they were last. The time of year is favorable, and the easy prices and good quality of the fruit are beginning to tell with some effect upon the demand. There are some very fancy special lines carried by a few of the houses.

NUTS.

The demand is opening up slightly, but stocks are yet rather light and not refreshed by new-crop goods in any line but almonds. Sicily filberts are afloat. A lot of almonds is sold now and then at easier prices than held last week, as indicated in Prices Current.

RICE AND SPICES.

The rice trade is becoming so small that it almost escapes attention. In local conditions there are no factors to cause change. Spices are dull, being in considerably less request than they were a week ago.

SUGAR.

Sugar is more active. The price is firmer, not so much in consequence of internal business as in sympathy with the stiffness of raw which is everywhere quite firm in the hands of holders. Lich'ts estimate of the beet crop is finding more acceptance than ever and is even coming to be regarded as excessive. This view makes raw cane a strong commodity at present. In this market an advance in the price of granulated was one of the expectations of the week but did not take place, except in Farnham crystallized, which moved up ⅛c. and is quoting now at 4⅝ and 4¾c. Medium yellows have been advanced ⅛c. at the refineries, but the quotations of jobbers have continued upon the same basis as before, that is at 3½ to 4½c. There has been the usual cutting in this description of sugar. Granulated is firm at 4⅞ and 5c. A limited business in low grade raws from 3½c. upwards has been done.

Willett & Gray in their New York sugar statistical say:

Raws—The tendency of the week has been upward, and with reason. London led the advance on receiving the advice that Mr. Licht made no change in his estimate of only a small excess beet crop, and this being followed by unfavorable reports about the beets, caused a very sharp upward movement, resulting at the close in prices 6d higher for beet and 3d higher for Java than last week. Stocks here in both refiners' and importers' hands are very low, and Cuba stocks are reported by cable as being reduced to 44,000 tons, of which only 26,000 tons are available for this market. The beet, Brazil, and Demerara crops are backward. The refiners are now receiving much higher prices for their products, and, the competition among them having ended, a more healthy tone is given to the market. The general position is certainly a very strong one and holders of sugar are much encouraged.

Refined—As we anticipated, the refiners decided to discontinue furnishing the country with sugar at little or no profit, and evidently arrived at some understanding, in consequence of which the late competition ended, and prices have been marked up 3-16c., leaving now a difference between raw and refined of 66c., being less margin than before the fight began, but out of which they can secure a good profit. The course of the refined market will now, as before, be largely dependent upon the movement in raws, and as the position throughout the world is so strong, it is to be expected that present prices will be maintained firmly, with a prospect of further improvement.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Syrups are quiet and very low, good medium being obtainable at 30c. a gallon, which is about equivalent to 2⅛c. per lb. In molasses activity has not increased, a very small quantity having been called for during the week.

TEAS.

There is a large and varied stock on this market to choose from, the quantity of old mediums and low grades being very considerable. Japans are selling from 12½c. up, while Congous are obtainable at 14c. and Young Hysons at prices ranging from 17c. The latter is in some request in a small way, while the run is on Congous and Japans, though sales of these have not been up to the point they reached some weeks ago. Teas are this year extremely cheap, mainly as a consequence of the large competition among brokers.

The Produce Markets Review says: "The demand for Indian tea is well maintained, but at the later sales the common grades sold at irregular, but, on the whole, at rather easier prices. These descriptions have been largely represented at recent auctions, and, as many of the teas are very inferior, it is not surprising that their value shows a drooping tendency. The demand for low-priced teas is also less active than it was some time ago, the consumption evidently shaping towards better quality than hitherto. The quantity of Ceylon tea brought forward has again been moderate, and prices (with the exception of the commonest grades, which, in sympathy with the lower Indian and China growths, are rather easier to buy) have been firmly maintained. The quality of the teas now coming forward continues to be generally satisfactory, but really juicy teas above 1s. are somewhat scarce and in strong demand."

Smith and Keighley are offering some very low lines in Japan teas.

PETROLEUM.

An active inquiry at slighter weaker prices has prevailed throughout the week for large lots. Current business in a jobbing way continues strong with a relaxing in some grades of prices quoted for the past several months. One or two minor changes are noted in Prices Current.

The Petrolia Advertiser reports: Petrolia crude $1.26½ per bbl. Oil Springs crude $1.27 per bbl. The above quotation is as close to the market price of crude oil to-day as we can probe the position of the market under the present situation. For some time past there has been no regular quotation for crude on the Petrolia Oil Exchange, most of the operators there being bulls, and therefore unwilling to accept the decline in price, which was offered to producers who sold their oil direct to refiners. The demand for refined oil this month so far has been light, which fact has helped to depress the crude market. It is a well-known fact that the decrease in the production in Oil Springs is more than the increase of the production in the vicinity of Petrolia, and therefore producers need not fear a serious decline in prices in consequence of the present stagnation, which in our opinion, is only temporary, and we would advise the producers just now to force as little of their oil on the market as possible, and the refiners will be compelled to pay them their price. Refined oil may be quoted at 11½ cents f. o. b. here, sixty days or two per cent. off for cash.

DRUGS AND CHEMICALS.

The usual routine business is done and prices are steady in all lines, with no important feature to be commented on. Fancy lines such as perfumes, etc., are creating more interest at the moment, as well as several subsidiary articles carried by wholesale druggists, for which the holiday trade opens up a demand.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

Offerings are not excessive nor stinted. The supply is about normal, sufficing to maintain the health of the market which must now be considered good. Receipts in the form of large rolls have risen to a very considerable place in the volume of the supply. The demand for these is good and weather favors delivery. Prices have eased for them somewhat, as they have done for all descriptions of butter, which comes in more freely since cheese-making stopped. The new rolls though fresh are very commonly tainted with the flavor of turnips. This tends to make rolls low in price and cause a return to tubs, which are quoting higher than rolls. Rolls run from 14 to 16c., and choice tubs from 16 to 18c., with mediums all the way from 12 to 13c. The consignments have not been checked at all by the rains, and no complaint is heard from any quarter about the backwardness of receipts.

Cheese is firm here and higher in England. The local price is 10½c., with a prospect of another half cent being added before long. The demand is not exceptionally bright from jobbers' stocks, but the firmness of makers upheld by good export prices causes the stiffness.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

BEANS.—Deliveries in large lots are quite as liberal as the present wants of the market require, and prices are moving downward. Large round lots are $1.20 to $1.30, and smaller parcels are $1.40 to $1.50.

DRIED APPLES.—The price of sun-dried is 4 to 4½c. in large lots, and 4½ to 5c. in smaller quantities. There is a considerable exchange of stock, the demand being active though rather behind the rate of supply.

EVAPORATED APPLES.—There is a good deal of inquiry from the east and the northwest, which gives brightness to the outlook but little relief to the situation at the moment, offers of stock being still freer than bids. Small quantities move at 7 to 8c., but round lots at 6 to 6½c.

EGGS—Have eased slightly, some trade being transacted at 17c. for fresh, though 18c. has also been paid. Limed are dull at 14½c.

GAME.—The supply is ample, but the demand is dull. Partridges are quiet at 30 to 40c., with venison in the carcase at 5c., and in haunches 10c.

HAY.—All is wanted that comes forward, and prices in some cases have gone up to $12.50 Less desirable quality of timothy runs from $11.50. There is little call for mixed.

HIDES.—Dulness in this market is a chronic stand-by feature. Green cows are 4½c. for No. 1 and 5c. for steers. Cured are slow of sale at 5c.

HONEY—Holders do not find sales easy though they look forward to better times. Extracted is steady at 10c. for good, with prices shading downward for poor grades. Sections are 13 to 17c.

ONIONS—A lull in the demand has followed the active spell noted last week. Prices are steady at $1.75 to $2.25.

POULTRY—Receipts fall off during the wet days but have picked up since. Buying was not improved by lower stocks and now prices are rather weak. Chickens are 30 to 35c., ducks 45 to 65c., geese are 5 to 6½c., and turkeys 8 to 10c.

POTATOES—There is some difference between buyers and sellers, the former holding for 45c., the latter bidding 40c. Out of store lots are 50 to 55c. per bag.

SEEDS—Alsike is not coming to hand freely yet, but is plainly less backward than it was. Prices are $5.50 to $6 for prime to choice and $6.50 for extra.

SKINS—Sheep are steady at 85c., with all deliveries freely taken. Calf are moderately firm at 5 to 7c.

STRAW—Commands fairly ready sale at $6 to $6.50.

WOOL—The week has not been enlivened by any important transactions. Buyers appear to begrudge present prices, as the demand on both domestic and export account is extremely dull. Prices are 18 to 19½c. for fleeces.

DRESSED HOGS AND PROVISIONS.

The prices have been rather equable the past week at $5.50 for packers' weights though exceptions have been made in favor of uniformly choice lots at $5.75, and prices as low as $4.50 have been paid for light weights. Sows now and then are bought at $5. Both rail and street receipts are liberal but the demand is rather inconstant, some days being excellent, others somewhat indifferent.

BACON.—is steady at 8 to 8¼c. for long clear, 10 to 11c. for smoked backs, 10½ to 11c. for smoked bellies and 8¾ to 9c. for rolls.

HAMS.—are in very good request at 11 to 11½c.

LARD.—is plentiful at 9½ to 10c. for pure and 8½ to 9c. for compound.

BARREL PORK—is rather quiet at $14 to $14.50 for mess, and $16 to $16.50 for short-cut.

FISH AND OYSTERS.

The bulk of trade has been small this week, which may be accounted for by the weather and also by the cheapness and abundance of poultry. Nevertheless quantities of haddies have been sold and some other kinds have had considerable sale.

Oysters have been selling well, considering the mild weather, and are now firm in price with prospects of a rise, "Select" oysters are quoted at $1.65 to $1.75.

FLOUR AND FEED.

Business is active with little change in prices. The following are quotations on flour in car lots:—Manitoba patents, $5.30 to $5 50; Manitoba strong bakers', $4.90 to $5.10; Ontario patents, $4.50 to $4.90; straight roller, $4.25 to $4.35; extra, $4.10 to $4.15; low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.75. Other lines quote at $4.50 for Graham flour, $4 to 4.30 for standard and rolled oatmeal; $3.80 to $4.00 for kiln-dried cornmeal, $4.50 to $4.75 for rolled wheat, $13.50 for wheat bran, $1.50 per cwt. for cracked corn, $20 to $25 per ton for mixed chop, $4 for split peas, $4.25 for pot barley, 35 to 36c. for oats, 70 to 71c. for corn.

SALT.

Trade in small quantities has been very good, while in round lots five car-loads of various kinds has been sold. The prices remain firm and will be found in Prices Current. Liverpool coarse is quoted at 75 to 80c; but only small quantities are selling.

FRUITS.

Apples move freely at at $1.50 to $2.50. They are about all the fruit now being handled in a large way. Northern Spies, Greenings and Russets are beginning to come forward for export. There is no change in cranberries at $8.25 to $9 for prime dark, and 25 to 50c. less per barrel for light. Late pears kept to color by farmers are now arriving in large volume to sell at 50 to 75c. per basket.

GREEN FRUIT.

The week's business in oranges has been satisfactory. Stocks are ample and the fruit is generally choice. Jamaicas are easier at $6.50 to $7. Floridas are also plentiful and salable at lower prices, $3 to $3.50 being the prevailing prices. Malaga lemons are down to $3.50 and $4 per box, and unchanged at $7.50 to $8 in chests. Messinas have fallen very materially, now being quoted at $4.50 to $5. Malaga grapes are higher at $5 to $5.50 in kegs. For the first time in the memory of the customs house officers here, shipments have been received in half-kegs, which are supposed to be superior, and sell at $3 to $3.25. Jersey sweet potatoes are done. Bananas are virtually done, but may be quoted at $1.25 to $1.75. Pineapples are 12 to 18c.

DRY GOODS.

Travellers are now out with samples of spring goods but the reports do not indicate any exceptional progress in placing goods. Current business is not strong in a sorting up way, but it is more active than it could be said to be a week ago. The goods wanted at this time of year when the weather is seasonable ought to be in request for sorting, as advance purchases were light

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Nov. 26, 1891.

GROCERIES.

The week has not shown any particular feature in groceries except it be the firmness of sugar and cutting in molasses, for business is not active. Advices, however, on sugar from all outside markets are very firm, and this has scared buyers into a little more activity, but holders are not disposed to talk on large lots and an advance in prices would not be a surprise. Molasses are unsettled, owing to the cutting that is being done here by American dealers.

SUGAR, SYRUPS, ETC.

Advices from all outside markets on sugar continue firm, raw stock for instance having advanced a ¼ of a cent on the week in New York. This tendency on crude material has put refiners here in an independent humor, and they are asking firm prices as a general rule. They are not looking for large contracts, and as supplies in consumers' hands are not extensive an advance should not be surprising. We quote granulated 4½c., and yellow 3½ to 4¼c. There is very little raw stock held here, but sales have transpired at 3¼ to 3¼c.

In syrups offerings of American stock at very low prices are competing with home stock, being ¼c. lower in some instances. Molasses is quiet, but there are reports this week of still further cutting by American dealers, who have been offering stock at a still lower price than the basis mentioned last week. We still quote Barbadoes 37c.

TEAS.

There has been a better demand for all grades of Japan teas, low grades being especially in demand. Blacks are also moving more freely, and the English market has steadied up.

COFFEES AND SPICES.

The firm feeling in coffee referred to last week has been maintained, and with supplies here in very small compass prices are firm, while buyers are anxious, but have to come to holders terms. In a jobbing way business in Rio has been done at 19 to 21c., but round lots are moved fractionally under the inside figure. The market is almost clear of this description of stock in first hands. Maracaibos have been moved also at 21c., and there is practically no Jamaica stock offering on spot, but some is expected to arrive shortly, 19 to 20c. being the idea for spot business.

Spices are quiet and unchanged.

RICE.

A fair distributive trade is reported in rice, but the business on the whole is not large. We quote Patna $4.50 to $5, Japan $4.25 to $4.50, standard $3.90 and off grades $3.50 in car lots.

DRIED FRUIT.

The market for dried fruit has been quiet since our last, and the only feature is an easy feeling in raisins. This is owing to the fact that some lots are being forced for sale in New York, which has depressed that market and effected the spot one to a certain extent. In fact for the small business that was done, prices were easier at 5¼ to 5½ for firsts and 5 to 5¼ for seconds. Currants continue firm under strong advices from Patras, while stocks here are very small and gradually decreasing every day. Sales have been made at 5½ in bbls., 5⅝c. in half bbls. and 5¾c. in cases.

NUTS.

There is nothing particular about these to mention. First arrivals of new Grenoble walnuts have been placed on the market and are selling at 14 to 15c., while Chili walnuts are offering at 9 to 10c. Terragona almonds sell at 13 to 14c., and peccans 14 to 15c.

CANNED GOODS.

The market for canned goods is flat at the moment, as dealers are well stocked up with all lines, and packers' agents are for the time being, resting on their oars.

EGGS.

There are few eggs coming in and dealers find no difficulty in maintaining their prices. Limed stock is in good demand at 15 to 16c.

GREEN FRUIT.

There is an ordinary jobbing movement in green fruit with nothing particular to mention. Oranges are offering in fair quantities of Floridas at $2.50 to $3.50 according to quality, with a fair trade doing. Malaga lemons rule steady at $6 to $7 per chest, while the first arrivals of new Messinas are selling at $3 to $3.50. Almeria grapes run from $5 to $5.50 per keg, and cranberries $7.50 to $8 per barrel.

FISH.

There is no particular change to mention in fish, but the firm feeling is maintained. Salmon are scarce and stiff at $14 to $16 for Labrador, according to grade, and the same applies to B. C. which are taken at steady prices. Herring continue in light supply and cod rule firm and unchanged at former prices.

ONIONS.

Spanish onions are moving in a quiet way at 90c. to $1 per crate, and offerings of native stock are plentiful. Good red stock brings $2 and yellow $2.50.

PROVISIONS.

There is a good enquiry for pork and while business is not extensive prospects are encouraging. The scarcety of heavy hogs in Chicago has stiffened, the price of western short cut here, as most of the demand here is for that class of stock. We quote as follows: Canadian short cut, per brl. $16.00 to $16.50; mess pork, western, per brl. $13.75 to $14.25; short cut, western, per brl. $16.50 to $16.75; hams, city cured, per lb. 10 1-2 to 11 1-2; hams, canvassed, per lb. 00 to 00; lard Canadian, in pails, 8⅞c. to 9c; bacon, per lb. 9c. to 10c; lard com. refined, per lb. 7¾ to 8c.

BUTTER.

The butter market moves along quietly, with holders firm as ever. Strictly finest fall creamery cannot be moved under 24½c. at the inside, and the supply is not extensive, while choice Townships dairy is steady at 20c. Western dairy furnishes business in a small way at 16 to 17c. for best descriptions. Late-made creamery, 24 to 24 1-2c.; fine creamery, 23 to 23 1-2c.; finest Townships, 19 to 20c.; finest Western, 16 to 17 1-2c.

CHEESE.

The market has been active all the week but is quieter now, but the firm feeling is maintained and it is unlikely now that there will be any decline of a radical kind. Within the past few days quite a quantity of cheese has been moved around 10¾c. and a fraction better, and 11c. is cited as being paid for a line of Western stock; but it would appear that 10¾ to 10⅞ is a fair enough quotation for the market at present. We quote as follows:—Finest fall makes, 10¾ to 10⅞c.; Fine stock, 10¼ to 10½c.; Medium grades, 10 to 00c.; Cable, 54s. 3d.

GRAIN.

There is no change in the grain market. Oats continue in fair demand, but the enquiry for peas has fallen off almost completely The stocks in store compared with those of a week ago show a decrease of 42,363 wheat, 7,082 peas, 18,311 oats, 22,748 rye, and an increase of 32,869 barley. Compared with a year ago there is an increase of 207,221 wheat, 123,812 peas, 65,378 oats, 164,152 barley, and a decrease of 4,481 corn, and 222 rye. We quote:—No. 1 hard Manitoba, $0; No. 2do. $1.03 to $1.04; No. 3 do., 97c; No. 2 Northern, $1.04; peas, 78c. per 66 pounds in store, oats, 36c. per 34 pounds in store, corn, 72c. duty paid; feed barley, 48 to 50c.; good malting do., 60 to 62c.

FLOUR.

The flour market is steady, with a fair jobbing trade doing. The stocks in store show a decrease of 4,621 compared with a week ago, and 9,121 with a year ago. Patent spring, old wheat, $5.30; Patent spring, new wheat, $5.00 to 5.50; Patent winter, $5 to $5.04; straight roller $4.75 to $4.85; Extra $4.40 to $4.55; Superfine $3.95 to $4.18; City strong bakers' $5.00 to $5.10; Strong bakers' $4.75 to $5.50.

OATMEAL.

The business in oatmeal is small, but prices are steady. Standard, per bag $2.10 to 2.20; Granulated $2.10 to 2.20; Rolled $2.10 to 2.20.

ST. JOHN, N. B., MARKETS.

ST. JOHN, N. B., Nov. 24. 1891

Were money a little more plentiful the wholesalers would have nothing to complain about, as the volume of trade is quite up to their expectations. The grocery market does not present any new features this week, except in brooms, prices are much the same as when last quoted.

SUGAR—Is reported firmer and higher, though the advance has only been slight. Granulated is quoted at 4⅝ to 4¾c., yellow at 3½c., Paris lumps at 6⅝ to 6⅞c.

FLOUR—There has been no change in flour. The price remains firm at the recent advance, and we do not look for any material change for some time. Manitoba is quoted at $6 to $6.10, Ontario high grade at $5.35 to $5.45, mediums at $5.15 to $5.25,

MEAL—Is without change, only a moderate amount moving, with the price the same as last quoted. Oatmeal has been scarce, and the price is firm at recent advance.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS—Still continue scarce, and all that offer sell readily at 19 to 20c.

BUTTER—Choice stock seems hard to get. The prices are unchanged.

POTATOES—Are in fair demand with prices slightly easier.

APPLES—The very mild weather has given shippers a chance for placing their pack on the market and prices are somewhat easier.

BROOMS—Have advanced from 10 to 25 cents per doz. on all grades.

FISH—Are coming in very slowly and the demand is light for all kinds.

CHAT BY THE WAY.

The Picton canning factories have closed for the season. Their output was largely in advance of any former year.

S. Bailey, of Bailey & Co., broom makers, Kingston, did a good stroke of work in securing forty carloads of broom corn before the advance in prices occurred.

Gault Bros. & Co. have taken an action against the Beet Sugar Co., of the province of Quebec, at Farnham, for $40,000, amount of promissory notes given to the Eastern Townships Bank and now in the hands of the present plaintiffs.

Albert Smith & Co. bought the stock and plant of the Globe Tobacco Company, London, Ont., last week, for $6,000. The purchase includes all the property of the company, tobacco in and out of bond, and in process of manufacture, labels, packing materials and expensive machinery for manufacturing.

The heavy duty imposed by the McKinley bill upon eggs imported into the United States has caused a drop of from twelve and three-quarter million dozen to seven million three hundred and fifty thousand dozen in the quantity of eggs exported from Canada to the United States during the year ending 30th June, as compared with 1890; while in the number exported from Canada to England there was an increase from 3,600 dozen to 950,000 dozen. The huge customs duty levied upon eggs imported into the United States, has caused a loss of three quarters of a million dollars in that item alone in the exports of Canada during the fiscal year ending 30th June last, as shown by advance figures furnished by the customs department.

Mr. Tuckett had a conference recently with the commissioner of inland revenue in reference to securing permission for Canadian tobacco manufacturers to supply their product in bond to the transatlantic and transpacific steamship lines as "ships' stores." It appears that in England the practice with regard to steamships plying to distant foreign ports, and not touching at another British port on the outward trip, is to allow tobacco to be taken on board in bond for the use of the passengers and crew, the quantity for each voyage being, of course limited, so that there would be no likelihood of its being disposed of as merchandise on the return of the vessel. It is now suggested with regard to the Allan, Dominion, Beaver, Furness, Ross, Donaldson and other lines crossing the Atlantic to Canadian ports that they should be at liberty to obtain Canadian manufactured tobacco in our ports just as readily as they can in Liverpool, that is exempt from excise duty, and in limited quantities as ships stores only. The concession, if granted, would, of course, apply to the C. P. R. line to Japan, but would have to be withheld from the coasting steamers on account of the facilities it would afford for defrauding the revenues. A similar request has been sent to the department by the distillery interests, and the matter is now under consideration.

Messrs. Thomas Laury & Son Hamilton, propose to extend their pork factory on Wentworth street if the City Council will grant the usual exemption given to other applicants in similar cases. The members of The Finance Committee are in favor of granting the request, and said so at a special meeting called hurredly at the request of Mr. Laury, who wishes to go on with the work at once. The fact that the same consideration which Mr. Laury now asks was accorded to Messrs. G. E. Tuckett & Son not long ago was a precedent which the aldermen did not seem to get over, and they will accordingly recommend to the City Council that Mr. Laury's premises be exempt from taxation for ten years from 1st January 1892, and that water be supplied at cost price.

A PROGRESSIVE BUSINESS.

The Toronto Biscuit and Confectionery Co. received two more letters this week from country merchants asking for samples and prices, and stating that they had noticed the Company's advertisement in THE GROCER. The firm advise us that they have gained one customer in British Columbia whose trade alone pays their advertisement in this medium. The Company have been running up till 10 p.m. every night for some time past to keep up with their trade. They make everything to order so that the trade are sure of receiving fresh goods all the time.

The Sodas made by the Toronto Biscuit and Confectionery Co. have been in such demand lately that the manufacturers have had to increase the staff in the bakery.

The Toronto Biscuit and Confectionery Co-, although only in the field since March last, have worked up such a business that already their present premises are too small, and they contemplate removing into new ones. We understand their new factory is to be the finest in Canada, furnished throughout with every available piece of machinery for the manufacture of their now justly celebrated goods.

SAPOLIO Is a solid handsome cake of SCOURING SOAP Which has no equal for all cleaning purposes except the laundry. It will clean paint, make oil cloths bright and give the floors, tables and shelves a new appearance. It will take the grease off the dishes, and off the pots and pans. It scours the knives, the wash basin, bath tub, even the greasy kitchen sink. It brightens all metals except silver or gold. If you have not sold it yet, send your order at once to "The one grand receipe remains for you —the be-all and end-all."

CHOCOLATE, PINK OR WHITE ICING FOR CAKES.

Stir four large tablespoonfuls of Gibson's Chocolate, Pink or White Icina to a smooth paste with about four teaspoonfuls of boiling water, spreading it evenly and smoothly on the cake with a knife, dipping the knife in water if the Icing becomes too thick or hard as one proceeds, If a particularly glossy appearance to the Chocolate Icing be desired, after spreading it on the cake as above directed, make a mixture somewhat thinner for a thin coating over the first Icing after it has sufficiently hardened. This will ice a large cake.

GIBSON'S ICINA is fast displacing the old-fashioned way of icing cakes. It is economical ; it is a labor-saver ; it is a boon to housekeepers.

Sold in 1 lb. and ½lb. packets, 2 doz. in a case, chocolate, pink or white assorted or any kind separate.

Order through your wholesale grocer or direct from

Demand of assignment has been made upon Martin, Fils & Co., general merchants, Rimouski, Que.

John White, general storekeeper, Heathcote, Ont., is compromising with his creditors at 60 cents on the dollar.

The estate of John Cowan, general merchant, South River, Ont., is to be wound up by assignees Henry Barber & Co., Toronto.

A meeting of the creditors of John Stinson, the insolvent general storekeeper of Singhampton, was held in Assignee Clarkson's office on Saturday afternoon. It was decided to wind up the estate. Liabilities $13,700 and assets nominally the same.

Robert B. Snow, grocer 1292 Queen street west, Toronto has placed his affairs in the hands of J. W. Lang & Co., for the benefit of his creditors. They are now conducting the store. Stock-taking is finished. The liabilities are estimated at $3,500 and the assets slightly less.

W. R. Scott & Co., general merchants, Grand Valley, summoned their creditors to a conference in the office of Davidson & Hay, wholesale grocers, Toronto, a few days ago. The statement presented showed liabilities of $6,000 and assets of $7,000. The insolvents made an offer of 70c. on the dollar, but the creditors held that the estate could pay more. Seventy-five cents was the amount they were willing to take, and the meeting adjourned in order to give the insolvents an opportunity of raising their offer to the desired figure.

TRADE SALES.

CERTIFICATES OF STRENGTH AND PURITY.

OFFICE OF THE PUBLIC ANALYST,

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Co., Montreal:

GENTLEMEN,—I have personally taken samples from a large stock of your Granulated Sugar, "REDPATH" brand, and carefully tested them by the Polariscope, and I find these samples to be as near to absolute purity as can be obtained by any process of Sugar-Refining.

The test by the Polariscope showed in yesterday s yield 99·90 per cent. of Pure Cane Sugar, which may be considered commercially as ABSOLUTELY PURE SUGAR.

JOHN BAKER EDWARDS, P.L.D., D.C.L., F.C.S.,

Public Analyst for the District of Montreal, and Professor of Chemistry.

CHEMICAL LABORATORY, MEDICAL FACULTY, McGILL UNIVERSITY.

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Company:

GENTLEMEN,—I have taken and tested a sample of your "EXTRA GRANULATED" Sugar, and find that it yielded 99·88 per cent. of Pure Sugar It is practically as pure and good a Sugar as can be manufactured.

Yours truly,

G. P. GIRDWOOD.

It is well-known

That successful Doctors read all the latest medical books and papers and go abroad occasionally to study. Successful lawyers read legal publications to learn the latest legal decisions and points constantly cropping up. Teachers, clergymen, druggists, architects, all read the publication issued in the interests of their profession. They must do so to keep up with the times.

The same applies to grocers and general merchants. They must not only read the best papers published in their interests but must also watch the advertisements closely. There they learn the rise and fall in prices; latest trade news and methods of buying, handling and selling goods, so that they may make the greatest profit. A doctor reads much that he already knows, so does a lawyer. So does a number of any of the other professions. So will a merchant. It is often the issue of the paper he misses that is worth dollars to him. His best and safest policy, therefore, is to subscribe for his trade paper.

The only exclusively grocery and general store paper is THE CANADIAN GROCER issued weekly, subscription price $2 00 per year.

SPECIAL TO OUR READERS.

As the design of THE CANADIAN GROCER is to benefit mutually all interested in the business, we would request all parties ordering goods or making purchases of any description from houses advertising with us to mention in their letter that such advertisement was noticed in THE CANADIAN GROCER.

THE CANADIAN GROCER has a bona fide combined circulation among grocers and general merchants double that of any trade journal in Canada.

A common criticism of corporations is that they have no soul. This may be either a detriment or a reproach to corporations, but in whichever way they are looked at the underlying basis of the quotation is always the same—lack of personality. That is an unsatisfactory fault. People regard a Concern as incapable of feeling. They cannot flatter it or wound its sensibilities, and it can never glow with kindly feeling towards them. It is of course served by persons, but these are all officials or employes, not the Concern itself. The central and dominant thing itself is intangible, is of the stuff that dreams are made of, and therefore does not excite the same interest as if it were an individual human being. This fact ought to have some suggestiveness for business men.

* * * *

It means that in business where there is a personality it ought to be brought out as strongly, and of course agreeably, as possible. There are many traders who affect to believe, and probably do believe, that the Business is the thing to keep the people acquainted with, and hold themselves always in the background. This does not satisfy the public. They want to be made something of by the principals, and if they are not they prefer to trade with some more cordial dealer. The egotism in men, women and children alike is usually very great. Each individual is apt to think himself rather a special mortal, in whose visits the chief ought to take particular pleasure, and most people will not think much of the chief unless he does. A veiled prophet in business is rarely a success, unless it happens that he is well-known to be of a rather savage disposition, when a meek and lowly substitute is preferred.

* * * *

The customer who calls least frequently seems to yearn most to come in contact with the ruling spirit of the store. It is also true that an intending buyer's self-importance is usually in direct proportion to the extent of his outlay. If he means to buy but a few cents' worth, or probably a dollar's worth of goods, he can better brook the indignity of being received or waited on by a subordinate than he can if he proposes to spend several dollars. It is interesting to note the look of dissatisfaction that comes over the face of some men who have driven five or six miles to spend twelve or fifteen dollars, and find themselves obliged to accept the attentions of a small boy. Their visit they look upon as an event, and they like to feel that the proprietor is at least aware that they came and spent so much money. The boy who waits on them may have fully delegated power from his employer, but he cannot represent the latter's personality, which the customer wants to make an impression upon. He wants to gratify the principal, or he wants to get a little advantage that a subordinate would not be induced to grant in the absence of his principal.

* * * *

The personality of a salesman is often a big factor in drawing customers. In stores where this is the case the salesman is a fully trusted man, in whose judgment and tact, as well as in whose honesty, his employer has the strongest confidence. Such a man is supposed to know when and to what extent to make concessions, always having an object in his perspective that he considers to outweigh the temporary sacrifice, and always being able to keep such motive out of his customer's sight. Finesse is of value in the salesman as in the principal, and it is well that both should be affable men. The great trouble about some people's ideas of affability is that too confined a view is taken of it. A trader may have had an unfavorable experience of human nature and be prone to regard a little geniality of manner as meaningless and and hypocritical, or he may be an icicle himself. He will in either case be incapable of appreciating a cordial and sympathetic manner from other people's standpoint. He forgets to note that different people have different views of the same thing, and the amiability he despises may be just the one thing needful to draw customers to his store. Nobody likes a forbidding manner, not even people of forbidding manners themselves. The trader who can take his customer by the hand, make a few kindly inquiries about his family or his crops, and listen with interest to the details such inquiries are likely to elicit, will not fail to please. Personality is a force that can be made a good deal of in business.

MEN OF THE TIMES.

MR STEWART MUNN.

Thy fortune hath indebted thee to none;
—DANIEL.

Mr. Stewart Munn, the subject of this sketch, is a well-known Montreal merchant. We have much pleasure in presenting him to our readers, especially at this season, when it will be a satisfaction to the grocers all over the country to know that three-fourths of all the salt fish distributed from Montreal comes from such a reliable man. It has been by steady perseverance and a thorough knowledge of his business that he has been able to extend his trade so advantageously to all concerned.

He was born at Rothesay, Scotland, about fifty years ago. His father was manager of the Clydesdale Bank there and one of the leading men in the place, and held the highest and most honorable position that the citizens could confer on him, that of Provost of Rothesay. As soon as Mr. Stewart Munn had left school he got a thorough drilling in banking, both in Rothesay and Glasgow, which has no doubt helped him often in after life.

When he got up to the age of manhood the fondness for travelling, which has always been one of his characteristics, must have got the better of him, and he decided to go west to seek his fortune. An uncle and an elder brother of his had settled in Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, and it was there that he located himself for the next sixten years and became one of the moving spirits in that place. For many years he had to make an annual trip to the coast of Labrador and visit all the fishing stations where his firm were interested, and arrange for the shipping and disposal of all their fish. To show what ingenuity and thoughtfulness he has, it may be stated that the plans that he inaugurated there have been carried out ever since.

After living for so many years in Newfoundland and working so successfully for others, he decided to start for himself, and made up his mind to settle in Montreal as a shipping and commission merchant, where he has been for the past eighteen years, and has expanded his trade with the development of the country, and we now find him as the head of the largest fish commission house in Canada, and we doubt if there are many firms in the United States that handle more fish than Mr. Munn. He ships to all the wholesale men in all parts of Canada as far as Vancouver and to all the large cities in the Western States. His brands of herrings are the standard in Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Buffalo, etc., etc.

To give an idea of what fish he disposes of in a year, we find that some seasons he has had 30,000 barrels of herrings. This is only one staple. He has all sorts of salt fish, codfish, salmon, etc., etc., put up in every style to suit the different customers. He is making a big push just now with boneless codfish, and that trade is doubling and trebling.

MR. STEWART MUNN.

There is one thing he always strives for, and that is to have the goods he offers for sale of the very best quality. He is always looking for improvements, as he does not think the world is by any means perfect as yet. He is wide awake to take advantage of anything that will promote trade. He is endeavoring to get Newfoundlanders to utilize everything to their benefit. We have only to mention here about the codfish tongues that he has had packed specially as an experiment for his firm this season, which have proved a great delicacy, and the orders have come in so fast that he has had to ask buyers to have a little patience till he gets more canneries interested in the work.

We have mentioned at length one side of Mr. Munn's business. The volume of his trade is in his shipments to Newfoundland; besides understanding the fish trade so well, he is an excellent judge of flour, and his shipments average up 70,000 barrels in the year. When we find that the total imports of flour to Newfoundland are less than 300,000 barrels, we cannot be wrong in saying that he must have the knack of pleasing. He also ships many thousand barrels of pork and beef, also thousands of tubs of butter, etc., and as Newfoundlanders import the bulk of their requirements, their orders include everything from masts for their vessels to leather for their boots. This trade is competed for very keenly, and manufacturers have worked hard to do business direct, but we find that Mr. Munn's business is increasing all the time. The secret of this is that he works for the interest of Newfoundlanders, whereas the manufacturers too often look from their own standpoint only.

There is one thing that he hopes to see before very long, and that is Newfoundland joining the Confederation of our grand Dominion. He would welcome the day that Canada would receive such a valuable acquisition. He is a firm believer that with very little money judiciously spent in the development of these fisheries, with such magnificent quality and variety of fish procurable at their very doors, only to be cured and put up in the most approved manner, Canada would make a greater name for itself all over the world than by means of any staple she can produce to-day.

In closing we have only to refer you to the genial expression in the photograph we now produce which we may say is a hearty welcome to any of our readers that may call on him in Montreal.

IT IS A GUIDE.

Mr. Charles Marlatt, grocer, Simcoe, Ont., writes in the following approving style:—I take great pleasure in recommending THE CANADIAN GROCER to any live grocer who wishes to read the leading grocery paper of the country. It is a guide for any business man. I look forward every week for the arrival of THE GROCER. It gives me the true list of prices of all goods, and I would feel lost without it.

WHAT TRADE JOURNAL HAS THE LARGEST CIRCULATION ?

THE CANADIAN GROCER, relying upon its wide circulation as its own best witness, has for years ignored the statements made by several trade journals as to circulation, knowing them to be wild exaggerations, and believing that their untruthfulness was so manifest that they could deceive no one.

The dignified position occupied by THE GROCER in mercantile circles would not allow of its stooping to controversy with jealous and unscrupulous contemporaries, but the persistent efforts of several journals to injure our reputation among traders, notably a recent instance which has been brought to our notice, compel us at last, in our own interests, as well as those of our advertisers, to assert our position.

From the inception of THE GROCER to the present day it has been the established rule of its publishers that its agents must always secure business in an honorable way and not by deliberately lying about its circulation, and, at the same time, going out of their way to make uncomplimentary remarks about its contemporaries. That THE GROCER has not been treated in the same way is only too apparent.

A large number of advertisers, not having any means of finding out the actual circulation of a paper, are compelled to accept the agent's statement. But if advertisers would seriously think for a moment over some statements made by agents as to circulation they would at once detect a palpable falsehood. For instance, a French trade journal, published in Montreal, secured an advertisement the other day on its claim of having a circulation of 10,000 among French grocers and French general storekeepers. An advertiser who is gullible enough to swallow a statement like this would believe anything. There are only about 12,000 grocers and general storekeepers of all nationalities in Canada, and less than 1,500 of these are French.

To come to the point, We claim that THE CANADIAN GROCER has a bona fide combined circulation among grocers and general storekeepers double that of any other trade journal in the Dominion of Canada, and in order to prove this assertion we agree to the appointment of a committee of enquiry, such committee to consist of three competent men, of whom one shall be named by an advertiser, one by THE GROCER, and one by the journal who doubts our statements and will have the courage to attempt to prove otherwise; said committee to be given access to all circulation books and every means of obtaining accurate information in each publishing house.

To back up this assertion we have deposited with Mr. Robt. Barron, President Toronto Retail Grocers' Association, our marked cheque (a fac simile of which is produced herewith) for $1,000 to be forfeited to the Newsboys' Home should we fail to prove its truth. The cheque will remain in the hands of Mr. Barron for ten days from this date (Dec. 4th), after which it will be withdrawn unless the cheque is covered meantime. This should give any of our contemporaries ample time to take action in the premises.

We hope our advertisers will watch carefully the result of this challenge; they will then be able to decide which is the best advertising medium.

Will our contemporaries accept the challenge? They dare not.

THE CANADIAN GROCER did not jump to its present high position through a sudden streak of luck, but rose to it by hard, persistent, and often very discouraging, work. We have always had two longing and hopeful desires, viz.: to publish the best trade journal in Canada and to have every grocer and general storekeeper as a subscriber. Thousands of dollars have been spent yearly in sending canvassers into every village, town and city in Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific; we have worked along into the night while our contemporaries slept; and by honorable business methods, ideas and practices, we have won the entire confidence of the trade.

SELLING FROM UNSTAMPED MEASURES.

Grocers everywhere ought to take note of the case of R. S. Gallagher, the fruiterer and fish dealer on King street, in this city. He transgressed the Weights and Measures Act, was brought before the Police Magistrate and fined $5 and costs or 20 days in jail. The charge did not urge shortage in measure. There may have been a legal pint in the parcel, but it was not dealt out from a stamped measure. Hence Mr. Gallagher's liability for punishment. He filled one of those little paper receptacles made expressly for carrying oysters, but neglected to put the bivalves through the intermediary space of a stamped Imperial pint. That made his offence one of selling from an unstamped measure, for which he would be punishable, whether the quantity it held was under, equal to or above an Imperial pint in volume. That is the important thing for the trade to take note of. The little oyster pails may hold exactly a pint and never vary, but the trader's certainty that they are always reliable will not protect him from the penalty, which may amount to $50, or in default of payment may be atoned by a long period of imprisonment; all this if the trader neglects to fill the package from a stamped measure.

It is right to be particular in this matter.

It may be unnecessary to use any other measure than the oyster package, in order to give the customer all he asks for, but the only safe principle to base the soundness of our weights and measures upon is in spection, and the enforcement of sale from stamped vessels. The sale of oysters is being watched sharply these days at all events. The fact that they come in packages, of which the measure is expressed in gallons of the wine measure volume, makes the quantity received often a matter of suspicion. Traders ought to be very particular about this. They should be on their guard that they do not pay for wine gallons of wholesale quantities the price that they ought to give for an equal number of Imperial gallons. The conversion of the figures expressing wine gallons into figures expressing Imperial gallons, should be done by the wholesalers, as it is done for the latter by the Customs officials, who collect duty on the number of Imperial gallons put through. Until the wholesalers do figure out their pails in Imperial gallons, and sell in terms of that measure there will be discontent and mistrust among their retail customers, and danger of prosecution.

FANCY GROCERIES.

The grocery stores of this country will soon begin to deck themselves in their holiday trappings, which, more than any other outward and visible sign, except the brightness of the weather, give character to our Northern Christmas. One of the strongest features in the mental picture which the word "Christmas" recalls to a small boy of this climate, is a bright and cheery grocery store whose windows fairly talk with material charms. That relic of the season is one of the most prominent that haunt the memory of childhood from one year's end to the other, and whatever reminds the man or the woman of childhood pleases and attracts. The grocer should therefore have a special line of stock for holidays, and should have it exhibited in a style that will make a man buy, if from nothing else, from reminiscence. There is a great deal in making Christmas of the 25th of December. If there is not a Christmas environment, there will not be a hearty Christmas celebration, and subdued observance will mean shorter sales for the grocer. The grocery stores of themselves can make a gaudy-lettered day of it. They are seen, and Christmas looks bright, even if the weather is foul. The enthusiasm necessary to be excited can be given a start by the stores ; there is no doubt about that.

But it will not do simply to take every-day stock and trick it out till the store looks dazzling. It is necessary for the store to look its best, but when its looks have done their part there must be something special to sell. To tire commonplace wares in holiday gear, and then wait in calm confidence in its seductive beauty for the rush of currency to begin, will turn out disappointing. Special lines must be laid in. Some of the choice dried fruits that are always on the market for Christmas trade ought to be laid in, and cases of choice brands and selections of raisins, fresh and conspicuous, should lie open to tempt the beholder. Some of the pictures that go with them, if not too voluptuous, will add to the captivating effect. A few cases of Vostizza currants ought to be attractively exposed, while a barrel of currants trimmed with tissue paper will make an imposing figure. Fancy packages should be the made of for display. Figs and prunes are both put up in winsome style. Canned goods will make a telling display if the most is most of them, as well as will fruits put up in glass. Handsome, well-shown peels are likewise helpful stock to the seeker after telling effects. Nuts of all descriptions are in request, and will come in handy for bulk displays in front windows. The new crop walnuts are in especially strong demand at this season. Bottle goods, of pickles, sauces, catsups, olive oil, essences, etc., can be disposed in numberless arrangements, and make a commanding bit of furnishing for a window or a corner. Fine green fruit, as oranges, lemons, Malaga grapes, and choice Canadian apples furnish another resource that the grocer can make use of.

A trader must study his space, his light, the view-point of his customers, his convenience, and of course the buying capacity of his district to determine the character and extent of his decorative devices, but he can usually trust them to make a percentage of trade of themselves. He must have taste to decide where neglige arrangement or balanced construction is most suitable. Everything should be tidy, well brushed, distinct and benefited as much as possible by background. The church bazaar, the fancy fair, sell by the mere force of attractiveness and persuasiveness ; the grocer has to depend upon attractiveness alone : let him make the most of it.

GOODS WELL BOUGHT.

If there is one lesson the retailer has learned from the logic of short profits it is that he must be a close buyer. He must get all he can by negotiation, or he will find his prices intractable for the purposes of sharp competitive business. The "dickering" buyer is peculiarly called for in these times, the conditions of trade have invoked him, and he is here. The close buyer corresponds to the aggressive competitor. He has learned to hammer prices from the example of his customers, between whom and the wholesale distributors he must grind out a living. What he cannot get out of his customers he must try to make out of the jobbers by whatever means he can command—whether ready money to secure discounts, or means to buy in round lots to obtain concessions, or insight into the market to perceive when a purchase will miss an advance. Timely buying, cash buying, extensive buying, or buying in any circumstances that favor cheap selling, are usually made the most of by all dealers, according to their strength.

This valuable and necessary practice will stand the trader in good stead wherever he has to face the competition of a Patron store. The system of the Patrons really places a premium on high buying. What object has a man to buy low when he knows beforehand that his profit is assured at 12½ per cent.? It can benefit him nothing to buy yellow sugar ⅛c. per lb. below a given asked price. Whatever he buys at he has but to add 12½ per cent. to and he is fulfilling his contract. In fact the higher the price he pays the greater will be his profit. Further, as Patron merchants are not looked upon with the utmost favor by wholesalers, who cannot have unreserved confidence in any man what contracts to bargain away at 12½ per cent. profit all the stock anybody sells him, such fettered merchants will not have so wide a field to spread their efforts over for the purpose of getting at bottom prices. Hence their opposition will be less formidable than it would appear at first sight to be. The independent merchant who makes a bold push to seduce customers from the Patron store will be likely to succeed, as in many cases his prices will prevail. Twelve and a half per cent. on the Patrons' prices will sometimes be as good as 15 or 16 per cent. or even more on the free merchant's prices. That difference may be got at in the majority of cases by the careful buying of the independent trader.

Successful competition against the Patron trader will not fail to cause some mistrust that he is not quite aboveboard with his customers. He in turn will have misgivings that not all the Patrons' wants are filled at his store, for the bruit of cheap goods in his rival's store will dispose him to suspect some defection of custom to that store. This mutual want of confidence will make shipwreck of many a contract. All the non-Patron trade will naturally drift to the rival store in any case. The Patron trader is bound by his contract not to give people outside the association the benefit of Patron prices, it being the policy of the order to exclude outsiders from equal trade benefits, for the purpose of bringing everybody within the fold. This outside consumers will resent by dealing with the man who controls his own business.

It is a fact that Patron merchants are a little tricky when they are out of the sight of their masters, whom they have bound themselves to honor and obey. They break their frail vows whenever they ask for a fraudulent invoice, or when they commit the sin of concealing their cash discounts. It is touching to hear of traders begging the wholesaler from whom they have bought a bill of goods to say nothing in the invoice about the discount which was conceded for cash. Thus 5 per cent., which represented the discount in a particular case, was saved to add to the 12½ per cent. contracted for. If this were discovered the wrath of the betrayed Patrons would undoubtedly be visited upon the trader who had proved recreant to the trust reposed in him.

ONTARIO'S PURCHASING POWER.

The unusual wealth of this year's yield in agricultural products has been expressed often enough in vague general terms, all glowing however with a strong optimistic tinge. The indefinite epithets "lavish," "prodigious," "unequalled," etc., have now been reduced to statistical expression in Bulletin 18 of the Ontario Bureau of Industries, in which an estimate of the year's production has been made, along with a review of the atmospheric conditions under which the crops grew. The report confirms the general sense that this has been an uncommonly fruitful year for the province. The value of the farm produce taken off the soil this autumn amounts to $17,000,000 more than did that of last year. This does not include the increase in the value of live stock, which, however, is but a small matter this year. This year's wheat crop in Ontario aggregates 32,584,026 bushels, which is about one and a half times that of last year. One third of the total is spring wheat. A comment upon the value of this cereal just now is the action of the Russian government in prohibiting the exportation of wheat. Not only in that country, but in Germany, France and England as well, the wheat crop has been very much below the average. The balance must be redressed from this side of the Atlantic, and it is satisfactory to feel at such a time that Ontario has more to spare than she ever had before. Our oat crop is larger by twenty-two million bushels than it was a year ago, and we have 3,000,000 bushels more of peas than were grown last year. The market for both is healthy with a tendency that at present favors holders. Our turnip crop exceeds that of a year ago by 21,812,889 bushels. At a very reasonable valuation the province is $17,000,000 better off in agricultcral products alone than it was a year ago.

This Bulletin ought to be very assuring, to everybody who has anything at stake in the commerce of the province, that there is an adequate basis for a big buying capacity among our consumers. In it exact, demonstrated facts are deduced and presented, which take the place of well-grounded but undefined suppositions. The purchasing power of the farmers ought to be increased by this seventeen millions. That sum represents the excess over what was realized on last year's crops. There therefore remains an amount equal to what was derived from last year's crops, to be added to this seventeen millions, but the former may be allowed for the paying off of mortgages, instalments on land purchases and implement debts. The seventeen million dollars will represent expenditure for which value has to be got from traders and others this year. This ought to give heart to the trade.

THE BUYING, HANDLING AND SALE OF HONEY.

Honey having now become almost, if not quite, a staple article, and a good deal connected with the buying, handling and marketing of the product not being known to the general grocer, a few suggestions upon the subject will be appreciated by our readers. With the object of securing these our correspondent called on the firm of E. L. Goold & Co., Brantford, Ont., who have for some years been extensive dealers in bees, queens and honey. The object of the visit being made known, the proprietors pleasingly remarked : We have no secrets, and any information we can give you are welcome to. We think there is much which, made public, will do nothing but benefit honest trade. The first question asked was : "Who puts honey into the hands of the consumer ?"

"The bee-keepers themselves to a certain extent, but largely grocers and fruit dealers. The bulk of our orders are from the latter."

"Is there much difference in the quality of honey ?"

"Yes ; a vast difference, caused not only by the source from which it is gathered, but also the manner of taking it. First of all the flower from which it is gathered means a difference in color and flavor. The best honey, light in color, is gathered from clover, thistle and linden, and what the bee-keeper aims at is to keep this separate from darker and inferior flavored, such as spring blossom, golden rod, boneset and buckwheat Again, extracted honey is influenced in quality by the degree to which it is allowed to ripen in the hive. If it is taken out thin before the bees evaporate all the nectar in the hive, to prevent mixing with honey from other sources, or to make room in a heavy honey flow, the flavor will be inferior and it will be more liable to sour. The darker grades of honey are ordered in large quantities by biscuit manufacturers, vinegar works and tobacconists."

"Then comb honey is less liable to variations in quality than extracted ?"

"Yes, as to ripeness ; but in comb honey the outside appearance can vary none. In buying one should look, first, that all cells containing honey are capped ; if there are cells empty, whilst unsightly, it is not as bad as cells partially or entirely filled uncapped. These cells are liable to leak or absorb moisture and sour the honey. Next, consider the quality, if light or dark. To do this hold it between your eye and the light. This will reveal the color of the honey under the capping."

"What about outside cold ?"

"Outside cold does not really influence the flavor of the honey, but if left too long on the hive the cappings of the comb get a yellowish tinge, which spoils the appearance and injures the sale of the article. Next, the evenness of the comb should be considered. Comb which bulges out in one part and recedes in another is difficult to handle. We have often known a grocer, upon examining a crate, pull out a section with a part of the comb bulging out and scrape the capping away. Such a section must be sold at once, and often at a sacrifice. Care in buying and handling will prevent this, and bee-keepers are overcoming this by buying a section super that has a very thin partition of wood or tin between each section. This is sure to give straight combs; no other is used in our apiary."

"Should honey be kept in a cool or warm place? Honey, either comb or extracted, is best in a warm, dry place. It has the peculiarity of absorbing moisture from the atmosphere to a certain extent, and it should therefore be in a dry atmosphere. Cold influences it only for granulation."

"Should pure honey remain liquid ?" "It may or may not remain liquid. It is, however, very liable to granulate, and it is well for a grocer to educate his customers to this fact. Bee-keepers frequently prefer to eat it in this form If the honey is to be liquified it should be done carefully. If a large can, set in hot water and keep it there until liquid. Do not let the surrounding water boil, however; that would injure the flavor of the honey.

To the question, Do you think honey is manufactured artificially? the reply was : Comb honey cannot be manufactured. Such was reported, but we know a large honey dealer in the United States who offered $1,000 reward to anyone who would show where it was manufactured. The reward has so far never been claimed. We do not think extracted honey is adulterated to any extent. It bears a better record than many other articles used on the table. If anyone has a doubt about purity let him buy it in the peculiar granular form which honey only can assume. We are not afraid to guarantee every pound we sell. Much more honey could be sold if the seller would have the confidence he should in the article. It is wholesome (especially for children), and an economic and delicious food, and if the grocer, instead of presenting a pound for inspection, wondering if that is too much, would expect to sell 5 lbs., 10 lbs., or even 30 lbs., he would do it. We unconsciously influence our customers.

The stores of Richard Pickard & Son, at Exeter, were broken into a few evenings ago. The entrance was effected by way of the back door of the grocery department. A hole bored in the lower part of the panel of the door, and the bolt drawn, is the way it is done, The office was ransacked, but as there was no money, nothing was missed save a few postage stamps. It was cash they were after as nothing else is missing. It is quite evident that these burglaries are being committed by local heads, and as suspicion rests on certain persons, their actions are being closely watched by the constable.

Wednesday noon a horse belonging to Mr. Butcher, grocer, Queen-street west, dropped in the roadway at the corner of King and John streets. The animal was apparently dying. The humane course of having the beast put out of misery was resolved upon, and a policeman proceeded to end its life by the means of a revolver bullet. He fired seven shots into the horse's body before dispatching it.

The Imperial Government has notified the Newfoundland Government that her Bait Act is unconstitutional, and proposes that Canada and Newfoundland shall submit a joint test case to the Imperial Privy Council. The Bait Act was only sanctioned by the Imperial Government on the express engagement by the Newfoundland Government that its provisions would not be enforced against Canada.

The Toronto Biscuit & Confectionery Co. on Monday received a post card from a prominent firm of grocers in St. Catherines, which read as follows : "We ordered acase (12 boxes) of soda from your Mr. Hynes as samples, and the biscuits are A 1—the best in the market. Send case (two dozen boxes) more at once." This speaks for itself. On Friday last the Toronto Biscuit & Confectionery Company shipped fifteen tons of their goods to Brandon for one firm, "and still there's more to follow."

The beautiful display which the Edwardsburg Starch Co. made at the last Industrial Exhibition in this city will be remembered by everybody who made a promenade of the main building. The pains taken in the composition of that handsome spectacle and the unstinted admiration it received warranted its preservation by the camera. An excellent picture was accordingly taken, and we have to acknowledge the receipt of one, which Mr. Graham, the Company's representative here, was good enough to forward us. The picture is set in a handsomely fretted brown frame, with a rim imitating oxidized silver surrounding the white margin, which gives relief to the picture.

Baron Seilliere, who is at the head of the beet root sugar factory at Farnham, Quebec, along with Messrs. P. Leighton, Kimmond, Osborne, Plunkett, R. L. Gault, and H. R. Prevost, interviewed the Government to recommend the example of the United States authorities in giving a bounty to beet root sugar producers, which the deputation asked for a period of twenty years from July 1st next, when the present bounty expires. Professor Saunders of the Experimental Farm, has just returned from a visit to Kansas, Nebraska, and other Western States, where the sugar beet has been successfully grown, and is now drawing up a report, in which the capabilities of Canada for producing the same crop will be discussed. Mr. Frank Shutt, the chemist of the experimental Farm, is also engaged in a series of analyses to determine the comparative merits of sugar beets grown in varous parts of the Dominion.

Mr. J. Todd is opening a general store in Oakwood, Ont., in the premises formerly occupied by James Thorndike.

Mr. R. J. Mills will open shortly a grocery store in F. Train's block, Kinmount, Ont. Mr. Rawlison will manage the business.

P. MacIntosh & Son have been appointed exclusive agents for Toronto for Leitch Bros., Oak Lake, Manitoba, flours. They are manufacturers of Manitoba wheat flours exclusively. Wherever their goods have been introduced they have given entire satisfaction. The retail trade say their brands can always be depended upon.

Mr. G. Maurice Furnival, city traveller for J.W. Lang & Co.,has been elected W.M. of Zetland Masonic Lodge. His promotion is a popular one and one which he deserved. The success of the annual balls which have made this lodge famous outside the craft was due largely to Bro. Furnival's exertions.

Our friend Mr. John Hodge, popularly known as the "Spice King," and at present representing the firm of Wm. Hood & Co., of the Orient Mills, Toronto, leaves on Tuesday next on a trip to England. It is upwards of twenty years since he paid a visit to his birth-place,and we join in wishing him a most pleasant and safe trip. He returns after a well-earned holiday of six or eight weeks.

Regarding canned and evaporated apples in the English market, the London "Grocer" says: "The fruits coming more under notice just now are American gallon apples, of which there is a fair supply in good condition, but though the prices asked are not above 10s. to 11s. per dozen tins, sales proceed more slowly than importers had reason to expect. Apple rings, however, must be considered rather dearer, and good quality fetches 38s. to 42s. per cwt.

SHOP DECORATIONS.

The interior of a store should be attractive, but especially so at this time of year. Neatness always attracts customers, the well-ordered store being an index of a well-managed business. The ceilings must be of snowy whiteness or, if decorated, of clear, bright colors. The painting should be of a light color, the counters well-polished and the show cases clean and shining.

But at this season of the year more than this should be attempted. A few flags, some Chinese lanterns and boughs of cedar, spruce or hemlock, hung and fastened throughout the store, will be very appropriate. Do not be afraid of having your store too attractive—you cannot over-do it. It is a season of rejoicing and people will tolerate a great deal of this; in fact, you must do a considerable amount of it before it will be noticed at all. Appropriate mottoes, made in various ways, will be appreciated. Nice mottoes can be made from pasteboard letters, covered with cotton batting, over which should be sprinkled silver powder. Or, better still, they can be made with pasteboard, gold or silver paper and gummed letters. The artistic clerk will produce many such that will draw attention to certain articles, or serve merely ornamental purposes.

Pictures, even if used for advertising purposes, will always add to the beauty of a store if possessed of artistic merit. Though here the dealer must guard against drawing too much attention to decorations and too little to his wares; decorations of whatever kind should be made auxiliary to the display of goods. Much freedom should be given to the displays of merchandise. The arrangement of show cases and their contents, the placing of goods on counters or tables, should be of such a nature as to attract attention while serving to display goods to the best advantage.

The selling of fancy groceries and novelties is very different from the selling of staple lines. The latter may safely be kept in the background, and prominence should be given to the former; and all store decorations should subserve this one great purpose of displaying attractively goods that sell only at this season.

The grocer might take a leaf out of the butcher's book during the holidays, and trim his stock more freely with tissue paper. There is a line of paper that has come into strong demand for ornamentation this year; it is known by the name of crinkled tissue. Manifold applications of it were illustrated at the Exhibition here last September. It abounds in possibilities for the stock dresser. Cases holding fancy fruits can be fringed with it, handsome designs—such as hearts, interlacing triangles, borders, etc.—can be made from it for hanging in the window or lying on the window floor. The tasteful use of tissue paper in some form will greatly brighten and beautify the interior of shops for Christmas trade.

NOTES TAKEN ON THE ROAD.

E. E. McNutt, Truro, N.S., has a fine store and stock to correspond. He has a very tasty display in his window, and the store generally is attractive.

The Nova Scotia Sugar Refinery has done a large trade the past year. The fruit crop was heavy, and their goods were very popular with canners and preservers.

Mr. W. D. Baskin, St. John, W., N.B., although starting THE CANADIAN GROCER "on trial," has come to like it very much. Mr. Baskin has a large grocery trade, and also carries a good line of shelf hardware, his store having double frontage.

New Glasgow, N.S., is growing in wealth and population, and Mr. J. F. Doull's grocery trade is on the same prosperous road. Mr. Doull says THE CANADIAN GROCER is a good paper and every man in the trade can be benefited by reading it.

S. M. Lockhart, New Glasgow, N.S., has sold out his grocery and confectionery business. Being a young man, he believes he can do better by pushing more into the centres of trade. California seems to be his "Eldorado," if he does not strike something lucrative here.

S M. Bentley, Truro, N.S., says his trade is up to the average and the outlook bright. He does no cutting in prices to please anyone. He believes in keeping down expenses, in being attentive and obliging to customers, and if that does not insure success nothing will.

TORONTO, Dec. 4, 1891.

GROCERIES.

Trade continues to make headway. The record of sales during the week covered by this report shows that substantial progress is being made. The time of the year and the weather figure among the causes of the improvement ; prices, especially in sugar and fruit, have something to do with it as well. The cold snap and the snow wakened up the demand very perceptibly, and would have had a still better effect if they had been more lasting. In the country the roads were the worse of the snow, as it was not deep enough to make sleighing and was too deep for easy wheeling. Hence traffic at the various outside railway points has not been up to the degree of activity that appears now to be due, with so much grain to get marketed. Deliveries have been as backward as ever, easier prices of wheat in Europe having added another check to selling for the time being. A fair movement of money is kept up by sales of other descriptions of farm produce, as hogs, butter, eggs, hay. The wholesale grocers have no fault to find with the share of the circulating medium that comes their way these days. It might be larger, but it compares very favorably with the proportion that falls to other lines of trade.

CANNED GOODS.

The demand roused itself towards the end of last week and has been atractive and capacious ever since. The run has been exceptionally strong on vegetables, the situation of which becomes firmer every day. Assorted lots of peas, corn and tomatoes are $1.05, and no lower prices have been heard of even for inferior brands. Some houses discriminate in favor of tomatoes, asking $1.10 for lots of these and refusing to sell them in assortments at $1.05. Peas are unchanged and firm at $1.05 to $1.10, round lots having been taken off this market to stock jobbers at other central points of distribution. Corn is $1 to $1.05. A freer movement of salmon than is commonly experienced at this time of year is now to be reported. Prices are steady at $1.35 upwards. Except for fruits the demand for all canned goods is strong, and unusually so for vegetables, which in no former season have received so much attention before the close of the year.

COFFEES.

Some business in large parcels of Rio, distributed over the western and northwestern parts of the country is heard of, the prices ranging from 17 to 18c. In a jobbing way the same grades would bring a cent or two higher. The common grades of Brazil coffee are plentiful, but finer coffees are not in full supply. An advance of about ¼c. in the primary market was one of the first despatches sent by the re-established Brazil cable, in which it was also stated that colony grades were not obtainable. Mochas and Javas are featureless and unchanged.

DRIED FRUIT.

The quantity of fruit selling these days is quite large, but there is little of staple stock changing hands at paying prices Staples are nearly all that is creating any interest yet, as fancy goods are usually not in strong request until after the month is a week old. Currants are steady at 5¾c. and upwards per barrel. A very free movement toward retailers' hands is reported. Valencia raisins are still low and very weak, the basis of prices for new fruit being 5½c., and little off-stalk being salable above 6¼c. What tends to weaken the market still more is the low offerings that are being made from both New York and Denia. From both these markets the lowest prices of the season are being quoted just now, and the probability of still easier values here is rather strong. Malaga raisins are in some request at prices quoted a week ago in Prices Current. Two or three small shipments of Sphinx prunes have been received, but most of the stock was sold before it arrived at about an average of 7c. The prices of prunes rule lower this year than they did last year. New Hallowee dates in boxes are offered to arrive here at 6c. Natural figs in bags are selling freely at 5c.

NUTS.

As the holidays approach buying becomes more active. Almonds are in request at 14 to 16c., and filberts at 11c. Old Grenoble walnuts are being got out of stock to prepare for the new crop goods at 10c. New Grenobles which have been quoted at 13c., to arrive are now in stock.

The arrival on Tuesday of new French and Grenoble walnuts (the shipments of E. M. Dadelszen, Bordeaux) was welcomed by the importers, as distribution can be made in good time for the holidays. There is certain to be a shortage of walnuts in Canada for the Christmas trade, in consequence of the cancellation of orders for nearly a thousand boxes of "Marbots" because of the quality of this growth proving unsatisfactory.

RICE AND SPICES.

For rice the demand is dull as it expected to be just now. An occasional small order comes forward still and is filled at old prices. These re-appear in Prices Current. Spices are fairly active, especially cloves, but there is no alteration in any of the quotations.

SUGAR.

There is a very dull demand now, though a considerable quantity of sugar was shipped to the retail stores of the country on the first day of the month. This was ordered in the closing days of November, but its delivery was contracted for at the beginning of this week, to bring payment due at the end of a calendar month. That spell of brisker orders was supposed to be owing to the expectation of higher prices against which retailers aimed to lay in their Christmas sugar, An advance in granulated has been one of the things looked for for sometime, but it has not yet come, 4⅞ to 5c. remaining the quotations. Yellows are firmer, 3½c. being less frequently conceded now than it was a week ago. Most of the wholesalers hold out for 3⅝c., with others quoting at 3.55c, as bottom price. The position of raw is unaltered in its firmness, if not rather intensified by the reduction of 100,000 tons which M. Licht has made in his estimate of the beet crop.

Willett & Gray's New York weekly sugar statistical says : The stock of raw sugar in importers' hands in the four ports is reduced to 7,897 tons, leaving but little chance for business, but refiners protected themselves against want by some purchases abroad some time ago, which have lately arrived. It is the wrong time of year to look for any special improvement, except by reason of temporary short supplies, and dulness may be expected. Supplies will be increased by the beginning of cane grinding in Cuba early in December, and present prices are undoubtedly remunerative to the planters. At the same time, we repeat what we have previously noted, that the general condition of the sugar world is very favorable to a higher range of prices, and it is only a question of time when the circumstances will exert themselves favorably. Mr. Licht emphasizes this to-day by reducing his estimates of the best crop by 100,000 tons, making the crop now 40,782 tons less than last year's, and he reduces his estimate of the cane crop by 31,100 tons, making 75,000 tons more than last year. Decreased production and increasing consumption can have but one result on prices, namely, a higher range during the coming 12 months. Local conditions may probably delay a movement, but it will be well for all sugar dealers, from the refiners to the retailers, to carry a good line of stock right along. Advantage was taken of the holiday week and a very quiet state of trade to reduce the price of refined sugar a fraction, possibly for its influence upon the raw market, but in view of what we have written about the condition and prospects of the raw sugar markets, it would seem advisable for dealers in refined to take advantage of all temporary reductions in prices made by refiners. While dulness may continue for awhile, as is usual at this season, the tendency of the refined market must eventually follow the raw market upward

SYRUP AND MOLASSES.

Syrups are quiet and neglected. They are also easier. Sharp competition exists between the western and the eastern refineries, the British Columbia refinery being reported to have delivered syrups here at 2c. and a fraction less, though the freight is 1c. per lb. more from Vancouver than from Montreal to this point. Jobbers are selling at 2⅜ to 3¼c. Molasses is fairly active at 30 to 36c. for West Indian in barrels, and 38c for fancy Barbadoes.

The following is from a private letter received in this city from New Orleans : "From the present outlook we feel sure that the supply of open kettle molasses will be very limited, and can safely say that half the O.K.'s have now been marketed, and you will have to let your customers know that if they expect to get any quantity of kettles they will have to pay higher prices now. The crop is over 30 per cent. short, and many of the planters have put up vacuum pans this year (and others are selling their cane to the central factories) who formerly made kettle goods."

TEAS.

The volume of tea sold this week shows some expansion in the demand from the proportions of last week. As usual the tea that has benefited most by the improvement is Japan, though for blacks as well there has been a good demand. There are more Young Hysons on the market and prices have got to a lower starting-point by a cent, grade at 16c. being now in stock. The extreme lowest points for Japans and blacks are respectively 12½ and 14c.

The London Produce Market's Review says:—"There has been a considerable falling-off in the quantity of Indian tea brought forward, but the demand for all good grades remains steady, with a hardening tendency in some cases. Well-selected teas of any grade continue to meet with good competition, and have probably now touched the lowest point : they are in many cases cheaper than at any time last season. The excellent value offering, especially for really good liquoring sorts under 1s., is shown by the increasing consumption, and although the exports from Calcutta will probably be 8,000,000 lbs. more than last year, most of this increase has already been disposed of. At the public sales 39,369 packages were offered, against about 43,000 last week, of which 3,500 were withdrawn. There was a good enquiry for all good medium and fine descriptions at steady prices, while the finest sorts fetched firm rates. About 20,000 packages of Ceylon teas were offered at Tuesday's sale, but the dealers showed little inclination to buy, except at lower prices, and a reduction of from ¼d. to ½d, was established in common to medium teas. A strong impetus has thus been imparted to the country demand, and most of the tea sold has probably already passed into the hands of country buyers. Good teas, however, continue to be enquired for at fully late rates, and for fine liquoring Pekoes at from 10d. to 1s 1d. there has been increased competition. The quality of the teas shown has again been disappointing, and it is to be hoped it will improve.

NOTES.

New California evaporated peaches are on the market to sell at 13 and 14c., and apricots at 14 to 15c.

Apple cider jelly is a new food product on the market. It is put up in wooden pails of 14 lbs. each and sells wholesale at 8½ to 9c.

The "Breadmakers' Yeast" Co. are putting a 3c. package on the market to compete with Fleischman's compressed package at the same price.

A reduction of ¼c. in the quotations on starch is made in the lists of the Edwardsburg, the St. Lawrence, and the British America Starch Companies in this week's Prices Current. The cause is owing to the easier prices of corn.

Sloan & Crowther will move into their new premises on the corner of Scott and Front streets during the week between Christmas and New Year's.

The general run of orange peel is going at 17 to 18c.; lemon at 16 to 18c., and citron at 24 to 25c., but C. & B.'s make this year has cost more, and 17½ to 19c. is asked for lemon, 18 to 20c. for orange, and 26 to 28c. for citron.

The New York Bulletin says : There has been a marked falling off latterly in the export of canned beef from this country to Great Britain. This we find is due to competition from the packing establishments recently started in South America under the management of a former western packer.

The Empire says : The fight between the British Columbia and eastern refiners is giving Winnipeg cheap sugar and prevents Ontario and Quebec jobbers from doing any business there. Refiners are selling granulated delivered in Winnipeg, freight paid, at $4.90. The freight is 65c. on the gross, or say 70c. on the net weight, making the Winnipeg price $4.20 net. This is 30c. less than the refiners charge eastern houses. Though the Vancouver people sell at $4.90 in Winnipeg they charge an advancing price as they get nearer home. For Portage la Prairie their price is reported to be $5.12½ ; Brandon and Qu'Appelle, $5.25, and at the coast, $5.62½.

Think on This.

Can you afford to let your neighbor get part of your trade? Your neighbor keeps Surprise Soap; you don't. Your customer wants it, and buys from him. It starts a trade with your customer. It makes an opening for more businsss. He may get all that customer's trade. You lose it. A box of "Surprise" might prevent the start.

SURPRISE Soap yields a good profit.

MARKETS—Continued.

PETROLEUM.

Prices stand as they were quoted last week and show no tendency towards movement one way or the other. The demand is very active for current consumption.

Petrolia crude $1.27½ per bbl. Oil Springs crude $1.27½ per bbl. The oil market is a little firmer this week, and we think the price of crude has touched bottom. It will not make any difference to the crude market what price refined oil is sold at. If refiners are foolish enough in their mad competition with one another to sell refined oil at a loss and at less than it can possibly be made for, the great law of supply and demand will regulate the price of the crude article, and producers need not fear the present action of refiners in trying to depreciate the value of crude oil, as the quantity produced is close to the actual amount required for the consumption of the country, and a little firmness on the part of the large producers would soon drive the price of crude to a dollar and a half a barrel, which is what the producers are entitled to receive this Christmas as a reward for their untiring and energetic labors in the field.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

Choice grades of butter are taken readily. The supply of these grades is still behind hand. Mediums abound. The receipts of large rolls are also liberal. Complaints are still general about the turnip flavor of these latter. It is said that the taint could be avoided if feeding always followed close after instead of before milking. It might be worth while for country merchants to make this suggestion to farmers, as the turnip flavor depreciates prices very much. Choice tubs are worth 17c. and from that up to 19c. for very select packages. The latter figure is rather a fancy one and is seldom attained. Mediums run from 13 to 16c. Large rolls are 14 to 16c.

Cheese continues very firm at 10½ to 11c. An advance in England on Monday strengthened the position of holders here. The demand is fair.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

BEANS—There is some business being done in car lots at $1.20 to $1.30, and out of store at $1.40 to $1.50.

DRIED APPLES—There is very little to report in the way of trade, dulness prevailing and prices being stationary. On spot they are 4½ to 5c. A car offered at 4½c. but only 4c. was bid.

EVAPORATED APPLES—Are steady at 7 to 7½c. for small quantities, and 6 to 6½c. for round lots. The market is well stocked.

EGGS—Fresh are unchanged ot 17 to 18c., and limed are dull at 14½ to 15c.

GAME—Partridges are dull and easy at 30c., rabbits at 25c. and venison in the carcass at 6c.

HIDES—Green are quiet and weak, No. 1 cows quoting at 4½c., and steers' at 5½c. Cured are 6c.

HONEY—Extracted honey,7 to 10c. Sales are rather slow with a considerable quantity in view. First-class comb honey is very scarce and 16c. per lb. Dark grades are 13c., with limited quantity in stock.

ONIONS—A moderate business is transacted at $1.75 to $2.25.

POULTRY—Is easy and plentiful. Chickens are 30 to 50c., ducks 50 to 70c. per pair, geese 5 to 6c. per lb., and turkeys 8 to 9c. Turkeys are hard to sell at these figures.

POTATOES—The range for cars is 43 to 45 per bag, but this is at the moment nominal, neither buyers nor sellers being eager. Out of store lots are 50 to 55c.

SEEDS—Alsike is beginning to arrive but not in large quantities. The price is steady at $5.50 to $6 for prime and $6.50 for extra.

SKINS—Another advance on sheep skins of 5c. was made on Tuesday, when the price was put up to 90c. Calfskins are 5 to 7c.

WOOL—is very dull. The prices continue to be 18 to 19½c., for fleeces.

DRESSED HOGS AND PROVISIONS.

Receipts of carcases are rather below the capacity of the demand, which has expanded since the change in the weather. Weights are on the average more satisfactory, fewer hogs being turned over to the butchers on account of lightness. The range of prices is from $5 to $5.50 for hogs suitable for cutting up. On Tuesday two cars of weights running from 125 to 250 lbs. were bought to arrive at $5.50 per cwt. All cured products are dull and are likely to remain so till spring.

BACON—Is quiet at 7¾ to 8¼c. for long clear, 10 to 11c. for smoked backs, 10½ to 11c. for smoked bellies, and 8¾ to 9c. for rolls.

HAMS—Are in moderate request at 11 to 11½c.

LARD—Pure is 9½ to 10¼c., and is plentiful. Compound is dull at 8½ to 9c.

BARREL PORK—Little is doing and prices are easier at $13.75 to $14 for heavy mess, and $16 to $16.50 for short cut.

FISH AND OYSTERS.

The oyster market is easy at $1.25 per gal. Haddie are in abundance, but of poor quality, real good haddie being hard to procure; the price is a little lower this week. Manitoba white fish are expected to be in the market next week and will sell at about 8c. Other prices are running much the same, but the demand is not very brisk.

SALT.

The trade in small quantities has been brisk, while nine carloads have been sold to the meat-packers who at this time of year require a great deal. Four carloads of common fine salt, have sold on the track for 80c; 3 carloads bbls at $1.15 and 2 carloads coarse at 70c,

FRUITS.

Apples are steady at $1.50 to $2.50, a considerable quantity of hard fruit being handled. For cranberries the prices are unchanged at $8.25 to $9 for choice dark, and $1.75 to $8.25 for light colored stock.

GREEN FRUIT.

A stronger demand for oranges is reported. Some very fine stock is now to be had. Jamaicas are steady at $6.50 to $7. Floridas are easier at $2.75 to $3.25. A Liverpool cable quotes Valencia oranges cheaper, but they are still too high to import. The quantity imported for the Christmas trade this year will be exceedingly small in consequence of high prices of Valencias, and the large supply and good quality of Floridas. Valencias would cost $5.60 laid down here. Malaga lemons are unchanged at $3.50 to $4 per box, and $7.50 to $8 per chest. Messinas are $4.50 to $5. Malaga grapes are firmer and higher, $5.50 to $6 being this week's prices for kegs, and $3 to $3.25 for half kegs. Pineapples are 15 to 20c.

DRY GOODS.

During the past week trade has become much firmer, cash is moving more freely, sorting up orders are numerous, and the prospects for a large spring trade are good. Certain capitalists who have a large controlling interest in the cotton industry have been negotiating for the inclusion in the combine of colored cottons, and there is a likelihood of their success. If this happens, colored cottons will advance slightly in price.

FLOUR AND FEED.

TORONTO, Dec. 3, 1891.

The usual regular consumptive basis underlies current trade, which is strong enough to keep up the ample competition among manufacturers. Prices are generally steady, little fluctuation taking place in anything since the close of last week. The question of selling flour on credit is still unsettled, but efforts are being made to restore the trade to a strictly cash basis. A deputation of millers left Toronto for Montreal on Wednesday, with the object of establishing some arrangement for the discontinuance of the present state of the trade. The credit system will also receive special attention at the coming general meeting of the Dominion Millers' Association, which will be held in this city on Tuesday next.

FLOUR—City millers' and dealers' prices are: Manitoba patents, $5.25; strong bakers', $4.85; Ontario patents, $5; straight roller, $4 75. extra, $4 10 to $4.15; low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.75.

Car prices are: Toronto freights—Manitoba patents, $5.30 to $5.50; Manitoba strong bakers', $4.90 to $5.10; Ontario patents, $4.50 to $5.10; straight roller, $4.25 to $4.35; extra, $4.10 to $4.15; low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.75.

MEAL—Oatmeal is steady at $4.30 to $4.35 for standard and rolled. Cornmeal is quiet at $3.80 to $4.

FEED—Bran is quite scarce, selling at $13.50 to $14 in cars, and $14.50 in ton lots. Shorts is in good request at $14 to $16, according to quantity and quality. Oats are in good demand at 35c., with no excitement in the market. Feeding grades of barley bring 42 to 43½c. outside, with 46c. paid for No. 3 extra.

HAY—Ths delivery is just slow enough to keep the demand in a healthy state of activity. Good baled timothy brings $11.50 to $12 on track.

STRAW—Oat is steady at $6 to $6.50.

OTHER MARKETS.

MONTTEAL, 2d Dec. 1891

FLOUR—The flour market is unchanged under a fair jobbing demand. The stocks in store is 698 barrels less than a week ago and 9,502 barrels less than at the same time last year. Patent spring, new wheat, $5.00 to 5.50; Patent winter, $5 to $5.04; straight roller $4.75 to $4.85; Extra $4.40 to $4.55; Superfine $3.95 to $4.18; City strong bakers' $5.00 to $5.10; Strong bakers' $4.75 to $5.50.

OATMEEL—The oatmeal market is quiet and without new feature. Standard, per bag $2.10 to 2.20; Granulated, $2.10 to 2.20; Rolled $2.10 to $2.20.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Dec. 2, 1891.

FLOUR.—The market is unchanged. Some are holding large stocks and talk higher prices, though buyers seem inclined to take for immediate wants only. The prices are about as follows: Manitoba $6 to $6.10, Ontario high grade $5.30 to $5.40, medium patent $5.10 to $5.25.

MEAL.—With so little moving an idea can hardly be given about the market. Prices are unchanged, $3.10 to $3.20 being the present quotations. The demand has fallen off very much for oatmeal, and stocks held are correspondingly light. Roller is quoted at $4.70 to $4.80, with Standard about 10c. less

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Dec. 3, 1891.

The trade during the past week has been extremely small in a wholesale way, in fact there was actually none except on odd jobbing movements. In the course of a week or so more improvement should be noted, as dealers generally ought to be anticipating their holiday requirements. The general complaint now is that bad roads are interfering with trade. Once the farmer can move about more business is anticipated.

SUGAR, ETC.

The raw sugar market continues very strong and there is a strong upward tendency to prices, although no change has actually occurred yet, but holders all round are careless sellers at the moment. Yellows are nominally at 3½ to 4¼c., and granulated 4½c.

Syrups are dull, the movement being slow in the Canadian product, which cannot compete with the American goods that are on the market, and which are selling for ¼ to ½c. lower at a trifle over 2c. per lb., while Canadian refiners are asking 2⅜ to 2½c.

There is no change in the molasses' market, but prices on Barbadoes are unsettled and they are hard to quote. The competition of the New Orleans stock, which is selling at 28 to 30c., is weakening holders, and there is no doubt that a substantial concession would be made to induce a sale. About 37c. is a fair quotation.

TEAS.

Japan teas are selling fairly well, a few invoices of low grades leaving first hands this week at fair prices. Blacks keep quiet and dull.

COFFEES AND SPICES.

The strength of the coffee market is unabated, and holders appear quite independent. Business in Rio has been done at 19 to 21c., and the lower figure is a very inside one, while some Maracaibos and Jamaicas have left first hands at prices ranging from 20 to 21c. and 19 to 20c. respectively.

Spices are quiet and unchanged, a small quantity of pepper changing hands during the week at 10c.

RICE.

The rice trade is quiet, the millers have filled all their orders, and the movement is small. We quote: Patna $4.50 to $5, Japan $4.25 to $4.50, standard $3.90, and off grades $3.50 in car lots.

DRIED FRUIT.

Staple lines of dried fruit are quiet and firm as far as currants are concerned, but raisins are rather unsettled, in sympathy with the feeling in New York. We quote: Raisins 5¼ to 5½c. for firsts and 5 to 5¼c. for seconds, and currants are firm under strong primary markets, and values are stiff at 5½c. in barrels, 5⅝c. in half barrels, and 5¾c. in cases.

NUTS.

Nuts are quiet and unchanged, Grenoble walnuts 14 to 15c., and Chili 9 to 10c. Tarragona almonds rule at 13 to 14c., and pecans 14 to 15c.

CANNED GOODS.

Trade in canned goods is flat, as dealers are well stocked up, and retailers do not seem anxious buyers at the moment. In fish there is nothing doing in a large way, and tomatoes are offering in the west at our quotation, $1.05 to $1.10.

GREEN FRUIT.

There is an ordinary jobbing movement in green fruit, with no change in values. Malaga lemons are unchanged at 6 to 7c. per chest, and new Messina stock has been offering at $3 to $3.50. Florida oranges move steadily at $2.50 to $3.50.

FISH.

Fish continues precisely as it was last week, that is, dull but firm. Stocks are small here, but no desire at all is shown by buyers to operate here. Values are firm, however.

PROVISIONS.

There is a fair trade reported in pork, western short cut having the preference at steady prices. Canada short cut is easier owing to the freer offerings and $16.25 is about the outside figure to-day. Lard and smoked meats are quiet and neglected.

EGGS.

There is a better enquiry for eggs at 15 to 16c. Little if any held fresh stock is coming forward, and as the Montreal limed is turning out very well holders have no difficulty in getting these prices.

POULTRY.

Poultry is coming forward freely, but is meeting with a ready sale, and prices are steady. We quote: Turkeys, 9 to 10c. per. lb.; chickens, 6 to 8c. per lb; ducks, 8 to 9c. per lb.; geese, 6 to 7c, per lb.; partridge 40 to 45c. per brace for firsts, and 25 to 30c. per brace for seconds.

BUTTER.

The butter market is dull, owing to firm holders and slow buyers. The former say their butter is worth the price and that there is little of it, while the latter protest that their orders do not permit any such prices. It is a stand off, therefore. We quote:—Late-made creamery, 24 to 24 1-2c.; fine creamery, 23 to 23 1-2c.; finest Townships, 19 to 20c.; finest Western, 16 to 17 1-2c.

CHEESE.

The market does not show any change, nor can it until business picks up. It is now purely a holders' market, that is, the stock is concentrated in a few strong hands and is held for a price. Of course this is the other side of the story, but it is more than likely that holders will have the best of it from now out, that is, in the ordinary course of events. It is nominally an 11c. market, and that is an inside figure if a buyer really means business. The cable to-day advanced to 55s. Finest fall makes, 11 to 00c; Fine stock, 10¾ to 10⅞c.; Medium grades, 10¼ to 10½c.; Cable, 55s. 0d.

GRAIN.

The grain market continues quiet and featureless. The stocks in store compared with those a week ago show a decline of 5,969 wheat, 252 corn, 10,652 rye, and an increase of 55,564 peas, 11,374 oats, 39,974 barley. Compared with a year ago there is an increase of 162,034 wheat, 185,935 peas, 78,331 oats, 195,957 barley, and a decrease of 4,633 corn, 10,109 rye. We quote:—No. 2 hard Manitoba, $1.03 to $1.04; No. 3, do., 97c; No. 2 Northern, $1.04; peas, 75 to 76c. per 66 pounds in store, oats, 36c. per 34 pounds in store, corn, 72c. duty paid; feed barley, 48 to 50c.; good malting do., 60 to 62c.

ST. JOHN, N. B., MARKETS.

ST. JOHN, N. B., Dec. 3. 1891

The sudden cold wave has had a tendency to lessen the volume of trade, though if it continues it will enable farmers to get to market their produce more readily than lately, as the roads have been very heavy. Trade this week has not been up to expectations. nor is much improvement looked for in the immediate future.

SUGAR—A good steady demand with prices unchanged. Granulated is quoted 4½ to 4¾c., yellows at 3½ to 3¾c., Paris lumps 6½ to 6¾c.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES—Are going off very slowly and only in a jobbing way.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Butter—The market has been better supplied lately, both as to quality and quantity, and ready sale is found for all good that offers at 17 to 19c.

CHEESE—Stocks are getting small and the price has advanced, with good prospects for still higher prices. Quotations are 10¼ to 10¾c.

EGGS—Are without change either as to quantity offering or price.

POTATOES—Shipments have dropped off very much lately, and prices are at $1.20 to $1.35.

BEANS—Are $1.70 to $1.85, peas $1.40 to $1 65, split peas $4 to $4.25, barley pot $3.95 to $4.15. Beef per barrel $14.75 to $15. Pork, clear mess, $17 to $17.25.

BAPTISTE VAUDREUIL.

ADVERTISING VS. TRAVELLING SALESMEN---SOME JUDICIOUS HINTS FROM AN EXPERT ADVERTISER.

Chas. E. Bonnell, Chicago, writes to the American Artisan under date of Nov. 17 :—

I note in your issue of the 14th inst. an extract from a letter in which a comparison is made between verbal and newspaper advertising, one of your correspondents claiming that $1 in verbal, or, we presume, travelling salesmen, produces better results than $5 in newspaper advertising. I am disposed to take issue with your correspondent. Of course the circumstances have much to do with results. If the advertiser has an article of only local interest, if his trade is confined to local trade, then, perhaps, his premise is correct; but given an article on which there is no territorial limit, an article of merit, then I speak from experience when I say that he is wrong. Judging from his language—"the —— was tried as an experiment lately but did not get there"—he tried some journal for a few issues, and, perhaps, for a year orders which he could trace to the journal containing his "ad." did not loom as he perhaps thought they should, hence "advertising is a failure." Having put in the largest half of my few years as an advertiser to a greater or less extent, and much of that time having unbounded faith in advertising and but little money to back it with, I found it necessary to give it much more thought and care than do some firms who spend a fortune annually. I not only watch my own "ads," but I watch others. I read trade papers and my conclusion is that a large percentage of the money spent for advertising is wasted, even with meritorious articles and good mediums. Large advertisers are beginning to realize the value of this branch of their business and are employing high-priced men to manage it, but in a majority of cases when the amount spent is from $2,000 to $5,000 per annum the advertising is in the hands of perhaps the busiest member of the firm. In the beginning of the year after profits have been figured a stipulated sum is set aside for newspaper advertising, the size of advertisement is determined upon, then the one in charge writes up the matter, devoting less time to it than he would to a business letter involving a $100 transaction, the composition is sent to the job printer to be put in type; if all the words are spelled properly it is marked "O. K." and a given number of electros ordered. Now the advertising man is equipped. Everything that comes along is patronized if the price is cheap, the main object being to get contracts to the amount of the appropriation. When that point is reached he heaves a sigh of relief, for now there will be no more bother with advertising or advertising men until the next year, These are the kind of people that usually think there is no benefit in advertising, but some competitor does it and they must do likewise. The writer does not wish to pose as an advertising expert, but having built up a business that affords at least three square meals a day, and solely by advertising, he feels that his views on the subject are not wholly theoretical. Of course I claim the advantage of having meritorious goods, for even liberal and profuse advertising can not perpetually "boom" disreputable productions.

And now for my hobbies: Use your best efforts to select only good journals which go to the trade you want to reach; a circulation of 5,000 with possible customers is better than 20,000 of whom only 20 are probable buyers; the best is always the cheapest although it may cost most money. Always if possible take preferred space, that is, next to reading matter, or if the paper runs a department under which your article comes get next to that; this costs extra but it pays. A small "ad" in the right place is better than a big "ad" where it is not so apt to be seen. Use striking head lines to attract attention. Say as little as possible and yet make your "ad" tell the whole story. Don't go on the principal that because you are an old house that everybody when they read your firm name knows all about you. There are lots of people who never heard of you and do not know what you make or what its especial points are. Change copy often and change every month. Don't neglect the "news notes;" lots of people whom you want to reach read those that otherwise would never see your "ad." All trade papers are glad for any pointers given them for these items; in fact, make it a part of your contract that you are to have such mention. Lastly, but most important, stick to it; it's not as productive of immediate sales as traveling men, but when it does win it wins big. No better introduction can be given a traveling man than an "ad" in the best trade papers, and if you employ both means don't give the traveling man all the credit; give each his due. It must not be inferred that the writer opposes the employment of salesmen; I simply say that if the entire United States are to be covered it can be done much cheaper and in the end with much better dividends for the advertiser by judicious advertising than by traveling men.

A ST. JOHN'S VIEW OF THE BAIT QUESTION.

Commenting upon the export of 100,000 quintals of cod fish to Canada, the St. John's (Nfld.) Telegram says: "The truth is, by placing restriction on the sale of bait fishes to Canadian fishermen our Government have created a market at Halifax for vast quantities of Newfoundland cod fish, and today the people of the colony are reaping the benefit of this new market. Had Canadians been permitted last spring to take free bait on our coasts their catch would have been much larger than it has turned out, and as a natural result Halifax would not now be in need of supplies from Newfoundland. Whether the course thus pursued by our Government will be successful in the end it may not seem easy to determine in the present complicated condition of the fisheries in question, but certain it is that our fish trade has immensely benefited by the restriction in question. Furthermore, we have demonstrated to all parties the fact that Newfoundland, and not Canada, as Sir. Charles Tupper would try to make it appear, really holds the key of the situation, inasmuch as the success of the Canadian fisheries, as well as those of France and the United States, mainly depend upon the bait fishes of this colony. The day is not far distant when we shall be in a position, through the instrumentality of our bait fishes, to dictate such terms of reciprocal commerce as shall be highly advantageous to all our colonial interests."

THE BUSINESS "DUMMY."

The average business man, of to-day, says an exchange, has no spare time at all during business hours, and cannot afford to waste any of his business time with callers who are not on strictly legitimate business, and yet the President, or Manager, or Superintendent, of a great establishment, as the case may be, cannot afford to slight a great many callers with whom he really has no business to transact, but who are anxious to convince him that they have important business with the concern he may represent. The persistency of some of these unwelcome callers is so great that they cannot be shaken off in the ordinary way. A plan has been hit upon in some of the larger establishments, notably in the East, but which is gradually being adopted the country over, that promises to give the busy man the much desired relief. The plan referred to is to employ a representative of the factory, store or other business place, who is known to the inner circles, at least, as the "dummy." The "dummy" must be a man of inviting presence, possessing a certain amount of magnetism and with a resourcefulness that is not demanded of many managers of great establishments. It is the duty of the "dummy" to take charge of the "bore," or other caller, to whom the Manager does not care to give his time, but yet cannot afford to offend, and get rid of him He must do this in such a way that the caller will not know that he is being politely "bounced." It is not definitely known who hit upon this highly Napoleonic scheme, but it is said to work to a charm. It is believed to have originated in a railroad office, where the General Manager found that if he referred the caller who really had no business that was legitimate, but who, in the majority of instances, wanted a pass or a cut rate, to his lieutenants, that he would have to employ a larger number of lieutenants, and that he therefore hit upon the "dummy" plan. It worked like a charm and promises to become a permanent institution. The "dummy" is well paid, and he earns every cent he gets for his services. He must, at all times, be smiling and suave, and must be capable of leading the caller to believe that his request is to be granted "some day," but on what particular day the "dummy" is never prepared to say. As population increases and the wonderful ingenuity of man makes each succeeding age more rapid than the preceding one, the demand for the "dummy" will increase, and it is safe to say that eventually he will become a part and parcel of the business conduct of every big establishment in the country.

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Co., Montreal:

GENTLEMEN,—I have personally taken samples from a large stock of your Granulated Sugar, "REDPATH" brand, and carefully tested them by the Polariscope, and I find these samples to be as near to absolute purity as can be obtained by any process of Sugar-Refining.

The test by the Polariscope showed in yesterday's yield 99·90 per cent. of Pure Cane Sugar, which may be considered commercially as ABSOLUTELY PURE SUGAR.

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Company:

GENTLEMEN,—I have taken and tested a sample of your "EXTRA GRANULATED" Sugar, and find that it yielded 99·88 per cent. of Pure Sugar. It is practically as pure and good a Sugar as can be manufactured.

Yours truly,

It is well-known

That successful Doctors read all the latest medical books and papers and go abroad occasionally to study. Successful lawyers read legal publications to learn the latest legal decisions and points constantly cropping up. Teachers, clergymen, druggists, architects, all read the publication issued in the interests of their profession. They must do so to keep up with the times.

The same applies to grocers and general merchants. They must not only read the best papers published in their interests but must also watch the advertisements closely. There they learn the rise and fall in prices; latest trade news and methods of buying, handling and selling goods, so that they may make the greatest profit. A doctor reads much that he already knows, so does a lawyer. So does a number of any of the other professions. So will a merchant. It is often the issue of the paper he misses that is worth dollars to him. His best and safest policy, therefore, is to subscribe for his trade paper.

The only exclusively grocery and general store paper is THE CANADIAN GROCER issued weekly, subscription price $2.00 per year.

SPECIAL TO OUR READERS.

As the design of THE CANADIAN GROCER is to benefit mutually all interested in the business, we would request all parties ordering goods or making purchases of any description from houses advertising with us to mention in their letter that such advertisement was noticed in THE CANADIAN GROCER.

THE CANADIAN GROCER has a bona fide combined circulation among grocers and general merchants double that of any trade journal in Canada.

The merchants who keep their customers at a distance, holding little or no communication with them except through the mediation of employes are not confined to the retail ranks of trade. There are wholesalers who err gravely in this respect. Salesmen frequently complain that, in the race for business against other salesmen, they are handicapped by the coldness or the invisibility of their principals, and account for the triumphs of competitors by pointing to the genial prominence of the place held by employes of these in all transactions between the house and the customer. The salesman, either in the house or on the road, can sell more goods if he has an urbane, approachable chief as coadjutor. The latter need not necessarily take a hand in the selling, but a little friendly attention to the customer from him will materially aid the salesman, and will certainly popularize the house more than any other habit. Travellers have no trouble in breaking the ice with a retailer, if they find him disposed to refer with pleasure to his reception at the wholesale warehouse represented. Heads of firms ought to remember that their representatives have to call on the retailers, and they should be as cordial and considerate in their welcome to visiting buyers as they would wish those to be to the wholesalers' visiting sellers. The reception of the retailer at the wholesale house has often a great deal to do with the way the traveller is received at the retail store.

There is all the difference between overdone flattery and courteous attention that there is between a coxcomb and a gentleman. It does not follow because sycophancy is detestable that disregard of the amenities is commendable. Not less objectionable than either extreme of manner is the patronizingair. Men of self-respect prefer to be chilled by reserve rather than be flattered or patronized. It is what is due normal self-respect that the principal is called upon to render. That cannot be galling to his own self-respect. An over-lofty idea of his own personal importance is not what is usually dignified by the name self-respect, and it would be a misnomer if it should be so named. The wholesaler who can boast that he is personally acquainted with every customer he has is deserving of credit, not only for his good sense but also for his memory, as such a man is sure to have a longer list to keep in mind than most of his competitors. A pleasing manner costs little and yields big profits. All other things being equal, it gives immense advantage to a competitor, and though it cannot make up for quality, it can in many cases balance an unfavorable price.

We heard a retailer remark not long ago that, though he had traded for years with a particular house, he had yet to change the time of day with one of the principals of that house. The fact that he had traded for years there was no guarantee that he would always do so, and though he had no other fault to find than that of apparent lack of interest in him or his trade, he would no doubt have gone elsewhere with his custom but for the liking he contracted for one member of the staff who usually waited upon him. Rarely, indeed, a customer expects too much. An instance is recalled: Years ago a traveller for a certain house made periodical visits to the centre of a lumbering region, where the keeper of the general store was the right man in the right place. A strong, athletic fellow, he was easily capable of vanquishing any of the rough customers who resorted to his store for both wet and dry groceries. He was far from polished in his manners, but he was an open-handed, jolly fellow, who gave the traveller in question a rousing good time upon every occasion that the latter came that way. The traveller always sold a very big bill of goods and always was promptly and fully paid. That trader came to the city when something was going on here, and of course went to the house that got so much of his money. He was an uncouth and rather forbidding man to look at, and when he announced himself was taken aback that no fuss was made over him. He was rather outspoken in the expression of his opinion about the dandified manners of the people connected with the concern, and asked for his friend the traveller, whom he had often received with the most uproarious hospitality. He could not understand why the latter should be so much more subdued than was his wont, but was treated well. He was disappointed, however, in not having the traveller for his companion in a hilarious spell of enjoyment, and from that time his custom fell away. This man looked for more than a cordial reception, and the house forfeited his trade because he was disappointed.

MEN OF THE TIMES.

MESSRS. N. QUINTAL & FILS.

Good sense, which only is the gift of Heaven,
And though no science, fairly worth the seven.
—POPE.

A house which holds a commanding place in the commerce of Canada is that of Messrs. N. Quintal & Fils, wholesale grocers and importers, Montreal. The scope of their reputation coincides with the expanse of settlement in this country, and the threads of their business connection knit a great part of the grocery trade of Canada into one system, of which their warehouse is the distributing centre. Their business has grown as the national facilities for traffic have increased, and the point it had reached years ago was the ne plus ultra of all our big houses until the railway service of the country received the immense development of the last decade. Since that extension of the sphere of trade they have made steady and considerable accessions to their business, which is now one of the largest in the country. Their Quebec business is of itself an immense one, and the demand they have attached in the other provinces is the basis of a very substantial trade. Their total sales amount to over a million dollars per annum.

Mr. N. QUINTAL.

Mr. JOS. E. QUINTAL.

The premises from which this big annual volume of stock is discharged are situated at 270, 272 and 274 St. Paul street, and extend through to Commissioners' street. The warehouse is a fine large cut-stone building, four storeys high, exclusive of the basement, whose floor is flush with Commissioners' street, and is therefore specially suitable for the shipping and receiving of goods, with which activities it constantly resounds. As the area of the building is 45 x 85 square feet, the four flats above the basement afford ample space for storage. The disposition of the stock in these great chambers illustrates the method and economy of resource that underlie and inform the success of this firm. Convenience, expedition and tidiness have plainly been made a study of, and are clearly realized in the arrangement of the stock in all parts of the warehouse. Everything is equally trim and ship-shape in the order and equipment of the offices and the sample-room. The direction of the intricate business is admirable and cannot fail to impress a visitor. Everything proceeds easily and without friction, and an immense amount of work is overtaken every day.

The firm keep two travellers constantly on the road throughout the provinces, and have three looking after the business in the city. Liberal advertising backs up the efforts of these salesmen, and the upright, prompt dealing of the firm does the rest. The firm do a special trade in canned goods and in fine wines and liquors. They import directly from England, Scotland, Ireland, France, Spain, Italy, Sicily, Greece, Germany, Holland, China, Japan, the West Indies and the United States.

Mr. Narcisse Quintal, the senior partner and founder of the house, was born at St. Paul the Hermit, in the province of Quebec, in the year 1830, and is therefore in his 61st year. At the age of 21 years he made his first venture into business, opening up in a modest way in the retail grocery business in Montreal. There he has since remained, building out wider and higher every year until the present great proportions of his business have been realized. He is one of the oldest wholesale merchants in Montreal and is highly esteemed by the whole mercantile community. For some years past he has been enjoying his otium cum dignitate, gradually relinquishing his hold of the helm as his son and partner grew fitted by experience to take his place Mr. Narcisse Quintal has the satisfaction of beholding a life-work of more than ordinary magnitude accomplished with more than ordinary completeness, and cannot but feel some pride in the result of his labors. It must be equally gratifying to feel that he has raised and trained a son so capable of carrying on the business whose foundations the father has so solidly established.

Mr. Joseph Edmond Quintal was born in 1860, and was admitted into partnership with his father, Mr. Narcisse Quintal, in 1881, since which year the style of the house has been N. Quintal & Fils. Thus the parallel features in the careers of father and son are, that both entered business in their 21st year, both chose the grocery trade and both started in Montreal. Under the sage direction of his father the young man's aptitude rapidly qualified him for responsibility. He was soon trusted with an important share of the duties of management, and by degrees the control of the business drifted into his hands. He was possessed of the powers that specially fitted him for such work, being a man of unusual executive ability, and having a capacity for business despatch that few men have. It requires a comprehensive mastery of detail to guide a business which keeps forty-two assistants moving so briskly as they have to move in N. Quintal & Fils warehouse and office, and to keep everything in view that has to be watched in the interests of so large a concern. During the ten minutes our representative waited till Mr. Quintal, Jr., was disengaged, the latter had disposed of three travellers, four or five customers, and given various orders to the clerks in the shipping department, and before he could answer a few questions others were waiting to speak to him. Mr. Joseph E. represents his house on the Montreal Board of Trade and in the Wholesale Grocers' Guild. He is an agreeable man to come in contact with personally.

Some of the causes of this strong firm's success have been adverted to in the course of the above description of the extent and volume of their business. In the first place a substratum of honor underlay their policy from the outset; they never got off that firm ground, and consequently never got into any of the commercial bogs which frequently swallow up concerns whose career is not based on integrity. Uprightness was seconded by vigorous and able management, which pushed the fortunes of the house at all times and in all quarters, but never unduly or without discrimination. Safe methods of doing business they have always encouraged among their customers; hence, they have not sown a crop of bad accounts, than which there is nothing more debilitating to commercial health in the upper ranks of trade. They have done well for themselves, and that fact involves this one—that they have done well for their customers. The progress must be mutual where it is so continuous and so great on the one side, as customers would not steadily contribute to that progress if it did not react beneficially upon themselves.

THE ORGANIZER FORESTALLED.

In the revolutionary crusades and social revolts of our time it is hard to say how much the desire for change is nerved by a sense of real hardship or disabilty. More than ever before, allowance has to be made for the part played by the professional agitator. Subtract his contribution from the causes of the chief current or recent class disturbances, and the residuum will be found in the majority of the cases to be hardly enough to create enthusiasm. How much of the industrial discontent on this continent or abroad is due to the paid officers of trade unions? There are numerous genuine causes of industrial discontent, but they become confused in the cloud of bewildering agitation that the leaders set moving. It would not do for those genuine evils to be plainly set forth and their correction calmly insisted on. They might be removed, and then the occupation of the agitator would be gone. The discontent must be kept seething, and any chance of its carrying its point must be shunned. The professional and paid agitator's work in the agrarian question in Ireland has done much to obscure the real issues and delay reform. The professional agitator is usually the very antithesis of a reformer; his business is to keep the mass inflamed with the ferment of discontent.

The Patrons of Industry are making whatever progress they can boast of because they put a right value on the salaried organizer. His works are the certificate of his usefulness, and he will agitate, with all the fervor of a fanatic, a cause in which he may have no interest save as a source of livelihood to himself. The farmers do not suspect that an arch-agitator can appeal to their cupidity so feelingly, and at the same time have no regard for the lot of the agriculturist. He can, nevertheless, and does. If the arguments of the organizer can be scattered to the winds by the trade, then his mission will be a failure. An attempt to anticipate his plea has been made by Mr. D. Weismiller, of Kippen, Ontario, who issues a circular in advance of the agitator's visit, and offers to give Patron prices to every consumer who will be forthcoming with the cash. Thus the organizer is baffled. Without paying any fee, the people can get all the Patrons will enable them to get. Herein the order receives a staggering blow, and if all the trade could hit it as hard, its death would be speedy. But the trade cannot make such a sacrifice as that supposed to be involved in a contract with the Patrons. If it could there would be little object in putting any obstacles in the way of the Patrons. To volunteer to trade, otherwise than an experiment, on terms such as the Patrons demand, would be to furnish the latter with an argument that it will pay merchants to sign their contract. This is just what the merchants do not concede, and their dissent from it is the very pith of their reason for opposing the Patrons. But as an individual check on the organizer, and a means of stopping locally and temporarily the movement, Mr. Weismiller's circular is a good thing. Here it is:

KIPPEN, November 2nd, 1891.

DEAR SIR:

The movement known as the "Patrons of Industry," their principles and objects, are by this time tolerably well understood. They are introducing novel ideas, which, if found practicable, will revolutionize the entire system of business. One idea, among others, and the one concerning our system of merchandising, is to the effect that merchants could afford to sell at a smaller percentage of profit, providing all goods were sold for cash or its equivalent. We heartily concur in this opinion. They lay down certain percentages at which in their opinion merchants should sell, but whether or not their allowance is sufficient to conduct business on is a matter upon which we are not at present prepared to express an opinion. Being anxious, however, to keep in touch with the times and to make the experiment, we have decided to give the new proposal a fair and impartial trial for three months from date hereof, during which time we will sell all our goods at Patron Prices to prompt payers, patrons or no. To inform you of our intentions is the object of this circular, and we would embrace this opportunity of extending to you and your friends a cordial invitation to favor us with a call and inspect prices under the change. If acquainted with the Patrons percentage you will known the difference to expect, if not, one trial visit will convince you. You will bear in mind that this is an experiment only, and if found impracticable we will discontinue it at the end of the allotted time Your visit will be appreciated by

Yours Truly,
D. WEISMILLER.

LET THE STOCKING YAWN.

The practice of making Christmas presents to customers is fast becoming obsolete. Though the process of its decay has been rather prolonged it has been none the less sure. The usage is doomed, not only by the diffusion of more enlightened ideas on the subject, but also by stern necessity. The latter has weakened the hold of the gift system more than argument has. It is remarkable that it has been withstood so long. The grocer's profits have for many years been unsubstantial, and rendered precarious by the credit system. The grocer, of all men, should be least expected to dispense liberal bounty to rich and poor at Christmastide. He cannot afford it. It is a senseless piece of self-oppression to undertake the burden of a big largess just at the beginning of the year. The grocer's customers do not bring a store of supplies to the man behind the counter. Christmas may be sad or merry with him according as the uncertain patronage and pay of his customers determine. Why, therefore, should he be a district Santa Claus? The role is a popular one, no doubt, and the custom of making Christmas presents quite a graceful one, but there is no money in it. It is rather a crude intelligence that cannot be made to understand that the recipient of the gift is expected to be overtaken some time and made pay for the gift. It is a long lane that has no turn, and after a spell of bestowing the grocer must be expected to do a little retrenching in the way of reduced gravity or bulk in the quantities he deals out, subdued quality, sophistication, etc. People begin to suspect this, and conclude that the most generous grocer at Christmas is the most tricky man on days of the year not marked by a red numeral. The movement for the abandonment of the practice has made very good headway this year. Stratford is one of the places now considering it.

A RIFT WITHIN THE LUTE.

There are many ways of killing a cat without hanging it, and there are many ways of evading the wholesale agreement as to the sale of granulated sugar without making a direct breach of it. Dull times will have their way with prices it seems, even though the latter be "wrapped up in steel." Nobody has been accused of overtly quoting granulated sugar below the listed price, but some changes are reported to have been rung on the old simple way of selling yellow below cost to compensate a customer for exaction of rigid prices for granulated. This artless method is not much in use now. Newer, but equally guileful ways are in favor. The obliging salesman is alleged to be in the habit now and then of dating ahead, of allowing for freight, or of making a rebate at the time of payment. His wily chief never knows anything about this: the thing is done on the traveller's own responsibility, etc. This thing has been complained of by houses whose strict conformity to the sugar clause, as to all the other provisions of the Guild agreement, has never been questioned. The accusation was denied. The strain of dull times has it seems been too much for the scruples of the alleged offenders, and they are reported to be once more sinning against the agreement. The number of wholesalers who really uphold the Guild price is a small one. It is now reported that one big firm was about to withdraw from the Guild if a stop had not been put to the practices complained of. Something had to be done, as such a defection would wreck the Guild. Each firm has now to put up a forfeit, and each traveller, like the candidate for service in the Roman army, has to take an oath as solemn as the sacramentum, that he will neither by direct or indirect default infract the laws of the Guild.

A PERTINENT QUESTION.

A reader of THE GROCER writes thus:—Do you ever let your clerks read THE GROCER? No? Well, take the advice of another, and let them take it home some night, and let them read it. Where is the benefit? you ask. They will take more interest in your business. Your business will become their business. They will know more about the grocery business, and will be encouraged and benefited generally by what they read. New ideas will help them to make greater sales, to say nothing of the way you will rise in their estimation at the interest you display in their behalf.

THE CANADIAN GROCER DOUBLE THE CIRCULATION OF ANY TRADE JOURNAL IN CANADA.

Our challenge in last issue, that THE CANADIAN GROCER'S circulation among grocers and general merchants is double that of any other trade journal in Canada, remains unaccepted. We thought as much. Those of our contemporaries who have done their best, since the inception of THE GROCER, to injure our reputation, have crawled into their dens and say nothing.

What can they say? They know perfectly well that our claims are just, and well backed up.

We have no doubt their unbusiness-like, untruthful and mean insinuations will be continued, but we have passed that point where they can harm us. As we write, we hear them at work upon their coffins, and unless they change their tactics they will go to their grave "unwept and unsung," an example of unprincipled journalism.

The secret of our success is no secret all all. Anyone can build up a business if he is lucky enough to possess the four corner stones necessary. We have them here. They are Brains, Experience, Capital, Push. On top of these put other stones specially labelled Fairdealing, Liberality, Punctuality, and finish with a lot of "push" and grim determination to succeed. Now you have a building warranted bailiff-proof, and in which three square meals may be had every day, with extras on holidays.

THE CANADIAN GROCER has won its way on its own merits. We did not go into business for our health, but to get a fair profit on our investment. We buy and sell what we have in the best markets and at the highest market value. Do you not do the same? Our customers are the most successful in their line. Are not successful men always safe guides? What others have done others can do. Moral: Advertise.

As an illustration we publish the following unsolicited letters. They speak for themselves:

BRANTFORD, ONT., Dec. 4, 1891

Messrs. THE CANADIAN GROCER, Toronto.

GENTLEMEN,—We have just finished reading your journal from first to last page, and as we seldom gush over anything that is strictly business, we have said nothing to you to date in reference to our opinion of your journal's general merit. We have been studying the trade journals of this country and comparing them with the GROCER, and while the others have merit, in our estimation the GROCER exceeds. We are quite interested in your challenge on page 3, and expect it to remain unaccepted. For some time past we have been talking to the public, in our quiet way, through your paper. It has paid. The letter orders received by our firm from places where our travellers do not go, as well as where covered by them, have been in excess of all received the three previous years. This with other things, indicates to us that honest advertising, free from cant and over-statement, and through the sources that will reach the trade you wish to deal with, is a judicious and profitable business investment, and it will have more attention from us in the future, having made up our mind that we will not confine ourselves to one source only, but will branch out as opportunity presents and means will permit, in whatever direction appears to catch the eye of the trade that we wish to talk with, and later on, will take pleasure in informing you of the results.

Wishing you increasing prosperity, we remain,

Respectfully Yours,

THE SNOW DRIFT BAKING POWDER CO.

Dear Sir,— * * * We are very well pleased with your paper as an advertising medium, and we back our opinion by increasing our space with you, which we consider the most substantial way of showing our appreciation of your journal. Through our advertisement in your paper we have established agencies in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Manitoba, and British Columbia. This proves your circulation is throughout the entire Dominion. We have also secured many large orders through the medium of your journal, and as we have no travellers on the road we place the credit of most of our trade to the THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Respectfully yours,

STAR MFG. CO.

We now dismiss this subject and will refer to it no more. Space can be used to better advantage. But we would like to give our contemporaries a little parting advice, and that is, don't be hogs. There is plenty of room for you and ourselves on God's green earth. This is the only journal in Canada representing the grocery and general store trade, whereas you represent several classes of trade, but none in particular, and you can no more attempt to represent the grocery trade than fly, and you might just as well retire gracefully and honorably, taking this as your motto: "It is more honorable to have built a dog-house than to have dreamed of building a palace."

FANCY GROCERY NOTES.

Glace's Congealed Fruits are being sold in the best grocery stores. This is a French delicacy and constitutes a very saleable article.

Fancy biscuits seem to be having an extensive sale this season. They are shown in great variety and of exquisite quality, running as high as a dollar a pound for "Kisses."

* * *

English plum-pudding—the genuine article—in various sized tin-cans, is an appropriate dainty for the Christmas trade. You may not be in England but you can give your customers some of England's best pudding.

* * *

A very pretty candle shade, with patent attachment for fitting the top of the candle and preventing any droppings, is seen in the store of Michie & Co., King street. These little shades are of appropriate colors to match the candles, which are also of various tints, and seeing that wax-candles are again finding favor, these will be a very useful thing, and also a pretty novelty.

BLITHELY CAROL.

Smooth down your wrinkles, straighten out those contracted brows. The season demands that you should assume a cheerful countenance, and at the same time it will add a year to your life and several new customers to your list, because people shun any person or thing that is melancholy.

The grocer has lost a friend, but he will come again. He is only hibernating, and when his supply of sweetness extracted from last summer's sugar-barrel is exhausted, he will come back as certainly as the spring robin. While he is absent on his winter's visit you can afford to be glad. Wear now your Christmas rose and New Year smile.

Run that old peddling waggon under a shed, where the snow and rain can rot it as much as possible, for you should never need it again : and that bony travelling critter—that has all summer advertised the scantiness of your profits among the rural inhabitants—sell him to some one who can afford to let him die in peace or clover. Give the extra feed to that sleek horse that draws your brightly painted delivery waggon around the town, because he will have more to do.

***

Load your windows with good things. Not washtubs nor yet sugar-barrels; not tea-chests nor even salt-sacks ; not eggs, nor butter, but real Christmas goods. Fill them up with candies, raisins, nuts, oranges, lemons, bonbons, and fruits of all kinds. Pick out your largest turkey and beautify him with green sprays, and smiling roses. Pile up your brightest cans or jars of olives, pears, raspberries and like fruit, your fancy biscuits, in fact every thing that can possibly assume a holiday appearance. Then your customers will smile so long and deep, that their hearts and pocket-books will open and yours will be the gain.

The bountiful harvest throughout Canada has given us every reason to hope that this season's trade will be the largest the dealers have ever experienced. The vast channels of commerce are blocked with Nature's bounties, and streams of wealth are flowing back over this broad land. Famine hangs like a dark cloud over one great country, but no country has more abundance than ours. And we will profit by the partial failure of European crops, while they procure subsistence from our surplus. It is well, then, that we rise to our opportunity by preparing to take every advantage of the circumstances presented. People have money and they intend to spend it. Every grocer can command a large share of this expenditure, if he take the proper means to attract it towards his business. The rusty magnet will not draw, nor will the rusty store. Let your store assume a gay exterior and a bright interior ; let your clerk wear his button hole bouquet and his best smile ; let your goods be fresh and attractively arranged ; and the volume of your trade will surprise you more than any Christmas box you will receive.

NOTES TAKEN ON THE ROAD.

The store of Mr. A. C. Hossacks, Quebec city, is one of the oldest and wealthiest retail grocery houses in that city. Mr. Hossacks took THE CANADIAN GROCER a year ago on trial, and now gives the judgment on it that it is a well edited journal, and places it on his permanent list. Mr. Hossacks gave a GROCER representative a bone handled whisk as a sample of Quebec manufacturing, which is as fine a specimen as we have seen. The firm Whitehead & Turne rmanufacture all kinds of brooms and brushes, and do a big business throughout the province, and the large trade Mr. Hossacks used to give to outside parties he now gives to home industry.

THE CANADIAN GROCER has reason to feel proud of its journalistic progress, when it is able in the slightest measure to interest able, well-read and competent judges such as Mr. Adam Watters, general grocer and wine merchant, Quebec city. Mr. Watters speaks highly of THE GROCER. Mr. Watters is the oldest grocer and tea merchant in Canada. He has dealt in teas over 50 years, and been in the grocery trade 35 years. Our grip had just room to hold a fine bottle of brandy that Mr. Watters purchased of a man who has been dead over 30 years. That stuff ought to be good for the toothache. Mr. Watters also produced the History of China, by Lord Elgin, a time-worn volume of much value, also a volume descriptive of the expedition of an American squadron to the China Seas and Japan in 1852, '53 and 54, under command of Commodore M. C. Perry, U. S. navy. This book is invaluable, as it is supposed to be one of a very few, if not the only one in existence, the original copies having been destroyed in the library fire in Washington many years ago. Mr. Watters has a fine large store, and caters to the oldest families and best trade in the city.

GENERAL MEETING OF THE C. T. A.

The Commercial Travellers' Association held its fourth general meeting in its rooms 57 Yonge street, on Saturday evening, John Burns president, in the chair. The report of the Board of Management was submitted by the secretary, James Sargent, showing the affairs of the association to be in a most gratifying condition, there being a considerable increase in the surplus funds and the membership roll.

Nominations for the executive for the home association and all the branches were made as follows:

President—John Burns.

First vice-president—Charles C. Van Norman.

Second Vice-president—R. J. Orr.

Treasurer—R. H. Gray.

Secretary—James Sargent.

There having been no other nominations for the above offices the nominees were declared elected.

These gentlemen were nominated as candidates for the Toronto Board of Directors, nine to be elected : F. T. Butler, C. A. Bernard, W. T. Barker, William Cauldwell, William Christie, Charles Cockshutt, A. R. Clark, W. B. Dack, M. C. Ellis, John Everett, E. Fielding, James Haywood, Joseph Kilgour, W. H. Lindsay, Hector Morrison, John Muldrew, Thomas Malcolm, Henry Nafe, John Orr, John A. Ross, E. E. Starr, H. Stanbury, George West.

Hamilton board—First vice-president, G. E. Hamilton ; second vice-president, H. G. Wright ; both elected by acclamation. For directors six to be elected, these were nominated : H. Bedlington, W. B. Croy, R. Coleman, E. A. Dally, John Hooper, J. H. Herring, Fred Johnson, W. E. Lachance and W. G. Reid.

The gentlemen who represented the following boards last year were re-elected by acclamation : Brantford, Guelph, Berlin, Montreal, Kingston, Winnipeg and Victoria, B. C.

The annual meeting of the association will be held in Shaftsbury hall on Wednesday, December 23, commencing at 10 o'clock a.m. The annual celebration will be held at Toronto on the evening of December 30. The annual smoking concert will be held at Toronto on the evening of December 28. The ballots will be mailed to the members of the entire association immediately, and the results of the election will be announced at the annual meeting.

LET US ARGUE TOGETHER.

Why is the Star Fire Lighter better than coal oil ?

BECAUSE:
It is less expense than coal oil.
No trouble in preparing kindling.
It is more effective, one square will burn 10 to 15 minutes, and is warranted to light a fire without coal oil or kindling.
It is cleaner, and is perfectly safe.

For their accommodation the firm has arranged to have coffee prepared and served out hot to all who desire it, and for this boon the employes are very grateful.

There was quite an influential meeting in Montreal at the rooms of the Dominion Commercial Travellers' association on Tuesday 1st. inst, there being present representatives from the Montreal Board of Trade and the Toronto and Montreal Commercial Travellers' Associations, Messrs. R. L. Gault, James Slessor, John Hodgson, D. L. Lockerby, J. R. Learmont and David Tees, jr., represented the Board of Trade, Messrs, C. C. Van Norman, M. C. Ellis, Geo. E. Hamilton and M. J. Sargent represented Toronto. The Montreal Commercial travellers were represented by president Hughes, Vice-president Patten, Treasurer Fred Birks, Secretary Wadsworth, and the following directors:—F. P. Benjamin, J. H. Morin, R. C. Simpson and Max. Murdock. The meeting was called for the purpose of discussing further concessions to commercial travellers from the railroad companies. A committee was appointed to meet the railroad people to ask that the baggage limit be 500 pounds, instead of 300, as at present, and that a uniform rate be made of two cents a mile instead of 2¼, as at present, this being the rate given to commercial men over the Intercolonial road; also to ask that the Canadian Pacific rescind the rate west of Port Arthur from four to two cents a mile.

CHATTEL MORTGAGE VS. JUDGMENT.

The first decision under the Ontario Act of last session amending the Assignments and Preferences Act, was rendered at Osgoode Hall the other day by Mr. Justice Osler, whose deliverance upon the case under trial shows that the amendment is effective for the purpose for which it was passed. The case was an appeal from the First Division Court of Brant in an interpleader issue between Mr. Cole, an execution creditor of one Porteous, and Mrs. Porteous, the wife of the judgment debtor claiming the goods seized under Cole's execution by virtue of a chattel mortgage from her husband. Cole's judgment was recovered on the 4th May, 1891, for $193.50 and costs. On the 20th May the goods in question were taken in execution. Upon Mrs. Porteous claiming them the usual interpleader summons was issued on the 3rd July; the interpleader issue was tried on the 15th September; and on the 3rd October judgment was given in favor of the claimant, and a new trial was afterwards refused, whereupon the creditor appealed.

Mrs. Porteous' claim was under a chattel mortgage made to her by her husband on the 4th May, 1891, on the morning of the day on which Cole recovered judgment. The bona fides of the debt to secure which it was given was not disputed, but it was contended that the mortgage was void against the execution creditor under the Assignments and Preferences Act, R.S.O., ch. 124, sec. 2, or the amending Act, 54 Vic., ch. 20.

Upon the finding of fact of the Division Court judge the chattel mortgage was not a preference within R.S.O., ch. 124, as interpreted in Molsons Bank v. Halter, 18 S.C.R., 88, 102, and the case, therefore, turned upon the question whether the 54 Vic., ch. 20, was to be regarded as having been in force when the mortgage was given, and, if so, how it was to be construed as operating upon the rights of the parties.

The Act 53 Vic., ch. 20, was assented to at 3 p.m. on the 4th May. The mortgage in question was registered at 11 a.m. on the same day.

As to this Mr. Justice Osler says: "I thought it possible that some modern authority might be found which would warrant one in holding that the rule that acts of Parliament take effect in law from the earliest moment of the day on which they are passed had been relaxed, and that for the purpose of upholding a contract made on the same day the very punctum temporis at which they received the royal assent might be enquired into. I have not, however, succeeded in finding any case which I can follow in that direction. The rule is stated as applying equally to judicial acts and Acts of Parliament, and as to the former, Brett, L.J., in Clarke v. Bradlaugh, 8 Q.B.D., 63, declared it to be an artificial rule of the common law, and that he knows of no principle on which it is founded. It is nevertheless too firmly

CORN
-BROOMS-

Owing to a shortage in the Broom Corn crop of 1891, which has caused an advance of nearly 100 per cent. in this staple article, all manufacturers of Brooms have advanced their prices, and further advances may be looked for.

Retailers will find it necessary to advance their prices at least 5c. each on all lines of Brooms.

We are at present considerably behind our orders, and must ask the indulgence of all our customers who have had their orders delayed.

fixed on our jurisprudence for me, sitting here, to cavil at it. * * * No divisions of the day are implied or contemplated. The Act must, therefore, be taken to have been in force when the mortgage was executed.

Then, upon the construction of this new Act, the learned judge delivered himself as follows :

"The section which the new Act substitutes for section 2 of the Assignments and Preferences Act now provides, sec. 2, sub-sec. 2. that every gift, conveyance, assignment or transfer of goods made by a person when he is in insolvent circumstances or unable to pay his debts in full to or for a creditor, with intent to give such creditor an unjust preference over his other creditors or over any one or more of them, shall, as against the creditor or creditors injured, delayed, prejudiced or postponed, be utterly void. Then clause (a), which follows, enacts that, subject to the provisions of sec. 3 of ch. 124, if the transaction with or for a creditor has the effect of giving that creditor a preference over the other creditors of the debtor it shall, in and with respect to any action or proceeding which within 60 days thereafter is brought, had or taken to impeach or set aside such transaction, be presumed to have been made with the intent aforesaid, and to be an unjust preference within the meaning hereof, whether the same be made voluntarily or under pressure.

"Here, then, we have a mortgage made on the 4th May by a person in insolvent circumstances or unable to pay his debts to a creditor, which has the effect of giving that creditor a preference over other creditors of the debtor. The interpleader was commenced on the 3rd July following. That was, in my opinion, within the very words of the Act, a proceeding * * * taken within 60 days after the date of the mortgage to impeach or set it aside. Therefore, by force of clause (a) it must be presumed to have been made with the intent to give the creditor an unjust preference within the meaning of the Act and is consequently utterly void. There is no escape, as it seems to me, from this conclusion, for the presumption of the wrongful intent which arises under the circumstances is a statutory one, a presumption juris et de jure, and is incontrovertible. The intent to give the forbidden preference shall be presumed when the instrument which has the effect of giving a preference is attacked within 60 days after it has been made. Conceding or proving the fact of insolvency or inability to pay, a statutory presumption arises which cannot be repelled."

TRADE SALES.

The general stock of the Postoffice store, Eden, valued at $7,50 has been sold to T. Castor, Oshawa, for 33c. on the dollar.

The men's furnishing stock belonging to the insolvent estate of McDonald & Chittenden, Yonge street, has been sold for 62½c. on the dollar to Joseph Patterson, 165 Yonge street.

The stock of Grant & Co., 77 King street east, will be sold by Suckling & Co. in two lots on Tuesday, December 15th. The first lot comprises hats, caps, gloves and mits ; the second of seal jackets, otter, beaver and astrachan goods.

THE MARKETS.

TORONTO MARKETS.

TORONTO, Dec. 11, 1891.

GROCERIES.

A relapse has followed the stronger tone that pervaded trade last week, and the vital force of business generally is much lower than it was then. The spell of activity lasted till Friday. Since then things have been quite flat. The dulness is telling upon prices more than in any former part of the season, and dried fruits, sugar, nuts, etc., can be bought at easier prices than they could at time of issue last week. Fruits especially have weakened. Canned goods appear to be in a healthy state, as reports of cutting have not been connected with them, and the output continues to be large. Tea is quiet, with concessions obtainable in the grades that are least in demand. Payments are not commented on this week nearly so much as current business is. The volume of business done one month or three months ago is not represented by an unusually large number of accounts now due, so that they do not take so much money to go round for payments as was anticipated. The farmers are freer sellers of grain than they were, deliveries of barley and peas being much larger. More wheat has been sold as well.

CANNED GOODS.

The activity of canned goods is one feature that redeems from complete dulness the of current trade in staples.. Sales are not usually numerous or large in this month, and have heretofore but slightly affected the situation as it stood at the close of November. But the business of the present season has been considerable. Retailers who bought as a rule in small quantities, are now coming forward with good-sized orders. Vegetables are in chief request. Prices are steady at $1.05 for round assorted lots. No standard brands of anything can be bought below $1.05. There are some lines of corn reported to be offering at $1, but the quality is not first-class. Peas are as firm as ever at $1.05 to $1.10, and tomatoes in the same position. Some jobbers report themselves sold out of certain brands of tomatoes, and unable to repeat orders. They claim that the like of this has never been known before. The demand for fruits has not attained to any strength. Gallon apples have come into some interest on export account, the market worked up in England by United States shippers having awakened some of our packers to the value of the same outlet for their stock. A few shipments have been made, but higher prices are waited for. Meanwhile the United States packers are filling up the demand, satisfied to get what the market will now yield. They are selling, laid down in England, at 35c. less per case than packers ask f.o.b. here. Salmon is held more firmly on the street, and $1.40 appears to be the bottom quality. All the choice brands are out of first hands, and the stand taken by local holders does not indicate any feeling that the supply is too large.

COFFEE.

Prices of Brazils have hardened but not advanced under the influence of stronger views in the primary market. Brokers here have been firmer ever since the re-opening of communication with Brazil. The stock of Rios on spot continues to suffice for the easy demand that is experienced, and jobbers are therefore not forced on the market in its present stage, which may though be more than temporary. In Mochas and Javas there is no change to quote and but limited business is being transacted.

MARKETS—Continued.

DRIED FRUIT.

Fruits are the centre of the main activity in current trade. A large output is reported, but prices continue to be unsatisfactory, being both low and liable to further decline in the case of raisins. Valencia raisins are quoted as low as 5¼c., though it is said that a considerable quantity have been sent back by retailers who bought as low as that figure and also a quarter higher. The quality appears to be unsatisfactory in the majority of instances where less than 5¾c. is asked, which is the lowest point at which acceptable stock is yet obtainable. There is still a stock of old Valencia raisins here, which sells as low as 3½c. This is a local cause of easier prices for new crop stock, but the ruling cause is external; it is evidently the abundance of California raisins which are displacing foreign fruit in the United States demand, and turning more of the latter this way than in former years. Prices in London, New York and Denia are easier in consequence of the strong rivalry of California fruit in the United States market. London layers, as in fact all Malaga fruit, have gone done very fast lately, as the demand for them rather hangs back. The Bevan brand sells for $2.25 and the Casados at $2.35, but sales of the former as low as $2.15 are reported. All Malagas are quoted very considerably lower in Prices Current. Currants are slightly easier, but good quality stock is steady and unchanged. There is not much doing in new prunes, and stocks are too small yet for prices to be quite settled. New Hallowee dates at 5¾ to 6c. are selling freely.

NUTS.

Trade in Grenoble walnuts at 11 to 11½c. and Bordeaux at 14c. has been considerable. Stocks are ample. Supplies of Brazil nuts have also been received the past few days, to sell at 10½c. Almonds have gone and are going out freely. Cocoanuts range from $5.50 to $6 and are in request. The demand for all nuts is fully up to the average for Christmas trade.

RICE AND SPICES.

The demand for rice is inconsiderable, and the price has not varied. The local market is quite featureless in spices, with the exception of a slightly better activity in nutmeg, cloves, cinnamon, etc. Quotations are steady at last week's points.

SUGAR.

The call for sugar has not acquired any new strength from this week's trade, and the market continues dull. The situation outside has not been modified in any respect, firmness in prices, with likelihood of an advance being quite general on account of the limitations in the supply of raw cane sugar and of prospective shortage in beet. This coming year's demand is expected to be a very large one, as it will be the first throughout the whole of which sugar has been duty free to the two English-speaking nations of this continent. Some of the refiners have advanced an eighth on granulated, but this has not been general and has not affected jobber's prices, which continue at 4⅞ to 5c. For yellows the lowest quotation is 3½c., at which probably more business could be done this week than last.

Willett & Grey's New York report says: The American markets, with the exception of New Orleans, have been stagnant and without business, for the reason that few sugars are in stock, and the holders' views for them do not interest buyers, notwithstanding the prices are ⅛ to 3-16c. below the parity of the European markets, which have been much stimulated during the week by short crop reports. The New Orleans market, however, has been very active under heavy receipts of the domestic crop sugars, which are being largely purchased by the northern refiners, who are obtaining sugars of quite high test, say 96° or over 3¼c. per lb. there.

Quotations remained steady with slight variations on a few grades, and with a moderate but slightly improving demand. On the 1st instant the Baltimore refinery, which has averaged 800 barrels per day since it started, stopped work temporarily. The latter refinery has a stock on hand which it is selling at New York prices for granulated, and other Philadelphia refiners conform to the same prices. Buyers never carry any stock in December, but in view of the strong position of the raw sugar markets it will be well to take advantage of any concessions made by refiners, and to maintain larger stocks after January 1.

Java crop is 50,000 tons under last year.

Beet crop indications, by cable, are that the estimates will be further reduced, some say by 100,000, and some by 300,000 tons. France is showing a very notable deficiency.

The Louisiana crop of 1890-91 was 220,000 tons. This season's crop is not expected to exceed 180,000 tons.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Syrups are still very cheap and somewhat slow of sale, while low grades are far from plentiful. In molasses there is slightly more activity, particularly for grades suitable for baking.

TEAS.

Teas are in partial neglect. They usually are side-tracked during the month of December, when the demand is busied with fruits, nuts and other seasonable goods. There are some good blacks going just now at easy prices. Japans are plentiful and in all varieties of grade, the cheaper teas being steady and the better grades being somewhat easy. Trade is strongest at the lower end of the scale of quality. The lowest prices are 14c. for Japans, 15c. for blacks and 16c. for Young Hyson. There has not been much doing in Indian teas this week, the low prices in London having failed to attract much attention from importers. The demand from retailers has been up to the average.

The London Produce Markets Review says:—"There has been no falling-off in the demand for Indian tea. The quantity brought forward has not been excessive, and there was a hardening tendency at the earlier sales for the good common sorts. These teas offer better value than for a considerable time past, and the trade are not slow to take advantage of this, as is shown by the freedom with which they are buying. A slight check in the demand, however, is not improbable during next month, but if the importers regulate the supplies, and avoid weighting the market too heavily, prices may remain steady. The medium kinds of both whole and broken leaf have been well bid for, at steady, and in some cases rather firmer, rates. The finest kinds continue to sell readily, and, as they are not too plentiful, they command high prices. Compared with the corresponding period of last year, re-exports from July to October show a considerable development in the shipping trade, satisfactory increases having occurred in both Indian and Ceylon teas. Present low rates are attracting much attention from foreign markets.

MARKET NOTES.

The next wholesale house to make a change of premises is that of J. W. Lang & Co., who will move into the warehouse that Sloan & Crowther are leaving vacant. These commodious premises will be modernized and refitted throughout.

The Cuban sugar crop is expected to exceed last year's yield 10 to 15 per cent.

Mr. Fred W. Ward, of Messrs. John P Mott & Co., was in the city the latter end of last week.

The consolidated tobacco firm represented by S. Davis & Sons and Ritchie & Co. are going into plug tobacco as well as cigars and cigarettes, and by the new year they will have their plug goods on the market. Mr. Eugene Davis has just returned from buying tobacco leaf in the Havana market.

The Star Manufacturing Co., of London are now shipping large quantities of their fire lighters to all points in Canada. This week they ship to Nova Scotia and Victoria, British Columbia, thus covering the whole of Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific. This company is now putting in new machinery specially designed for themselves, to enable them to keep up with the increased demand. This article has been very favorably commented upon by several of the leading newspapers in Canada.

A scarcity of peels is beginning to be revealed by the active demand for holidays. The imports were limited on account of an unsatisfactory experience last year, an excess of stock having then been brought in and very low prices realized. Supplies cannot be replenished locally as they could a year ago, as no one is now manufacturing here. Orange is scarcest. Jobbers sold to each other early in the week at 16½ to 17c. Prices to retailers are 16 to 17c. for lemon; 17 to 18c. for orange; 26 to 28c. for citron.

Ivorine Starch is the newest thing for laundry work. It is made by the St Lawrence Starch Co. It differs from ordinary laundry starches in that it is not necessary to boil before using, being reduced by simply adding lukewarm water and is ready for immediate use. Another advantage is that collars, cuffs, etc., may be starched directly after passing through the wringer. It is put up in boxes of 40 packages each, and sold by all the wholesale trade at $3 per box. The advertisement giving fuller particulars will be found in this issue.

MARKETS—Continued.

PETROLEUM.

The price of refined petroleum is steady in sympathy with an unfluctuating market for raw. Last week's quotations are repeated, and the movement of business is a little stronger than it was then, the maximum of darkness being now almost reached. Larger lots have been disposed of.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

The butter market is still in a healthy state. No congestion of stock is heard of, and good butter never lingers long in the hands of buyers. Medium butter finds fair sale as well, while low grades are far from plentiful. The prices going for tubs are 16 to 18c., the best butter being taken at these figures. For mediums, prices run from 13 to 15c. In this class the receipts are largest. The demand for low grades suitable for baking, though not by any means a large one, is gaining as Christmas approaches. The price ranges form 10 to 12c., but scarcely any purchases have been made below the upper figure. Deliveries of butter are quite free now, but the demand is equal to the task of keeping the market cleaned up.

Cheese is in stronger position than ever. Choice stock of late make is worth 11 to 11½c., with prices ranging downward to 10½c., for early summer makes. The export market is strong.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

BEANS—The week's sales have been on the small scale at prices from $1.40 to $1.50. Large lots are $1.25 to $1.35, with buyers rather backward with bids.

DRIED APPLES—The market shows slight improvement, but is still far from bright. Sellers have hard work getting 4¼c. for round lots. Jobbed out, the prices are 4½ to 4¾c.

EVAPORATED APPLES—The stock added to supplies on this market since last report is small in amount. The price 6½ to 7c. for large lots and 7½ to 8c. for small ones.

EGGS.—The relations between supply and demand vary little from one week to another. Just now there is no complaint about receipts. Strictly newly laid are worth 19c., and other fresh stock 18c. Limed are selling better at 14½ to 15c.

GAME.—The unsteady weather causes fitfulness in the demand. Venison is 7 to 8c. in the carcass, 10c. for hind quarters and 5 to 6c. in fore quarters. Partridges are 40 to 50c. per brace, and ducks are from 40 to 75c. according to size. Rabbits are 25c. a pair.

HIDES.—No. 1 green cows' are 4½c., and steers' 5c. Receipts are backward, while the demand is a little livelier. Cured are worth 5c.

HONEY.—Choice extracted is worth 10c., and lower grades shade down to 7c. Sections are steady at 14 to 16c. For the latter there is more demand as fancy stock for Christmas.

HOPS—The position of the market is clearer and shows the advantage to be slightly on holders' side who now can get as high as 19c. for moderate sized lots, though for large lots 16c. is about the best price obtainable. Holders are still far from free sellers, and the demand is now quite active.

ONIONS—All the trade now doing is in a jobbing way, the movement of round lots from produce merchants' hands being about over. Prices are $1.75 to $2.25.

POULTRY—Offerings from outside are not so numerous towards the close of the week as they were at the outset. Dealers are not buying freely until the present stocks are worked off, and sellers are evidently holding more generally for Christmas prices. The unstable weather is against any very active business between producers and dealers. Chickens are 25 to 35c., ducks are 45 to 70c. per pair, geese are 4 to 5c. per lb., and turkeys are 7 to 8c.

POTATOES—More business has been done this week than was done last. Cars have changed hands at 43 to 45c. Out of store lots are 50 to 55c.

SEEDS—Receipts of alsike have not kept up even to the low rate reached last week. The same causes that delay the delivery of other grain tells against alsike, and the farmers look for the prices of a year ago. The range is $5.50 to $6.50 according to quality, Red Clover is beginning to come into market interest, but none has yet been offered.

SKINS—Sheepskins are in low supply at 90c. Calfskins are also scarce at 5 to 7c.

WOOL—The market shows no signs of improvement. Offers have been less liberal, and buyers are not sorry. The price is 18 to 19½c.

DRESSED HOGS AND PROVISIONS.

Buyers of dressed hogs appear to feel their way unusually carefully this season, rejecting with more than wonted fastidiousness all weights that do not come up to the minimum standard for packing. Nor are they equally ready buyers on all days. The run of deliveries or the volume and trend of inquiries have no doubt much to do with this. Deliveries have been rather lighter this week, but inquiries have been very numerous, and the maximum price is 10c. lower, that is, it quotes $5.40. All provisions are quiet.

BACON—is quiet at 7¾ to 8¼c. for long clear, 10 to 11c. for smoked backs, 10½ to 11c. for smoked bellies, and 8¾ to 9c. for rolls.

HAMS—Are unchanged at 11 to 11½c.

LARD—Is but moderately active at 9½ to 10¼c. for pure and 8½ to 9c. for compound.

BARREL PORK—Heavy mess is $13.75 to $14.50, and short cut is $16 to $16.50.

FISH AND OYSTERS.

The market is easier and will continue so for a month, especially in dried fish. Haddock and cod have advanced in price, the former being 7½ and the latter 8½. Haddies are still plentiful but of a better quality and the price much easier at 6 to 6½. A carload of Manitoba white fish is in the market, this being the first shipment of this palatable fish this season.

SALT.

The trade in car lots has been higher this week, but six cars were sold, comprising 2 cars of bbls., 2 cars fine sacs, and 2 cars common sacs. The trade in small lots has been brisk and prices remain firm.

MARKETS—Continued.

FRUITS.

Apples are active, a considerable movement in an export way being maintained. The price ranges from $1.75 to $2.50 per barrel. Cranberries are active at $8 to $9 for choice dark, and $7.50 to $8 for light. Pears are 40 to 60c. per basket.

GREEN FRUIT.

Two or three lots of Jamaica oranges constitute the stock that is now on the market. The price is $6 to $7. Floridas are plentiful and active at very low prices, $2.75 to $3.25 being the ruling range of quotations. Valencias are still quoted high in the primary market and all leading points of distribution. Malaga lemons are $3.50 to $4 per box, and $7.50 to $8 per chest. Messinas are $4.50 to $5. The demand for lemons is of considerable proportions, but still below the ideas that sellers have of what it ought to be. Malaga grapes are easier at $5 to $6 for kegs and $3 to $3.25 for half kegs. Pineapples are scarce at 15 to 20c.

DRY GOODS.

There is a firm feeling in the trade, although this being a general stock-taking time, orders are not so brisk. The indications at present are that too much expectation must not be built on the spring trade. It will be good but not likely to assume uncommon proportions. The dry goods men have been taking a leaf from the grocer's book and trying to shorten their terms. It is rumored that the combination of the colored cotton industry has not been successful.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Dec. 10, 1891.

There has been little change of importance since our report of a week ago, and until the winter roads are settled no dealers here look for much improvement. In dried fruit, jobbers have been sorting up their stock in anticipation of the holiday movement, which has led to some business out of first hands, but other lines are quiet, and there is no change in values to note.

SUGAR, SYRUPS, ETC.

The sugar market maintains its firm tone, although there is no advance in prices, and refiners refuse to make any large contracts with the market for raw stock as firm as it is. Buyers, however, are only filling their actual wants, and it is quite probable when the movement increases that values may advance. Yellows are quoted at 3½ to 4¼c., but sales have been made at 7-16c., and granulated is firm at 4½c.

Syrups rule quiet and uninteresting at unchanged prices, but there are apparently some interesting developments ahead in connection with the molasses market. Holders of Barbadoes are talking very strong and predict an advance in the course of a month, claiming that stocks are exceptionally small. On the other hand there is New Orleans stock offering freely on the market and meeting with favor. We quote Barbadoes 37c., and New Orleans 28c to 30c.

TEAS.

There is a fair trade doing in teas in large lots but the market is without feature with the exception perhaps of the cutting in Japans by one wholesale house who are apparently using teas as a leader.

COFFEES.

There has been a fair movement in coffees and under light stock values are steady. Rios are unchanged at 19 to 20c. and the same can be said of Jamaicas while business in Maracaibo has been done at 20c. Spices are dull and unchanged.

RICE.

Rice is quiet and without particular feature. We quote: Patna $4.50 to $5, Japan, $4.25 to $4.50, standard $3.90, and off grades $3.50 in car lots.

DRIED FRUIT.

The approach of the holiday season has led to some sorting up by jobbers who are getting their stocks in shape for the demand natural to the season. This has led to some business from first hands in dried fruits and brightened up the market a little. Valencia raisins have about touched bottom, for although there are large supplies of damaged fruit on the market in New York that exercises an unsettling influence, the stock of really prime fruit is not excessive and values on it are fairly steady. Valencia firsts are leaving first hands on the basis of 5 to 5¼c. for round lots and seconds 4¼ to 5c. Currants show no change, the firm feeling being maintained. Business has been done for wholesale lots at 5½ to 5¾c.

CANNED GOODS.

The only feature in canned goods appears to be a stronger feeling in tomatoes, but there is little or no movement in any line to note. Occasional sales of round lots are reported at $1 to $1.05, but other lines are dull and unchanged.

GREEN FRUIT.

There is little doing in green fruit, but prices are fairly steady, while stocks are not large, in view of the wants for holiday requirements. Business in this connection will not be felt for some time in green fruit, and in the meantime the market is quiet. Florida oranges are moving slowly at $2.75 to $3.75 and lemons are unchanged.

FISH.

The fish market is quiet and without feature at the moment, but stocks are light and prices very steady. In fact once the winter roads are an accomplished fact, a higher range is anticipated, and staple lines especially, such as herring and dry cod are in very small supply.

HOPS.

The market has a steady tendency, and holders' ideas in the country are pretty firm. There are some nice lots still in first hands through the Townships section, but they are held for 20c., and the best bid so far has been 19c., so that no business results On spot there is very little stock offering, and what there is is held for 21c. to 22c.

APPLES.

The apple market rules firm, advices from Liverpool continuing steady. On spot values have a firm tendency, with a fair movement on the basis of $2 to $2.25.

PROVISIONS.

There is some business in pork at quotations, but holders do not expect any movement of importance until the winter roads are an accomplished fact. We quote as follows: Canadian short cut, per brl. $16.00 to $16.25; mess pork, western, per brl. $13.50 to $14.00; short cut, western, per brl. $16.25 to $16.50; hams, city cured, per lb. 10½c. to 11½c; lard Canadian, in pails, 8⅞c. to 9c; bacon, per lb. 9c. to 10c; lard refined, per lb. 7¾ to 8c.

DRESSED HOGS.

Dressed hogs are coming forward more freely and are meeting with a fairly good demand but at lower prices. Car loads are offering at $5.25 to $5.50. Single hogs are selling at $5.75.

EGGS.

There is still a good enquiry for eggs the low price and excellent condition of the stock offering, keeping up the consumptive demand. Limed are unchanged 15 to 16c.

FLOUR AND FEED.

TORONTO, DEC. 10, 1891.

In all breadstuffs steadiness has characterized the market. There has been some alteration in feed, particularly in bran, shorts, and barley, all of which are considerably higher than they were last week.

The meeting of the Millers' Association was well attended. The scheme of incorporation was defeated. A resolution was passed to memorialize the Dominion Government to pass an order in council authorizing the Quebec, Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton and London Boards of Trade to name one delegate each to meet in Montreal and select a straight roller standard more in harmony with this year's winter wheat product, and that the expenses be paid in the usual way. Several other resolutions were passed.

The following report on the credit system was adopted: It stated that the committee had visited the managers of the following banks: Commerce, Dominion, Imperial, Toronto, Standard, Traders', Ontario, of Toronto; in Montreal, Merchants', Molsons and British North America; at Ottawa, Bank of Ottawa; at Hamilton, Bank of Hamilton. The committee recalled to their recollection the action of the Millers' Association in 1882, where at a large meeting of the millers of this province it was decided to stop the system of selling flour on credit in car loads. Of late, the credit system having crept in again, it was deemed desirable to have the banks co-operate with the millers to check it. They submitted to the bankers the resolution passed at the last meeting of millers, pledging themselves so far as possible to individually stop selling flour on credit in car loads. The banks in every instance expressed sympathy with the movement and pledged themselves to assist them in this matter. The committee recommended in all cases where sales are made in car loads of flour and mill feed, that the members would pledge themselves to attach the bills of lading to the draft, which will only be given up on payment.

A resolution was passed disapproving of short weight in barrels, of which complaints had been received, the object of the dishonesty being to meet competition, etc. The Dominion Government is to be requested to have the officers of the inland revenue look after short weight in bag and barrel, and the undertare of barrels.

FLOUR.—City millers' and dealers' prices are: Manitoba patents, $5.25; strong bakers', $4.85; Ontario patents, $5; straight roller, $4.75; extra, $4.10 to $4.15: low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.75.

Car prices are: Toronto freights—Manitoba patents, $5.30 to $5.50; Manitoba strong bakers' $4.90 to $5.10; Ontario patents, $4.50 to $4.90; straight roller, $4.15 to $4.25; extra, $4.05 to $4.10; low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.75.

MEAL—Oatmeal is unchanged at $4.30 to $4.35 for standard and rolled, and cornmeal at $3 to $4.

FEED—Bran is firm at $14.50 to $15, shorts at $16 to $17, oats 34 to $35c. and feeding grades of barley at 49 to 51c.

HAY—Deliveries are backward and prices firm at $11.50 to $12 on track.

STRAW—is quiet at $6 to $6.50.

POULTRY.

Turkeys and chickens are in good demand all receipts being quickly moved out of dealers' hands but the call for geese is slow. We quote : Turkeys, 9 to 10c. per. lb. ; chickens, 6 to 8c. geese, 6 to 7½c, ducks, 8 to 9c ; partridge are steady at 40 to 45c. per brace for firsts, and 25 to 30c. per brace for seconds.

BUTTER.

The market does not show any alteration. Prices generally are too high for shipping business, and there is only a small movement to note on jobbing account. Creamery is held for 24c., but 23½c. is the very best bid, while lots of Townships dairy offered at 20c. did not find any takers. There is very little doing in Western, 16 to 17c. being the basis.

CHEESE.

It is a purely nominal market for cheese which dose not show any animation, while prices are hard to fix. The stock is not excessive, is in few hands and firmly held, so that with limits not high enough no movement of importance is noted.

GRAIN.

There is a small local movement in oats, but the general market is dull. Wheat and peas are changing hands at railroad points, but there is no business on spot. The stocks in store compared with those of a week ago show an increase of 25,398 wheat, 14,373 barley, and a decrease of 4,756 peas, 42,398 oats, and 1,130 rye. Compared with a year ago there is an increase of 172,934 wheat, 178,716 peas, 20,628 oats, 237,575 barley, and a decrease of 3,933 corn, 5,110 rye. We quote:—No. 2 hard Manitoba, $1.03 to $1.04 ; No. 3, do., 97c; No. 2 Northern, $1.04; peas, 75 to 76c. per 66 pounds ; oats, 35½ to 36c. per 34 pounds in store, corn, 72c. duty paid ; feed barley, 48 to 50c. ; good malting do., 60 to 62c.

FLOUR.

There is only a small jobbing movement in flour which does not show any change of importance. City grades have a small call for actual wants at about $5.00 to $5.10 and Ontario straight rollers $4.70 to $4.80 but these prices would be shaded for a round lots. The stock in store shows an increase of 3,702 bbls. compared with a week ago and a decrease of 7,966 bbls. compared with a year ago. Patent spring, old wheat $5.30 Patent spring, new wheat, $5.00 to 5.50 ; Patent winter, $5 to $5.04 ; straight roller $4.70 to $4.80 ; Extra $4.40 to $4.55 ; Superfine $3.95 to $4.18 ; City strong bakers' $5.00 to $5.10; Strong bakers' $4.75 to 5.50.

OATMEAL.

The oatmeal market is quiet, but prices rule steady with holders not disposed to concession, $2 to $2.10 being the basis.

HALIFAX MARKET QUOTATIONS.

(Wholesale Selling Rates.)

HALIFAX, Dec. 9, 1891.

BREADSTUFFS.—So far as wheat and flour are concerned, dragging their weary length of dullness along, there is no vitality whatever in the trade. The volume of trade is large enough but there is no possible profit in it.

Manitoba highest grade patents, $5.75 to 6.00 ; High grade patents, $0.00 to 5.20 ; Good 90 per cent Patents, $0.00 to 5.05 ; Straight grade, $0.00 to 4.90; Good seconds, $0.00 to 4.60 ; Graham flour, $0.00 to 5.15 ; Oatmeal, $0.00 to 4.45 ; Rolled wheat, $5.55 ; Wheat bran per ton, $00.00 to $19.50; Middlings, $00 00 to $23.50 ; Shorts, $00.00 to $22.50. ; Moulee, $24.00 to $28.50 ; Split Peas $0.00 to $4.40; White beans per bushel, $1.50 to 1.55 ; Pot Barley per bbl, $3.90 to $4.00 ; Canadian oats, choice quality, 43c. to 45c. ; P. E. I. oats 41 to 43c.

SUGAR.—Refined sugar continues firm with an upward tendency, and although no actual advance in prices has been established, a stop has been put to cutting.

Cut loaf, 5½c. ; Granulated, 4½c. ; Circle A, 4⅜c.; White extra C, 4¼c.; Standard, 3½c. to 3⅝c ; Extra Yellow C, 3⅛c.; Yellow C, 3¾c.

MOLASSES.—The local market is very quiet but firm, and the holders of the small quantities that are at hand here evince no anxiety to do business at the non current rates.

Barbados, 36c. ; Demerara, 35 to 38c. ; Diamond N. 48c. ; Trinidad, 32½ to 33c.

FISH.—There is nothing new to report regarding fish in this market. Receipts are gradually dwindling down, and stocks on hand are lower than they have been for many years at this season. A sluggish export business is doing, but there is really not life and probably a very narrow margin of profit in trade. Hard C. B. codfish ex vessel $4.25 ; western shore $3.75; bank $4.50; bay $4; Newfoundland $3.70.

ST. JOHN, N. B., MARKETS.

ST. JOHN, N. B., Dec. 9. 1891

The cold wave last week has been succeded this by very much milder weather, and has had the effect of inducing a large number of coasting vessels to make an extra trip for supplies, which makes a noticeable increase in business along the wharves, and ware houses of the wholesalers and jobbers. The fall trade has been unusually good with them, though the retailers have complained considerably at the small amount of money in circulation.

SUGAR—There is a stronger tone to the sugar market, though prices are about the same as last quoted. Holders do not seem as anxious to sell as a few days ago. Granulated is quoted 4½ to 4⅝c. Yellows at 3½ to 3⅓c. Paris Lumps 6½ to 6¾c.

SYRUP—in cans are dull, though a fair demand is noticed for bbl. and half bbls. 3 to 3⅛ is about the quotation.

FLOUR—There is not much doing in breadstuffs, though all dealers are well stocked. The demand is fair and prices are firm. It is hard to decide whether to look for an upward or downward move, as opinions are so conflicting. Manitoba patents $6 to $6.10, Ontario high grade $5.35 to $5.40, medium patents $5.10 to $5.25.

OATMEAL—Low stocks have caused a good inquiry for oatmeal, which has put oatmeal up somewhat. Rolled is selling at $4.80 to $4.90, Standard at $4.75 to $4.85.

CORN MEAL—Has been in better demand the past week, though prices are unchanged. It is selling at $3.10 to $3.20.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

APPLES.—Good No. 1 stock are hard to get, though the market is fairly well supplied with No. 2 apples. Bishop Pippins, Baldwin and other No. 1 kinds are selling readily at $2.50 to $2.85. No. 2. sell at $1.85 to $2.

BUTTER.—Is without change, the market has been fairly well supplied and prices are 17 to 19c.

EGGS.—Are scarce, and any nice lots readily sell at 22c.

CHEESE.—Is higher and scarce, being quoted at 10½ to 11c.

BEANS.—Are $1.70 to $1.85.

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Co., Montreal:

GENTLEMEN,—I have personally taken samples from a large stock of your Granulated Sugar, "REDPATH" brand, and carefully tested them by the Polariscope, and I find these samples to be as near to absolute purity as can be obtained by any process of Sugar-Refining.

The test by the Polariscope showed in yesterday s yield 99·90 per cent. of Pure Cane Sugar, which may be considered commercially as ABSOLUTELY PURE SUGAR.

It is well-known

That successful Doctors read all the latest medical books and papers and go abroad occasionally to study. Successful lawyers read legal publications to learn the latest legal decisions and points constantly cropping up. Teachers, clergymen, druggists, architects, all read the publication issued in the interests of their profession. They must do so to keep up with the times.

The same applies to grocers and general merchants. They must not only read the best papers published in their interests but must also watch the advertisements closely. There they learn the rise and fall in prices; latest trade news and methods of buying, handling and selling goods, so that they may make the greatest profit. A doctor reads much that he already knows, so does a lawyer. So does a number of any of the other professions. So will a merchant. It is often the issue of the paper he misses that is worth dollars to him. His best and safest policy, therefore, is to subscribe for his trade paper.

The only exclusively grocery and general store paper is THE CANADIAN GROCER issued weekly, subscription price $2.00 per year.

SPECIAL TO OUR READERS.

As the design of THE CANADIAN GROCER is to benefit mutually all interested in the business, we would request all parties ordering goods or making purchases of any description from houses advertising with us to mention in their letter that such advertisement was noticed in THE CANADIAN GROCER.

THE CANADIAN GROCER has a bona fide combined circulation among grocers and general merchants double that of any trade journal in Canada.

The epithet "dishonored," in its application to an unaccepted draft, means just the same thing that it does in any other connection. It is not one of those commercial terms which have taken on a secondary or special meaning that utterly differs from and completely displaces the primary one. It means "to put dishonor upon," and not simply upon the insensible paper, but upon the person or firm who has issued that paper. Hence, our correspondent, whose letter appears on another page, rightly regards the non-acceptance of a draft, in certain circumstances, as an insult to the house to whom it is returned dishonored. The circumstances required to make it such an offence are: that the goods for which the trader is drawn upon have been received some time before the draft is made upon him; that he has had sufficient time in which to notify the drawer of any mistake or other fault in the shipment; and that warning has been given him that the draft will be made at a certain time. These circumstances give to any man of a courteous disposition a chance to do any demurring, or protesting or appealing for extra time before the draft comes. If he has had adequate opportunity to find all fault and put in all excuses beforehand, his neglect to make use of it until he does so by dishonering the draft is exceedingly ungracious and offensive. A man may not have the money when the draft comes, but in the conditions above supposed, he could say before he is drawn upon that he would be unprepared.

There are circumstances in which the refusal to honor a draft is no breach of commercial amenity. When the draft accompanies the bill of lading, it frequently is presented for payment before the goods are seen. Of course even between the most upright and largest concerns the refusal to honor a draft till the condition of the goods has been looked into is no more than a matter of ordinary caution. In such a case it is not an unexpected thing, and the house whose draft is declined for such a cause can find no fault with anybody. It happens as well sometimes that drafts accompanying bills of lading are drawn for goods that the receiver is dissatisfied with. He has no option in such a case but to pay or dishonor the draft. With the policy of a business man he usually and quite correctly takes the latter course. He had no chance to do anything before the presenting of the draft, and so is absolved from any charge of boorishness. If the goods have suffered in transit, through railway accident, weather damage or other cause, which may lead to a dispute about their value when come to hand, it is well that the receiver should keep as much as possible of the advantage in his own hands.

To refuse to honor a draft for a trifling cause, or after ample time and opportunity have lapsed for all complaints and pleas to have been made, is very exasperating to a creditor, and cannot be considered as anything short of an ultimatum from the debtor that he wishes to discontinue trading with the people he treats in this way. He cannot expect any very considerate treatment afterwards from a house which he has used so cavalierly. He puts himself at a disadvantage if he has any intention of trading in the future with that house, whose memory for an ill service may usually be depended on to be good. A rude man may ignore every chance of doing things in a gracious way, that he may exercise his crookedness to the full when the most disagreeable course is all that is left open to him; but in business there are always two sides to the connection, and the man who wants to work against the grain needn't expect to be rubbed down with anything much softer than a brick. Even if a trader has good cause to reserve payment for any particular shipment of goods, he has no reason to put off the statement of his objections until there is a draft made upon him. If he has delayed the matter long after receipt of goods, and after notice of intending draft, he ought to pay the latter when it comes, and depend upon the honor of the house he owes.

* * *

The annoyance which many wholesale merchants and manufacturers are caused by returned drafts has been apparently greater this fall. The cause probably in the majority of cases is want of ready money, though some pretext is very often given instead of this real reason, the drawee being unwilling to admit that he was so negligent as not to advise his creditor in time of his inability to meet the debt. The practice of returning goods is perhaps not less objectionable, but it usually is more justified than that of returning drafts that follow delivery. The return of a draft should be made only in cases where nothing else can be done.

NEWFOUNDLAND COD AND HERRING.

The hostile attitude of the Newfoundland government towards the fishermen of our Maritime Provinces has at last provoked the Canadian government to cancel the privilege it has heretofore allowed to shippers of that colony, of entering their fish into this country free of duty, The tariff clause prescribing the duty on fish now applies to Newfoundland as to any other country. Its codfish will be taxed a cent a pound, and its herring half a cent a pound. The withdrawal of this discrimination in favor of Newfoundland has led the government of that colony to a measure of retaliation. It also exercises a tariff power that was held in reserve, by adding 20c. a barrel to the present duty on flour, which is one of its leading imports from this country. There are several other Canadian products which find a market in Newfoundland that are likely to be further taxed, as the authority under which the addition to the duty on flour is made, leaves it in the hands of the government to impose extra duties as well on pork, butter, tobacco, kerosene, cornmeal, hay, oats, potatoes, turnips, cabbages and other vegetables. The leveying of these extra duties is made conditional upon the imposition of duties upon Newfoundland fish by any country whose fishermen have the privilege of taking fish upon any of the coasts of Newfoundland. As Canada's fishermen have not such a privilege, it is probable that Newfoundland's own courts will rule against the application of this discretionary power to this country.

The beginning of the trouble between the two colonies was caused last year by the enforcement of the Newfoundland Bait Act upon Canadian as upon other fishermen. The bringing of Canadians under the meaning of this Act was a breach of faith on the part of the Newfoundland government. That Act was passed in 1887. It enacted that no bait fish could be sold at the Newfoundland ports except to vessels bearing license from the Newfoundland government. This would limit fishing on the banks to those who held license to buy bait at Newfoundland ports, as United States, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick or Quebec fishermen could not bring the bait from elsewhere and preserve it sufficiently for fishing. When the Act was passed Canada remonstrated and appealed to the Imperial Government to have it vetoed. The Premier of Newfoundland gave assurances both to the government of Great Britain and that of Canada, that the measure would not be enforced against British vessels, as it was calculated only to check the operations of French and other foreign fishermen When the present Premier, Sir. William Whiteway, took office, he enforced the Act against Canada, and in reply to protests and reminders of the pledge given to except Canada from its operation, he said that owing to Canadian vessels supplying bait to the French it was necessary to bring the former also under the provisions of the Act. This year his government went a step farther, and refused to allow any Canadian vessel to take out a license to buy bait. The effect of this would be to put an end ot the fishing industry among thousands of Canadians in the Maritime Provinces. The fish are not in Newfoundland waters only. On the tops of those great plateaus called the banks, whose surfaces do not come up far enough to make islands of them, the fish feed in neutral waters. But Newfoundland holds the key of the situation in her control of the bait. Whether or not she keeps up the extra duty on imports from this country, she will probably endeavor to keep up the prohibitions against bait-buying by our fishermen. Thereby she will increase the quantity of the fish supplied to us by her fishermen, perhaps sufficiently to offset the effect of the duty we have imposed, and will certainly reduce the competition she has heretofore met from our fishermen to stock such foreign markets, as the United States, the West Indies, etc. As for the extra duty she has imposed on Canadian imports, the burden of it will be evaded to a considerable extent, both to Newfoudland importers and Canadian distribztors, by shipping stock from the United States in bond through the Maritime Provinces, a thing which has been done to sme extent already.

Probably the governing party in Newfoundland is not entirely displeased at the conflict of tariffs that has thus arisen between the two colonies, as it will tend to direct both sides of the trade of Newfoundland to the United States. This was what was aimed at by the recent treaty which that colony had negotiated with the United States, but which fell through, mainly,as the Newfoundlanders hold, through Canada's interference. Some natural vindictiveness was felt which probably finds full expression in the present course of the Newfoundlanders.

NOTES ON WINDOW DRESSING.

It works both ways. The best dressed window in the town indicates the most energetic merchant; while the most energetic merchant has the best dressed window.

To spend labor and time on a poorly-dressed window is that much thrown away. To spend still more time and still more labor, and to have as a result a really attractive window is an investment only surpassed by a good advertisement in a live paper. It will give a great profit.

Evergreens are always pleasing at this season. Dress the back, sides and top of your windows with evergreens, and from these hang oranges, lemons, colored eggs, bon bon boxes, bunches of raisins, candy forms, and anything else which will help to make the greens look attractive, such as paper flowers and small flags. Then place some bright fresh goods on the floor of the window, arranging them as regards form and qnantity, as your taste may indicate and as the size of your window will allow. Remember, you are not dressing the window just because it is there and hence must be filled up, but keeping in view that this window is going to attract attention and help you to swell the volume of your trade.

It is not always the window containing most goods which is the most attractive, but a window filled with good things and tastefully arranged must indeed be enticing. Such a window may be seen at Mr. A. Donald's store on King St. East, Toronto. For a back ground and running diagonally to the street are piled tea chests, one, two, and three deep, so as to form a step-like pile; on these are placed barrels of currants minus the barrels, that is, just in the form the currants are found by cutting the hoops and removing the staves. Thus three barrels are required for each window and on top of these are placed fancy candy jars. Then on the floor of the window are placed, at intervals, boxes of raisins minus the boxes. These "forms" of raisins (as they may be called) present a clean solid appearance, just as if pressed into that form. Piles of figs, just as taken from their cases are also displayed, and then candies and nuts are piled about four inches deep so as to fill up all the intervening spaces. The window is still further improved by a tub, bottom side up, banked up with candies, and on top a large block of dates surrounded by a row of sauce bottles. Such a window is suitable for Christmas season; but of course is not adapted for the warmer parts of the year.

ORTHODOX ADVERTISING DOCTRINE.

At a recent meeting of the St Louis office man's club the question of advertising was discussed. In the course of his remarks the President, Chas. W. Knapp, is credited by a contemporary with the following timely hint to the spasmodic advertiser: "The faint heart who 'spent fifty dollars once' knows that advertising does not pay, but those other thousands, who contributed the bulk of the $125,000,000 estimated to have been spent last year in the advertising publications of the United States, know that advertising does pay, but will never fully say that they know where it pays best. The vital fact which experienced advertisers learn to appreciate, is that no paper or journal can exist for any extended period, unless it command a certain exclusive constituency of readers. If those be of a class the merchant wishes as patrons, he knows he can reach that particular constituency through that one paper or journal, and through no other."

TORONTO RETAIL GROCERS' ASSOCIATION.

The annual meeting of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association was held on Monday evening last in Richmond Hall. The following members were present : Messrs. Barron, Gibson, Thackray, Mills, White, Sinclair, Booth, McCulloch, Williamson, Clark, Sykes, Westren, Butcher, Stewart, Mulqueen, Roberts.

President Barron took the chair and opened the meeting at 9 o'clock. He expressed regret that so few members were present upon so important an occasion as the election of officers, which should have brought a large number of the members together.

The minutes were read, and on motion of Mr. Mills, seconded by Mr. Williamson, were received and adopted.

The officers' roll-call found all present but two members of the executive committee.

LEGAL MEASURE.

Mr. Stratton, Inland Revenue collector here, replied to a complaint that short measures of oysters, etc., were given by some local traders. He said that the matter came under the cognizance of the Weights and Measures Inspector's department, to which department he reported he had turned it over, and that it would receive immediate attention. He thanked the association for the notice. On the motion of Mr. Clark, seconded by Mr. Mills, this letter was fyled.

ACCOUNTS.

The secretary presented the following accounts :

Printing circulars for Convention	$ 8.25.
Printing letter-heads	2.50.
Expenses for calling meetings	3.79.
Rent	22.00.
R. Mills	10.15.

Mr. Sykes said that as $200 was appropriated for Convention expenses, he considered that the item of circulars should be included in the report of the Convention committee. Mr. White was of the same opinion. After further discussion, and upon the motion of Mr. Westren, seconded by Mr. Williamson, the circular account was ordered to be paid.

The items for letter-heads and calling meetings were also passed, the former upon the motion of Messrs. Mills and Gibson, the latter upon that of Messrs. Booth and Sykes.

Upon the motion of Mr Booth, seconded by Mr. McCulloch, the rent account was referred to the Executive Committee to be paid if found correct, paid.

Mr. Mills presented an account for $10.15, a long-standing one, which had been owing him since the time of the Commercial Travellers' pic-nic, where he paid out that sum for dinners and hack-hire for base ball team. Upon motion of Mr. Booth, seconded by Mr. McCulloch, the account was passed.

THE REPORT OF THE EXECUTIVE.

Mr. Mills presented the report of the Executive Committee, which was as follows:

1st. That upon the question of the Secretary's salary the committee is unable to report, owing to the absence of that official from the meetings of the Executive. They recommend that the matter be considered by the Executive Committee of 1892.

2d. That in the matter of the collecting agency they find that Mr. Thackray had collected from some thirteen subscribers, and that he has signified his willingness to refund the amount collected from the subscribers.

3d. That they have attended to the matter of circulars to the associations and merchants, the same having been duly posted, and that they recommend that the various amounts in connection with the same he paid.

4th. Your committee also recommend that the notice that no presents will be given at the approaching holiday season by grocers be inserted in the daily press.

Upon the motion of Mr. Clark, seconded by Mr. Booth, this report was received.

THE SECRETARY'S SALARY.

Mr. Gibson moved, with reference to clause 1, that the secretary's salary for the past year be $100. Mr. Williamson seconded this.

Mr. Sykes inquired why members of the Executive should bring forward such a motion, when they recommended in their report that the secretary's salary be fixed by the incoming Executive.

Mr. Gibson explained that the secretary's presence altered the circumstances.

Mr. Mills stated that the question whether the secretary's salary should be $100 or $150 had not been reported on till now, though referred to that committee quite a long time ago.

Mr. Butcher said that he thought that $100 was considered insufficient compensation last year, and that $150 had been recommended.

The Secretary turned up the minutes of last December and read the resolution of the Association, recommending that he receive $150 and that the matter be settled by the Executive Committee.

Mr. Westren thought it extraordinary that twelve months should be allowed to pass before the Executive brought in a report on a matter referred to it, as the matter of the Secretary's salary plainly had been referred to it so long ago as that. If the Secretary had been led to expect an addition of $50 to his salary, it was not treating him considerately to postpone the settlement of the question for so long a time.

Mr. Williamson said the practice of the Association heretofore had been to fix the Secretary's salary at the end of the year of service.

Mr. Butcher considered that Mr. Thackray ought to receive the increase if he had done his duty.

In amendment to the motion, Mr. Westren moved that Mr. Thackray be paid $125.

Mr. Gibson had no objection to a vote of $25 or $50 as a present to Mr. Thackray, but he believed $100 good pay for the services rendered by the Secretary. Mr. Thackray did his duty well as secretary, but the collection of dues and the bringing in of new members were neglected. He declared that there were not 15 members whose fees had been collected outside that room. This, he held, caused a falling off in the membership, as those who got one year in arrears would not relish the idea of paying $4 out at once for back and current fees.

Mr. Thackray showed that upwards of 60 had paid their fees to him, and that the fees of only eight or ten were left unpaid.

Mr. White said, that the criticism by the Executive Committee of the Secretary not doing his duty amounted to a confession that the committee were not doing theirs, as why should an officer be retained if he neglected any portion of his work, as it had been alleged Mr. Thackray had done? He could not but feel that the impression had been left on Mr. Thackray's mind that the salary was to be $150.

The motion that the salary be $100 was then put and carried.

Mr. Roberts moved, seconded by Mr. Westren, that $25 be presented to the secretary.

Several members appeared at a loss to know what fund the money for this was to come from, when Mr. Stewart asked where the salary of $100 was proposed to be taken from. The chairman said, from the general fund. Then, said Mr. Stewart, take this also from the general fund. This brought that cavilling to an end, and the motion was carried.

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.

After formally adopting the next two clauses of the Executive report, the Association took up that relating to Christmas presents.

Upon this Mr. White remarked that in his opinion the best thing to do with the clause was to strike it out. The agreement to abstain from present-giving was all humbug, as it practically bound nobody. It was better therefore to throw off all hypocrisy, and pass no resolution on the matter, as presents would be given as freely with as without a pledge not to give any.

Mr. Gibson agreed with this view. The gift business was the principal one done by grocers these days, as all seemed to vie with each other to bestow their profits on their customers. He believed there would be more money given away this year in calendars than had been given in former years in other forms at Christmas.

Upon the motion of Mr. Booth, seconded by Mr. McCulloch, the clause was adopted.

THE FINANCIAL REPORT.

Mr. Williamson presented the financial report in considerable detail. It showed a balance on hand in the general fund, after the payment of all outstanding debts, of $97.68.

Mr. Barron presented the report of the special fund through the secretary, which showed a balance of $526.68.

Upon the motion of Mr. Mills, seconded by Mr. Clark, these reports were adopted.

Mr. Mills moved, seconded by Mr. Westren, that the balance of $97.68 from the general fund be placed in the special fund.—Carried.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The custom introduced by President Barron last year, of giving an inaugural supper upon his election to the presidency, was apparently the cause of considerable modesty this year on the part of several nominees to the same office. But Mr. Barron is a wealthy man, and what he can afford to do in such circumstances ought not to be taken as a rule for all his successors. To expect it of them would be a senseless way of keeping good men out of the office. As it was there was the utmost difficulty in getting any man to consent to serve. The office virtually went a-begging, but at last fell into good hands.

Mr. Gibson and Mr. Butcher, nominees of last meeting, positively declined to serve. Mr. Barron was nominated again, but made it plain that he would not hold the office any longer. Mr. Clark distinctly declined. So did Mr. Roberts, Mr. Mills, Mr. Booth. At last a ballot was taken and Mr. Gibson was elected. He refused to accept the office. Then Mr. Booth was elected by acclamation.

For Vice President Mr. Clark was the unanimious choice.

For Secretary, Mr. Thackray had been nominated at last meeting, but at this he withdrew his name.

Mr. Mills moved, seconded by Mr. Williamson, that the secretaryship be left open till next meeting. Carried.

Upon the motion of Mr. Clark, seconded by Mr. Williamson, Mr. Mills was appointed secretary pro tem.

Mr. Williamson was re elected Treasurer.

Mr. McCulloch consented to serve again as Inner Guard, good-naturedly remarking that the office was but an honorary one, and as nobody seemed to want it he might as well keep it filled.

The following were elected as the Executive Committee: Messrs. Mills, Roberts, White, Westren.

Messrs. Barron, Butcher and Gibson were elected Trustees of the Special Fund.

THANKS.

In a eulogistic speech Mr. Mills voted the thanks of the Association to the retiring President, Mr. Barron. Mr. Williamson seconded him, and the new president, Mr. Booth, conveyed the thanks of the Association to Mr. Barron, who made fitting response.

The new Vice-President, Mr. Clark, was called for for a speech, and replied, expressing the hope that the Association would soon be connected with the Board of the Industrial Exhibition.

Mr. Gibson replied to a vote of thanks that was tendered to him as the retiring vice-president. He thought that a big improvement could be made in the punctuality of the members, and hoped everybody would endeavor to get to the meetings on time.

Mr. Roberts, seconded by Mr. Sykes, moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Thackray for his work in the office of secretary. The vote was duly acknowledged.

THE AT HOME.

Mr. Williamson moved, seconded by Mr. McCulloch, that the Association have an At Home as usual this year.—Carried.

Mr. Clark, seconded by Mr. Roberts, proposed that the Executive committee and the following other members of the Association —Messrs. Gibson, Barron, Sykes, Stewart, Mulqueen, Sinclair, Butcher—be a committee. with power to add to their number, for the purpose of arranging for an At Home.—Carried.

A NEW SECRETARY.

Mr. Gibson moved, seconded by Mr. Mills, that the Executive Committee bring in a report with regard to the new secretary at the next meeting.—Carried.

NOTICE OF MOTION.

Mr. Roberts gave notice that he would move at next meeting that the Trustees of the Special Fund be ex officio members of the Executive Committee.

The meeting then adjourned.

D. C. T. A. SMOKING CONCERT.

Saturday evening last about one hundred and twenty-five of the Dominion Commercial Travellers' Association members and their friends, were present at their rooms, St. James street, Montreal, to enjoy music, refreshments, and an entertainment known as a smoking concert. The President, Mr Fred. Hughes, of Messrs. Caverhill, Rose, Hughes & Co., opened the entertainment with words of welcome to all present. The object of these entertainments is to get the travellers better acquainted with each other. The musical part of the programme consisted of a fine solo by Alfred Chapman, songs by Messrs. Edward Labelle, J. A. Murrin, Mr. Bisset, Mr. Chambers, and a whistling solo by Mr. Rough. Mr. R. C. Wilkins gave a comical recitation, which delighted the boys. The ever original John Rodgers, of Messrs. Evans Sons & Co., who is known form coast to coast, had a speech that brought forth clapping of hands and continued laughter. It was an imitative effort in four languages, Irish, French, Scotch and Jewish. The phonograph was also exhibited, giving a number of selections, after which the company adjourned to an adjoining room, where the committee had heaps of refreshments in readiness for them. Mr. Watson, of Kerry, Watson & Co., was chairman of this committee, and not only in his address showed what an interest he had in the travellers, but also in making himself most agreeable among the guests all evening. It is undecided just what date the next entertainment will take place, but all who attended this will look forward to another good time.

CREAMERIES CONVENTION.

DISHONORING DRAFTS.

EDITOR THE CANADIAN GROCER, Toronto.

SIR,—I would like through your columns to call the attention of retailers to a practice that is injuring many of them by refusing to honor drafts for bill of goods sent out. There are few things more irritating to a business house, and that creates greater disgust in the mind of the manufacturer or wholesaler, than to have a draft made in good faith dishonored, and returned, often without any reason given, and in almost every case, where reasons are given, of the most indefinite kind. A statement is sent out which says "that on a certain date we will draw for amount of account," no attention is paid to this, and consequently when the proper time comes the draft for the amount is sent forward. The refusal of this is not only an unbusinesslike transaction, but is a direct insult to the house from whom the goods are purchased, and if men knew the harm it was doing them, they would hesitate to refuse a respectable house's draft, even if there was some slight inaccuracy or omission in goods or invoice. In all our experience, now extending over many years, we have only met one house who did not hasten to correct any error that might have occurred, and in managing our own business we feel a double responsibility resting upon us to correct the error to which our attention is called, with the man who accepts our draft, in comparison to the man who refuses. All wholesale houses are in a position at certain times to confer special favors upon their customers; the man who is courteous, puts you to no unnecessary expense or trouble, is the man who shares in these favors. The churlish boor who insults you on every possible occasion, puts you to unnecessary trouble and expense, never tastes of sweets of this kind, and if retail men and some wholesalers (very few I am thankful to say) would consider their own interest, they would hesitate and only when it was exceedingly plain that some wrong was intended, would they refuse a draft payable at the proper time for goods in their possession.

There is another point; It is equally annoying to banks, as every draft has to go through a certain amount of detail, and it also brings the house issuing the draft into less or more discredit and disfavor with the bank. We have written thus with a deep sense of the injustice of these acts, and trust that some abler pen will take up the matter, believing that if thoroughly understood, the good sense of the trade generally would come to the rescue, and the annoyance would be largely, if not entirely stamped out.

Respectfully,
R. M. FULLERTON.

THE DILEMMA OF THE PATRON TRADER.

Editor CANADIAN GROCER.

SIR,—To most retailers in western Ontario the Patron of Industry movement has been a fruitful source of annoyance and vexation during the past two years. To them it means a curtailment of profits, which, through keen competition are already cut so low that any encroachment from without is viewed with just alarm. Want of knowledge concerning mercantile affairs creates among outsiders, farmers in particular, a mild type of hostile prejudice against all those engaged in commercial pursuits, and this prejudice, coupled with the erroneous impressions as to what constitutes a retailer's profit, has caused the latter to become the object of their special solicitude.

Farmers generally are suspicious, and their isolated mode of living, if it does not produce it, certainly fosters this disposition. Could every farmer engage in business for one year only, such a movement would thereafter be impossible. These are the factors which have made organization so eminently successful. The organizer, whose interests are best served by exaggeration with a view to intensifying this prejudice, also appeals very strongly to the selfishness, dormant or active, found in most human beings, and in the majority of his attempts receives his ten dollar bill as a reward for the very arduous labors performed in trying to elevate the farmer to a higher plane socially, morally, intellectually and, above all, financially.

In this appeal to passion, however lies the very weakness of the concern. Selfishness can not with impunity be called into requisition in the commencement, and then suppressed whenever it may be deemed desirable to do so. It is all-powerful now, but depend upon it, later on it will be equally powerful as an engine of destruction.

If the foregoing is a correct diagnosis of the subject in hand, the retailer's position towards the movement should be tolerably clear.

To take them or not to take them, that is the question. Not to take them may imply a temporary loss, but taking them means a permanent one. Taking them implies discrimination, and discrimination can produce only one result, viz., alienation. Doing violence to their feelings and outraging their sense of justice by his unequal and unfair treatment, the Patron merchant cannot expect the support of his independent non-patron customers, and in a very short time finds himself minus the very customers for whose trade he has, possibly for years, been catering.

On the other hand, his erroneous views concerning retailers' profits will lead the Patron to expect far greater concessions in prices then his agreement entitles him to receive. His disappointment, caused by his inability to realize the enormous advantages held out to him as a bait by the wily organizer, whose word to him was gospel, leads him at once to suspect the honesty and integrity of the Patron merchant. Furthermore, to regain and hold their old customers, the "Gentile" merchants will become active and sell goods below Patron prices, at cost in some instances, and no agreement can be produced to convince the Patron that his suspicions are not well founded.

The same selfishness previously referred to now asserts itself with increased force, to the sorrow of the Patron merchant, who, discredited in the eyes of his transitory supporters for whose benefit he parted company with his cash customers, finds himself occupying (pardon the homely illustration) the exalted position of a squeezed lemon. The non-patrons have left, and the Patrons follow them, leaving the merchant who sought to gain a temporary advantage over his competitors, to contemplate the sad fact that "he is not in it," and that his cupidity has, will-o-the-wisp like, led him into troubles which will doubtless enure to the benefit of those whom he sought to preclude.

He sees when too late that the vows and obligations were too one-sided, and that the "moral obligation" by which the Patrons were bound to support him for sacrifices made, was a sham, a delusion and a snare. Moreover, by his acceptance, he makes the tacit acknowledgment that his previous prices were higher than they should have been, or as the patrons say, extortionate. This surely must be a most humiliating admission for a man to make, especially when the facts are the very opposite.

So far as the writer has had an opportunity of making observations, he is forced to conclude that the movement must be ephemeral, and the merchant who values, as he should do above all else, his character and reputation for honesty and business integrity, can not afford to enter into such an alliance, wherein he has nothing to gain but a great deal to lose.

Yours truly,
D. WEISMILLER.

Why is the Star Fire Lighter better than Coal Oil ?

BECAUSE:-
It is less expense than coal oil.
No trouble in preparing kindling.
It is more effective, one square will burn 10 to 15 minutes, and is warranted to light a fire without coal oil or kindling.
It is cleaner, and is perfectly safe.

FOR THE CHRISTMAS WINDOW.

ARRIVAL OF SANTA CLAUS.

This display may be arranged in any size of windows and adapted to any line of business.

The principal articles necessary are a large cedar tree and some strips which may be procured at a lumber mill. Begin by measuring the height of the window, and saw off a sufficient number of strips, which should be nailed on the sides to serve as supports; then form arches of the same material, which may easily be made to bend by cutting notches at intervals which renders them more pliable. In forming the arches a better effect is produced if they are so arranged as to gradually incline towards the back.

The entire frame-work should be wound with strips of green calico or painted. To this the branches of the cedar tree should be tied, but in order to present a wintry appearance which is more appropriate for the occasion, I would suggest that the branches be prepared several days in advance of the display, which is done by boiling a pound of alum to a quart of water and when dissolved pour into a large tub, and while still warm dip in the branches and immediately throw on flour; this will produce a sparkling effect by gas-light. After fastening the branches to the framework, cut off any projecting twigs with a pair of scissors, and entwine here and there tinsels which may be procured in all colors.

The arch-way is now ready to be decorated with such articles as the dealer desires to display for the holiday season.

The floor of the window is arranged with steps, which may be made of boxes or any old lumber covered over with white cloth, on which place sheets of batting which should be split and sprinkled with frosting. The steps may now be displayed with novelties, fancy groceries, etc. The back of the window is arranged for the figure of Santa Claus, which is made by constructing a square frame covered with white cloth; the size according to the space; and in the centre cut a hole large enough to admit the head and body, then puff the edge with yellow tissue paper so as to imitate the frame of a picture.

To make the dummy, stuff the body and arms of an old shirt with paper or excelsior to which sew on a pair of gloves; then procure an old coat and border with white cotton batting or canton flannel, and run a stick through the body to fasten to the floor back of the frame; having done this, now attach a Santa Claus mask to the body and cover the head with a hood which may be made of black calico and bordered the same as the coat.

The position (see design) is to place the head and arms to extend through the opening of the frame work.

Several days in advance of Christmas or at the wish of the trader, the dummy of Santa Claus is substituted by a live person, who is made up to imitate old Santa, and to amuse the spectators that may crowd around the window, he should at intervals display articles appropriate for Christmas time. To make up the face, rouge slightly all over, put a high coloring on the cheeks and nose, and just a faint tinge on the eye-lids, now with a moderate size camel's hair brush, paint the under parts of the eye-brows, and well into the hollows of the eyes, with burnt umber; and with a fine brush paint three or four fine lines leading from the outer corners of the eyes, and four or five on the forehead.

Powder the face with prepared chalk, then rub the eye-brows with soap or stick pomade and apply the chalk so they will match the beard that is worn.

A good way for a beard is to cut off the article from Santa Claus mask or a special one may be purchased. No wig is required as a hood covers the head, but a few sprinkling hairs may be sewed inside the hood, which is made from crape hair.

Rouge, prepared chalk and stick pomade may be procured at any drug store. Burnt umber is an article that may be obtained from a paint box sold at toy stores or at a paint shop. Any of the articles can be had by addressing the author of this pamphlet.

NOTE.—If there is not sufficient depth to arrange this display, and space will permit, the floor of the window may be extended and at each corner place an upright so a drapery may be arranged around the entire back and sides so as not to interfere with the inside of the store.

It does not matter as to the width of the window, as the branches may be cut any size and space left open to view the figure of Santa Claus in the back-ground.

The arrangements of grocers' windows is owing to the space as to the best way an effective display may be shown. Only a line of fancy groceries should be arranged, consisting of all articles done up in fancy packages or bottles with catchy labels. If a grocer does no wish to introduce the ceiling and side effect, I would suggest to decorate the upper part of window with several festoons of evergreens and berries. An edge of evergreen around the window pane will add to the make up. For a small window build a pyramid from boxes covered with white paper, and arrange your articles in tasty effect. White ribbon placed around the neck of each bottle and tinsel placed in between the goods will help the display. Cover the floor with salt and display fancy baskets filled with raisins, nuts, candies, prunes, etc. A huge snowball made of cotton batting place on top of pyramid with a vase of white paper flowers at each corner of the base. Another way of arranging the window is to secure two uprights at back of window and lay planks across similar to shelving, allowing a good space between. The icicle effect may now be introduced by tacking in front to each shelf and then display your goods.

Grocers may display their canned goods of fruit as follows: In the back of the window build up your cans in half circles, each grade to itself. Have an arch made of lumber covered with tissue paper and then take gloves to represent hands which should be stuffed and a stick inserted so as to secure to arch. In one of the hands place a fruit similar to goods displayed, as an apple, pear, grapes, etc. From each fruit have a neat card on which is printed for example: Pears, such a price. On top of the arch have a sign to read: "The Fruits of our Orchard." The floor of the window cover over with green tea to imitate sod.

Where store interiors have low ceilings, and the front part of the store the only means to admit light, I would suggest that the centre be decorated to form a canopy which will cover any defects if ceiling is dark or low.

Secure screw-eyes at equal distance apart, and with garlands of evergreens or festooning tie to screw-eye and allow the material to drape over to shelving caught up with a wreath. From the centre of each drapery suspend a Japanese lantern. To give it a sparkling appearance touch it up here and there with golden chains.

These chains are made by cutting narrow strips of gold paper, forming them into links by pasting the ends together. The uprights that support the shelving cover over with gold or silver paper, which should be arranged to imitate waves. This is done by crushing the paper in the hand. The cornice of the shelving drape with garlands and evergreens.

A very pretty way to display articles in dry goods or general stores is to secure strips of a certain height inside the shelving next to upright to extend as far out as the counter; the distance between each strip from six to eight feet. This will serve as a basis to form triangles made of strips secured to ceiling. In each triangle fasten wires on which articles may be displayed.—Harry Harman's Christmas Pamplet, (Louisville, Ky.)

At an early hour the other morning, a lady entered a grocery store in Kingston, and, after looking about her, inquired: "Am I the first customer this morning?" The clerk replied in the affirmative, when she replied: "Well, then, dust that chair, for I won't. I wish to sit down." The clerk succumbed to the inevitable

The unsecured liabilities of Lewis Wigle, ex-M.P., of Leamington, have gone up to $100,000. The unfortunate creditors will do well if they get 20 cents on the dollar. A large amount is for borrowed money, and the disaster will be felt in South Essex for many a day. The inspectors are W. R. Brock, of Toronto; Thos. Fuller, banker, Leamington, and Geo. McNab, barrister, London.

The death occurred the other morning of Mr. John O'Gorman, for twenty-seven years a well known and highly esteemed grocery and liquor merchant of St. John, N.B. Mr. O'Gorman came from Londonderry, Ireland in 1849, and in 1864 succeeded to the business of P. D. Quinn, in whose employ he was for a number of years. His place of business has all the time been on Dock street, and like hundreds of others he was a sufferer by the fire of 1877.

The Toronto Biscuit and Confectionery Co. have been compelled to work day and night to keep pace with their orders. The trade this Company have built up in their now celebrated soda biscuits since their formation last March is simply wonderful, and is a proof that good goods, honest dealing, and promptness will succeed every time. The company is composed of three young men well-known in Toronto, Geo. W. Booth, Henry C. Fortier, and Charles J. Peters. They do not leave all the work to others. Mr. Booth manages the office and finances, Mr. Fortier the factory and shipping, and Mr. Peters looks after their interests west of Toronto. Already their present premises have become too small, and ere many months are passed they will have a factory unsurpassed in Canada.

The Patrons, the new organization which is rapidly spreading among Manitoba farmers, are arranging with retail dealers in various provincial towns, for special prices. The stores so arranged with, will be known as the Patrons' stores. Hopper Bros. of Rapid City, T. A. Garland of Portage la Prarie, J. A. Montgomery, J. T. Somerville and Zink Bros., of Brandon, are among the stores which have come to terms with the Patrons.—Winnipeg Commercial.

The Canadian Almanac for 1892 is the forty-fifth issue of that reliable chronicle of contemporary national facts. Its weight in popular estimation increases with its age, and it is more than ever entitled to the place it has won as the standard source of information in the office and the household on public matters. The present issue is enlarged to 224 pages, and contains the census report and the revised customs tariff. The publishers, The Copp, Clark Co., Ltd., have been very painstaking to get out a full and accurate edition, and are to be congratulated on their success. The price is 20c.

LONDON RETAIL GROCERS' ASSOCIATION.

At the last meeting of the London Retail Grocers' Association, held on the 9th inst., the question of a convention of retail grocers was taken up. The feeling of the meeting was that it would be a benefit to the trade, and that the first place of meeting should be in Toronto. It was felt that it would promote interest in the work, if meetings were held in different places, and places could be agreed upon at the convention. A circuit of towns and cities might be arranged, conveniently for holding a series of meetings. The Association approves of the third week in January next for the meeting at Toronto.

In a letter from the London Soap Co., the promise to sell soap only to the trade was given in reply to the expressed wish of the Association.

A committee was appointed to confer with the city solicitor upon the peddling question.

It was resolved to publish notices in the daily papers that Christmas presents would not be given.

TRADE SALES.

The boot and shoe stock of Thos. Cowan, Thorold, Ont., was knocked down at 76c. on the dollar to Mr. Grass of Ridgetown, Ont.

The insolvent dry goods stock of T. A. Powell, Stratford, amounting to $,4,037, was sold to Jno. Rennie, Toronto, for 60½c., on the dollar.

The trade sales of Suckling & Co., are over for the season. The last sales took place on Tuesday and Wednesday, and were well attended by merchants from all parts of Ontario.

There was a great deal of competition for the stock of Grant & Co., King St., but finally Mr. Urquhart of Toronto purchased both lots, the first, valued at $5969 at 71½c., and the second at 61c., on the dollar. This was a very fine stock of furs and is supposed to have been bought in for Mrs. Grant.

HE WANTED A FIGHT.

A dozen years ago a farmer came into Detroit with a load of potatoes and sold them to a grocer. A dispute arose as to the quality. The farmer felt himself cheated out of two bushels, and he left the grocer with a black eye The grocer was a man who meant to keep even with all men. He therefore took an affidavit to whip that agricultural toiler within an inch of his life, and the longer he waited the madder he got. At the end of a month, seeing no prospect of catching the farmer in town, the grocer procured a horse and buggy and drove out to the farm to have it out. When within three miles of the place he encountered a man on the highway and inquired, "Can you tell me where old Stiver lives?" "Yes; going to buy cattle of him?" "No, sir! I'm going to pound him out of his boots!" "I guess not; I'm old Stiver's son, and you've got to whip me first!" The grocer jumped out, and a battle resulted. He polished the son off, but it was a tight squeeze. He had not gone half a mile when a man who was husking corn near the fence hailed him with, "Did you have a fight down there?" "Yes." "Who whipped?" "I did." "Well, that was my brother you were fighting, and maybe you think you can mash me, too?" A second fight took place, and proved a draw. The grocer was somewhat discouraged, having several loose teeth, and a nose as big as his wrist, but he drove on to the next house. A strapping fellow about 27 years old was cutting wood at the gate, and the grocer drew up and asked, "How far is it to Stiver's?" "Which Stiver?" "Why, the old liar Stiver." "Stranger, the man that speaks that way of my old dad has got to be pounded," remarked the chopper, and a third fight was soon on the boards. This time the grocer had his fill, and, after brushing the grass out of his hair, he asked, "How far is it to Mr. John Stiver's?" "Two miles." "One more question. I've met and fought with three of his sons. Is there another living between here and the old man's?" "Another? Why, there are three, and besides there are two single ones at home who could turn you wrong side out in 20 seconds. The grocer drove slowly back to the city and went to bed for a week. His mistake was in not waiting to catch the old man home some time when all the boys were off fishing.

TORONTO MARKETS.

TORONTO, Dec. 17, 1891.

GROCERIES.

In the one week that remains before Christmas, buyers will need to be numerous and active, if the season's trade is to be redeemed from a place among the low records of the street. There are prospects that the next week will be a spirited one, though it is the exception for business to be brisk within so few days of Christmas. All the very large buyers are for the most part stocked till the holidays are over, but the average retailer will have errands to this market right up till the 24th inst. The weakness of prices in staple dried fruits has made buyers shy, and they have generally gone in for only hand-to-mouth supplies, with the expectation of making better bargains as shipments came to wholesale hands and prices tended downwards. Retail stocks have been kept quite light in most lines. Wholesalers themselves have not taken big stocks of the more strictly seasonable goods. Good trade may yet be expected, therefore, if the weather does not frustrate it. The city trade has to a great extent yet to be done.

The past week's business has been a better one than seemed possible in such wretched weather. The orders have as a rule been small, but the number of them made up for their size. Trade has not been a very money-making affair,as there was not enough life in the demand to make sellers independent of cutting tactics, and fruits, yellow sugar and tea went at easy prices. The selling has been about up to that usual in the second week before Christmas, but in the average season of comparison the amount of trading before this time of year is much greater than it has been this year. Money is still backward. There is no run of 15 or 20 registered letters per day to each house, as there used to be just before the holidays.

CANNED GOODS.

The demand for vegetables works quietly, but it gets over a good deal of ground in a day. One house reports its sales of tomatoes on Monday to be 300 cases, all in small lots. The stocks of tomatoes and peas in the country have been worn down to a much lower point it is claimed than they were at this time last year. There are no peas and tomatoes, it is said, now in packers' hands, and the quantity of corn yet held by them is believed to be but small. Another offer is reported for a carload of peas on Montreal account, but the views of holders have so far been too stiff for a sale to be effected. On choice brands some jobbers want $1.10 for assorted lots made up of equal parts of corn, peas and tomatoes. Other houses are still selling at $1.05. The prices of one firm are to be advanced after New Year's. The position of peas and tomatoes appears to be unquestionably firm. The retail trade is quite active in all vegetables, all purchases being quickly transferred to consumers. One local retailer brought 25 cases of tomatoes through a broker on Tuesday. The Christmas trade has given a start to the demand for peaches, but not much stock has found sale yet. Three's have gone usually at $3.25 and two's at $2.25. Salmon though rather quiet sells steadily at $1.40. Lobster is much in the same position. Talls run usually from $2 up, though one lot is selling here as low as $1.90. They are of course not a choice brand, being picked over and with all the claws taken out to put in flat tins.

COFFEE.

The price of Rio had stiffened outside, and would probably have cost a cent more to import a few days ago than it would now, though the present state of the New York market may be but temporary. Fluctuations follow each other rapidly there in that commodity. The range of prices here is 19 to 24c. Mochas are 28 to 33c., and Javas 27 to 32c. All coffees are receiving but limited attention.

DRIED FRUIT.

The prices of dried fruit are very much in the same position now as they were a week ago. The quotations are unchanged and weakness is as characteristic of the market now as it was then. Retailers are buying warily, determined not to be overstocked when any further break occurs. Quantities have not sold well, no buyers of 50 and 100 box lots of raisins having been forthcoming so far. Wholesalers have bought rather sparingly in Valencias, the market for which shows no prospect of revival. The price runs from 5½c. up for off stalk though some inferior stuff went at 5c. Currants are now quiet at 5¾c. for barrels, though they were a little unsteady earlier in the week, when some purchases were made at as low as 5½c. Malaga raisins are fairly active at the low prices of last week. Quarter flats of London layers appear to be out of stock. The second shipment of prunes in cases and hogsheads is expected to arrive in a few days. All the first shipment has been disposed of. There is an abundance of old stock at 6½ to 7½c. for case prunes. There is a probability that figs will be scarce before long. Good quality Elemes are to be had at 11 to 11½c., through thick skinned stock as low as 9c, is obtainable. Ten-pound boxes are already rather scarce. Twenty-eight lb. boxes of seven-crown figs are selling at 16c. The price was as low as 13c. for a few days.

Messrs. Clemes Bros. have sold a considerable quantity of Eleme figs this season. Their prices run at $1 for 10 lb., boxes, $1.90 for 20 lb. boxes, and 15 to 16c., for 7 crowns.

The following paragraph from the New York Daily Commercial Bulletin shows the progress being made by California raisins to fill the demand in the United States: Importations of raisins into the United States during the month of October, 1891, were only 5,267,422 pounds. No less than 15,527,845 do. were imported in October, 1890. The importations for the ten months ending October 31st were 8,104,157 pounds, against 28,296,901 pounds for the corresponding period last year.

NUTS.

Nuts are quite active. This of course is their season, and prices are generally low. Compared with last year all nuts are cheap. Walnuts, almonds and filberts are all in request. The quotations of a week ago hold with about the same strength as then, and are to be found in Prices Current. Filberts are scarce. The second shipment of new are now here.

RICE AND SPICES.

Rice is steady at 3⅞c. and upwards, but only small and few sales are made these days. Spices are moving out freely, particularly those descriptions used for Christmas seasoning. Ginger is quite stiff but unchanged in the range of quotations appearing in Prices Current.

SUGAR.

A noticeable improvement has taken place in the demand, which however, is yet incapable of making away with any considerable amount of stock. A few barrels to put dealers over the holidays constitute the shipments now leaving the warehouses. The situation of the market in New York which has been steadily firm for several days took a downward turn at the beginning of the week, but it is improbable that it signifies anything but the anxiety of refiners to bear the market for raw which has been strongly held for some time. The price of granulated on this market is unchanged at 4⅞ to 5c., and yellow sells from 3½c. upwards, with low grade raw quoting from the same basis.

The cutting in yellow, which has been so strong a feature in the whole fall's trade, and which was commonly resorted to, not only for the purpose of selling yellows, but for the purpose of promoting the sale of granulated, on which no cut could be directly made, is now expected to cease. The Guild has adopted regulations that are believed to be sufficiently stringent for the complete removal of the grievance. Every member of the Guild is required to post a forfeit of $300 that he will observe those regulations and has to make affidavit to that effect, the terms in which he does so closing up all the loop holes through which the provisions of the sugar agreement were evaded before. Each traveller has to make the same affidavit. It binds all principals and salesmen not to sell granulated below listed prices,and not to sell yellows below cost. The latter have frequently been sold in the past ⅛c. or ¼c. under cost to induce buyers to take a certain quantity of granulated along with the yellow.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

The unprecedently low prices of syrups do not promote the trade in them so much as they would be expected to do. Syrups are selling, but not particularly fast. The lowest grade, a dark syrup is 2¼c. This cheapness is the result of sharp competition between the eastern and western refiners. The Vancouver syrup comes in a 30 gallon cask, which is about seven or eight gallons more than the Redpath half barrel and 14 or 15 gallons less than the Redpath barrel.

More frequent orders for half-barrels of molasses are received, the demand being for grocery grades suitable for holiday baking purposes, and selling at about 38c. in barrels. Some very fine quality West Indian is to be had at that price, and very good New Orleans runs from 35 to 40c. West Indian grades can be had as low as 28c. and as high as 45c. Fancy open kettle New Orleans is from 45 to 50c.

TEAS.

Teas are being neglected more and more as holidays approach and special season goods tend to monopolize attention. Stocks on spot are full. Prices are susceptible to shading, but there is very little practical influence brought to bear to make them lower, as buyers are not forthcoming. Jobbers are doing nothing in the way of replenishing supplies, unless in placing orders for stock to arrive a month after holidays.

MARKET NOTES

Messrs. Sloan & Crowther have about completely transferred their stock to their new premises, on the corner of Front and Scott streets.

Holiday orders are making times lively among the confectioners. They are running in some cases over time, and finding it hard to get pails enough to keep them going. The present season's trade is one of the largest experienced. This is another of the effects of cheap sugar.

Odd cases of orange peel have sold to wholesale houses at 17c. Jobbers resell at 18c. Lemon is in fair supply at 16c. Citron firm at 25 to 28c.

Mr. John Sloan, of Sloan & Crowther, has had a spell of sickness for the past ten days, from which, we are glad to be able to report, he is now recovering.

Messrs. Arthur P. Tippet & Co., manufacturers' agents, St. John, N.B., and Toronto, are the selling agents for Ontario and the North-West, for Fry's Cocoas and Chocolates.

Rumors of cutting in the biscuits of one manufactory are heard. As the prices of those goods have heretofore been generally well maintained, the present irregularity in them seems to be due to the vigorous rivalry of the Toronto Confectionery Co.

A manufacturer's agent is wanted in Halifax, to push the sale in the Maritime Provinces, of an article sold by all grocers, druggists and hotels, and which has a large sale. It is a good opening for an energetic man. Address A. B., care of CANADIAN GROCER.

The universality of the demand for J. & J. Colman's mustard is very fancifully represented in a handsome framed picture which the manufacturers have adopted for a shop and sample-room advertisement during the coming year. It shows a rather ethereal figure hovering over this revolving globe, in one hand a package of Colman's mustard, whose contents fall all over the earth's surface The colors are so blended as to heighten the effect of the design, which is on a liberal scale of size.

It is complained by retailers that a certain grocer who does a retail business, has been accorded by wholesalers 5 per cent. discount from the prices exacted of retailers. This is customary in dealings between two wholesale houses, and objection is taken that the grocer in question should be treated as a wholesaler, while trading as a retailer. It is said that the matter was looked into and provision made for its discontinuance by the Guild.

Mr. J. D. Higgins, Vice President of Kingsford's Oswego Starch Co., accompanied Mr. T. O. Leonard on the monthly visit of the latter to Toronto. Mr. Higgins spent a couple of days here last week. He was much struck with the progress this city has made in the past few years. Looking at the stock of goods kept by the leading retail stores here, he said they were much finer than those carried by retailers in American cities. Americans went in for plain substantial foods only, while Canadians were liberal buyers of high priced delicacies of all kinds.

Mr. Joseph. W. Collier, of the township of Athol, undertook to raise ten acres of produce for Messrs. Boulter & Sons' canning factory during the past year—4 acres of corn and beans, 1 acre of tomatoes, and 5 acres of strawberries and raspberries. From these 10 acres he realized $1,211.80, the largest amount paid to any produce raiser who supplied the factory, showing that Mr. Collier has been the most successful produce grower of the season. He delivered the first waggon

PETROLEUM.

The local market shows no sign in the state of its prices that another week's business has been transacted upon it. All prices are steady and unchanged at standing quotations in Prices Current, while business proceeds upon a strong consumptive basis.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

Between delivery and consumption stock has little time to lie in the warehouse of the buyer. The movement of butter is almost continuous from the time it leaves the hands of the country trader until it gets to the table of the consumer. There is none taken for export, as there is no excess over home wants to make up lots for export. The market is kept well cleaned up, and wholesalers and commission men are dependent on daily receipts. Low grades have been scarce all the year, the spring having opened with a market bare of white butter and no accumulations having taken place since. The present healthy balance between the supply and the demand is rendered possible and actual this fall because export trade of the present year has been large, being three times that of last year. The market could take more butter if the butter were produced. Large rolls are an increasing proportion of the total receipts and are 14 to 16c. They are still complained of as turnip-flavored. Choice dairy tubs are 16 to 18c., with 13 to 15c. quoted for mediums, and 10 to 12c. for low grades. No important movement of creamery is reported on this market.

Cheese is very firm, the finest bringing 11½c. The English market is stiff. Early cheese quotes at 10½c., but is very scarce. All the season's make is now out of the hands of the manufacturers, and in those of exporters.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

APPLES—A well sustained local demand has kept business rather brisk in the way of sales for holiday consumption. Some fine fancy fruit has sold quite freely. Prices of staple stock range from $1.75 to $2.50.

BEANS—Everybody aims to carry but light stocks into the new year, as the demand will not supply a basis for many big overturns from this forward. The market here is but a small one for beans at the best. Jobbing lots are $1.40 to $1.50, and round lots run from $1.25 to $1.35.

CRANBERRIES—Are in good demand, but at easier prices Choice dark fruit sells at $8 to $8.50, and lighter colored at $7.50 to $8.

DRIED APPLES—The position of the market is unchanged. Buyers are wanted. Large lots are dull at 4 to 4½c., and small ones at 4½ to 4¼c.

EVAPORATED APPLES—Holders find it uphill work to make sales at all, and do not feel encouraged to try hard while prices are so low. Retailers' lots are 7½ to 8c., while round lots change hands at 6½ to 7c.

EGGS—The demand for new laid stock is stronger both from domestic consumers and fancy bakers, but the supply is larger, as a consequence of open weather. Fresh are worth 18c The only limed fruit being handled is what is taken on contracts made some time ago at 14 to 15c.

GAME—The mild weather keeps the demand moderate and does not induce strong delivery. Rabbits are plentiful at 15c. Partridges are fairly active at 45 to 50c. Venison is scarce here at 6 to 7c. in carcass and 9c. in haunch.

HIDES.—Neither side of the market shows interest in current business, which is very small. The deliveries have shrunk into unusually limited volume since the last drop in prices. For green cows' the prices are: No. 1, 4½c.; No. 2, 3½c.; No. 3, 2½c.; green steers' are worth 5c. for No. 1. A car of buffs sold on Monday for 5c. The shipments of cured run from 1 to 3 cars weekly.

HONEY.—All but strictly choice is unsalable, and the cheapness of good stock is what creates some demand for it. Good extracted goes comparatively freely at 10c., while sections for fancy Christmas trade go as high as 16c.

HOPS,—Brewers are evincing more interest in the market now, after holding off as long as supplies of old and sparing purchases of new would permit them. The range of prices for domestic stock is 19 to 25c., with 27c. paid for extra fine quality in smallish lots. For Bavarian the price is 40 to 42c. The demand is active and the market firm.

ONIONS.—The price ranges from $2.25 to $2.40. This higher price is due to smaller supplies, and the shrinkage in delivery is on account of the present being rather risky weather, a sudden depression of the temperature to the damage of stock in transit being not improbable. There is an easy trade doing.

POULTRY.—The weather is against high prices, and low prices check receipts. There is therefore neither a large supply nor a large demand. Turkeys are 8 to 9c. per lb., geese 6 to 7½c. per lb., chickens are 25 to 35c. per pair, and ducks, which show a wide range of quality, are worth 35 to 60c. a pair.

POTATOES—The market shows unexpected steadiness, which has not been disturbed by quite large deliveries. At the moment the supply is not active, but prices are rather firm at 42 to 45c. for cars, and 50 to 55c. for out of store lots.

SEEDS—Alsike is slightly easier at $5.50 to $6.25. The delivery had become quite strong before the break up of the roads at the opening of the week, but fell off to almost nothing after that. Red clover is $4.75 to $5 for average offerings, with a little more paid for very fine. A day or two of hard weather would make a big difference in the offerings.

SKINS—Sheepskins were put up 5c. higher on Tuesday, and quote now at 95c. They are not over plentiful. Calfskins are unchanged at 5 to 7c.

TALLOW.—Crude is worth 20c. and refined 5½ to 5¾c. The latter costs 4¼c. in Chicago, and with 1c. added for duty and ⅛c. for freight, it can be laid down here at 5⅜c.

WOOL.—Dealers are not paying above 19c. for fleeces, and sellers want more before they part with their stock. Hence there is little business, which is satisfactory to buyers in the present state of the market.

DRESSED HOGS AND PROVISIONS.

The receipts of hogs this week have been much lighter than they were at time of last report. Mild weather seems to have acted as a check to slaughtering. Those that were sold on spot went at $5.25 to $5.30, but there is a considerable quantity of western stock booked to arrive at $5.40. Northern hogs are offered but do not find sale at $5.25. The trade in hog products is nominal, the abundance of fresh meats and poultry at

FLOUR AND FEED.

TORONTO, DEC. 17 1891.

The sales of the week do not bring it out into strong relief from the week's which have preceded it. A steady movement of flour at steady prices has been maintained. The week's eastern business has been moderate. Local trade is undiminished, perhaps rather increased by the demand for fancy baking against holiday consumption. The feeling of dissatisfaction with the Newfoundland government in placing a duty of 20c. per barrel on our flour is strong, as there are some mills which produce almost solely for sale in that market. No new developments have followed the report of the Millers' Association upon the matter of credit giving, but hopes are entertained that absolute cash dealing will again be established.

FLOUR.—City millers' and dealers' prices are: Manitoba patents, $5.25; strong bakers', $4.85; Ontario patents, $5; straight roller, $4.75; extra, $4.10 to $4.15: low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.75.

Car prices are: Toronto freights—Manitoba patents, $5.30 to $5.50; Manitoba strong bakers' $4.90 to $5.10; Ontario patents, $4.50 to $4.90; straight roller, $4.15 to $4.20; extra, $4.00 to $4.05; low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.75.

MEAL.—Oatmeal is easier at $4.10 to $4.25, and cornmeal at $3.

FEED.—Bran is still very scarce. It sells at $16.50 to $17. Shorts is similarly stiff at $17 to $19. The demand for both by the eastern trade is very strong, and local trade is excellent. Mixed feed runs as high as $25 per ton. Cracked corn is $1.35 per cwt. Corn is 68c. per bushel. Oats are steady at 34 to 35c., and feeding grades of barley at 48 to 50c.

HAY.—The price is stiffer and delivery is backward. Cars of No. 1 baled timothy go at $12.50 to $13, and mixed is $10.50.

STRAW.—Is unchanged at $6 to $6.50.

The flour mills now owned by Messrs. Ogilvie, Montreal, have a daily capacity of 7,500 barrels.

The Dominion Oatmeal Mill, London, will again be in complete running order at the end of this week. The damage done by their recent fire is placed at $1,500, which is fully covered by insurance.

MONTREAL FLOUR AND FEED.

Flour is quiet and easy, but consumers are lightly supplied, so business should improve when the winter roads are permanent. The stock in store shows an increase of 18,307 bbls. compared with a week ago and 7,674 bbls. compared with a year ago. Patent spring, $5.00 to $5.35; Patent winter, $5 to $5.25; straight roller, $4.65 to $4.80; Extra $4.30 to $4.40; Superfine $3.95 to $4.10; City strong bakers' $5.00 to $5.10; Strong bakers' $4.75 to 5.00.

easy prices causing a cessation in the demand for cured meats. Prices are consequently easier.

BACON—Long clear is down to 7¾c., smoked backs are 10 to 10½c., bellies 10½ to 11c., rolls easier at 8½c.

HAMS—Are 10½ to 11c., ½c. lower than last week.

LARD—Is easier at 9½ to 9¾c. for pure, and 8¼ to 8¾c. for compound.

BARREL PORK—Mess is $13.75 to $14, and short cut $15.50 to $16.

FRESH MEATS — Preparations for the Christmas trade make choice meats in some request, but supplies on hand of every-day stock go out slowly. Prices are: Beef, forequarters 3½ to 4½c., hindquarters 6 to 8½c.; mutton 5 to 6c., Lamb 6½ to 7c.

FISH AND OYSTERS.

The trade in oysters has been brisk, and the quality of the oysters has been very good. The unsettled character of the weather affected the trade considerably. Cod and haddock are very scarce, especially the former. Manitoba white fish are selling well, while dried fish are quiet. Everything considered, the trade is good for this season.

SALT.

Four carloads have been sold, but the trade in car lots has not been so brisk as usual. On the contrary the small trade has been very brisk, and consequently prices are firm.

GREEN FRUIT.

Everything in the green fruit trade, though none too bright yet, has been more active the past week than at any other time since the first of November. Fancy oranges are in very good request for holiday trade. Valencias are in stock and selling at $5.50 to $6, but as Floridas are so much cheaper and the quality of selections from them is fine, they are coming in for the bulk of the trade attention. They sell at $2.75 to $3.25. Jamaicas are still on the market at $6 to $7. In lemons, Malagas quote at $3.50 to $4 per box and $7 to $7.50 per chest; Messinas are $4.50 to $5. In Malaga grapes sales of extra choice and weight are reported as high as $7, though the general range is from $5 to $6 for kegs and $2.75 to $3 for half-kegs. Stock is hard to get hold of now. Pineapples are still scarce at 15 to 20c.

The New York Daily Commercial Bulletin says :

The lemon market is looking stronger. Higher prices for strictly fancy fruit were obtained and $2.50 was obtained for inferior quality that buyers passed at $2 a week ago.

Statistics regarding the probable yield of oranges in California this season are conflicting, but it is believed the crop will be considerably larger than that of last season, which aggregated 3,850 carloads.

Scarcity of fancy cluster Malaga raisins is emphasized as orders for Christmas and New Year's holiday season supplies come. Goods of this character are commanding strictly fancy prices.

DRY GOODS.

December promises to be more satisfactory than the same month last year, demand being better for all classes of goods. Travellers are sending in fair orders, although they are beginning to report that customers are too busy to look at samples. The house trade is good, but sorting up trade seems to be about over. Payments are fairly good.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Dec. 17, 1891.

The snow has come at last, and dealers in all lines are devoutly hoping that it has come to stay, for business during the past few weeks has certainly been of a disappointing character, not because buyers were reluctant but simply that the roads were bad. In this connection all reports agree that supplies in third hands are pretty well worked down, therefore, with consumers more urgent, the movement should improve and everyone expects it to. The notable feature this week was the activity in dried and green fruit in anticipation of holiday requirements. It has led to a wholesale clearance of Valencia raisins and currants out of first hands, stocks in this connection being almost nil and in green fruit the activity is an incentive for business in other ways. On the whole, matters look more promising.

SUGAR, SYRUPS, ETC.

Raw sugar maintains its firm tone on outside markets, and of course this keeps the market steady all round, although there is no change in price to mention. Holders are not pressing business, but if the present snow fall is permanent, immediate improvement can be expected, as consumers are not liberally supplied by any means. This is very likely to send prices up with holders, in their present temper. In the meantime we give nominal quotations of 3½ to 4⅛ on yellows, and 4½ on granulated.

Syrup meets with a moderate demand, and movement of small volume, at 28 to 30c. from refineries. Molasses are slow and easy prices being quoted 36 to 37c. for Barbadoes, and 28 to 30c. for New Orleans. It is the offerings of latter stock that has put prices down.

BEET SUGAR.

Some time ago reference was made to samples of the first offerings of beet root sugar by the Farnham refinery. Since then a satisfactory business has been done in the article, and it can now be quoted as a regular line in the grocery market. The refinery mentioned has consumed 12,000 tons of beets since it commenced operations, which, at $5 the ton, which is about the average price, means a nice little item towards the revenue of the farmers of the district. The company intend to largely extend their operations next season, having purchased the old Berthier refinery, and already have entered into negotiations with the farmers of the two districts of Berthier and Farnham for securing the production of 40,000 to 50,000 tons of beets, which at the price above given means considerable of an increase to the agriculturist's earnings next season. At present beet sugar is selling on this market at 14c less than granulated, which means about 4¼c. per lb.

TEAS.

Trade in tea is quiet, and no particular change is anticipated until after the holiday business, at present, being confined to a small jobbing trade in the way of satisfying immediate requirements.

COFFEES.

The coffee market is very firm, at present, with stocks here almost nil ; in fact there is little or nothing in first hands. To move anything, therefore, means 18½ to 20c. for Rios in large quantities owing to scarcity, and there are some urgent buyers as stocks in consumers' hands are limited. Jamaicas are firm in sympathy with Rios, and business at 17 to 18c., and Maracaibos at about 19c.

RICE.

There is no no wholesale business in rice to report, trade being of a small jobbing character. We quote Patna, $4.50 to $5 : Japan, $4.25 to $4.50 ; Standard, $3.90, and off grades $3.50 in car lots.

DRIED FRUIT.

The indications of activity noted last week in regard to dried fruit, have been verified, and there is a wholesale turnover of both raisins and currants from first hands since our last report, reducing stocks in this respect to very slim dimensions, and prices therefore are much firmer than they were, although no actual advance is to note. Still there was a large business in ordinary Valencia raisins at 5c., and no firsts could be had under 5 to 5¼c., while seconds have been practically cleaned out of first hands, on the basis of 4⅞c., and whatever holdings there are of this description, are confined to scattered lots in jobbers' hands. The movement of currants was very heavy and prices firm. In barrels round lots are moving at 5½c., half barrels 5⅝c.. and cases 5¾c., while the market here is almost bare of stock.

CANNED GOODS.

Grocers appear to have sufficient supplies of most lines, and trade in canned goods remains dull, while there is no new feature to note in connection with the market. Tomatoes maintain their firmness in the anticipation of improvement in the near future, and other lines furnish nothing to mention.

GREEN FRUIT.

Practically all the attention in this line has been devoted to oranges and grapes which in anticipation of holiday requirements are quite active and strong, as city grocers are commencing to lay in heavy supplies. Florida oranges have been quite active at $2.50 to $3.50 per box, and what little Valencia stock there has been offering here found takers at $4.75 to $5.00 per case. Jamaicas in barrels are offering at $4 to $5 but do not meet with the same favor as the two previous lines. Almeria grapes are in good supply and demand on the basis of $5 to $5.50 per keg. Lemons are rather quiet Malaga stock being dull at $5.00 per chest while Messinas meet a fair sort of demand at $2.50 to $3.50 per box. The quality of the former fruit is not exceptional by any means. Fresh bananas are offering at $2 to $2.50 per bunch with a fair enquiry.

APPLES.

This market maintains the firm tone noted previously, and in carload lots prices are stiff at $2.10 to $2.25, while they are jobbing out in smaller quantities from $2.50 as high as $3 per barrel. The total shipments abroad from the United States and Canada to the 5th of December were 882,861 barrels, divided as follows: 554,283, Liverpool; 101,021, London; 212,351, Glasow; and 15,206, various; against 336,833 barrels last year, divided as follows: 190,549, Liverpool; 75,134, London; 69,990, Glasgow; and 160, various. This means that 546,028 barrels more apples were shipped this year than last, Liverpool taking 363,734 more; London, 25,887; Glasgow, 142,361; and various ports, 14,046, a remarkable increase all round, while it is equally remarkable that the firmness of the market should be maintained as it is. There are a few lots of dried apples here which are moving at 5c.. and evaporated run from 7 to 8c.

FISH.

There is no essential change in fish for the simple reason that no business at all has been doing worthy of mention. With the small stock here, though, it is quite safe to predict an immediate advance once the movement commences, indeed it is anticipated that the Lenten demand will be but a short time in reducing stocks to practically nothing, for the scarcity is more particularly noticeable in connection with staple lines such as herring and cod, than with other lines subject to less call. Therefore the tone is very firm, and prices are purely nominal at present.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market is quiet and pork is dull, as buyers are not disposed to operate with the large supplies of dressed hogs in the country and they have an easy tone in consequence. Lard is dull and smoked meats are quiet and unchanged. Canadian short cut, per brl. $16.00 to $16.25; mess pork, western, per brl. $13.50 to $14.00; short cut, western, per brl. $16.25 to $16.50; hams, city cured, per lb. 10½c. to 11½c; lard, Canadian, in pails, 8⅞c. to 9c; bacon, per lb. 9c. to 10c; lard, com. refined, per lb. 7¾ to 8c.

DRESSED HOGS.

Offerings are light at present, as the weather previously has been unfavorable, but it is known that there are large supplies in first hands in the country, and if the present cold weather and snow fall is permanent, they are certain to increase. We quote $5.25 to $5.50.

EGGS.

There is no change in eggs to note, but dealers report a fair demand for limed stock at 15 to 16c. Practically no fresh eggs are offering, but fair held stock from cold storage is meeting with good demand at 17 to 20c.

POULTRY, ETC.

The long spell of mild weather has been disastrous to the trade, but dealers are hoping for some improvement now, with the cold weather which had its inception yesterday. Turkeys have been moving slowly at 9 to 9½c., chickens in fair demand at 8c., but old fowls not wanted at 6c. Geese have been a glut at 6½ to 7c., and ducks very slow at 8 to 9c. Partridge have had a fair call at 40 to 45c. per brace for No. 1.

BUTTER.

There is only a jobbing business doing in butter. Townships dairy is saleable at 18 to 20., but creamery has cost so much that holders are still reluctant to sell at 23½ to 24c. We quote: Late made creamery 15½ to 24c.; Finest Townships, 19 to 20c.; Finest Western, 16 to 17½c.

CHEESE.

It is simply a question of who has got the greatest staying powers with the cheese market. Stock is concentrated in strong hands, and there is no call to speak of from Great Britain. The market, therefore, is quiet and no change is anticipated until the New Year. We quote: Finest fall makes, 11c.; Fine stock, 10¾ to 10⅞c.; Medium grades, 10¼ to 10½c.; Cable, 55s.

GRAIN.

Grain is dull all round, and there is little or nothing to note, while prices are purely nominal. The stocks in store compared with those of a week ago show an increase of 5,572 wheat, 4,856 peas, 1,306 rye, and a decrease of 24,653 oats, and 4,666 barley. Compared with a year ago there is an increase of 131,308 wheat, 176,395 peas, 232,992 barley, and a decrease of 1,414 oats, 3,707 rye. We quote:—No. 2 hard Manitoba, $1.03 to $1.04; No. 3, do., 97c; No. 2 Northern, $1.04; peas, 75 to 76c. per 66 pounds; oats, 35¼ to 36c. per 34 pounds in store, corn, 72c. duty paid; feed barley, 48 to 50c.; good malting do., 60 to 62c.

A SPLENDID BANKING SYSTEM.

Recent bank failures in the United States, especially the failure of National banks, popularly but erroneously considered infallible, have led to much discussion of the banking system, and how it can be improved upon. At the recent meeting of the American Bankers' Convention, in New York, a paper was read on the bank note circulation of the Canadian provinces, its purpose being to show that our neighbors on the north have met the demand for a safe, flexible currency, according to the demands of trade, and in a way distinctly their own, yet entirely satisfactory. Banks of issue in Canada must obtain their charters from Parliament, and must have a capital of at least $500,000, with one-half of this paid up. Every shareholder bears double liability—that is, he can be called upon in case of need for as much more, to meet failure or defalcation as the amount of his original subscription. Dividends are limited to eight per cent., until a surplus has been accumulated to equal three per cent. of the capital. Monthly statements are required to be published. No bank can issue its notes to more than the amount of its capital paid in, and these notes are a lien on all assets of the bank. Even if a dishonest manager attempted to wreck a bank, there is a redemption fund to fall back upon, made up of a five per cent. fund, called assets, from notes of all the banks, which fund is held by the Government, and is a sacred trust for the redemption of the notes of any suspended bank. When a bank suspends its notes begin to draw interest at six per cent. This is intended to compensate for any depreciation which may follow the suspension. If not paid, with interest, by the Receiver, within two months, they are paid out of the redemption fund, and this is replenished later by payment from the assets. There are many other details unnecessary to go into, and the strongest argument that can be made in favor of this system is that the innocent depositors and holders of bank currency cannot easily be defrauded. It may be that this system would not be the best for the United States, but there is no doubt but what a reform of some sort is needed in the banking system of this country, especially in the National banks.—Ex.

THE PROBLEM OF HELP.

I wish I could establish some sort of satisfactory rules for the government of my clerks." said a merchant to a representative: "I find so much variation of temperament and of habits as they are formed by association and education, or lack of, that it seems to me next to impossible to govern my force on anything like equable terms and yet practice equity."

In this connection we invite attention to certain axioms laid down by a writer in a contemporary, who, speaking from long practical experience, has found it possible to set certain stakes and be guided thereby, and his hints may be helpful not only to the trader referred to but others in trade. He says: If you have a clerk in your employ, who considers time to precious to waste a little of it on a customer—stop his pay. If you have a clerk who wastes his time in visiting with his friends when he should be at work—look for his successor. If you have a clerk who has to be told to do everything he does—tell him to look for another position. If you have a clerk who imagines the whole business depends upon him, and he stays with you simply to enable you to exist—try to struggle along without him.

To this may be added: If you have a clerk who believes he is not sufficiently paid for the work he does, or is called upon to do, have a distinct understanding with him as to the facts, and let him clearly comprehend that so long as he remains he is expected to do all the work that he would do if his wages were higher; only when he has proven his capacity and willingness, be sure that you are just enough to pay him accordingly.

The whole secret of management in a clerical force in a store, perhaps, is comprised not in the establishment of proper rules so much as in the ability of the employed to interest his help in his business. If they refuse to become interested, then the employer should refuse to retain them—Ex.

NOTES TAKEN ON THE ROAD.

Mr. D. Darling, Gananoque, is one of the oldest grocerymen in that town, and for fifteen years he has supplied the grocer "menu" to a large patronage in this manufacturing centre. Mr. Darling handles flour and feed and deals largely in farm products.

G. L. Johnston is manager of what is known as the West End grocery store, Gananoque, owned by Mr. J. B. Turner. The location is a good one and a large trade is the result. Mr. Turner has another store up town in a fine new brick block which he built on the ruins of the fire about a year ago Mr. Turner is one of Gananoque's enterprising citizens, and two of the finest blocks in Gananoque are monuments of his enterprise and good will for that town. Mr. Turner was a candidate for parliament last year, and pulled the present member's majority down from five hundred to less than two hundred.

HECK'S COLUMN.

R. W. Forester, teabroker, Montreal, has had a good season this year, and is extending his trade among the wholesalers every day. Here THE GROCER is a welcome visitor.

J. A. Grant & Co. had a good word for THE GROCER as early as eight o'clock in the morning. Mr. Grant is doing some very pretty decorating, and brightening up his handsome store on St. Catharine street, Montreal.

Willison Bros., of University St., admire the way THE GROCER has talked the question of Christmas presents. The young men are making rapid headway in the grocery trade and are kept busy all day long and sometimes far into the evening.

Morrin & Co., Montreal, who are agents for the Gaspe Fish Co., take a great interest in reading each issue of this paper. The illustrations and sketches of our different wholesale men are pronounced very fine by their cashier, who is making a collection of them.

Montreal grocers are not giving presents this year. A call at J. H. B. Rickaby & Co.'s this week shows us everything tempting for the Christmas trade. This firm, which do a veryl arge family trade, put up some lines of crab apple jellies and raspberry vinegar in glass jars, also a blend of whiskey known as "Duke Rye Whiskey," which has become very popular for home use. Mr. Rickaby tells us he has secured twelve new customers in the past three weeks. This should be encouraging.

The Johnston Fluid Beef Co., of Montreal, say : "The glory of a man is his strength." The other day I had occasion to make a trip from New York to Philadelphia. In the seat opposite me sat an elderly gentleman, and as the train pulled out of Jersey City we fell into conversation. He was a big burly fellow, about 45 years of age, wore a neat suit of clothes and a plug hat, which prompted me to take him in as a commercial man He said: "I have been travelling twenty odd years for my present company, throughout the United States from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and am on my way to Philadelphia to put my capital into what has been my aim, my glory for all these years." He told me nothing further on the subject, but I have thought since that he must be as happy a man to-day as ever carried a grip. We have all read and heard many experiences of successful business men, but I think there are few men who carry the grip to attain their object in life. I would have liked to have heard more of that man's life. The average travelling man does not usually show that he has any object in view except the necessity of an existence. The new beginner on the road, usually starts out to have all the fun possible, and to do all the business that can be done without much hustling. Of course he gets left, but the years' experience that he has had only just put him farther back in the business world. I am thinking of an old friend who, about six years ago was a clerk in one of our largest wholesale houses, and who, about that time got his samples to make his first trip. He was to go from Montreal to Lachute, thence to Ottawa and up the line as far as Pembroke. Charley showed his samples in the first town and did a fairly good trade. At Ottawa he worked pretty faithfully the first day among his customers, but in the evening he fell in with some of the old heads to hear the old and newest stories, and to have a glass of ale. That eve settled his success as a traveller, and although he for a few years held his situation, he to-day is out of a position and cannot get a place, simply because his employer's time cannot be trusted in his care. As the new year approaches there is always a number of changes made among the travelling men, and a good many new ones take their places. The new man should have some glory to look forward to, but he should not expect, or try to get it, unless his intentions are to hustle when others are having their fun. Do not satisfy yourself as to your idea of a travelling man by the style of the first jolly one you meet, who has lots of jokes and a batch of orders to tell you about when you should be out working. He simply "ain't in it," and a few years' more experience on top of your head will give you an opportunity of being like the unknown American gentlemen or my friend Charlie, to whom I am going to send a marked copy of this story.

There has been a good deal of talk in Montreal among the trade since the last copy of THE GROCER arrived here. One wholesale grocer was pleased to see the stand THE GROCER was taking in the matter of circulation, and was sure that we were at the front. He had only a few weeks before had his travellers taking notes of the number of merchants throughout the country who subscribed for our paper, and found very few of the enterprising business men who would be without it. These facts are very encouraging to us, and we would like all our advertisers to put their travellers into looking up this matter. We know it would increase our advertising patronage. HECK.

PROPOSED CHANGES IN QUEBEC INSOLVENCY LAW.

The Boards of Trade of Montreal and Quebec are preparing to renew the attempt, which almost completely failed before the last session of their Legislature, to secure a more satisfactory enactment to govern the liquidation of bankrupt estates. They have agreed, in all but one detail, on the amendments which they deem necessary to the existing legislation on this matter. The amendments were reported by the Quebec Board and adopted with the exception of clause 4 by the Montreal Board, which would substitute for the clause in question :—"The judge shall appoint as curator the party or parties nominated by the majority in value of the creditors present or represented at the meeting." The council of the latter Board reported "That any restriction on the right of a creditor to vote on the ground that his claim was partly or wholly secured would often necessitate vexatious delays and the expense of a contestation to decide whether and to what extent the claim in dispute was secured ; that although the delay of forty-eight hours specified in clause 7 was approved by the council last year, experience convinced them that the present delay of twenty-four hours is ample, and in numerous cases even that period is detrimental to the interests of creditors ; that they considered the time opportune for a renewal of the efforts to obtain legislation by the Federal Parliament for the equitable distribution of the assets of insolvent estates, and urged the council to take the matter into early consideration."

The following are the changes proposed by the Quebec Board, and approved, with the exception of clause 4, by the Montreal Board :

1. That power shall be given to question under oath the insolvent or the party managing the business for the insolvent, at any time after the nomination of the curator, at the request of a majority of the inspectors and curator combined with the concurrence of the court.

2. That a sworn claim, with vouchers attached, for a sum of not less than two hundred dollars, shall be fyled with a demand of assignment.

3. That parties holding general notarial powers of attorney shall be allowed to make demands of abandonment and vote at all meetings in virtue of said powers either personally or by their signatures ; that the same rule shall apply to incorporate companies, banks or municipalities, without the necessity of a special meeting of the directors to authorize such signatures when those signatures are given by the recognized officers representing the institution.

4. The majority in amount for one-third in number combined of direct creditors whose claims are unsecured shall name the curator and inspectors, the court having only to preside at such election and confirm it when made in order ; whenever a division occurs between amount and number, the decision as to the appointment of a curator will be left to the decision of the court.

5. The curator shall have the right to contest creditors' claims, provided he has the approval of the majority of the inspectors and he has obtained permission from court ; and all results of such proceedings shall be at the risk of the estate.

6. The curator shall have the right to contest statements deposited by the insolvent, provided he has the approval of the majority of the inspectors and has obtained permission from court ; and all results of the proceedings shall be at the risk of the estate.

7. A delay of forty-eight hours shall be given the insolvent, after the demand of abandonment, to deposit his sworn statement in order to determine the time when a capias may be issued.

8. A delay of not more than eight days clear shall be given, between the date of calling the meeting and the meeting itself ; notices of convocation of such meeting shall be given by the provisional guardian of the estate.

9. When a demand of abandonment served on a woman or minor children has not been complied with in the stated delay of forty eight hours, power shall be given to take possession of said estate with same rights as if there had been an assignment.

10. The notice of abandonment shall have to be given by the provisional guardian of the estate, within three days after the assignment ; if, at the expiration of such delay, such notices have not been sent, any creditor shall be authorized to send the same.

11. Immediately after the fyling of the statement on application to that effect made by the creditors demanding assignment or his attorney, the prothonotary appoints a provisional guardian, whom he, as far as possible, selects from among the most interested creditors who either personally or by a person whom he delegates for that purpose, takes immediate possession of all the property liable to seizure, and the books of account of the debtor.

12. The writ-capias may also be obtained, if the affidavit establishes that the debtor has been condemned to pay a sum exceeding $80, exclusive of interest, from service of protest and costs, for a debt of a commercial nature ; that the immovable and movable property of which he appears possessed have been disused, and that he has refused to make an assignment of his property for the benefit of his creditors.

The 50th annual meeting of the Quebec Board of Trade of Quebec was held on 9th inst. when Mr. V. Chateauvert was elected president, and Messrs. H. M. Price and E. B. Garneau vice-presidents.

PHILOSOPHY OF ADVERTISING.

Advertising, which became a growing necessity at the dawn of this century, has now reached almost to the dignity of a science. The history of advertising, which is now mainly accomplished by the newspaper, is full of romance. One of the best and most comprehensive definitions of advertising we can call to mind, is that which describes an advertisement as "The public notification of a fact." For many generations the pulpit and church door were the chief places where important facts were made public. More than three hundred years ago, when Martin Luther desired to make the most public declaration of his objection to Fetzel's sale of Indulgences, he wrote out those objections in the form of theses or propositions, and nailed them on the door of the great church at Wittenburg, For centuries the oddest kind of announcements have been made from the pulpits of the parish church. Losses were announced, coming fairs and other celebrations were spoken of. When in a family the circle grew wider and the cradle had to be rocked, public thanksgiving to Almighty God was made, and the happy mother's name mentioned from the pulpit. When Corydon and Phyllis resolved to venture on the sea of matrimony, and boldly put to proof the old, old question : "Is marriage a failure?" the bans were put up in the parish church and for three successive Sundays their purpose was announced from the pulpit, so that if any one knew of "any just cause or lawful impediment," why in this particular case the course of true love should not run smoothly, they should "now speak, or forever hold their peace." Such stringent modes as these made Gretna Green so famous as the happy haven of eloping lovers. To this day in England, or up to a very recent date, the law prescribed that in order to the full public notification of the names of those who had the right to exercise the power of voting, a complete list of voters of each parish should be nailed on the door of said parish church, so many days before the date of the coming election. Up to a very recent date the public Bellman was a very useful and sometimes a very amusing institution. Mr. Bellman was generally a man of great lung power, gifted with a droning sing-song method of delivery. He rang a huge unmusical bell and cried : "O yes ! O yes ! O yes !" A method by which the attention of the people was attracted. A crowd would gather round, and then Mr. Bellman would tell his story. Sometimes a very queer story it was. We remember not so many years ago, to have heard in the ancient city of Lincoln, one of these living advertisers make an amusing muddle of his message. He was charged to announce a lecture in the town hall on "Adam Bede," for the name of George Eliot was just then the overshadowing name in literature. The Bellman rung his bell and cried, "O yes ! O yes ! O yes ! you'll please to take notice that a lecture will be given in Lincoln Town Hall on Tuesday night on "Adam and Eve," "God save the Queen."

It was in vain to try and persuade this notifier of facts that he had made a mistake, that the lecturer in question wanted to talk, not of the early denizens of the Garden of Eden, but of a recent book. He responded in anger, "If you'll mind your business, I'll mind mine," and on he went ringing his bell, bungling the title of the lecture, and ending each announcement with a heartfelt prayer for his queen. Of course all this kind of thing had to give way. In the very nature of things the newspaper had to become the grand medium of advertising. It is interesting to note how advertising had to struggle, in England especially, in the early decade of this century.

In 1833 there was a duty of a little more than a dollar on each advertisement in Great Britain. This absurd duty was not repealed till 1853. In 1855 the Government received $720,000 as advertisement duty. We have said already that advertising has climbed to the dignity of a science. And, indeed, it is a science. And we have come to this point in business affairs, that no man need expect to be successful in business who does not judiciously and generously advertise. It has passed into a proverb, of the truth of which every day brings ample proof that advertising is to business what steam is to machinery, the grand propelling power. Barnum said that if he had not spent twice as much in telling people what he had for them to see, as in buying and keeping the things he had on exhibition, his career would have been a failure. A merchant might as well have his stores hidden in a cave as kept on his shelves without informing the people of what he has for sale. The merchant of to-day knows that without wise advertising, extensive and successful business is all but impossible. It is a little amusing to turn back to some old forms of advertising and compare them with our present methods. Take the matter of soap for example. The manner in which innumerable brands of soap are advertised would lead to the conclusion that the world is fast growing clean. In the year 1680 the only soap advertisement in the world ran thus: "William Deval at the sign of the 'Angel and Stillards,' St. Annes lane, near Aldersgate, London, maketh castile, marble and white sope as good as any man sells ; tryed and proved, and sold at very reasonable rates." The same advertising sheet announces that "at the 'Angel and Sun,' in the strand is to be sold every day fresh Epsum-water, Barnet-water, Epsum-ale and Spruce-beer." Some of our Chicago modes of advertising, especially about Christmas time are to say the least curious. But there always will be romance in advertising, but there is philosophy and wisdom too.—Chicago Saturday Evening Herald.

* * * *

Late grocer and dispenser of forced charity.

How suggestive are the last words of the above advertisement, clipped from a paper published in a nearby city. There is a tinge of sadnesss mingled with bitter sarcasm in the words : "Late grocer and dispenser of forced charity." Our friend is in trouble ; defeated, because he lacked discrimination in making credits and the moral courage to say No at the right time, to the right one and in the right place.

"Dispenser of forced charity" are the words that should be placed over many retail stores, because their proprietors respond affirmatively to every appeal for credit, thereby taking risks out of all proportion to their capital. There are men whose bump of confidence is so large that it is almost a physical impossibility for them to deny an unworthy person credit. They cannot grasp the idea that some persons are improvident reckless spendthrifts, unthrifty, nor can they discredit the fair promises such folk make. And then when their means are exhausted, they take satisfaction in such a sentiment as we have recorded above.—American Grocer.

A PUZZLE TO THE TRADE.

The original estimates of the Valencia raisin crop were put at 35,000 tons, then they suddenly fell to 25,000 and 20,000 tons ; once more they sank to 10,000 tons ; and finally we have heard it stated that the Valencia crop for 1891-92 will not exceed 6,000 tons. How this should be so without such an astounding fact (?) becoming notorious, or at least being known much earlier in the season, is a puzzle to the trade. Nor are we the only persons who are struck with the glaring inconsistencies and contradictions that have been commented upon this season, for a leading trade authority on the 7th inst. made the following observations : The doubt and mystery which proverbially surround the market were never more marked than at present. When arrivals are usually at their heaviest, and the market is nine times out of ten overburdened with stocks, and rapidly declining, there is this year an advancing market, with small landings and comparatively nothing afloat. The crop was said to be large, and, owing to the enormous increase in that of California raisins, and the fact that they enjoy a protection of something like 11s. per cwt., it was confidently expected that the United States would require to import only a small quantity of Spanish fruit. Whether the shortness of available supplies is caused by the want of suitable fruit to ship, or by holding it back and attempting to starve the market here so as to enhance values, is not by any means clear. That there should be room for doubt on a question of this kind is absurd. The latest information from Spain, however, is to the effect that liberal shipments are now being hurried forward, and it is probable that increasingly large quantities of Valencias will be placed on the London market during the next few weeks.

THE CANADIAN GROCER PRICES CURRENT.

TORONTO, Dec. 17, 1890.

This list is corrected every Thursday. The prices are solicited for publication, and are for such qualities and quantities as are usually ordered by retail dealers on the usual terms of credit.

Goods in large lots and for prompt pay are generally obtainable at lower prices.

All quotations in this department are under the direct control of the Editor, and are not paid for or doctored by any manufacturing or jobbing house unless given under their name; the right being reserved to exclude such firms as do not furnish reliable information.

CERTIFICATES OF STRENGTH AND PURITY.

OFFICE OF THE PUBLIC ANALYST,

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Co., Montreal:

GENTLEMEN,—I have personally taken samples from a large stock of your Granulated Sugar, "REDPATH" brand, and carefully tested them by the Polariscope, and I find these samples to be as near to absolute purity as can be obtained by any process of Sugar-Refining.

The test by the Polariscope showed in yesterday's yield 99·90 per cent. of Pure Cane Sugar, which may be considered commercially as ABSOLUTELY PURE SUGAR.

JOHN BAKER EDWARDS, P.L.D., D.C.L., F.C.S.,

Public Analyst for the District of Montreal, and Professor of Chemistry.

CHEMICAL LABORATORY, MEDICAL FACULTY, MCGILL UNIVERSITY.

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Company:

GENTLEMEN,—I have taken and tested a sample of your "EXTRA GRANULATED" Sugar, and find that it yielded 99·88 per cent. of Pure Sugar It is practically as pure and good a Sugar as can be manufactured.

Yours truly,

G. P. GIRDWOOD.

It is well-known

That successful Doctors read all the latest medical books and papers and go abroad occasionally to study. Successful lawyers read legal publications to learn the latest legal decisions and points constantly cropping up. Teachers, clergymen, druggists, architects, all read the publication issued in the interests of their profession. They must do so to keep up with the times.

The same applies to grocers and general merchants. They must not only read the best papers published in their interests but must also watch the advertisements closely. There they learn the rise and fall in prices; latest trade news and methods of buying, handling and selling goods, so that they may make the greatest profit. A doctor reads much that he already knows, so does a lawyer. So does a number of any of the other professions. So will a merchant. It is often the issue of the paper he misses that is worth dollars to him. His best and safest policy, therefore, is to subscribe for his trade paper.

The only exclusively grocery and general store paper is THE CANADIAN GROCER issued weekly, subscription price $2.00 per year.

CHRISTMAS-TIDE.

OF CHRISTMAS themes there have been and will ever be, in this and other Christian lands, more pages written and more discourses spoken than on any other the world has ever known. To the most of those who observe the day, it has, first, its religious aspect. Amid lights and flowers, the pæans of rich voices and the swelling tones of organ and orchestra, the feast of the Nativity receives its devotional observances. Again, it is its mission to bring smiles and sunshine, to strew flowers along life's rugged pathway, and to mingle some of the sweet things of life with the distasteful and unpleasant, so much of which is found in the daily experience of many, if not the most, of us. For this day at least, the din and tumult have ceased; an air of holy calm enwraps the earth as with a mantle, and rudeness, violence, and discord are transformed to gentleness, kindness and harmony. "Peace on earth; good will to man." How these words thrill and ennoble the human heart, and when hand clasps hand and eye returns the kindly glance of eye, as the hearty greeting springs from the lips, we recognize the brotherhood of man and our hearts are filled with more kindly thoughts one to another. Though cares may press and troubles throng all the grim three hundred and sixty-four days that precede it, when once the chimes of Christmas Day ring out upon the air, the furrowed brows relax, the anxious eyes light up, and every one of us, however conditioned, and wherever placed, feels the glad thrill of the world's happiness touch both life and heart, as we too join in greetings to the happy day. Men who never give the origin of the world's great festival a thought, feel their best natures stirred to be in the good times they see and feel around them, and to do their share towards brightening and cheering the little corner of the earth for whose happiness they are responsible. Even scoffers and such as have no distinct idea of religious belief cease from logical reasoning and historical refutation, and become as little children in Christmas entertainment. A great longing to make others happy fills every heart; now, if ever, the purse strings are loosened; the giver is blessed in giving, the receiver happy in receiving; and the fair garland of Christmas gifts and Christmas greetings that links heart to heart vies in fragrance and beauty with the more perishable blossoms that deck the Christmas home. We all have our share of joys and sorrows, losses and disappointments but on this holy Christmas Day we are always inspired to hope for the brightest and best and not to shrivel and shrink when trouble crosses our path. Welcome then to the Christmas-tide, that season of merrymaking, with its happy home gatherings, its tokens of remembrance and love, of paternal thoughtfulness and filial regard!

Eighteen hundred and ninety-one years ago the star came and stood over the place where the young Child lay, and ushered in the era of universal brotherhood among men. To-day is the anniversary of the event which gave a divine inauguration to that era —it is Christmas Day—and men's minds are recalled to the social sentiment which is the very essence of Christianity, that of love to one another. The day does not plant in us, but it lays bare, feelings that we were unconscious of on all the other days of the year, and makes us think better of ourselves and of our kind, by revealing to us the ties that bind us to one another. Thus are we enabled to feel that Christ's mission on earth, to establish good-will among men, has not been a fruitless one. The love of kindred, the sense of broad human fellowship, the feelings of philanthropy, are heightened and hallowed by the usages and observances that cling around Christmas day. The circle that gathers about the family fireside may here and there be marked by a gap that some loved one will fill no more, or a vacant chair may tell of one whom distance separates from his home. But the Christmas gathering will refresh the hearts of all with tenderer memory for the absent ones, and knit together those who are there in bonds of renewed strength. The day is invested with associations that no other holiday ever had; it cheers, strengthens and holds together the family and the community. May it be a bright day in the lives of all our readers, who have our wishes for a very Merry Christmas

ITS WORKS BESPEAK ITS WORTH.

To the Editor CANADIAN GROCER.

SIR,—As one of your correspondents said last week, "I don't often gush over business matters," but when I find a paper such as THE GROCER I feel that it is incumbent upon me to give you a word of praise. As a trade journal devoted exclusively to the grocery business it is without a peer. I have spent a good deal of hard cold cash in advertising, and I can say without fear of contradiction that I never before had such good results as from your paper. The reason is simply because your journal goes straight to the people I want to talk to. I have been able to trace business directly to THE GROCER. Only to day, after reading your remarks about a certain article used very largely at this season of the year, was I able to add $38.50 to my earnings. It was in this way: I have a stock of these goods and found slow sale for them, one reason being that I thought the merchants were "loaded" with such goods, and I failed to push them, but upon reading the article referred to in THE GROCER, and learning that I was about the only person who had such in stock, I hustled around this morning and placed my wares to the advantage to myself of $38.50. Not a big pile, some will say, but $38.50 made by reading your paper well repays me for my subscription to it and for my reading the article. A penny saved is two pennies made, because while you have saved the one penny that you would have got rid of you made another, so, $38.50 saved, or made, is really $77 made.

SUNSHINE IN BUSINESS.

To the Editor CANADIAN GROCER.

SIR,—I wish you would publish extracts from a sermon published a few weeks ago by Rev. Dr. Wild. It was to the effect that very few merchants, or their clerks, sell sunshine with their wares, or buy goods with the same article. Some traveller will say: It would be a good thing if every grocer and grocer's clerk in Canada would read this sermon. Business now-a-days is hard enough work for everybody concerned without people trying to look black and cross Every traveller knows some merchant on his trip on whom it is a pleasure to call, simply because he keeps sunshine on hand all the time, but how few of them do keep it?

Sunshine in business is one of the best articles ever handled. It helps to buy, because a traveller when brought under its influence will do more to win the confidence of and oblige the merchant who has sunshine, than he would do for the merchant who looks black and treats everybody as if he had a monopoly of the town. It helps to sell, because buyers will ever remember a sunshiny man who sells on the road, in the store or warehouse or factory.

I employ a good many persons, and the one with the most sunshine seems to creep into my affections the easiest. I will do more every time for the employe who is cheerful and who has sunshine, than for the one who is snappy and sullen. I try to have sunshine for those who work for me, and I find it pays. Only last week a customer who happened to be with me as my staff were leaving, expressed surprise at my saying "Good night" to each employe as they all passed out, but I said, "It pays to be polite to those who work for you." It pays to have sunshine for those who are in your employ, as it pays to have sunshine for those who buy from you. And after reading Dr. Wild's sermon I have tried to have sunshine for everybody, and I find "it pays." Try it.

WHOLESALER.

COUNTRY STORE LOAFERS.

According to Mr. Wannamaker's report, there are 1,250 post-offices in this country which are used as lounging places by the public. The chances are that most of these offices are run in connection with country grocery stores, and that the inalienable right of the village statesmen to sit around the stove and ventilate their opinions of matters and things goes with the store and not with the postoffice. It is doubtful if Bro. Wanamaker can eradicate these institutions.—Boston Herald.

Sitting around, sitting around—that used to be the order of the eveuing in the country stores. We doubt if there is as much of this store-loafing as in olden days, but probably it is not entirely obsolete. In the country stores in our native town we can well remember that you would find the same men in the store night after night. We could call them by name—and it would be a long list, too. The store for them took the place of the lodge-room. It was stage-coach days in that town, and the latest news wasn't flashed into town every day and Sunday as it now is. If we were to visit those stores of an evening now we would find few of those "old-timers" there, for Father Time has mowed them down and they rest from their day-time labors and evening discussions. We doubt if their sons have followed their example in the "store-loafing" direction Whether they have adopted a better course—whether 'tis better to leave the country for the city and substitute the theatre and ball for the store is perhaps a question of some doubt.—New England Grocer.

THE "BEST" CLOTHES PIN.

This cut represents a Clothes Pin and spirally wound Clothes Line, manufactured by G. A. LeBarron, Sherbrooke, Que., and is covered by letters patent in Canada, Great Britain, and the United States. The pin is of wire, and the handle of wood. The wire being well galvanized will never rust, and the garments will not freeze to it; even the finest lace will not adhere to this spiral wire.

The garments when pinned to this loose spiral wire, roll with the wind, and do not wear and tear as when frozen to a common wire or rope line. Mr. LeBarron also manufactures hooks and rollers for hanging the line. A 6-inch roller is used, and a person can hang out a wash without moving from the one spot. The best of material is used, and with fair usage one of these lines will last a life time. The Clothes Pin is certainly the "Best" in use, and can be used on any line, the pins are put up in dozen boxes and the line is made in all lengths. All grocers and hardware dealers should keep them in stock, as the profits are large and sales easy.

IN THE BLOOM OF LIFE HE DIED.

Death has cast its shadow over the season of merry-making in this office and in the home of a beloved young co-worker. Mr. John Cameron, on the staff of this paper almost from the time of its inception, died on Sunday last, and was laid away in his grave on Wednesday. He was stricken with typhoid fever, and just when his recovery appeared to be assured the fell malady proved fatal. We missed him one morning from his usual place, and things seemed wrong until he should be back again. The place he filled in this office seems to have suddenly become enlarged since he left it, and the feeling that he was indispensable to it is apt to take hold of one, as again and again we forget and half turn to address an inquiry or mention some business fact to "John." The quiet, undemonstrative way he did his work made people about him almost insensible of his presence, but the withdrawal of that presence suddenly reveals to us how much of an agreeable element it had come to be in our daily lives. He was a favorite with all who were associated or came in contact with him, and sincere sorrow at his death is expressed by many who knew him only in a business way. He was but a lad in years, not being twenty years old when he died, but there was a manliness and gentleness of character in him that maturity alone can not invest the oldest with. It will be long before the gloom which followed the quenching of his light will lift from the spirits of his colleagues in this office, all of whom extend to his bereaved parents their most heartfelt sympathy.

PRECEPT UPON PRECEPT.

There is no greater truism than that "Precept Upon Precept, Line Upon Line," is necessary to accomplish any purpose of importance in this world. What we mean is that in private business affairs, in association work, and in all the various phases of life, when something that seems of consequence has been brought forward, carefully considered and promulgated as a certain line of action or the proper course to pursue, it should be strictly, sternly and undeviatingly adhered to.

In family and church affairs, this rule is known for its vital importance; the child is early taught those moral principals which from time immemorial have proved to be for his future good; the religious institutions preach and inculcate the same grand "old, old story" from day to day and week to week, without which the great ends they seek to attain could not be accomplished. The moral is: Find out what is right; adopt it as a rule of life and stick to it!

In all business affairs it is essential for permanent success that the principles governing all other concerns of life should be rigidly adhered to. No one need be told that only by integrity, honesty, and a scrupulous regard for the rights of others can any one attain to creditable success. Perseverence in what is shown to be desirable and necessary is an essential characteristic of the successful man; a wavering, inconstant disposition will soon lose for its unfortunate possessor the confidence and respect of those with whom he comes in business or social contact.

One of the great drawbacks to the accomplishment of entire success in all their undertakings, is the fact that associated merchants, after resolving to do certain things, do not stick to it. Some weak brother, taking an entirely selfish view of the case, fails to abide by what he agreed to do, another follows his example, and so the whole matter goes by default and the association is looked upon with more or less disrespect by the business community.

Without this rule of "Precept Upon Precept, Line Upon Line," for the purpose of gaining any desired end, the trade journals would be of little force. There are very important matters for the consideration of the merchants of the country which are discussed from week to week in the leading trade papers. Of course, all do not agree as to details, but in the important matters affecting the interests of the general mercantile community there is shown a persistency and determination—which some readers may considar monotonous—without which the desired reforms would never be effected. "Line upon line" is the rule, and must be adhered to. "Be sure you are right, then go ahead," never waver and never cease every legitimate effort to accomplish the desired end.—Grocer and Trade Index.

MARKETING OF BUTTER.

There are few articles of trade in this country that are of more commercial value than our annual production of butter. Our home consumption alone foots up into the hundred millions of dollars and the export trade to Europe is of no small value and annually increasing. In addition to this great outlet the time is close at hand when the entire demand for dairy products in the West Indies and South America will be supplied from the United States; surely it must develop into an important trade.

If we consider how extensively butter is consumed and how highly the finer quality is relished by all classes in the civilized world, one cannot wonder why there should be such a wide range in prices, from the finest quality down to the common slushy stuff that is at all times found on the market. After butter is properly made the more perfectly it is washed and freed of its buttermilk the better is its grain and keeping qualities, for buttermilk contains a large quantity of casein which, on exposure to the air in a moist state, especially in warm weather, becomes rapidly changed into a ferment, and acting on the acids in the butter soon causes rancidity.

There is one thing very noticeable among a great many small butter makers, and that is their persistent use of coarse-grain salt, which remains in the butter undissolved for many days, as if it were so much grit or sand. Fine, pulverized dairy salt is not expensive; it costs but little more than the common coarse-grained salt. Where is the economy in lessening the value of your butter almost fifty per cent. for the sake of saving the trifling difference in the cost of the salt?

Yet the entire responsibility of the quality of butter at the time it arrives on the market does not by far rest wholely on the butter-maker. Many country merchants that buy and barter this article keep large quantities of good butter on their counters, or in open dirty boxes in their storeroom, exposed to the fumes of coal oil, fish, paints, tar, fertilizers, tobacco smoke, etc. Yet many of them do not give it a thought that the longer butter is so exposed the more money they are out of pocket, and consequently the smaller their bank account.

This is only one way some country merchants have of reducing the quality of their butter. There are many others—probably some with which we are not familiar; all of them can only be avoided by care and thoughtfulness. It is to those merchants and shippers that we address these words. Commission men are often severely censured by such careless shippers, after receivers have tried very hard, although in vain, to place such butter on the market at top prices; the fault entirely lies with the shipper.

Butter should only be placed or rehandled in a cool dry cellar or room, which should solely be used for that purpose. Never should it come in contact with any foreign odors of any kind or be exposed to the air any longer than is absolutely necessary to prepare it for shipment. In packing butter always use new tubs or firkins. Scald the package out with hot water, then replace the hot with cold water and let it stand for fifteen or twenty minutes, then pour it out and rub the sides and bottom of the package with fine salt. Never allow the hands to come in contact with the butter, as their natural warmth and heat is very injurious.

Place the butter in the package with paddles and press it down firmly as you pack. Always fill the package well and fully; then level off the butter a little below the top of the package, place a clean muslin cloth over the butter and spread a small quantity of salt on top of the cloth. Fasten the lid on tight with three or four pieces of strap iron, one end being tacked on top of the lid and the other end on the side of the package. Then mark the gross weight and tare on the package. Keep in a cool place and ship as soon as possible, for age never improves butter.

We know that good packages are a little more expensive and that proper care requires time and labor, but the better prices obtained for the goods so handled will more than pay for the packages and time and care required.—Chicago Shipper's Gazette.

CHAT BY THE WAY.

J. A. Leitch, Glencoe, is shipping four carloads of cheese from that place to England.

Mr. Edson A. Polley, of the firm Runnions & Polley, grocers, Quebec, died a few days ago.

The grocers of London are not giving Christmas presents to customers this year. The custom has been discontinued by the majority of the grocers for several years past, and this year they all fall into line.

A. H. Pettit, Grimsby, and T. H. Race, Mitchell, were elected President and Vice-President, respectively,of the Fruit Growers' Association of Ontario, at the 23rd annual meeting of that body, at Hamilton, last week.

A telegram from Sault Ste. Marie announces the death on Thursday of William Price, son of Reeve Price, of Goderich, for several years an extensive grocer and feed merchant of Belleville. The deceased was only 18 years old.

Lacaille & Co., wholesale grocers, Montreal, read THE GROCER with much interest. This firm do a splendid trade through the Provinces. When our representative dropped in to see them this week things looked very brisk there.

"The Star grocery, Berlin, has again changed hands, Mr. Ivey, of London, being the purchaser. Its new proprietor is possessed of ample means and intends to have it run on first class business principles. Mr. Elliott, who will be the manager, his a thorough grocery man and will no doubt make a success of it."

In its magnificent spring trade number the Canadian Shoe and Leather Journal puts its best foot foremost. That paper has achieved a reputation for issuing exceptionally fine special numbers, and this, its latest effort in that line, has nothing to lose by comparison with former issues. It is embellished with a collection of attractive cuts, one alone of which—its galaxy of shoe and leather travellers—will recall to its readers a large number of familiar faces.

Mr. Henry Miller, clerk for Mr. John Dobson, Lindsay, is a genius at window dressing, as a look at the window of Mr Dobson's store will testify. On each side of the window is a Union Jack with the motto "Ready, Aye Ready," on one side, and "Stand To Your Guns," on the other, with the Crown in the centre; there is also a picture of Santa Claus, flanked on each side with the fancy show cards of Huntley & Palmer, biscuit manufacturers, tastefully draped, which gives quite a beautiful appearance.

For the first time in Canada, oil has been found in white sand. The oil is found near Sherkstown Station, the second from Petrolea, at a depth of 750 feet in the Medina sandstone, is dark green in color, 45 in gravity and possesses all of the characteristic features of Pennsylvanian oil. It is the first and only oil found in Canada which is free from the peculiar taint and malodors of oil produced from limestone rocks. The oil will, before being refined, be worth from $2 to $2.50 at the wells, and after refining will be as good oil as can be produced anywhere in America.

CANADIAN APPLES.

The total shipments of apples from Montreal during the present season up to November 14th are returned as 263,778 barrels, against 147,745 barrels for the corresponding period of last year, showing the large increase of 116,033 barrels. The exports to the same date from Halifax were 24,801 barrels, against 35,896 barrels for the same period last year, showing a decrease of 11,094 barrels. The exports from New York and Boston were 358,104 barrels, against 52,494 barrels for the corresponding period in 1890. The total shipments of the season from all Atlantic ports to November 14th were 646,684 barrels, against 236,134 barrels for the corresponding period last year, being an increase of 410,550 barrels. The shipments from Montreal during the week ended November 21st were in round numbers about 51,000 barrels, of which about 30,000 barrels were destined for Liverpool, 5,000 barrels for London, 15,000 barrels for Glasgow, and 1,400 barrels for Bristol. Canadian shippers of apples are said to have done well this season, the markets on this side the Atlantic having "stood up bravely" under the heavy shipments poured in upon them.—Manchester Grocers' Review.

STUDY YOUR OWN INTERESTS.

Have you wasted two dollars by subscribing for a trade paper ond not reading it? If you have, it is reasonable to venture the assertion that you have lost many times the price of a year's subscription by not looking into it regularly. The most successful merchants in the country take time to read their trade papers even at the expense of postponing other important duties. These journals are not designed to entertain the merchant. Of course he hasn't time to go through a lot of miscellaneous matter for pleasure or curiosity. The trade paper comes to him more in the nature of a business letter than a newspaper. It is a summary of the markets to which it is devoted and not a trespasser as those who have not experienced its benefits suppose. The erroneous impression regarding trade papers many people seem to have is that they are published in the interest of some house. The price lists of many jobbing houses which are sent out under the mask of a newspaper to escape the payment of postage and catch the eye of the retailer are responsible for this. These lists are often handsomely printed and bear every resemblance to a legitimate journal, save that alone which makes them trade papers. They never publish any news save that which can be turned to the good account of the house they represent. The department men being the writers, the whole tenor of the matter dished up is to encourage readers to buy goods. The monotony of this is broken in some lists by a continued story.

No wonder retail grocers do not have time to read such stuff. The average grocer knows more in one day about supplying his wants than the alleged editor of a house list could tell him in a year in his paper. What he wants is reliable information upon which he can base his judgment. Merchants do not need a paper to find out where and how much to buy. They are rather inclined to want to know how to escape the number of eager salesmen that importune them almost daily. With a proper understanding of the situation as regards supply and demand and other influences that shape the market, they are enabled to determine their wants without wasting any time. Save more than ten times the amount of the subscription by reading your trade paper, if you take one; if not, begin the new year by subscribing for an independent journal devoted to your line of business.—Chicago Grocer.

Mr. W. C. Evans, of 15 Plateau street, Montreal, died on the 18th inst. Mr. Evans was born in the county of Athlone, Ireland, in the year of 1818, and his parents removed to Canada when he was about two years of age. The greater part of his seventy-three years of life was spent in Montreal, where he attained prominence in business circles. He was for many years connected with the firm of Forsyth, Richardson & Co., and afterwards entered as a partner into the firm of Anderson, Evans & Co., general merchants, St. Gabriel street. He lived for a few years in Kingston, where he was engaged in the manufacture of locks and bolts.

GROCERIES.

Notwithstanding that the weather has been unpropitious and the time reached for the demand to be about sated, the volume of business done during the week was fairly large. There was a reserve on the part of buyers throughout the whole period usually covered by stock preparations for Christmas, that led to the expectation of unwonted activity this week, but while there was a reasonably good trade done this week, the expectation was not fully realized. Orders came in quite freely up to the moment of going to press, but they were merely for express parcels. All the heavy business had plainly been done before the opening of the present week. It is probable that the capacity of the consumptive demand would have been considerably expanded just on the verge of Christmas if the weather had been favorable. As it is, the depressing atmosphere and bad country roads have had a confining effect upon the demand. From the tenor of the current financial reports of most of the houses, it does not seem that there is a sufficiency of loose money in the country to make many holiday spendthrifts this year. Payments are backward, as are deliveries of grain. The prices of most grocery lines reflect the unsatisfactory condition of trade. They still rule low, though are not generally weaker than they were a week ago. The demand, as was to be expected, has run towards special, rather than staple lines. The travellers remained on their routes till the last moment. Fewer were in than usual on last Saturday, which is an indication that business is less voluntary than it might be supposed to be.

CANNED GOODS.

The sales made this week were on the small side both individually and in the aggregate. The strong position into which the market has been drifting farther every week has not been modified. Holders appear to appreciate the value of the stock, the line of division between buyers and sellers tending upwards rather than otherwise, if the results of negotiations between outsiders and local jobbers are to be taken as an index. The ideas of the latter as to the limits of the stock have not been controverted by the appearance of any heretofore undiscovered resources. Prices are steady at points of quotation recorded last week. Round lots of vegetables are held firmly at $1.05 to $1.10, according to brand and ideas of holders, which are entering more strongly into the situation than they were as a distinctly strengthening factor. Tomatoes by themselves in round lots are held for the most part at $1.10, and peas are about equally highly valued. Corn can be bought for $1.05 from all jobbers. The views as to the extent of the corn pack agree pretty well in regarding it as fair-sized. Salmon is steady and rather quiet, at $1.40 and upwards. Lobster is quiet, clover leaf quoting at $2.95, crown at $2.70, and other brands at $1.90 to $2.15. Sardines are firm at prices current, with decided scarcity in Alberts.

COFFEES.

An exceedingly small output is to be credited to the market this week. Buying may be regarded as having been at a standstill throughout the week. Rios range from 18 to 20c. The extent of the stock in local jobbers' hands is limited, as for a long time a break in prices has been looked for, and the replenishing of stocks, particularly in high grades, has been put off in anticipation of this advantage. But it is still in the distance apparently. Javas and Mochas are unchanged, dull and inclined to be easy.

DRIED FRUIT.

A considerable draft was made upon stocks at the end of the last week and the beginning of this, but it was the effect of a large sum of small efforts, rather than of any considerable unfolding of buying power on the part of the retail trade. Currants have been quite steady from a basis of 5¾c. for barrels. Valencia raisins show no tendency towards improvement, but 5¼c. appears capable of buying better stock now than it was a week ago. Prices quoted from London to local importers show that the weakening factors have not exhausted themselves, as stock is now offered at still lower figures than have ruled heretofore. It is said that a very large stock of old fruit held over in England has been put on the market this year as new fruit. The volume and quality of this, along with the greatly shrunken demand for Valencias in the United States, have apparently prostrated prices outside. Fine quality table layers, such as connoisseur clusters, Imperial clusters, etc., have gone out as they usually do at this season, and few of their kind are to be now found on the market. All Malaga raisins are steady at quotations in Prices Current. Dates are becoming scarce. The demand for them has caused some stir among jobbers to get stock. Prices are 5¾ to 6¼c.

NUTS.

The shortage that has been experienced in some lines this season, together with the easy prices in other lines, has led to increased activity in the latter. No Marbots have been shipped here this year, as the crop was a failure. Grenoble and Bordeaux nuts have also been a short crop. The stock of filberts on hand is limited, because of importers holding off to get lower prices in New York. Instead of lowering, prices have gone up 3c. above original quotations.

The New York Daily Commercial Bulletin says:—The report circulated some time ago to the effect that cocoanut trees were rapidly dying out in Baracoa proves to have been pure fiction, and the author has quit New York in disgust for his native isle. Prices for nuts lower, weak and unsettled, with a declining tendency.

RICE AND SPICES.

The sales of rice have been too few and inconsiderable to be worthy of note, and business may be reported as at a standstill. Spices have had some call, but not more than they usually have in Christmas week, when cloves, etc., are in limited request.

SUGAR.

The muster of orders this week has been a very light one, and nobody is surprised that it was not large. All the sugar needed to put retailers over the holidays is commonly laid in before the last week is reached, and that was the case this year. There has been no over-stocking, however, and supplies now in retail hands will not go much farther than the holidays. Buying is consequently expected to be rather freer early in the New Year. The New York market is still weak, the efforts of refiners to tire out the importers of raw being continued, and evidently with success. The price of raw has not, however, been made easier for Canadian refiners, and the situation in this country appears to be reasonably strong. The price of yellow stands hammering very well, but this might be expected even if the situation of holders were less advantageous than it is, for the price of yellow is already exceedingly low. The refiners have recently refused 1.16c. below current prices, and for orders of very large lots. The manufacturers are selling very little sugar, but they seem to think it will pay to hold rather than make further concessions. Yellows are jobbed out here at from 3½ to 4½c., and granulated at 4⅞ to 5c.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Syrups are still neglected. They are exceptionally cheap, but there is plainly an over-production of them. As they are an accidental product of sugar-refining they have to take their chance with the demand, which may at one moment, and may not at another be equal to the absorption of all that is on the market at a given time. The price of Canadian runs from 2¼c. up. Medium grades and brights are very plentiful.

Molasses is quiet. Some sales of fine table grades of New Orleans are reported, but they were small ones. New Orleans ranges from 30 to 50c., and West Indies from 35 to 42c. in barrels.

TEAS.

There is no class of goods in wholesale grocery stocks that is more severely left alone just now than is tea. There has been an almost complete cessation of trade. Retailers usually get all they want before this, as the majority of traders aim to contract no debts at this time except such as are for holiday goods. Stocks of tea on spot are ample and pretty well cover the range of value obtainable this year. Prices rule easy, betokening advantage to the dealer who chooses to replenish supplies now, but that advantage is unlikely to be lost even to those who wait.

MARKETS—Continued.

MARKET NOTES

Mr. Harris, of the Moncton refinery, was in the city last Saturday.

William Ryan finds a considerable demand for terrapins this season, which he sells at $4 to $6 per dozen.

Sicily filberts, guaranteed to be strictly new stock, are in store, having arrived on Monday. They job out at 11 to 11½c.

Lucas, Park & Co. advise the trade:—"Our travellers will be practically off the road until January. Mail us your orders."

Perkins, Ince & Co. have just received a shipment of Cien Fuegos molasses, pronounced equal in quality to good Barbadoes, and held at 35 to 37c. in puncheons.

Mr. John Sloan, of Sloan & Crowther, is on his feet again, and as busy as the times warrant in the firm's new warehouse on the corner of Scott and Front Streets.

Some United States syrups have been shown on this market the past few days, and a few lots have been placed. The price is said to be quite a heavy shade under 2c. per lb.

Holiday delicacies that are having a good demand are Atmore's mince meat put up in pails and glass jars, and Atmore's plum puddings in tins. Caverhill, Rose, Hughes & Co., Montreal, have these goods advertised.

Messrs. P. McIntosh & Son, flour and feed dealers, have moved from their former premises on the south side of the hay market to No. 81 Front St. East. Their place has been taken in the old stand by James McIntosh, who will also do a flour and feed business there.

All peels are still scarce. New orange peel is in particularly small volume. Old is selling at 14 to 15c. New lemon peel is steady at 16c., with 12 to 14c., for last year stock, sugared here. Citron is also hard to get. For all new peels Montreal and Hamilton have been called upon to help fill out local supplies, and thereby exhaustion has been averted.

Scourine soap seems to be gaining a strong hold on public favor as a remover of dirt from bath-tubs, kitchen utensils, paint work, and even oilcloth. It is not used for washing clothes, but principally for cleaning metals. It does its work very effectually, and those who have used it are recommending it very highly. The manufacturers are Messrs. Bourne & Butler, 170 King street west, Toronto.

The practice among United States exporters to this country, of counterfeiting labels and brands of Canadian distillers has grown to such an extent that one firm—Messrs. Walker & Sons, limited, the western Ontario distillers—have decided to invoke the aid of the United States courts to stop a course of action which is calculated to injure their business. The chief offender is a Chicago firm, which has a good rating in the list of business houses issued by a leading commercial agency. Not only are brands and labels of the Walkers counterfeited, but the excise stamp of the Inland Revenue Department is imitated in every respect except that the name A. M. Green is substituted for that of Commissioner Miall. It is thought that a conviction can be secured against the parties referred to.

Mexican Fruit Chewing Gum is getting to be quite a household name, and is especially popular among the young ladies. It is manufactured by C. R. Somerville in London, Ontario, and the trade is increasing so fast that Mr. Somerville has already had to move into larger premises and put in a steam plant for manufacturing. He has secured one of the best gum makers to be had in the United States and is giving a better article than ever to his patrons.

The wholesalers who had to submit to an extra customs levy on salt above a year after it was taken out of bond, are likely to have the satisfaction of establishing the principle they held out for, which is that customs officials should not be authorized to make importers pay for the mistakes the former make. This salt matter was referred to the Customs department at Ottawa, and from there referred to the Collector at Toronto, and now there is talk of refunding the money collected by the extraordinary levy.

PETROLEUM.

The local market is featureless, but easier prices hold for Canadian refined, which now does not quote above 15c.

The Petrolia Advertiser reports: Petrolia crude $1.30 per bl,. Oil Springs Crude $1.30 per bbl. The fact that stocks are not increasing much and the consumption fully maintained at the highest average appears to have no effect on the average refiner, and it has become more than ever patent that the law of supply and demand is a dead letter as regards values in crude petroleum. The price seems to vary with the necessities of the refiner, and an advance can be engineered by one clique when they are assured it will cut the wings of another, or a decline forced when that course is deemed necessary to the same end. Decreasing supplies and smaller productions have no terrors for the manufacturer, who has found that from time to time the most pronounced bull producer is vulnerable to the cry of the "wolf" in the form of a few new wells, new imaginary territory, or the no less feared report of selling by other large holders. There is no change in refined from last week.

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

A fairly good supply of butter is kept up, but a corresponding activity in the demand holds in check the tendency of rather liberal receipts to lower prices. The situation is therefore substantially unchanged so far as prices are concerned. There is a smaller proportion of prime butter now coming to hand, but the volume of medium is swelling, with the increase heavier at the lower end of the scale. There is also more butter which may be classed as low grade, though it does not sink far below the rank of medium. Consignments cover a wider range of quality than they did last week, and purchases of strictly good in lots of any considerable size are not easily got hold of. The quantity of butter received in large rolls increases every week, while the quality does not improve, the turnip flavor being a conspicuous fault still.

Cheese is quiet, but values appear to be 1884

THEN—SURPRISE Soap was first made and sold in a limited territory. But gradually its sale has grown larger and larger.

NOW—Tis for sale all over Canada and used by thousands of families. Its success is no secret. Its the real merit of "Surprise" its economy of use that has done it and will continue to make its sale still larger.

easier, as some dealers are selling choice September at 10½ to 11c. Others want 11½c. for the best.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

APPLES—A good quality of stock has been in considerable local demand this week, fancy fruit selling of course very well. Picked and nicely packed hard fruit runs from $2 to $2.50, with $2.75 paid for very fine apples. Spies, Greenings and King of Tomkins County are in leading request. There is a lull in export activity.

BEANS—Are very dull. Prices in retailers' lots are $1.45 to $1.50. Carloads run from $1.25 to $1.30.

CRANBERRIES—The demand is active at $7.50 to $8 per barrel. The trade has already made a very noticeable inroad upon stocks.

DRIED APPLES—The difficulty of getting buyers is the great hindrance to trade, as prices are low and easy. They run as low as 3⅞ to 4c. f.o.b. west. They job out at 4¼ to 4½c.

EVAPORATED APPLES.—A Montreal house that has been operating for some time is now supposed to have control of the stock of all the evaporating concerns in the country. Some pressure on the market has certainly been withdrawn, as prices have hardened and advanced. It is said that several evaporators and dealers are now short, having engaged to supply stock to the manipulators of the corner when prices were below 6c. Some of these dealers have now to pay over 1c. advance, and it is this movement to cover shorts that makes the price so good just now. As high as 7¼c. has been paid for good stock, but as low as 6⅝c. for part of a car for the Montreal firm in question was paid on Monday. Jobbed out, the price is 7½ to 8c.

EGGS—Fresh are worth 17 to 18c., with the bent of the market towards the lower figure, as supplies have been more liberal the past few days. Limed are dull at 14 to 15c.

GAME—Venison is now out of the market, the legal shooting season having expired. Partridges are in fair supply at 45 to 50c., and rabbits at from 15 to 25c. Soft weather causes a slackening of the demand as well as of the supply.

HIDES—No. 1 green cows' are 4½c. The usual supply has been increased perceptibly by Christmas slaughtering. Cured are very dull at 5c. No cars have changed hands this week.

HONEY—No improvement in the trade is observable. The movement of stock is slow and prices are just holding their own at 8 to 10c. for extracted and 14 to 16c. for sections.

HOPS—There has been a marked recoil of prices to 18 and 22c. as the extreme of the scale. Buyers have not been hovering over the market as they were expected to be, but prices are quite firm at the above quotations.

ONIONS—The weather favors deliveries, and the market has had considerable additions made to stock held last week. Prices range from $2.25 to $2.50.

POULTRY—The experience of open weather in past years on the verge of holidays has been a shrinkage of receipts during the week, until the very last moment, when stock reserved for special prices begins to flow in. This is true of this year. Prices are 9 to 10c. for turkeys, with 11c. asked for very choice, 6 to 7c. for geese, 30 to 50c. for chickens, and 50 to 80c. for ducks. Shippers ought to remember that the law requires the crops to be removed or the fowl may be confiscated.

POTATOES—Are not offering especially freely, but for such as are to be bid for it is hard to get more than 42c. on track. One holder had to put a carload in store because he could find no taker after two or three days' offering at 43c. Another car, however, was sold at 44c. Out of store prices are 50 to 55c. per bag.

SEEDS—More stock came forward during the one or two days of hard weather we had than at any other time since cutting. The roads are now in such a state that threshers cannot be easily moved from farm to farm, and offerings are consequently small. Alsike brings $5.50 to $6.30. Red clover is $5 to $5.25. A spell of cold weather would cause a rush of deliveries now, as the bulk of the stock grown this year is yet in the hands of the farmers.

SKINS—A fair supply of sheepskins is to be reported at 95c. to $1. Calfskins are falling off in delivery at 5 to 7c.

TALLOW—There is no change in the position of tallow, which is dull at 2c. for crude and 5½ to 5¾c. for refined.

WOOL—Business is very flat. The market is scarcely doing anything, and prices are unchanged at 19c. for fleeces.

DRESSED HOGS AND PROVISIONS.

There has been a more general withholding of supplies on the part of sellers and the advantage of a stiffening in values of dressed hogs has been a consequence of this course. Street and rail receipts are both lighter. Several cars have been bought to arrive at $5.40 for select weighis, and $5.45 has been spoken of, with the probability that prices will move to that side of present quotations. For very low weights or extra heavy, the price runs as low as $5.

BACON.—Long clear is quiet at 7¾c., backs at 10c., bellies 10½c., rolls 8¾c.

HAMS - are in light demand at 10½ to 11c.

LARD—is active at 9½ to 9¾c. for pure. There seems to be a reaction from the call for compound, as little of it sells. The easy prices of pure have something, but not all, to do with this.

BARREL PORK—Mess pork is quiet at $13.75 to $14, and short cut at $15.50 to $16.

FRESH MEATS—A special market has existed this week, as choice stock preponderates. The range is consequently wide. For beef, the price of forequarters is 5½ to 7c., hindquarters 7 to 9½c. Mutton is 6½ to 8c., lamb 7½ to 10c., pork 6 to 6¼c. and Christmas veal 8 to 9c.

FISH AND OYSTERS.

The trade in fish has gradually quieted down and now its volume is small. Haddock are plentiful at 5½c., and cod at 8c. Good trout are very scarce, and the price is somewhat firmer. Dried fish are having very little sale, and prices are but nominal. Oysters are brisk and an immense trade is being done. They hold firmly at $1.25 per gallon, with the select selling at $1.50.

SALT.

The trade with the meat curers has not been so brisk, and in all probability will decrease from this time forward. Two cars barrels and two cars sacks have been sold, while quite a large trade is being done in small quantities and at firm prices.

GREEN FRUIT.

There is no acceleration to the demand for Valencia oranges, which this year find formidable rivals as fancy stock in Floridas. The latter furnish fine selections at easier prices and are in request. Valencias quote at $5.25 to $5.50, Floridas at $2.75 to $3.25,

FLOUR AND FEED.

TORONTO, DEC. 24 1891.

There has been nothing to give special character to the trade of the week if the local circumstance of a more active demand for pastry grades of flour and fine grades suitable for fancy baking be excepted. The volume of business in staples has been steady, with no exciting influences in view or immediately in prospect. Values have remained unchanged. The movement of raw material from farmers' hands has been hindered by adverse roads and weather, while prices have not been more inviting than they were.

FLOUR—City millers' and dealers' prices are: Manitoba patents, $5.25; strong bakers', $4.85; Ontario patents, $5; straight roller, $4.75. extra, $4 10 to $4.15; low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.75.

Car prices are: Toronto freights—Manitoba patents, $5.30 to $5.50; Manitoba strong bakers', $4.90 to $5.10; Ontario patents, $4.50 to $5.10; straight roller, $4.10 to $4.15; extra, $4; low grades, per bag, $1.25 to $1.75.

MEAL—Oatmeal is unchanged at $4.10 to $4.25. Cornmeal is $3 to $3.90. An error occurred in last week's report of the cornmeal market, the source of our authority put a 3 for a 4. The price $3 is for Family meal, which is hard to get now, having gone out of use. Gold Dust is jobbed out at $3.90, and sold in carloads at $3.50. Grits are $4, and hominy $4 per. barrel.

FEED—The scarcity of bran is undiminished. The range of prices is $17 to $18. Shorts quote at $18 to $19. Mixed feed is $25 per ton. Cracked corn is $1.35 per cwt. Corn is 65c. per bushel, oats 33½ to 34c., and feeding grads of barley are 48 to 50c.

HAY—Timothy, baled, on track is worth $12 to $12.50. Mixed is quiet at $10 to $10.50.

STRAW—There is no change from $6 and $6.50 for oat.

MONTREAL.

The flour market is dull but holders are not anxious about the future. Stocks are not heavy here while it is generally admitted that supplies in consumers' hands are run down pretty low. Once a move commences therefore buyers will have to pay prices if they are to supply themselves. The stock in store shows a decrease of 11,361 barrels compared with a week ago, and 5,287 barrels compared with a year ago. Patent spring, $5.00 to $5.35; Patent winter, $5 to $5.25; straight roller, $4.65 to $4.80; Extra $4.30 to $4.40; Superfine $4.00 to $4.10; City strong bakers' $5.00 to $5.10; Strong bakers' $4.75 to 5.00.

OATMEAL.—The demand for oatmeal continues dull, but fairly strong. Standard, per bag $2.20 to $2.30; Granulated $2.20 to $2.30; Rolled $2.20 to $2.30.

FEED—The market is firm for feed, bran and shorts, especially. Bran, $17 to $18; shorts $19 to $20, and mouillie, $25.

MARKETS—Continued.

according to size and quality. There are a few Jamaicas left, but they are rather wasty stock and do not sell rapidly. They go at $5.50 and $6. In lemons a moderately good trade is being done at $3.50 to $4 for Malagas in boxes, $7.50 to $8 for Malagas in half chests, and $4.50 to $5 for Messinas. Bananas are now in liberal supply, stock being kept in good condition in banana rooms. The price is $2 to $2.75 per bunch. Pineapples are scarce at $3 per dozen.

DRY GOODS.

Trade in staples has been very good during the past week. and some lines have had a special demand. Money has been more plentiful, and in fact, it is doubtful if payments were ever much better, for this season, than at the present time. The prospects for spring trade are somewhat uncertain, and no decided view is taken by those who are watching the course of trade closely.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Dec 24, 1891.

The week, naturally, has been quiet in wholesale circles, except in such lines as are particularly active at the holiday time. Generally speaking, therefore, there is not much to note, but dried fruit and seasonable lines of green fruit have shown a fair degree of activity in a jobbing way, proving that the anticipatory operations noted in last week's issue were wise and in due season. Other lines are dull and quiet, but no one is surprised at this.

SUGAR, SYRUPS, ETC.

Raw sugar maintains its firm tone and the market is unchanged. Demand is fair, but refiners are not pressing business. Granulated is selling at 4½c. and yellows 3½ to 4⅛c.

Syruys are quiet, and what little movement there is, is in American product, which is selling at 25c. per gallon, while the local product is quoted at 28 to 30c. Some small lots of Barbadoes changed hands during the week at 30c., and there is still a fair demand for New Orleans at 28 to 30c.

TEAS.

The mgrket is quiet for all teas. A few Japans are selling at 15½ to 21c., and low grade blacks are in fair demand as are also gunpowders. No improvement is expected until after the holidays.

COFFEE.

The firm tone to coffee is fully maintained, while supplies here continuing light. Business therefore since our last has been of small volume, We quote Rios 18½ to 20c. Jamaicas 17 to 18c., Maricaibos 19c.

RICE.

There is little business doing on spot, but advices from primary markets are very strong, and the tone here is firm in consequence. We quote:—Patna, $4.50 to $5.00: Japan, $4.75 to $5.00 Standard, $3.90, and off grades $3.50 in car lots.

DRIED FRUIT.

The activity noted in our last was continued until the close of the week, but since then business has been quiet, as jobbers are well supplied. They however are doing a good average business with consumers. Valencia raisins are firm, and unchanged at 5 to 5¼c. for firsts in round lots, and 4⅞ to 5c. for seconds. Currants rule very firm at last weeks figures, viz., 5½c. barrels 5⅝ in half barrels, and 5¾ in cases the market being almost bare of stock.

GREEN FRUIT.

Such green fruit as has been required for the holiday season has been in active demand especially oranges and grapes and the jobbing movement in them has been large. Florida oranges have been in good request at $2.50 to $3.50 per box and what little Valencia stock there was offering went for $4.75 to $5.00 per case. Almeria grapes ruled active and steady at $5 to 5.50 per box and Lemons were quiet, Malagas selling at $5 per chest and Messinas $2.50 to $3.50 per box. Fresh bananas are offering at $2 to $2.10 per bunch.

CANNED GOODS.

There is nothing to say about canned goods worth mentioning. Grocers seem to be well stocked up at present and jobbers find business pretty tame.

FISH.

The holiday week does not mean any extra demand for fish, and none is to mention, business being almost net. Stocks are small however, with holders quite confident of firm values once the movement commences.

APPLES.

The apple market rules firm and unchanged. Car lots are moving at $2,10 to $2.25 and holiday requirements have induced quite a fair jobbing trade at 2.50 to 3 per barrel.

PROVISIONS.

Provisions have been dull and quiet, but there is no change in values to note. Pork is quiet with competition of dressed hogs having effect, and other lines are dull. Canadian meats are quiet and unchanged. Canadian short cut, per brl. $16.00 to $16.25; mess pork, western, per brl. $13.50 to $14.00; short cut, western, per brl. $16.25 to $16.50; hams, city cured, per lb. 10½c. to 11c; lard, Canadian, in pails, 8⅞c. to 9c; bacon, per lb. 9c. to 10c; lard, com. refined, per lb. 7¾ to 8c.

EGGS.

There is no change in eggs, the market moving steadily along at 15 to 16c. for limed stock. No fresh eggs are offering.

POULTRY.

There is a brisk demand for poultry consequent on the holidays but supplies are plentiful. We quote Turkeys 9 to 10c. per. lb.; chickens, 8 to 8½c, fowls 6c. to 7c., geese, 6 to 6½c., ducks 8 to 9½c. Partridges continue in good demand at 40 to 45c. per brace for firsts, and 25 to 30c. per brace for seconds.

DRESSED HOGS.

The demand for dressed hogs is fair, but supplies are plentiful and prices rule easy. We quote values unchanged 5¼ to 5½c. per lb.

BUTTER.

The butter market is firm and values are unchanged. Shipping enquiry has occured for Western dairy and Kamouraska during the week, on the basis of 16 to 17c., and resulted in a considerable clearance. Finest Townships dairy and creamery however, is to firmly held for business in this market, but there is a good jobbing call for them on the basis of 20 to 21c., and 24 to 24½c. respectively.

CHEESE.

Large purchases by a leading shipping house made matters more interesting in cheese during the past week, and now the market is undoubetedly stiff at 11 and a fraction more for finest, on which basis some 6000 boxes have been moved since our last.

GRAIN.

The grain market remains quiet and prices are purely nominal in the absence of business The stocks in store show a decrease of 29,113 wheat, 5.639 peas, 33,426 barley, and an increase of 13,527 oats, compared with a week ago. Compared with a year ago there is an increase of 211,628 wheat, 170,-019 peas, 185,707 barley, and a decrease of 4,929 corn, 57,252 oats, 8,552 rye. We quote:—No. 2 hard Manitoba $1.03 to $1.04; No. 3, do., 97c; No. 2 Northern, $1.04; peas, 75 to 76c. per 66 pounds; oats, 35½c. to 36c. per 34 pounds in store, corn, 72c. duty paid; feed barley, 48 to 50c.; good malting do., 60 to 62c.

ST. JOHN, N. B., MARKETS.

ST. JOHN, N. B., Dec. 23. 1891

Trade still keeps good with the jobbers, though the retailers are complaning, this week should change matters some, their one great drawback is the non-appearance of snow, which always makes a decided improvement to trade at this season of the year. The shop windows already have quite a holiday appearance. The dry goods stores take the lead in that, as usual.

FLOUR—There is nothing new to report in the flour market, holders of stock seem inclined to make concessions to effect sales, though prices are about the same as when last reported. Manitoba $5.95 to $6.05, Ontario high grade $5.30 to $5.35, medium patents $5.10 to $5.20.

MEAL—Our millers have been very short of corn and prices have advanced some. There is a good demand at present quotations, which will likely hold for some time. It is selling at $3.15 to $3.20.

Oatmeal is without change either in price or amount moving.

SUGAR.—There has been a good demand for all kinds of sugar, prices remain steady though some favor the opinion of an upward turn. Granulated is quoted 4½ to 4⅝ yellows 3½ to 3¾, Paris lumps 6 to 6½.

SYRUPS.—in bbls are selling readily at 3 to 3¼.

MOLASSES.—Barbados is the only kind offering and the price is 34½ to 36.

BUTTER.—is in fair demand no change in prices to report.

CHEESE.—are scarce prices are higher quotations given are 10½ to 11.

FISH—Dry fish of all kinds are scarce. Prices are some higher. Cod, large, are quoted at $5 to 5.20 ; medium cod $4.40 to 4.50 ; pollock $2.40 to 2.50 ; smoked herring 10 to 10½ ; mess shad $6.25 ; shad No. 1 $5 to 5.25 ; Eastern herring $3.25 to 3.40 half barrels ; bag herring $1.80 to $2.

BIDE YOUR TIME.

Don't rush. Don't hurry. All things come to him who waits—and works. With the exeeption of dissipation there are more people laid away every year on account of being in too great a hurry than for any other reason. To live is to die ; that is plainly evident to everyone. But there is no reason why we should die as soon as we do, not if we take care of ourselves, and to take care of ourselves is to know how to live. We of this country rush pell mell through life as though we were anxious to see the end of it without losing any time on the way. He who crowds two days' work into one may be able to accomplish the task of two men—for a short time only. We all know, or ought to know, that the best machinery will soon give out if not regularly oiled and regularly given a rest. Iron and steel are made of much tougher and more durable material than mortal man. Those who are in too great a hurry to get rich seldom become rich. If they should happen to amass a fortune, it is at a cost that none are able to afford. Wealth is a very poor substitute for health. Money may make the mare go, but it is not able to create a new man.

It is bad enough in an employer to work without stopping to rest, but it is a great deal worse for a clerk to be in too great a hurry to get ahead, that is if the clerk hopes to succeed in life and amount to anything. A man can accomplish just so much and no more, and the more he takes care of himself, the more he will be able to do and the better able to enjoy the fruits of his labor.—Grocers' Monthly Review.

QUALITY.

There is one important point often lost sight of by retail grocers, and that is that appearance does not count for much in their business, so far as goods are concerned. Cheap and inferior but showy goods may find a ready sale and give satisfaction to consumers in the dry goods trade and in the boot and shoe and other branches of the clothing business, but a grocer runs a very poor chance of succeeding in business if he sells butter, coffee, tea, etc., on their appearance and without regard to the intrinsic merits of the articles. It is true that many customers are particular as to prices, and would rather purchase cheaply than dearly, but as they generally are more fastidious as to what they put into their stomachs than what they wear, it follows that quality is a more important factor in the grocery business than in nearly every other branch of retail trade. To a perception of this fact is chiefly due the success of the most prosperous grocers in this country.

HINTS ON USING THE TELEPHONE.

Some practical hints as to how to use the telephone have recently been published, and some of them are well worth repeating. One man will get right up to the telephone and say what he has to say loud enough to be heard a square away. The next one stands away back and does the same thing, while a third will almost whisper into the instrument. There is only one way to talk through a telephone, and the "central" might be saved a world of trouble and undeserved abuse if all users would carefully learn and follow it. That way is to stand just a little back and talk in an ordinary tone, as if you were speaking to a man a couple of feet away, instead of one or two miles away over a wire. Don't yell, don't whisper ; simply speak in an ordinary tone and distinctly. The words are carried by electricity not by the force of your enunciation. The instrument is not like a deaf man, but on the other hand, is extremely sensitive.—Boston Journal of Commerce.

The Snow Drift Baking Powder Co. greets its business friends in a special Christmas advertisement, which we are sorry to say arrived too late to be placed in that firm's space in our columns.

A fire broke out in Hennings' flour mill in Goderich early on Tuesday morning. The mill was totally destroyed, the loss being about $6,000. There was an insurance of $1,200 in the Ætna company. Cause of fire unknown

ADVERTISING IN VERSE.

In Printer's Ink for Dec. 2, Mr. John S. Grey has an interesting article under the above caption. He says there is "a great difference of opinion as to the efficacy of poetical advertising. A coal dealer or a dentist, for instance, is justified in believing that there is nothing whatever in his business to inspire a writer with a divine afflatus. Yet I have written jingles for both trades with fair success." Continuing he says : Messrs. Macniven & Cameron, the celebrated Scotch pen makers, justly claim to have had the most profitable business verse ever written, while the author of the lines was certainly the best poet of his, or any other, time. The verse alluded to was simply :

They came as a boon and a blessing to men—
The Pickwick, the Owl, and the Waverley Pen.

They were household words, almost, when, in 1886, the Camberwell Ladies' Baths were opened in London, and then came the famous parody, on every dead wall in the English metropolis :

They came as a boon and a blessing to women,
The Camberwell baths for the ladies to swim in.

Some of the most extensively advertised articles have often been done into verse : Pears' Soap, occasionally ; Sapolio, largely ; Pearline, rarely ; Sozodont, and others, all the time.

A poetical advertisement, like a prose one, must be brief to be successful, but it should excel ordinary prose in containing some happy, epigrammatic conceit. If the reader will now pardon my egotism in giving samples of the best of my own work for prominent advertisers, he may possibly gain some insight into how brief verse advertising may be made effective.

The following was written for the Messrs. Cleaver, of London several years ago :

A maiden looks with wistful, envious eyes
On Mary Anderson's bewitching features :
"Oh, what a lovely skin !" she softly cries;
"Surely though art the finest of God's creatures !
For such complexion dare I ever hope ?"
"Yes," murmers Mary "just try Cleaver's Soap !"

It may be here stated that soap manufacturers, with the exception, perhaps, of Frank Siddall, have a decided disposition to advertise in verse, yet what article is so unpoetic in its nature and manufacture ?

Of several hundred poetical squibs which I have written for Sapolio, I consider the subjoined the best of all, for the reason that it appeals in the most insidious manner to the hired girl's tenderest spot—her evenings out :

Two servants in two neighboring houses dwelt,
But differently their daily labors felt.
Jaded and weary of her life was one,
Always at work, and yet 'twas never done.
The other walked out evenings with her beau,
But then, she cleaned house with Sapolio !

I believe Mr. Ward's favorite among my contributions to Sapolio literature was this, written in England five years ago :

"Oh, wad some power the giftie gie us
To see oursel's as ithers see us."
That power which Bobby Burns would know
Is furnished in Sapolio ;
For, used on pewter, brass, or delf,
Like others, you can see yourself !

My only objection to the above is that the leading idea is borrowed, and as an adaptation it should not rank with an entirely original production.

Enough of soap—though, had I space, I would like to give some Pearline lines and verses I have written for Santa Claus Soap. My object, however, is to show a diversity of businesses.

Turning now to the various trades, I give some examples of jingles which any person is at liberty to use or adapt for use. Here is a squib for a butcher :

Beef, mutton, veal and lamb,
Poultry, pork and mildest ham,
Best and cheapest on the street
For those who have to make ends meet.
My reputation is at steak
And thus a living I would make.

With a grocer's advertisement for tea I will conclude this article :

A rich, appetizing T,
A truly surprising T,
A saving, not wasting—
Beautiful tasting—
Very fine flavored T.

A well-recommended T,
Judiciously blended T,
Comforting, pleasing,
Always appeasing—
Best sort of household T.

"Wm. T. Hunter, successor to John Hunter & Son," is the new sign over the door at the corner of James and Barton streets, Hamilton. This change is mutually agreeable, the elder Hunter having done a very successful trade in groceries for the past ten years, and retires upon a well-earned competency, while the son, a young man full of energy and push, takes on the full proprietorship of the large business established by the firm, with full confidence in his ability to succeed in the future as in the past.

HAVE YOU A GOOD CLERK ?

If you have a bad one, either get rid of him at once, as he is driving business away from your store, or else make a good one of him by giving him your copy of THE CANADIAN GROCER to read each week. It will pay you to do this. One reader of this valuable journal says :—Do you ever let your clerks read THE GROCER ? No ! Well, take the advice of another, and let them take it home some night, and let them read it. Where is the benefit ? you ask. They will take more interest in your business. Your business will become their business. They will know more about the grocery business, and will be encouraged and benefited generally by what they read. New ideas will help them to make greater sales, to say nothing of the way you will rise in their estimation for the interest you display in their behalf.

There is hardly a single issue of THE CANADIAN GROCER that does not contain something of interest and value, not only to the clerk, but to his employer, and it is by reading and following up these articles carefully, which are generally the experiences of successful business men, that both clerk and employer may hope to be benefited—in other words, successful.

If you think it worth your while to send copies to your clerks specially, we will give you cheap rates. In any case make them read it carefully and we feel sure the result will be at once apparent in increased interest in your business and increased trade at your counter.

The mental aliment that is necessary to keep a salesman's business knowledge constantly refreshed must be supplied from the very fountain head of trade-information. Imparted at second-hand it is not nearly so telling in its effect. THE GROCER should therefore be read carefully by every employe whose business it is to sell goods. Each week it presents a full market bulletin, which ought to be an instalment of new power to the subordinate as to the principal salesman. Reading maketh a full man. How much more fully equipped to do business is he who can talk instructively to a customer about the most recent developments in the sugar market, about the position of canned goods stock, about the scarcity of peels or the endless interesting facts that crop up in successive market reports ! The salesman who can do this is an engaging man to have wait on one, and the curiosity of customers is never stalked. Various other descriptions of facts that do not enter into a market report are supplied every week, and it would be a pity that the medium of them should be a sealed book now to the future proprietors of the grocery stores of the country. Allow, nay, encourage the clerks to read thoughtfully every issue of the paper, and we guarantee that when the biographical sketches of the next relay of successful business men come to be written, one great cause to which their success will be assigned will be the CANADIAN GROCER, THE GROCER practises what it preaches. It would not have the influence it has to-day if every one connected with it were not a reader of the best trade papers that are issued for the improvement of publishers, journalists and printers. In the same way, all salesmen would find the very best basis of self-improvement to be the habit of reading every issue of THE GROCER, with the conscientious object of being a fully informed man upon the chosen business of his life.

Principals would be advancing their own interests by getting every clerk to read every issue of THE GROCER completley through. If the employer cannot spare his copy, he ought to subscribe for another to be sent to his clerk or clerks, and if the latter cannot get it otherwise, they will increase their own efficiency, and make their services in demand by becoming subscribers themselves.

Speaking of fraternity, we doubt if there is a class of men more closely bound together in ties of friendship than the newspaper men. They may abuse each other in their papers—abuse in a Pickwickian sense—but personally they respect and honor one another. We are reminded of this by the manly stand taken by J. B McLean, President of the Company publishing THE CANADIAN GROCER, Toronto. Last week we published a letter from his paper, denouncing the interference with the New England Grocer by the New Brunswick customs authorities, and we have before us, at this writing, a letter from his hand, in which he says that as "Secretary-Treasurer of the Canadian Press Association I will try to get the Association to bring its influence to bear on the Department in favor of legitimate trade papers, such as yours is." If the grocers would pull together in this way they might accomplish wonders.—New England Grocer.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS.

A question that every storekeeper should ask himself and proceed as quickly as posible to answer is: How low can I reduce the cost of doing business? This is a good time to consider this subject, because at the New Year it is customary to take the inventory and figure out the profits—if any—and the cost of store service, rent, &c., thus affording an opportunity to get at the exact expense of doing business. As to the percentage of cost on the annual sales, it depends upon how many times the stock has been turned over. Here is where the energetic and enterprising dealer has the advantage, turning over his stock perhaps two or three times more in the year than the general run of retailers. These latter may pay just as much for rent, for fuel, light, insurance, for horses and their keep, while turning over their stocks four times per annum, as the dealer who succeeds in doing so six times or more Their clerk hire and advertising expenses will probably be less, but these differences will be comparatively small compared with the much greater profits of the exceptional storekeepers. Clerks cut a considerable figure in the extension of a retail business. Two first-class, willing, polite assistants, who take an interest in the business, will sell more goods and make more new patrons for the store than twice as many inferior clerks who are constantly troubled by the fear that they will do too much for their wages. Consequently it behooves the ambitious merchant to take pains in selecting assistants in the store, to carefully instruct them and treat them well, and above all pay them a fair salary. All of the poor clerks in the business, that is to say, those who are beyond improvement and incorrigibly incapable, should be weeded out, but that valuable aid to the dealer—the willing, capable clerk—should receive better treatment than he occasionally gets.

Let your aim be to increase the volume of your sales without injuriously affecting prices, and at the same time keeping the percentage of cost as low as possible. Little leaks, the innumerable outlets for hard-earned cash, affect the percentage of cost of doing business in too many stores, and cannot be neglected without detriment to the profits of the dealers. The neglect to examine and weigh, measure or gauge everything that is purchased, is a common source of leakage by which the percentage of cost is increased.

The extremely penurious merchant often defeats his own attempts to enlarge his trade by a more rapid turnover of the stock, owing to a sort of constitutional disinclination to spend a cent to make a dollar. Liberal expenditures for improved store fixtures, for an effective delivery service and for judicious advertising, will, other things being equal, produce an expanded trade and larger net profits, while at the same time the percentage of cost of doing business will be reduced. The points to which we have alluded deserve attention at the close of the year, and we hope that our remarks will bear fruit.—Merchants' Review.

THE THREE ESSENTIAL QUALITIES IN A CLERK.

"The Northwest Trade of this city, says the Minneapolis Times, recently invited answers from subscribers to a series of questions propounded to them, varying from an inquiry into the state of the roads to a feeler as to their thoughts on the subject of store loungers. One of the questions asked was, 'what are the three most essential qualities in a clerk?' and the answers to this question are instructive. There is a uniformity about them which suggests that here is a subject on which all men of business agree. It may surprise some to learn that country merchants are not looking for clerks who are 'smart;' none of them yearn for young men who have been to college, and none of them even mention that a successful clerk must be a successful liar. One merchant writes: 'The three important qualities in a clerk are honesty, politeness and cleanliness;' another says 'honesty and politeness and attention to displaying goods attractively;' a third names 'honesty, sobriety and faithfulness;' a fourth, 'honesty, civility, industry;' a fifth, 'honesty, kindness and patience without end;' a sixth, 'honesty, civility and industry.' So the whole series runs. Every merchant in the list wants his clerks to be honest. Every one thinks it of advantage that his clerks should be patient and polite, and each one demands that they attend strictly to business. These answers have a hopeful sound, because their sentiments are as binding on the principal as on the agent. We take it that every merchant who writes to The Northwest Trade is up on the precepts he enunciates. There can be no sanded sugar in these stores, for the clerk who does such a trick earns his discharge in the act. The politeness inculcated in these letters must also pervade the business houses presided over by the letter writers and this assures the clerks their rights as citizens. They cannot be imposed upon by their employers any more than they can be permitted to juggle for the rights of customers. And as honesty and politeness are the universal rule, so too is attention to business as taught by example and precept. There is no reason why the merchants should not take these lessons home to themselves as well as preach them to others, and as the country merchant is as consistent a being as his contemporary in any other line, no doubt they are."

CERTIFICATES OF STRENGTH AND PURITY.

OFFICE OF THE PUBLIC ANALYST,

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Co., Montreal:

GENTLEMEN,—I have personally taken samples from a large stock of your Granulated Sugar, "REDPATH" brand, and carefully tested them by the Polariscope, and I find these samples to be as near to absolute purity as can be obtained by any process of Sugar-Refining.

The test by the Polariscope showed in yesterday s yield 99·90 per cent. of Pure Cane Sugar, which may be considered commercially as ABSOLUTELY PURE SUGAR.

JOHN BAKER EDWARDS, P.L.D., D.C.L., F.C.S.,

Public Analyst for the District of Montreal, and Professor of Chemistry.

CHEMICAL LABORATORY, MEDICAL FACULTY, MCGILL UNIVERSITY.

MONTREAL, September 9th, 1887.

To the Canada Sugar Refining Company:

GENTLEMEN,—I have taken and tested a sample of your "EXTRA GRANULATED" Sugar, and find that it yielded 99·88 per cent. of Pure Sugar It is practically as pure and good a Sugar as can be manufactured.

Yours truly,

G. P. GIRDWOOD.

It is well-known

That successful Doctors read all the latest medical books and papers and go abroad occasionally to study. Successful lawyers read legal publications to learn the latest legal decisions and points constantly cropping up. Teachers, clergymen, druggists, architects, all read the publication issued in the interests of their profession. They must do so to keep up with the times.

The same applies to grocers and general merchants. They must not only read the best papers published in their interests but must also watch the advertisements closely. There they learn the rise and fall in prices; latest trade news and methods of buying, handling and selling goods, so that they may make the greatest profit. A doctor reads much that he already knows, so does a lawyer. So does a number of any of the other professions. So will a merchant. It is often the issue of the paper he misses that is worth dollars to him. His best and safest policy, therefore, is to subscribe for his trade paper.

The only exclusively grocery and general store paper is THE CANADIAN GROCER issued weekly, subscription price $2 00 per year.
